DESCHANEL PRESIDENT.

France Gives Him Big Majority.

Polls the Largest Vote Since Thiers was Chosen Head of Republique.

Defeat of Clemenceau is not Considered as Event of Political Importance.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

VERSAILLES, Jan. 17.—Paul Deschanel was elected President of the French republic today by 734 votes of the 891 members of the National Assembly voting. His majority was the largest since the election of Louis Adolphe Thiers, first President after the fall of the empire, who was chosen unanimously.

The result was certain since the caucus of yesterday at which Deschanel was chosen the candidate of the Senate and Chamber of Deputies, comprising all the various parties.

The feeling among the Senators and Deputies was that the new President should come into power with a title that would give him the necessary authority to speak impressively for France. The general opinion is that, while Deschanel succeeds to the Presidency by such outstanding services as those rendered by Premier Clemenceau, he is admirably adapted for the delicate work which requires careful tact, and above all, a safe mask.

The proceedings, as provided by the constitution, were formal. However, the members of Parliament who had joined in a great outpouring of sentiment when former Premier Deschanel, who is generally credited with a large share in the victory of M. Deschanel, declared a triumph of friends. "France and liberty continue."

EFFORT PLEDGED.

In balloting Leon Bourgeois, president of the National Assembly, in advance of congratulation to President-elect, pledging him the support of France. He mentioned Deschanel's public services, particularly during the war, "showing a life of admirable unity consecrated, like your work, to the cult of liberty."

Deschanel replied:

"The National Assembly, in calling to the Presidency of the republic the president of the Chamber of Deputies, wished to mark its profound attachment for those Parliamentary institutions which in the course of history showed their suppleness and their worth. As a faithful guardian of them, I will seek to apply the spirit in letter and in spirit to the loyal and perfect, in close accord with the nation's representatives and the institutions.

"The hopes of 1918 were not extinguished and it is necessary to overcome the difficulties that remain by strict application of the treaty of Versailles, by development of our alliances and friendships, by the union of all the forces that incomparable people, heroism and sacrifice saved the world, to surmount all obstacles and overcome that they be thoroughly conscious with and are told the truth.

DANIELS IS ASSAILED.

Admiral Sims Has Long Complaint.

Senate Committee Given Detailed Story of Blunders During War.

Declares U-Boat Harvest was Due to Lack of Strategy in Navy Department.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Admiral Sims told the Senate committee investigating naval decorations today that he had recommended for decorations five times as many officers who served at sea during the war as he had officers who served on shore. He made this explanation, he said, to correct an impression apparently widely held that he favored the decoration of officers detailed to shore duty more than those who served at sea.

The admiral also read a letter he wrote to Commander D. W. Bagley, expressing great regret that Secretary Daniels should "have been so badly advised in this matter of awarding a Distinguished Service Medal to Commander Bagley."

"I am very sorry that you should be placed in such an unfavorable light after your fine destroyer service in the war zone," the letter said, "and I feel sure that if you had been consulted in the matter you would have taken steps to avoid this.

GENERAL CRITICISM.

"The criticisms in the press attack on the Secretary, particularly for awarding the D.S.M. to you and all those who commanded vessels that were torpedoed during the war."

Admiral Sims told the committee he wrote this letter after he had written Secretary Daniels criticising the circumstances of some of the awards.

Admiral Sims said that when he was ordered to England in March, 1917, just before the United States entered the war, he was instructed by the Navy Department "not to let the British pull the wool over your eyes," and that "we would just as soon fight the British as the Central Powers."

LACK OF CO-OPERATION.

The Admiral also charged that American naval headquarters in London did not receive co-operation from the Navy Department and that the department did not arrive at any decided plan of action until ten months after he arrived in London. He added that "it was ten months before we really came to the aid of the Allies or acted on their recommendations."

Admiral Sims's further testimony was in the form of a letter to Secretary Daniels, entitled "Some Naval Lessons of the Great War," which Mr. Daniels received several days ago. The letter criticised the department for attempting to administer the details of action by the American naval forces overseas and alleged that the department demanded that it be permitted to pass fully on all plans, even those regarding action against the enemy.

As soon as he arrived in London, the letter said, Admiral Sims realized that the Navy Department did not comprehend the seriousness of the submarine menace, due to the insufficient scope of the American intelligence service.

"After a general discussion of Navy Department in April, 1917," the letter said, "shows that the situation was very serious and that the enemy was rapidly winning the war by the destruction of merchant shipping. Throughout the following year numerous cables and letters of the most urgent possible character were sent with the object of impressing on the department the vital neces-

SAYS REPUBLICANS WILL SWEEP NEVADA.

RENO CONFERENCE RESULTED IN UNITING PARTY FOR FIGHT, ASSERTS LEADER.

"The Republican party was born anew in Nevada at the regional conference we have just held at Reno," said State Chairman Raymond Benjamin yesterday, as he discussed the enthusiasm which marked this meeting. He predicted that Nevada will be in the Republican column at the next Presidential election—for the first time in its history.

"In the face of inharmonies and former factional differences, Nevada Republicans today stand united," he said. "The enthusiasm was remarkable. People came from all parts of the State. Some of them had to travel by way of Los Angeles, and others by way of Salt Lake City, to reach Reno, but they were determined to be there.

"Local difficulties were swept away, and plans were made for a united organization and thorough work in every section of the State. Mr. Hays simply swept the people off their feet in his clear and striking portrayal of the Republican party and its purposes.

"After a general discussion of Nevada affairs, troubles were smoothed out and February 14 was set as the date for perfecting the entire State organization.

"A resolution was adopted, urging the Governor of Nevada to call a special session of the State Legislature before February 9 for the purpose of ratifying the national suffrage amendment."

INITIATIVE FOR STATE PUBLICITY.

November Ballot to Give Opportunity for Voting on Advertising.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 17.—Initiative petitions to place on the November ballot a measure calling for the establishment of a State Department of publicity and an appropriation of $100,000 a year to advertise California throughout the world are to be circulated under the auspices of the Northern California Hotel Association of San Francisco.

A similar measure was passed by the last Legislature but it was pocket vetoed by Gov. Stephens. It would be the duty of the proposed department, according to John F. She, secretary of the association, to conduct a world-wide campaign to advertise the scenic wonders, climate, highways and resources of California. She says the move to initiate the measure is indorsed by civic organizations in all parts of the State.

BIG RALLY FOR G.O.P.

Local Republicans Greet Hays.

National Chairman is Met by Men, Women from Every County in Southland.

Keynote of Coming Campaign Sounded by Speakers at Great Party Banquet.

Republican men and women, enthusiastic for the success of the G.O.P. and the principles for which it stands, poured into Los Angeles from all of the eight counties south of the Tehachepi Mountains early yesterday. They came to greet Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican National Committee, and members of his party, who are holding regional conferences throughout the entire West.

In the visiting party were Chairman Will H. Hays, Mrs. C. A. Severance of Topeka, Kan.; Mrs. Margaret Hill McCarter of St. Paul, Minn.; Raymond Benjamin, California State chairman and regional director for the nine Western States; Albert Lindley of Stockton, regional director of finances; E. H. Brown of San Francisco, assistant regional director of finances, and Maurice McKenzie, secretary to Chairman Hays.

Mr. Hays and some members of his party came here directly from Reno, Nev., yesterday morning, the other members having previously arrived. The visitors were greeted at the Southern Pacific station by a local committee of prominent Republicans and escorted to the Alexandria. Immediately thereafter conferences began between the national leaders and Southern California Republicans, and plans were laid for one of the most stirring political campaigns this part of the Pacific Coast has ever witnessed.

From 3 to 4 o'clock an informal reception was held on the mezzanine floor of the Alexandria in honor of Chairman Hays and the other members of the visiting party. Hundreds of Los Angeles and Southern California Republicans took this occasion to personally greet Mr. Hays and express their appreciation of his organization campaign.

During the day the women members of the party, Mrs. Severance and Mrs. McCarter, conferred with local Republican women and outlined plans for action.

Last night there was a veritable lovefeast of Republicanism at the banquet held at the Broadway Store cafe. Four hundred representative Republican men and women of Southern California were at the table. They were from every county of this part of the State. For the speaking, many more filled the spaces available, and the tributes to the Republican party for its past accomplishments and its plans for the future brought forth rounds of applause.

Joe Crail was toastmaster, and he was in his happiest vein. He spoke of the perfect harmony that is permeating the ranks of the Republican party, and declared the country is determined to bring to an end the Democratic mismanagement and extravagance.

All speakers except the national chairman were limited to five minutes, but in this brief time Mrs. Severance and Mrs. McCarter, State Chairman Benjamin; Mr. Lindley, and Mr. Brown, members of the visiting party, made telling hits, as they set forth the programme of organization for a campaign that will sweep the Republican party into control of national affairs.

Mr. Benjamin dwelt on the necessity for thorough organization and Mr. Lindley on the finances. Mrs. McCarter declared the necessity of reaching the women of California and of urging upon them their duty to participate in political affairs as a matter of home protection and of patriotism.

Mrs. Florence Collins Porter, California member of the Executive Committee of the women's division of the Republican party, introduced Mrs. C. A. Severance, and spoke of the work which the women of California have already undertaken for the Republican party and of the purpose of the women visitors to carry to States in which the suffrage for women is a new thing the methods used so successfully in California.

Mrs. Severance, Minnesota, member of the executive committee of the woman's division of the national Republican organization, spoke on "What the Women Bring to the Republican Party," and gave a stirring portrayal of the high ideals and opportunities for service, which the party offers to the women of America, and their response in enrollment under its banners.

She said the women will bring to the Republican party the splendid training acquired through the momentum of war organization, in which they took so important a part, and that they come to the party not as office seekers, but with high patriotic purposes; that they have proved they have a genius for co-operation and organization, and that it may be expected that hundreds of women's organizations will, practically bodily, come under the folds of the Republican banner.

"We have learned, in all the past years during which the franchise was denied us, to fully co-operate with the men that God has given us; and now we will fully co-operate with the man that the Republican party gives us," declared the speaker.

"We bring to the party interest and pep and vision and knowledge and in serving the Republican party we serve our country—it is

"For Patriotism in Peace!"

Will H. Hays.

PUNCHES FROM HAYS' SPEECH.

Following are telling paragraphs from the speech delivered by Will H. Hays, chairman of the National Republican Committee, at the banquet in his honor at the Broadway Store cafe last evening:

I plead for a patriotism in peace as well as in war. I insist that we have not merely that patriotism born of extremities, which burns in the souls of men not only when their country is in danger, but the patriotism of good citizenship at the fireside, the plow, the mart, in low places and in high places, in season and out of season. Let us have the patriotism which moves men and women to make their contribution to the common welfare, which subjugates their own business and in private times of peace interests themselves continually in the practical politics of their community. Good government can be attained in no other way.

There is a saturnalia of individual extravagance in this country. Every place we find it. I urge the practice on the part of all of the strictest individual economy consistent with the proper development of present-day needs and possibilities. Another great lesson of the war is industry and thrift. This is not a political matter in any sense. Every possible effort must be made by government, by group and by individual to reduce the cost of living in this country. It is the one problem today touching all of our people. Where the government by legislative, by executive or by judicial action can function properly in that direction, such action is our first duty, and there must be no shirking or temporizing in discharge of that duty.

* * * * *

There is in this country a religious faith which believes in the divine origin of the Constitution of the United States. I approve the direction of the thought and recommend the appreciation. The time is here when our heel must be in the ground. Law and order shall reign in this country. We are the freest government on the face of the earth, and our strength rests on our patriotism. Anarchy flees before patriotism. Peace and order and security are safe so long as enough love of country dominates in the hearts of our people. But liberty does not mean license. Liberty to make our laws does not give us license to break them. Liberty is responsibility, and responsibility is duty, and that duty is to preserve the exceptional liberty we enjoy within the law and by the law without any temporizing or any compromize whatsoever. "Liberty is fire on the hearth; license is fire on the floor."

* * * * *

Everywhere the people, regardless of past party affiliations, are looking for Republican success, in order:

(1.) That we may make certain that we have an efficient, economical, honest business administration of the country's affairs.

(2.) That there may be developed and executed a plan for the reduction of taxes; that taxes which kill initiative be not levied, and that the payment of the great war debt may be distributed over a large number of years.

(3.) That there may be developed a better relation between labor and capital, with justice to both and with justice to the third side of the triangle—the public, which must not be forgotten.

(4.) That we may make certain that there is an administration of law and order everywhere in the nation.

All to this end we shall have a forward-stepping as well as a forward-looking programme for labor, for business and for the farmer.

SAYS UNION LABOR IS SUGGESTING A REVOLT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Although anti sedition legislation is held up in the House Rules Committee, the subject came up on the floor today when Representative Huddleston, Democrat, charged that agitation for such legislation had "originary talk to stop," he said.

"It is time for all this revolutionary talk to stop," he said.

YELLOW, FADED CONSTITUTION AND DECLARATION TO COMBAT RADICALS IN A FILM CAMPAIGN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Recent activities of radical propagandists led Secretary Lansing this week to display for the first time in eighteen years the original parchment of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States.

In the presence of a group of officials, the parchments were removed from the protection of the walls of a steel safe inclosing them, and placed on view in the State Department for an hour, while motion picture cameras recorded their appearance for the benefit of the 110,000,000 persons living under the principles enunciated by them.

Theaters from Maine to California and from the Gulf of Mexico to Canada will exhibit the films in the coming week in an effort "to remove from the public mind in every city, town and village any possible effects of recent Red activities."

Owing to their age, exhibition of the parchments is a rare event. Exposure to light, even though each causes additional fading of the ink by hermetically sealed glass plates, causes additional fading of the ink inscribing the immortal words which brought the republic into being.

TO STILL RED CLAMOR.

It was only the hysterical clamor of radical agitators, which caught the ear of many local citizens because of the reaction, that in-

LIFTING BLOCKADE KNOCKS PROP FROM UNDER SOVIET

Bolsheviki no Longer Can Blame Failure of Socialism to Allies, Hoover's View; Predicts Collapse.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Removal of the blockade on soviet Russia has knocked one of their "greatest props" from under the Bolsheviki, Herbert Hoover said in a statement here tonight.

Speaking from his knowledge of world conditions, the former director of European relief said the soviet government had laid every failure of socialism on the blockade and used it as a stimulus for raising armies, on the ground that the Russians were fighting to save themselves from starvation. With the blockade removed in large part, Mr. Hoover said, the "Bolshevik tyranny" will face collapse when it fails to relieve suffering.

Mr. Hoover thought Russia had no commodities—wheat, flax or cotton—for export, since starvation is acute in the larger cities and the people almost in rags. The peasants were said to have sufficient food.

"I believe the removal of the blockade will take out from under the Bolsheviks one of their greatest props," said Mr. Hoover. "For the past year they have laid every failure of Socialism onto the blockade. They daily and hourly blamed the Allied blockade for the shortage of food, clothing and agricultural implements and the misery that has arisen therefrom, and they have succeeded in impressing this upon an ignorant people. They have also used it as a stimulus to raise armies under the contention that they are fighting to save themselves from starvation.

"These shortages and this suffering is not due to the blockade, but to the total industrial demoralization and bankruptcy in production, which will continue as long as Socialism and the Bolshevik rule lasts. If the blockade is opened the Bolshevik government must secure the support of food and clothing at once and thereby great suffering will be mitigated.

STARVING IN CITIES.

"The acute starvation is in the larger cities; these will be the areas that must receive imported food. The peasants have food enough at home. But, after a few months, when they have exhausted the fifty or seventy-five million dollars in gold and securities which they have remaining from the amounts they have stolen from the banks, then they will need to export commodities in exchange for inward goods. No one is going to give them credit. They have no commodities to export without causing further suffering to their people. They cannot export wheat when the population is hungry, nor cotton or flax when they are in rags. Their imports will then automatically cease.

"GREATEST BLOW."

"The greatest blow they can receive is to have such an exposure of the complete foolishness of their industrial system to their people. Moreover lifting of the blockade will allow the real truth of the horror of Bolshevik rule to come out of Russia.

"One thing that needs to be guarded against in the United States is that our frontier and port officers must redouble their vigor against the export to us of Bolshevik agents, propaganda, and money for subsidizing criminals to create revolution.

"The Bolsheviki also ought to be called upon to recognize the frontier of Poland and Russia as settled by many kinds for exchange with first comers of any and every nationality. They must terminate the speculation concerning the degree of recognition of the soviet government as implied in the Supreme Council's decision despite its announcement that the arrangement implies "no change" in the policy of the Allied governments toward the soviet government. There must of necessity, it was pointed out, be soviet authorities in control of Russian entre ports who will come in contact with foreign traders and their authority will have to be recognized at least as de facto.

AMERICA HOLDS ALOOF.

America will not participate in inter-Allied conferences at Paris having in view military measures that might be taken against Bolshevik occupation of the Trans-Caspia and the soviet menaces to the Caucasus, Persia and India. Ambassador Wallace at Paris it was said authoritatively today, had received no instructions authorizing him to take part in such deliberations. This government has been observing for some months the development of a strong militaristic organization in

AMERICAN BLOCKADE HOLDS

Supreme Council Decision on Russia Does not Affect United States.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Decision of the Supreme Council announced at Paris to break down the economic blockade of Russia came as a surprise to this government, which was not consulted on the question. America was not a party to the block ade arrangement, but, in consonance with the Allied policy, placed an embargo upon shipping to Bolshevik ports, and this embargo has not yet been released. Officials declared today, however, that early action by this government would be necessary on account of the Allied decision.

It was remarked by high authority today that the policy of the United States always had been in favor of assisting the Russian people if measures could be devised that would prevent the soviet government from expropriating such necessaries as might be sent into Russia. The soviet government, it was said further, could not be trusted to let such supplies alone, having the power to requisition them and needing the supplies for military purposes.

The reopening of extensive tradal operations between Russia and Germany immediately after the exchange of ratifications of the Versailles Treaty by Germany and the Allied Powers is believed to have hastened the decision of the Supreme Council. It was announced at Stettin, Germany, on January 12, that the blockade of the Baltic was lifted on February 12, last, and that already German ships had sailed from Baltic ports.

VERKHNIE-UDINSK (Trans-Baikal) Monday, Jan. 5.—Admiral Kolchak, head of the all-Russian government, is being held here by social revolutionaries, who have formed a new government and have demanded his written retirement. The Allied representatives have requested Maj.-Gen. Jules Janin, commander of the Czechs, to safeguard his person.

PEKING, Thursday, Jan. 15.—An undated dispatch from Verkhnie-Udinsk, across Lake Baikal from Irkutsk, says that the social revolutionaries are completely in control of Irkutsk and the fighting has stopped. The armored trains of Gen. Semenoff have retired to Lake Baikal. Ernest L. Harris, the American Consul-General at the seat of the all-Russian government, is on his way to Chita, 400 miles east of Irkutsk, with his staff.

WARSAW, Friday, Jan. 16.—Bolshevik forces on the Lithuanian and Ruthenian front have been beaten and are retreating east of Dvinsk, according to an official statement issued at General Staff Headquarters.

The Lettish and Polish front now runs along the shore of Preil Lake and thence to Czereg, the report says.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—Fighting is proceeding in the streets of Irkutsk, says a Moscow wireless report received here.

HALF YANKEES SOON QUIT SIBERIA.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

VLADIVOSTOK, Thursday, Jan. 8.—Within a fortnight 3600 of the 8000 men of the American Expeditionary Force in Siberia will leave Vladivostok for Manila, according to Maj.-Gen. William S. Graves, commanding the force, who today announced the War Department's order to move his command to Manila.

Anticipating the evacuation order and also recognizing the transportation debacle existing in the interior of the country Gen. Graves a week ago ordered the detachments along the Suchan main railroad and on the Passkoe, Usuri and Trans-Baikal sectors of the trans-Siberian railroad, to move to Vladivostok.

The transport Great Northern, due here January 11, will take 1500 of the Twenty-seventh Infantry in the Passkoe sector. The Sheridan, due to arrive on the 14th, will take 1300 troops from the Suchan district. In addition two transports will be held at Manila awaiting orders from Gen Graves to proceed to Vladivostok to meet the main body of the Twenty-seventh Infantry, approximately 2000 men, under Col. Morrow, from the trans-Baikal district.

The Thirty-first Infantry, approximately 2500 men, will leave after the departure of the troops from the railroad districts, probably early in March.

JOURNEY'S END FOR SOVIET ARK

Deported Radicals Soon to Reach Soviet Home.

But One Way They go is a "Path to Death."

Jeopardized in Baltic by Many Floating Mines.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

HANGO (Finland) Jan. 17.—The 249 undesirable aliens deported from the United States and brought here yesterday by the United States army transport Buford for remashipment to Russia were taken off the transport today and marched to the special train which will carry them to the Russian frontier. The radicals were kept between decks from the time the Buford docked until they left the vessel.

HELSINFORS (Finland) Friday, Jan. 16.—Finnish authorities have informed the soviet government of Russia of the plan to send Alexander Berkman, Emma Goldman and their comrades across the border, but no reply has as yet been received from the Bolsheviki. The Finnish communication requested that the Bolshevik troops cease firing when the party makes its appearance. The Russians deported from America will be placed on board locked cars and taken to Terijoki, about two miles from the frontier, accompanied by a Finnish military guard and a detachment of American marines.

TWO WAYS OPEN.

There are two ways of entering soviet Russia. The first is across a bridge near Terijoki, where the Bolsheviki and Finnish lines are drawn along the banks of a little river. The other is farther north, toward Reuta, where the respective lines are separated by a thick forest. The former is the more direct route, and, if used, the American Reds will safely reach soviet territory. The other is known as "the route of death," owing to the large number of political prisoners who have been dispatched in the forest after having been deported. People of Finland, acquainted with the history of deportations, are keenly interested to learn which route will be chosen.

PERSISTENT EMMA.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

HANGO (Finland) Friday, Jan. 16.—The United States army transport Buford, having on board 248 radicals deported from America, arrived here at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Finnish pilots could not dock the vessel and a German pilot was summoned.

Alexander Berkman and Emma Goldman, who have been considered the leaders of the deportees, have declared they will not remain in Russia, but will "return to America to save it." The Reds on board the Buford will be taken to the Russian frontier by United States labor bureau and immigration officials.

After the Buford had been docked, Berkman and Miss Goldman led a procession of radicals down the gangplank. A large number of persons assembled on the wharf, gazing curiously at the landing. The Reds made up a motley throng, their faces full of curiosity as to what their future might be, while there were traces of anxiety lest they might be attacked after they had left the protection of their American guardians. Finnish authorities will look after the safety of the deportees.

IN MINE FIELDS.

During the three-day journey from Kiel to Hango the voyage was dangerous in the extreme because mines in the Baltic have not been removed by the German government. An expert German pilot named Schmidt was in charge of the vessel, swinging the ship around in wide curves or turning sharp angles. Once he stopped during the night while the rudder chains wound with a fearful sound. Matters became worse the second night out when a mysterious and mutilated wireless message was received ordering a different port of debarkation than had been originally planned. This caused a delay in landing here.

Officers of the Buford were exceedingly fatigued after their long voyage. The ship is capable of making only nine knots in smooth weather. The hold back the destroyer which convoyed the vessel across the Atlantic.

MONOTONOUS LIFE.

The Bolsheviki on board led a monotonous life, which was made more irksome because of stormy weather when they could not be given their daily exercise on deck. After the Buford left Kiel, however, the weather cleared up and the deportees were on deck for long periods.

Their greatest pleasure seemed to be singing Red songs. The Reds were forbidden to hold meetings on decks, but made up for lost time when confined to their quarters, at which time a secret captain harangued all within reach of his voice.

Supt. Martin Berkshire, in charge of the prisoners, had to warn Berkman and Goldman repeatedly that they were prisoners and not passengers or guests.

After they had landed, Berkman and Goldman talked willingly with newspaper men.

It is her intention to return to America as soon as possible.

GOLDMAN'S PLANS.

Asked what her plans were, Goldman said: "I shall not impose my advice upon the Russian government, but shall remain affiliated with the Bolsheviki.

Goldman complained because she was compelled to eat her meals in the Buford's dining-room, where she was "an object for all eyes," instead of with her comrades.

DESCHANEL NOW FRANCE'S RULER

magnificent effort. I express the wish that the Houses of Parliament will consecrate my solemn homage to the immortal services he has rendered the country.

"I address to the members of the national assembly an expression of unspeakable gratitude. I bring to France and to the republic all my devotion and all my heart."

M. Deschanel, with a military escort that presented arms, received the ministers, parliamentarians and parliamentary newspapermen, who were formally presented to him. To them he made a brief separate address, expressing his thanks and a promise of co-operation.

RECALLS NOTED DUEL.

The fight between M. Clemenceau and M. Deschanel for the presidency recalls that they met on another field—that of honor—twenty-six years ago. Then, when Clemenceau was neither a deputy nor a senator, he wrote an article in his newspaper, La Justice, criticising M. Deschanel.

M. Deschanel sent his seconds to M. Clemenceau, who was noted as a duellist. The men met with swords and Deschanel received a wound over the eye which was so severe that the seconds would not permit the duel to continue.

NEW YORK COMMENT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Commenting on the election of Paul Deschanel as President of the French republic, Maurice Casenave, director-general of French services in the United States, said today:

"The defeat of M. Clemenceau in the Presidential election has no political significance. There has been no political change in the balance of power in the French Chamber. The French President, being without responsibility, according to the rules of parliamentary government, is no more an active force in political life than is the King of England.

"TIGER" TOO FORCEFUL.

"The defeat of M. Clemenceau signifies only that the Presidential Electoral College was under the impression that a man of his forceful character was less suited to the office of President than to that of Prime Minister, who is the real head of government in France, being directly responsible to both chambers. A French President is not elected on a question of policy, but on a question of his personal fitness for the office he is to hold.

"M. Deschanel is the son of one of the founders of the third French republic. He is a man noted for his high character and great personal intellectual distinction."

When your child has snuffles or watery eyes don't hesitate to take him from school for a day or two so that you may break up the cold he has contracted. You are perfectly safe in giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to your children, as it contains no opium or other narcotic. It acts on nature's plan, loosens the cough, aids expectoration, relieves the lungs and opens the secretions, helping the system to throw off the cold.—[Advertisement.

WOOD CAMPAIGN STRIKES A SNAG.

John King, Chief Booster for General, has Quit.

Gen. Pershing Considered Strong Business Man.

Was Once Humble Rail-Splitter, Like Lincoln.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The resignation of John T. King, the Connecticut Republican national committeeman, as leading delegate hunter for Gen. Wood has temporarily demoralized the Wood supporters.

Mr. King refuses to turn over to the Leonard Wood Campaign Committee, of which Col. Proctor of Cincinnati is chairman, the mass of data, pledges and other information obtained by him in the last year in his canvass of the States in the interest of Gen. Wood.

Col. Proctor on his return from Washington said he was looking for a competent campaign manager for the New York district. Frederick Moore, publicity director for the Wood Campaign Committee, in commenting on the decision of the Wood men to remain out of Ohio because Senator Harding is the favorite-son candidate there, said:

"That has been the policy of Gen. Wood and his friends from the beginning.

AFTER SECOND-CHOICE VOTES.

"It is quite generally understood that the general is the second choice in Ohio. Wherever any State has a favorite-son candidate, Gen. Wood, if he is the second choice of the State, will not make a fight for the delegates."

Sunday Gen. Wood will be in Boston, and while there will attend a meeting of the Harvard overseas men and make an address. Early in the week he expects to return to Chicago.

George J. Woods of Lincoln, speaking for the Pershing-for-President organizations being formed around the country, said:

"It does not make any difference to us whether Gen. Wood makes a fight in the Nebraska primaries or not. Nebraska will send a solid Pershing delegation to Chicago. The Pershing boom is a movement by the people. Because of that the Pershing men will not keep out of any State. Gen. Pershing's idea of government, if I correctly understand him, is 100 per cent. American, with a narrow partisanship left out. He is not seeking the nomination. His friends are seeking it for him.

PERSHING A BUSINESS MAN.

"He is a great business man. His record as head of the American army in France shows it. Brig.-Gen. Charles C. Dawes, former Comptroller of the Currency, in a speech in Chicago had this to say about Gen. Pershing's business capacity:

"'A business man is all I am and all I have ever been and all I pretend to be, and I am a judge of business men. Gen. Pershing as commander-in-chief of the army in France showed the qualities which in other men have built up great corporations and great businesses. He chose men to assist him irrespective of politics, irrespective of friendship and irrespective of anything except honesty and a record for successful results.'

"Furthermore," continued Mr. Woods, "Gen. Pershing is a lawyer by profession and came up through the school of hard knocks. If his friends needed to parade the fact they could call attention to his heroic boyhood when he worked with his brother as a farmhand, or in the woods, splitting fifty oak rails a day, like the immortal Lincoln. Gen. Pershing is the kind of an American that scours brighter the more he is rubbed, and he is so well known as a great commander of men that he needs no introduction to American voters."

Plans Alaska Health Resort.

[BY A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a tablespoonful of Salts if Back hurts or Bladder bothers.

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night, when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.—[Advertisement.

DANIELS UNDER FIRE FROM SIMS.

sity of our maximum effort being exerted in European waters with the least possible delay, but without producing the desired result."

The Navy Department was told repeatedly, the letter said, that it was a matter of simple arithmetical calculation to determine that the allies must lose the war if the rate of ship loss continued.

UNITS SCATTERED.

"(4.) The outbreak of hostilities found many important naval units widely dispersed and in need of repairs before they could be sent to the critical area. Destroyers arriving in the war zone had been cruising extensively off our seaboard and in the Caribbean, and when war was declared, were rushed through a brief and inadequate preparation for distant service.

"(5.) During the most critical months of the enemy's submarine campaign against the Allied line of communications the department violated the fundamental strategical principle of concentration of maximum force in the critical area of the conflict.

"(6.) The department's representative with the Allied admiralty was not supported during the most critical months of the war either by the adequate personnel or by the adequate forces that could have been supplied.

"(7.) The department's commander in the critical area of hostilities was never allowed to select his principal subordinates and was not even consulted as to their assignment. A fundamental principle of the art of command is herein involved.

HASTY DECISIONS.

"(8.) The Navy Department made and acted upon decisions concerning operations that were being conducted 3000 miles away, when conditions were such that full information could not have been in its possession, thus violating an essential precept of warfare that some decisions necessarily depend upon complete information.

"(9.) Instead of relying upon the judgment of those who had actual war experience in this peculiar warfare the Navy Department, though lacking not only this experience, but also lacking adequate information concerning it, insisted upon a number of plans that could not be carried out.

"(10.) Many of the department's actions so strongly implied a conviction that it was the most competent to make decisions concerning operations in the war zone that the result was an impression that it lacked confidence in the judgment of its representative on the council of the Allies and its responsible commander in the field.'

"It is a fundamental principle that every action on the part of superior authorities should indicate confidence in subordinates. If such confidence is lacking it should immediately be restored by ruthlessly changing the subordinates.

"11. To interfere with the commander in the field or afloat is one of the most common temptations to the government—and is generally disastrous.

"The Navy Department did not resist this temptation and its frequent violation of this principle was the most dangerous error committed during the naval war."

McCORMICK'S VIEW.

Criticising the alleged attitude of the department as "a terrible thing," Senator McCormick, Republican, Illinois, said:

"I believe we will have to go to the Naval Affairs Committee or the Senate for further instructions and authority to investigate this entire matter of the attitude of the Navy Department toward Admiral Sims's mission."

German submarines did not generally attack combatant vessels, the Admiral said, adding that Commander Bagley's destroyer, the Jacob Jones, was sunk by a chance shot at a distance of two miles by a submarine commanded by Hans Rose, who took the U-53 into Newport Harbor.

"There was one chance in a thousand for a hit," he said, "and Rose was lucky."

AS TO ENLISTED MEN.

Referring to the statement that no enlisted men were recommended by him for medals, Admiral Sims read cablegrams sent to Admiral Knapp in London last July urging that the compilation of lists of men to be rewarded be expedited.

Discussing submarine warfare in general, Admiral Sims said if the United States had had 500 destroyers when it entered the war it never would have had to fear the submarine campaign. The Admiral characterized the 110-foot submarine chasers as a "misconception," but said they were not entirely useless.

Turning the inquiry back to the question of naval awards, Senator Pittman, Democrat, Nevada, declared that Admiral Sims represented a minority of the officers of the navy and that the members of the Knight board represented the majority. Admiral Sims said that while he was in the minority, the officers of the Knight board were not in a position to judge fairly of the relative merits of the officers recommended for distinction.

In a statement relative to Admiral Sims's letter, Secretary Daniels said he had referred it to the general board, "with directions to give consideration to it and all other communications directed to the department concerning the lessons of the war."

OLIVE BRANCH POLICY APPROVED BY "TIMES."

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, Jan. 17.—The Observer denounces "the alarmist sensationalism of English officials and semi-official communiques on the subject of Bolshevism," and adds:

"Bolshevism cannot be extinguished by force alone. All Europe and Asia, too, would be involved sooner or later. Fortunately there has been a cold douche of common sense from Paris, for the announcement of the restoration of commercial exchange is an announcement in effect that the allies are willing to give every chance to the possibilities of Russian peace which is absolutely indispensable to general peace."

The Sunday Times says:

"The Supreme Council has arrived at the wisest decision. Urged by panic mongers to rattle the sabre, they preferred to extend the olive branch instead of the sword and convince the Russian people that it is the earnest wish of the allied nations that they resume peace in the human family circle.

"General Bliss notwithstanding, and despite the visit of our war chiefs to Paris, we decline to believe there is any sound basis for the alarms so seduously manufactured."

NO AGREEMENT IN TREATY PLAN

Bi-Partisan Conference is Not at a Peace Basis.

Session Yesterday Takes up Only Minor Details.

Thirty Thousand Voters of California Want Action.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Hope for final action by the Senate on the peace treaty this month virtually had vanished tonight.

Efforts of Republican and Democratic leaders to adjust disputes over reservations will be continued next week, but the time required for subsequent negotiations with the rank and file of the Senate and the debate which will follow in the Senate itself are expected generally to preclude final action before February.

Leaders on both sides said little progress has been made in preliminary discussion recently of reservations affecting Article X and the Monroe Doctrine. Republican leaders, including those of the "mild-reservation" faction, appeared as insistent as ever that there be no change in the principles of those Republicans. Some of those in the conference were said to indicate a disposition to meet the Republicans' demands on these reservations, but the attitude of Senator Hitchcock, administration leader, in demanding radical modifications, was understood to be unchanged.

Another conference of Senate leaders seeking a compromise on reservations to the peace treaty was held today, but Senators Lodge, Republican, Massachusetts, and Hitchcock, Democrat, Nebraska, heading the respective delegations, said no agreement was reached.

Only minor features of the dispute were considered today.

CALIFORNIA PETITION.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 17.—Delegations from the California Federation of Women's Clubs, the Women's League for the Peace Treaty and other interested organizations were to assemble here today to bid good-by to Dr. Aurelia Henry Reinhardt, president of Mills College, Oakland, who is carrying to Congress a petition bearing 30,000 names of Californians asking for immediate ratification of the peace treaty. Dr. Reinhardt will leave tomorrow. C. C. Moore, president of the Panama-Pacific International Exposition in 1915; Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur, wife of the president of Stanford University, and Justice Warren Olney of the State Supreme Court were scheduled to take part in the exercises today.

Dr. Reinhardt will endeavor to have the petition presented on the floor of the Senate when the treaty again is under consideration. It is understood that a number of other States are preparing similar petitions.

The petition was prepared under the direction of the federation and the league. It contains the names of both men and women.

OAKLAND, Jan. 17.—Dr. Aurelia Henry Reinhardt, president of Mills College, will depart tomorrow for Washington to present to the Senate Treaty Committee the peace memorial booklets from California, petitioning the authorities for a speedy ratification of the peace treaty. Dr. Reinhardt was selected for this mission by the Women's Peace Party of California at a meeting held recently.

Pezek today expressed dissatisfaction with the decision of Referee Ed Smith. He claims his shoulders were not down on the deciding fall. Many bets were paid today despite an announcement that all bets were off.

Why Preserve Your Teeth—and Neglect Your Hair?

—It Is Because Your Hair Does Not Ache?

Prof. John H. Austin, bacteriologist, hair and scalp specialist of Chicago, says that the hair should be given the same daily care and attention as the other parts of the human body. There are not seven people in ten who pay one-half the attention to their hair that they do to their teeth. Why is this? Is not the hair the crowning glory of all nature's gifts? Is not a woman robbed of her beauty when she is robbed of her hair?

About Ten Million Dollars is Spent Yearly to Prevent Troubles of the Teeth.

Now—How Much is Judiciously Spent in Prevention of Baldness?

Not half of that sum. And why? Simply because the hair does not cause you pain. Simply because you forget about your hair except when you comb it two or three times a day. If your hair could only cause you pain there would not be nearly as many cases of baldness as there now are.

Men and women—do not wait until some scalp trouble has started your hair falling out, do not wait until you are nearly bald—it may then be too late to preserve your hair.

The exact trouble can only be determined by turning a powerful microscope upon your hair and scalp.

Prof. Austin says that the use of mange cures, dandruff cures, hair tonics, vaseline and elixirs is like taking medicine without knowing what you are trying to cure.

Free microscopic examinations of the hair and scalp daily—hours from 10 A.M. to 12 M., 2 to 4 P.M. Private office, Second Floor, Hamburger's.—[Advertisement.

STATE PROPOSES A BUSINESS TAX.

Must Get More Revenue from Some New Source.

Corporations Have Now been Milked About to Limit.

Plan a Levy on All Unincorporated Concerns.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 16. — The question of what California shall do toward increasing revenues to keep within expenses is one the Joint Legislative Committee, appointed for the purpose of investigating the subject, so far has not come anywhere near solving. The committee was appointed by the last Legislature, but has not decided on any particular programme.

The revenue officials are pretty generally agreed that the revenues of the State must be substantially increased or else after 1920 the expenditures are going to exceed the revenue, and the ad valorem tax will have to be restored to, to cover the deficiency.

New sources of revenue are being sought by the committee, and one that is being considered is a general business tax. At the present time all corporations pay a license and a franchise tax, and the suggestion has been made that this tax be extended to all business. In other words, unincorporated companies, as well as incorporated ones, will be taxed by the State.

This scheme and the idea of levying a State income tax are the two chief suggestions as to new sources of income now being considered by the committee.

But the State's chief source of income is derived from the public utilities, such as the railroads and power companies. And there is an insistent demand being made that the rate now paid by these companies be increased.

Under the interpretation of the law by present revenue officials, and said to be vouched for by former Senator John B. Curtin, who was one of the framers of the tax law under which the State now operates, the tax on the gross earnings of the public utilities could not be out of proportion to the tax assessed upon general property throughout the State.

To readjust this rate, which many claim is too low, a general appraisement of the general and corporate property in the State must be made to determine whether the corporate property is bearing its share of the taxes.

As explained by M. D. Lack, secretary of the State Board of Equalization, and secretary of the Legislative Committee, various details first must be determined before it could be known whether the corporate property was not paying its just share of the taxes.

Senator William Kehoe and others, however, differ with these revenue officials and claim the State can fix these taxes on corporate property at any sum deemed necessary.

But as this view is not held by the revenue officials, the committee will have to get busy and make a general survey of the corporate and general property assessments if it is to make any recommendation to the 1921 Legislature in regard to an increase of these taxes. At least ten months is declared to be necessary to carry on such work.

The exchange of personal descriptive notes that is going on between Gov. Stephens and John H. Atwood, special assistant to the U. S. Attorney, due to the difference of the two officials as to how to best proceed in reducing the cost of living, is assuming facetious proportions.

Several weeks ago Atwood called upon Gov. Stephens and urged him to appoint "fair price committees" to aid the Federal government to swat the profiteers.

Gov. Stephens didn't take kindly to the suggestion, whereupon Atwood issued a statement that the Governor preferred "to stand on the side lines and cheer, if he did cheer."

This was too much for Gov. Stephens, who came back with a statement that Atwood was "woefully deficient in understanding of the great problem about which he was trying to talk."

Then just when everyone thought the exchange of descriptive adjectives had ceased, Atwood gave vent to the following:

"That dear old man impressed me as one who is willing to do anything to keep from doing something. A hypercritical person might think of him as an executive inertia. Placidity and not activity seems to be his slogan—if he has any."

This outburst somewhat perturbed the Governor, who countered with a statement characterizing Atwood as a "blattering politician" and reiterating his early assertion that Atwood was ignorant as to his subject; in other words, stating in effect that the Federal official was "talking through his hat." The Governor seems to have the best of it so far.

"There is just one class of residents who can control the profiteering in foodstuffs," declares W. G. McMillin, state purchasing agent. "They are the housewives."

"From 75 to 90 per cent. of all food purchases are made by the housewives. If they would combine and refuse to buy any food products, those products must inevitably drop in price."

McMillin does not believe that the retailers in food products are the chief offenders. The price of raisins, prunes, rice, milk, etc., is regulated arbitrarily by combinations of growers, he says.

"When you read of growers of rice, raisins or prunes making enough profit from one year's crop to pay for the land, there is little need to look further for profiteers," said McMillin.

"A system of making prices that permits such a profit to be made in the face of superabundant crops is criminal."

CALL TO TRUE PATRIOTS SOUNDED HERE BY HAYS.

National Republican Chairman Brings Message Ringing with Summons to Fight the Battles of Peace.

a party of efficiency and patriotism and vision."

OVATION FOR HAYS.

Chairman Hays was greeted with rounds of applause and constantly during his address he was overwhelmed with ringing cheers. His very opening sentences brought forth enthusiastic response, when he said:

"We have always said we must join no party that does not follow the flag and keep step to the music of the Union. Well, the Republican party has not 'followed the flag and kept step to the music of the Union.' No; the Republican party has CARRIED the flag, and has MADE the music for the Union."

Proceeding with his address, Chairman Hays said:

"It is not, however, the past with which we are concerned. The history of the growth of the Republican party is the story of the progress of the nation. Conceived when our foundation trembled, born in the lap of extremities, it went out in its swaddling clothes and heralded its own birth by saving the life of the nation. And from that hour to this moment it has been a party of patriotism, with its loyalty measured only by the possibilities. It has passed the laws, enacted the statutes, advanced the theories and carried out the principles which have made this country the mightiest miracle of time. But the Republican party is the party of the future or there is no use for the party. Our past record for fifty years of achievement is the best guaranty to the country of our future fulfillment, but it is only on our future fulfillment that our usefulness will depend. The Republican party must and shall continue to be the instrument in this country to apply to new and changing conditions the wisdom of experience and the efficacy of honest, zealous service.

"Political parties are not instruments for individuals to use for personal aggrandizement. Political parties afford the means by which thinking men and women first promulgate and then apply principles for the control of the influences which surround the place they call their home. Hence the reason, the strongest of all reasons, for the interest of women in politics.

IN THE WAR.

"During the war every act of the Republican party in State and nation was determined solely by how it could contribute most to the sum total of war good. In that crisis, with the control of the government in other hands, the Republican party, true to its traditions, became the war party of the country, insisting upon the right of full participation, giving the limit of our blood and our treasure, standing immovable against an inconclusive peace, and crying continually to the party in power, 'Carry on! Carry on! Carry on!'

"So now in the trying times ahead the Republican party shall determine its every footstep by how it can contribute most to the country's welfare. There has not been and will not be any geography, political or physical, in the patriotism of this country. It is no time for little things, for petty jealousies, carping criticisms, pullings or haulings, but fearlessly, in a spirit of patriotism with our eyes solely on the country's welfare, the Republican party can and will solve the problems. We attribute to the honesty of purpose to the opposition and our message to them is that each party make it its business to see which can go the farther in developing plans and executing purposes for the welfare of the people and the glory of the nation. Let this be the final contest between political parties in this country.

"There are two natural inquiries from women new in politics (1) What does the Republican party offer the women? (2) What does the Republican party stand for?

EQUAL FOR ALL.

"The Republican party offers the women everything we offer the men. The only just rule for a political party is that the rights of participation in the management of the party's affairs must be and remain equally sacred and sacredly equal. The Republican women in the country constitute one-half of the party's membership. In many States this has long been so. In the Presidential campaign of 1920 it is my very earnest hope and well-founded judgment that it shall be so everywhere. The Republican women come into the party activity not as women but as voters, entitled to participate, and participating, just as other voters. Their activity is not supplementary, ancillary or secondary at all—they are units in the party membership, and where the suffrage for them is new they come in just as men have come in when they have reached the legal voting age. They are not to be separated or segregated, but assimilated and amalgamated, with just that full consideration due every working member of the party in the rights of their full citizenship. There is to be no separate women's organization created within the party, except and only in those cases where such an arrangement may be needed temporarily as an efficient aid in the complete amalgamation which is our objective.

"To women and to men alike the party offers the right of a political self-determination, and that is the answer to the second query. 'What does the party stand for?' Within the Republican party there is and must be full political self-determination. It is entirely up to the party membership to say what the party's purpose shall be, what its policies shall become. This, fundamentally, is what we offer the women—the chance to express themselves. We have no hard and fast set of rules, no unalterable list of dogmas which we present to women and say, 'There it is. Take it or leave it.' Instead, we offer the open forums in the party organization which is always open to conversion from within. With this complete participation, it is your problem as much as it is the problem of the men to determine what the party stands for, and thus you work out the answer.

"SUPREME MOTIF."

"Party programmes must always be subject to amendment and change by the responsible living thought expressed within the party by men and women alike. Through it all, however, must run the supreme motif, and in the Republican party that supreme motif is and always shall be the honest, patriotic and intelligent effort to promote and safeguard the best interests of the republic and its citizens.

"I plead for a patriotism in peace as well as in war. I insist that we have not merely that patriotism born of extremities, which burns in the souls of men only when their country is in danger, but the patriotism of good citizenship, at the fireside, the plow, the mart, in low places and in high places, in season and out of season. Let us have the patriotism which moves men and women to make their country's welfare their own business and in prosaic times of peace interest themselves continually in the practical politics of their community. Good government can be attained in no other way.

"It is indeed passing strange that men and women have to be urged to exercise the first privilege of a sovereign citizenship—the right to help govern themselves. Yet urged they must be. And it is because of that fact that governmental evils develop. Government functions through individuals. These individuals are elected by the processes of practical politics, a sequence which cannot be avoided. We can have better government only if we interest ourselves in politics, in the selection of those to whom the government is intrusted, in having thought and voice in its operation, and in making our country's affairs our own business. If a political party does not stand for those things which will bear the severest scrutiny it is not entitled to succeed, and it will not endure.

NEED FOR PARTIES.

"There must be in this country two political parties, and both must be strong and virile. I do not ask that all women become Republicans. I shall be satisfied with a large majority. To which party you belong is of less consequence than that you belong to some party that you seek for the truth, find it and then act, and act continually. I would rather a woman join with our opponents than belong to no party. One of the first truths most important for this large group of new voters to realize is that their efforts for right things in government can be made effective only through organization. Then let individual membership in the party give that attention to the party's affairs which is due the instrument through which and only through which all individuals can apply their patriotism in actual participation in governmental affairs.

"There is no twilight zone in politics. Right is right and wrong is wrong, and the same strict standard of morals, equity and justice must obtain as in any private business or professional matter. When we get our politics entirely on this basis, when we live our patriotism daily, we will do a citizen's full duty, and not until then. I repeat, I have no use for the individual who is either 'too busy' or 'too good' to help. He has no just complaint to make, whatever happens. He is riding on another's ticket. I have an abiding faith that there will be an awakened sense of civic duty as one of the by-products of this war. Hundreds of thousands of men and women, who had no inclination, and thought they had not time to take the slightest interest in their government, have arisen in the most splendid spirit and have unselfishly carried the burden of the war work. If some small part of the same interest in their country can be maintained, if some small part of the time they have been giving shall continue to be given by them in thought and action to the business of their country, it will bring to the situation an impetus for untold good. Most earnestly I urge that this great new value, this tremendous national asset, which has lately been developed, shall not be lost or impaired. I urge that this army of men and women who have been the splendid war workers in every corner of the country now realize that they have a duty in peace as well as in war, that their country needs their continuing interest and that this continuing interest they owe to their country's welfare.

TRUE PATRIOTISM.

"Let us have the patriotism of Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt—not a patriotism which moves us only when an enemy is at our gates, but a patriotism which moves us every day to realize what we owe to the country in which we live, which moves us to discharge that debt by aiding in every way we can, to make and keep conditions right in AMERICA—AND IN AMERICA FIRST.

"We believe that the hand of God has guided the making of this nation. I have long been convinced that some time in the mind of the Almighty it was conceived that the heroic spirit which could vision and execute a governmental establishment based on universal freedom and the rights of the individual should succeed that it should grow; that it should save itself against heavy odds, grow again and then go out and save the world. This is the time of all times when the heart of an American must glow with pride and of all times in our country's history when the sense of responsibility for the preservation of our institutions and the welfare of our people must weigh upon thinking citizens; this is the supreme moment.

"The way all creeds and classes arose as one man in the country's emergency is the greatest vindication of our institutions, and just as the worth of all creeds and classes was proved in the country's emergency, just so the government must function equally at all times and places for all creeds and classes—for little children, for social betterment, for economic justice, for the rights of labor, for the rights of capital, for the rights of all, for the rights of right.

ROOSEVELT'S WORDS.

"We have thought much in the late months of Theodore Roosevelt. I was with him on the morning he received the word of Quentin's death. I was with him the next day at Saratoga, when, with his heart literally crushed, he interpolated in a speech he was reading: 'The finest, the bravest, the best of our young men have sprung eagerly forward to face death for the sake of a high ideal; and thereby they may have brought home to us the great truth that life consists of more than easy-going pleasure, and more than hard, conscienceless, brutal striving after purely material success, that while we must rightly care for the body and the things of the body, yet that such care leads nowhere unless we also have thought for our own souls and for the souls of our brothers. When these gallant boys, on the golden crest of life, gladly face death for the sake of an ideal, shall not we who stay behind, who have not been found worthy of the grand adventure, shall not we in our turn try to shape our lives so as to make in this country the ideal which in our hearts we acknowledge, and in the actual workaday business of our world, come a little nearer together, and make this country a better place to live in for these men and the women who sent these men to battle, and for the children who are to come after them?'

"To none does this truth come home stronger than to Republicans.

"What does the Republican party stand for? Well, it is up to you as much as any part of the party membership to determine what the party stands for; but I suggest that above all things else the Republican party stands first for the faithful, efficient and honest administration of the business of the country. Its sage formerly said that 'honesty is the best policy' as a matter of business. Honesty is the best policy as a matter of morals. In like manner, there is but one kind of successful politics, and that is the politics of faithful, efficient and honest administration. The only so-called politics in the situation today is to find out what is the best for the country, and try to do it first.

UNPREPARED FOR PEACE.

"The Republican party stood during the war: First, for the use of every possible means of winning the war; second, for a peace with victory only, and, third, for a sane preparation for the solution of the problems of peace.

"We insist that we are as unprepared for peace as we were for war. We cried continually for preparation to that end. Every country except America was preparing for peace long before the war ended. We slipped along under this Democratic administration, without any adequate thought of the problems that would confront us until the shock of peace was here, just as we did before we entered the war.

"Our duty in all these matters is before us, and that duty we will not shirk. Republicans shall bring this government back to the limitation of the Constitution in times of peace; and well indeed may our party give its best thought to that matter, as it has become more apparent daily that the Republican party is the country's only salvation.

"With all our power we will strive to prevent the further spread of Socialism, and set this nation's feet once more firmly on the path of progress and along ways which liberty and order must ever guard and preserve.

LABOR QUESTION.

"To this end we have promised a forward stepping as well as a forward looking programme for labor, for business, and for the farmer, and those promises we will keep.

"The Republican party recognizes that labor constitutes the country's chief asset. In the crises through which we have passed the labor of the country was its salvation.

"The labor of this country is entitled to and will receive fair representation in all the councils of the nation. We will have just remedial legislation for the betterment of this great group of our population at all times, not only because it is their due, but because by justice always we can prevent the insidious influence of the criminal element of the I.W.W., from taking hold in the ranks of real labor. And that criminal element, organized or unorganized, called I.W.W., on anything else, that goes about this country seeking whom it can destroy—that thing is a traitor to this country, nothing else, and should be treated as such.

"Vigorous and thorough shall be our efforts to make certain for the business of the country that opportunity and encouragement which will insure its development and growth upon which prosperity of all depends. In the great readjustment, business must have sympathetic help, not antagonistic curtailment. It must be treated with an appreciation of its fundamental importance, and not as a demagogue's shuttlecock. The business men of this country, too, were supremely loyal and are entitled to every consideration, including the right to run their own business. Taxes which kill initiative must not be levied. There should be a large inheritance tax, and of course, adequate taxes must be provided by careful legislation and fair enforcement by competent men to take care of the extraordinary expenses, but we do not propose to permit the use of the war as an excuse for everything. The payment of the great war debt should be distributed over a large number of years.

"Our problems are largely economic. The industrial difficulties in this country, which at the present moment seem to be overwhelming, can be and, I have implicit faith, will be solved in one way—by finding exact justice and enforcing it.

SQUARE DEAL.

"It is simply a matter of Roosevelt's 'square deal'—exact justice for labor, exact justice for capital, and exact justice for the public, the third side of the triangle which must not be lost sight of.

"To that end we must develop a reasonable method for honest and efficient labor to acquire an interest in the business to which labor is expected to give its best efforts. Pending this development, the equilibrium between production and wages must be established and there must be justice for all—exact justice, the justice of right and reason.

"Justice for all—and do not forget that the American people still know what exact justice is.

"The Republican party from its inception has stood against undue federalization of industries and activities. There must be strong Federal regulation, but not government ownership. We have always endeavored and still shall endeavor to find that middle ground so well defined as between 'the anarchy of an unregulated individualism and the deadening formalism of an inefficient and widespread State ownership.' The railroad problem will be solved, and solved fairly, with provision for a just return on real investment and with reasonable assurances for essential development and extensions. We are against paternalism in government and we are against that form of pedagogic paternalism that has developed recently in this country. We will not forget that while we have fought in France to make certain the rights of this free government in the world, we have a republic to preserve in this country, that we are a representative government and not a Bolshevik syncopation.

FOR LAW AND ORDER.

"There is in this country a religious faith which believes in the divine origin of the Constitution of the United States. While we may not adopt this tenet, I approve the direction of the thought and I recommend the appreciation. The time is here when our heel must be in the ground. Law and order shall reign in this country. We are the freest government on the face of the earth and our strength rests in our patriotism. Anarchy flees before patriotism. Peace and order and security and liberty are safe so long as enough love of country dominates in the hearts of the people. But liberty does not mean license. Liberty to make our laws does not give us a license to break them. Liberty is responsibility, and responsibility is duty and that duty to preserve the exceptional liberty we enjoy within the law, and by the law, without any temporizing or compromise whatsoever. "Liberty is fire on the earth; license is fire on the floor.'

"The special session of Congress just closed saved to the nation nearly a billion dollars, and if nothing else had been accomplished by the Republican control except this it would warrant an overwhelming Republican victory next year.

"I urge the practice on the part of all of the strictest individual economy consistent with the proper

Dyspepsia and Business

They Don't Hitch — Td Be Fit and Yet Eat What You Like, Follow Your Meals with Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. No Gas, Sourness, Nor Heaviness of Indigestion.

Business men and women are apt to fall for the peculiar theories advanced by food faddists. But it isn't what you eat but what you digest and assimilate that should command thought and attention. You may eat fried eggs, sausage, ham or bacon for breakfast, and feel tip-top at lunch time if you follow the meal with a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet. Or if your stomach is full of gas, sour, or has a gnawing sensation of heavyness instead of the keen sense of appetite, Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets relieve these distresses and introduce you to the next meal or a day's work with a quiet, restful stomach.

Many physicians prescribe these tablets for indigestion, dyspepsia, and other digestive disorders, as they contain harmless properties that work with an alkaline effect just as the stomach does when in perfect health. They are particularly adapted for business men and women, who are often called upon to discuss important business matters at a luncheon or dinner.

Get a 50-cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at any drug store, eat all you want of what you like with no gassy stomach, no sour belching, bilious distress, no coated tongue nor heavy, drowsy feeling after eating.—[Advertisement.

Campaign not to be Based on Group Interests.

Cummings not Alarmed at the Wailings of the Gaels.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The Democratic party will conduct its Presidential campaign without regard to group interests, Homer S. Cummings, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, declared today. Mr. Cummings, here to attend a meeting of the committee on arrangements for the San Francisco convention, so stated when asked as to whether the party intends to undertake any propaganda to overcome the reported defection of certain Irish and other elements opposed to ratification of the peace treaty in its present form.

"We are going to consider the treaty and other issues as Americans," he asserted. "I am opposed to considering this question in any other way. Personally, I believe racial objections to the peace treaty are more noise than anything else."

Mr. Cummings pointed to the fact that the national committee had indorsed the peace treaty as submitted by the President and was standing pat on this issue. Those who believed that the treaty was inimical to the political aspirations of the Irish people were wrong, he said.

Chairman Cummings announced that so many misstatements had been made as to the Democratic campaign for funds that he would issue a formal statement soon, replying to them.

SUBCOMMITTEES.

The only business transacted by the committee on arrangements was appointment of six subcommittees to handle various phases of the convention plans. No other meeting of the full committee is expected until about June 1, when both the national committee and the arrangements committee will assemble in San Francisco to make the final convention plans. The temporary chairman probably will be named then. Many women were represented on the committee of arrangements today for the first time in the party's history, according to party leaders, in the person of Mrs. George Bass of Chicago, chairman of the women's bureau of the national committee, and Miss Mary E. Foy of Los Angeles.

The committee agreed to provide hotel rooms free of charge to members of the national committee and associate members while at the convention, but they will be required to pay for their meals and railroad transportation, as in the past.

DOCKWEILER LEADS.

Following is the list of subcommittees, the first named being chairman in each case:

Hotels and Entertainments — Isidore B. Dockweiler, California; John T. Barnett, Colorado; Dr. J. W. Coughlin, Massachusetts; Robert H. Elder, Idaho; Mrs. George Bass, Illinois.

Transportation — Charles Boeschenstein, Illinois; Patrick H. Quinn, Rhode Island; Wilbur W. Marsh, Iowa; Frederick B. Lynch, Minnesota; Isidore B. Dockweiler, California.

Hall and Seating — Norman E. Mack, New York; Wilbur W. Marsh, Iowa; Edmund H. Moore, Ohio; A. F. Mullen, Nebraska; Miss Mary E. Foy, California.

Tickets and Badges — Homer S. Cummings, Connecticut; Edward G. Hoffman, Indiana; Dr. J. W. Coughlin, Massachusetts; J. Bruce Kremer, Montana; Charles Boeschenstein, Illinois.

Press — Clark Howell, Georgia; Norman E. Mack, New York; Edmund H. Moore, Ohio.

Personnel — Homer S. Cummings, Connecticut; Frederick B. Lynch, Minnesota; J. Bruce Kremer, Montana; Norman E. Mack, New York; John T. Barnett, Colorado.

MARA GOES TO COAST.

Prior to the meeting it was announced that George J. Mara, an attorney of Bridgeport, Ct., who had been selected to serve as the personal representative of Homer S. Cummings, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, would leave for the Pacific Coast within two days.

While on the way to San Francisco to arrange for the 1920 gathering Mr. Mara will stop off at St. Louis to learn from James E. Smith, president of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, methods employed in staging the 1916 convention.

LOW WATER RATE FOR VALLEY RANCHERS.

MULHOLLAND SEES RAINFALL SHORTAGE AND SERVICE BOARD ACTS.

At the suggestion of Chief Engineer Mulholland, who predicts a shortage of rainfall in Southern California this year, the Public Service Commission voted yesterday to again offer San Fernando Valley ranchers a half rate on irrigation water used for the growing of field crops during February, March and April.

It was stipulated that the special rate shall apply only to field crops as alfalfa, beets and beans, and that it does not apply to fruit orchards which are in bearing. Mr. Mulholland stated that it might be used for watering cover crops, but not for irrigating mature fruit trees.

The Public Service Commission yesterday approved a new three-year lease on its present quarters it will enter into an agreement with the Knickerbocker Fireproof Building Company to occupy the five and one-half floors at a rental of $2037 per month. The lease may be cancelled upon four months' notice after a period of one year has elapsed, according to the tentative agreement. The new lease begins February 1.

The legal department of the Public Service Commission was yesterday instructed to prepare resolutions looking to the sale of the piece of property the water department owns at the southwest corner of Fifth and Olive streets for $250,000. The commission will consider two propositions—all cash, or one-third cash, another third at the end of one year and the balance at the end of the second year, with 6 per cent. interest on deferred payments.

DENY URGING RETURN OF SOLDIERS' BODIES.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Denial of charges that the undertakers of this country from pecuniary motives were behind the movement to bring America's soldier dead returned from France was made today by John F. Martin of Elizabeth, N. J., president of the National Funeral Directors' Association. "There has not been and is not now any organized effort on the part of the undertakers to urge the bringing back of these bodies," said Mr. Martin.

WANT LOEB TO MANAGE WOOD CAMPAIGN IN EAST

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—William Loeb, formerly secretary to Theodore Roosevelt when the latter was President, has been asked to become the eastern campaign manager in the movement to obtain for Maj.-Gen. Leonard Wood the Republican nomination for President.

The selection probably will be made today or tomorrow, after Gen. Wood reaches here from Washington. As one-time secretary to President Roosevelt, it is believed that Mr. Loeb would be able to enlist the support of a large number of erstwhile Roosevelt adherents, who have not committed themselves to Gen. Wood's candidacy.

It was said that, in case Mr. Loeb should not accept the place several other men are under consideration, among them Robert C. Morris, formerly chairman of the New York State Republica Committee.

DROP ON A CORN! LIFT CORNS OUT WITH FINGERS

Hurt? No, not one bit! Just drop a little Freezone on that touchy corn, instantly it stops aching then you lift that bothersome corn right off. Yes magic! Costs only a few cents.

Why wait? Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of Freezone for a few cents, sufficient to rid your feet of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and calluses, without soreness or irritation. Freezone is the much talked of discovery of the Cincinnati genius.

Hair Often Ruined By Careless Washing

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any pharmacy; it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—[Advertisement.

LEGION ASKS FOR A CITIZEN ARMY

Would Train Youths Under a Compulsory Plan.

Believe System is Democratic and Fair to All.

Consider it Adequate Defense in Event of War.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Universal military training was advocated before the House Military Affairs Committee yesterday by Thomas W. Miller, chairman of the legislative committee of the American Legion. Mr. Miller presented resolutions adopted at the Minneapolis convention.

Members of the committee opposed to this type of military training attempted to show that the action of the convention was not a true index of the opinions of the rank and file of the ex-service men. Mr. Miller said the delegates had received instructions from local posts, county conventions and State conventions and that the question had been discussed along the line.

Mr. Miller was asked if the American Legion stood for compulsory military training, pointing out that the word compulsory did not appear in the resolutions. He said military training would not be effective unless compulsory and that that was the belief of the Minneapolis convention.

Mr. Miller, who is a former member of Congress from Delaware, enlisted in the army as a private and rose to the rank of lieutenant-colonel.

LEGION POSITION.

"The members of the American Legion are deeply impressed with the folly of national unpreparedness for war, from the results of which they suffered while in France," said Mr. Miller. "They believe that this country should adopt a policy of universal military training for its young as the only fair, democratic and adequate system of defense. Having been through it themselves they think it only fair and proper that the generations which come after them should share such duties and benefits also. They believe that in this way the country can maintain for its defense a citizens' army which will be adequate for any national emergency. They are strongly opposed to militarism or the fostering of any military caste. They believe that the Regular Army should be reduced to the lowest numbers necessary for our foreign garrisons and other essential professional duty; that our General Staff should be liberalized by an admixture of competent citizen officers and that all officers should be subjected to severe tests of fitness which would eliminate all dead wood.

NOT REPLACEMENTS.

"They believe that this citizens' army should be trained so far as possible by citizen officers and its units localized in the territory from which they come, but that it must be trained solely as a national army under the authority of the national government for use only in time of war, and that the men must not be used to fill up the Regular Army.

"That this training shall be taken by the youth of the nation in their eighteenth, nineteenth or twentieth years, and shall be for a period of not less than four and not more than six months during the first year, to be followed by two weeks' training period each year for two years.

"That the men subject to the training may, as an equivalent for the foregoing, take their training in properly supervised federalized National Guard organizations.

"That the citizen army shall not be used for military purposes in time of peace, except in the case of National Guard organizations."

SOCIALIST THEORY IS UNSOUND, SAYS BUTLER

PRIVATE PROPERTY WILL ALWAYS PERSIST, CLAIMS UNIVERSITY PROFESSOR.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—A prediction that the institution of private property never would be permanently or even long overthrown by socialistic programme was made at the meeting of the New York State Bar Association today by Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University and a candidate for the Republican nomination for President.

"To carry out the full Socialist programme as to property is quite impracticable," he said, "even if that programme rested on a sound, instead of a false basis of theory. Private property may be temporarily endangered or destroyed, as for example by the turbulent terrorism which now holds the Russian people in its grip, but the instinct of progress is too deeply rooted in the human race, and it has made too much advance to permit the institution of private property to be permanently, or even long overthrown."

TAKE UP NAVAL PRISON IMMORALITY CHARGES.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Immediate investigation of charges of immorality among inmates at the Portsmouth naval prison, transmitted to the Navy Department by agents of the Department of Justice last October, will be made by the naval authorities, Assistant Secretary Roosevelt announced today upon his return from an inspection of the prison.

Mr. Roosevelt said he could not explain why the charges of immorality, lodged with the Navy Department in October, never had been acted upon by the department or brought to the attention of Commander Osborne before his recent visit to the prison.

DO YOU realize that the Turks are holding 50,000 young Armenian girl slaves in their harems—in order to perpetuate the Turkish race? Do you appreciate the fact that these girls are forced to become mothers of the Turks who have tortured and insulted them and their people? And that a vicious half-breed race will be developed, and will prey on the near east with more ferocity and worse ravage than even the Turks have shown? If we are to stop this we must give to the Near-east Relief, Feb. 1-29, to rescue these girls from the harems!

It is the one ...thing today touching all our ...ities. Where the government by ...legislative, by executive, or by judicial ...agencies, can function properly in that direction such action is our first duty and there must be no shrinking or temporizing in the discharge of that duty.

FOR HUMANITY.

"In all of our efforts the best brains and hearts in the country are necessary. Women are able to contribute and owe to the situation the peculiar ability which is theirs. We trust the women voters of this country to help the Republican party carry out its determination to require that the highest standards of health be maintained and enforced; that there is a proper compulsory school education; that we have proper limitation in the hours of work for women in employment where standing is required and that there be an eight-hour day; that there is a proper prohibition of child labor; and that there shall be adopted as speedily as possible every practical principle which can further humanize industry.

"Too, trust the women of the nation to appreciate the value of a budget system, which the Republican party shall require, a bill for which has already passed the House and which budget system is nothing more than the government applying the same system of economy that the average successful housekeeper uses in her kitchen. And trust the women voters, too, to support the Republican party in our determination to stem the tide of Socialism. I know that women, in their first national expression of the power of franchise, will show their innate and continuing reverence for that on which rests the safety of the holiest things in life—law and order and progressive, stable government. As it is only in security and in peace that women can have their best life, most certainly they will rally to those principles which guarantee the integrity of our national institutions. I believe that ultimately we will find in the great woman vote of the nation that same safe, sane and balancing anchorage for this country that she furnishes in the home for the family.

DEBT TO SERVICE MEN.

"The Republican party will never forget the debt we owe to the soldiers who have won this war. We used to hear, 'Food will win the war, Liberty Bonds will win the war, Thrift Stamps will win the war.' They did not. They all helped to win, but the war was won by the fighting men at the fighting front and in no other way. And the party's appreciation of our soldiers will be remembered.

"And let us never forget how great has been the contribution of the women of this country to this war, and how great is our obligation to them. It is the women who have stood the strain, and, secondly, to the soldiers is the gratitude due them.

"There never will be again in this country any tolerance for a divided loyalty. There was divided loyalty, and it was in places where it was a shame, subjectively and objectively. For shame that an individual would accept the privileges of our liberties and leave his soul-homage in other lands, and shame on us for tolerating in our body politic an undigested mass making for nothing but internal disorder. If a man is loyal to any other flag—foreign, red, or black—he is disloyal to the Stars and Stripes. But while we bitterly assail disloyalty, our vision must never be clouded for a moment as to the fine sense of duty which we owe to those loyal citizens of America who may be of foreign extraction, and this lesson must not be forgotten. If they are traitors, they should be deported or shot. If they are thorough-going Americans, they are entitled to the fullest consideration due every true citizen of a republic built on equality of opportunity. Let us not permit the development in this country of any line of cleavage between sect, sex or race on the fundamentals of American ideals; no real division except between patriots and traitors. Let us respect the one and destroy the other.

"NO YESTERDAYS."

"Remember, Republican women, there are no yesterdays in our politics. We do not care how anyone voted in 1912, '14, '16 or '18, nor his reason for so doing. All who are engaged in the great work that is before us are entitled to the same consideration, the one who has not always voted with us and the one who has always voted with us because, perchance, he may not have had any reason for doing otherwise. Politics is a matter of assimilation and not of elimination.

"No exigency, however serious, will present to this nation an unsurmountable crisis. Every problem is solvable. Readjustment demands the best there is in us as a nation, mentally and spiritually. We shall adhere to the true, clean thing, and never abandon our high ideals. Dead branches fall from the live oak during the hurricane. The fiber of the tree tightens and the roots drive deeper into the soil. This nation is a success; it is still the hope of the world; it must be made a yet greater blessing to the sons of men.

"The Republican party, guaranteed by its past, underwritten by its present, will measure its future step forward by the new needs of the nation.

VOICE OF EXPERIENCE.

"Let all well wishers of good government, regardless of party affiliations, let all those who love their country and its institutions, listen now for a moment, listen with eyes aloft, listen to the voice of experience and the call of inspiration from the Spirit of America, which was Washington and Lincoln and Roosevelt—listen and hear from them the call: Carry on, Americans! Carry on! Carry on! Carry on, now, against the foes of our own household as you fought at Valley Forge, at the Argonne and at Chateau Thierry. Carry on, carry on. Find disloyalty if there be disloyalty and scotch it; find dishonesty if there be dishonesty and crush it; find the right and cleave unto it. Keep your eyes raised, Americans, but keep your feet on solid ground. Find the reason for discontent, and meet it squarely; correct the cause and mercilessly destroy the excuse where it is an excuse only. Find exact justice and demand it—demand it for all men and require it from all men. Remember the heritage which is yours. Remember—and be encouraged. The manhood and womanhood of America is sound. The stress of late days has strained all overmuch. Be patient with one another, but as you value your country's future, wait not a moment to realize the emergency nor longer delay your action. Each one is equally responsible. Stop and look within. Look, each one, to your own industry and thrift. Look to your own conscience and moral responsibility. In the whirl of the storm about you, seize upon common sense and good conscience. Holding fast, then lift yourselves from the maelstrom of unrest and regain for yourself your own sound judgment—and then reach for others as they are hurled by.

"Yes, forget not the others who are about you. It is as dangerous now as it was just outside the walls of Eden to ask in surprise, 'Am I my brother's keeper?' Remember, we all go up or we all go down together. The great power which is the Spirit of America must not tolerate any attempt to array group against group, section against section, or sect against sect. Guard against this as you would against a pestilence; the nation has no greater enemy than one who would thus divide the country against itself. While you are in turmoil our late enemies are marshaling with dispatch all of their industrial resources. Let not our great accomplishments in war be marred by our inability to order our own affairs. Mere agitation and mere motion are not progress. The vicious circle is not the shortest distance between honest effort and highest reward. Remember that one man is better than another only when he does better. Give every well-behaved man and woman an equality of opportunity, and require from them their full measure of accountability. Live and let live is not enough—we must live and help live—and as you live and help live find always exact justice and enforce it."

SONS OF PRESIDENT OF CUBA DRIVING TRUCKS.

DON OVERALLS TO ASSIST IN BREAKING STRIKE THAT TIES UP SHIPPING.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

HAVANA (Cuba) Jan. 15.—(Delayed.) Sons of Gen. Mario G. Menocal, President of Cuba, donned overalls today and drove motor trucks to aid in breaking the strike of port workers here.

As a result of the walk-out of union laborers on the waterfront thousands of tons of shipping are tied up.

The action of the President's sons was in line with that of prominent Americans and Cubans, members of the Rotary Club, who left their places of business and worked as volunteers to clear the wharves of shipping.

The American Chamber of Commerce at a meeting of the American Club yesterday, considered the strike situation and pledged its aid to the Americans and Cubans who are trying to break the strike or effect a settlement of it.

A Presidential decree suspending the constitutional guarantees awaits the signature of President Menocal to make the strike unlawful. Under it each striker would be liable to imprisonment. The decree, it was authoritatively said, will be issued if the situation warrants it.

If continued, the strike will have a serious effect on the food situation in Havana.

PRIVATE AUTOS FOR CHICAGO WASHWOMEN.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—The haughty Chicago washlady now rides to her work in her own limousine. She also insists upon a full meal, served in the best style, in the dining-room, not in the kitchen, and various other concessions hither to unknown.

Mrs. Lewis F. Mason, wife of the U. S. Commissioner, can furnish testimony along these lines. She recently advertised for a washwoman to come to her home in Waukegan.

The next day she received a telephone call from a woman who applied for the position. Questioning brought out the fact that she lived seven miles distant.

"Seven miles out, why, how can you get here?" asked Mrs. Mason.

"I'll come in my car, of course," was the answer, "providing you have a garage or proper parking room in your yard."

Mrs. Mason employed her and soon afterwards she swept up in grand style in her own machine.

Smith answered him that all that is necessary is to file a declaration of candidacy before midnight, Feb. 27.

TERRY KING OF SHORTSTOPS.

Rated by Cravath as Best in National League.

Was a Star from Very Start in the Minors.

Angels to Begin Their Training at Elsinore.

BY HARRYY A. WILLIAMS.

Zeb Terry has arrived, in a baseball sense, and landed all spraddled out in the limelight, as it were.

Zeb, in other words, has attained that dazzling greatness to which all baseball athletes aspire.

He is now rated as the best shortstop in the National League, and so rated by no less an authority than Cactus Cravath, manager of the Phillies.

"Terry is now the ranking shortstop of the older circuit," declared the manager whose doting parents named him after the prickly pear.

STRONG WORDS.

Those are strong words coming from a man having a shortstop of the caliber of Dave Bancroft on his pay roll, because Dave can assimilate grounders in that position as can few athletes.

Cravath didn't make this statement personally to the writer, but it came from the lips of Red Killefer, who culled it from a conversation he had with Cactus. It was such a hot compliment that it didn't cool off any in being transmitted.

As Zeb is a Los Angeles boy his ups and downs have been followed with more than ordinary interest by local fans. A star from the start in the minors, he had difficulty gaining recognition to the extent of landing a steady job in the majors. This probably was due more than anything else to lack of opportunity. When he went to the White Sox it was with every prospect of not only making good, but becoming a star.

OVER-STOCKED.

However, the club was overstocked with more seasoned infielders, and he was permitted to play only sporadically, after which he was returned to the Los Angeles club, the place of beginning. Because of his comparative idleness with the White Sox, Zef was far below his usual form when he returned to the Coast, and not until the following year was he able to strike anything like his usual strids.

His second opportunity came when the Coast League "blew" in the middle of the 1918 race and he, with other Angels, finished up in the majors. The end of the season found Zeb a finished player, and last season he played up to the predictions made for him as a member of the Pirates.

Zeb and Everett Scott, shortstop of the Red Sox, are two exceptions in that both performed like experienced hands the first time they ever stepped on a professional diamond.

SIGNED TERRY.

Terry first attracted attention when playing at Stanford University, when he came under the expert eye of Harry Wolter, who was coaching Santa Clara. Wolter recommended him to Henry Berry, then owner of the Angels. During a game in the North, Ernie Johnson was injured. Dillon wired a call south for re-inforcements, and Bob Boots Weber was allotted the task of signing Terry.

This was not an easy matter, as Zeb was not enthusiastic about making baseball a profession. But the trick was turned, and Zeb bumped into the harness. His first play, which was made in Oakland, stamped him as a phenom. With a runner on second, a grounder was smashed toward left, passing near third base. Zeb speared the ball, and seeing no chance to get the man at first, snapped it to third, nailing the runner coming from second.

PLAY MADE HER.

Not only was the play mechanically perfect, but performed in a manner to show that Zeb had that baseball mentality which is akin to instinct. A majority of green hands would have made a futile throw to first, or merely held the ball, instead of making a quick calculation and choice of play. That one play "made" Zeb. It convinced baseball men that he had the stuff from above the ears down.

The following year the Angels started with Zeb at short and Fred McMullin at second. This was a fast, but rather inexperienced keystone combination. So in order to be fortified, Johnny Powers, by this time owner of the club, purchased Al Buemiller from the Louisville Colonels. Buemiller in his record ranked as one of the best shortstops in the American Association.

NEVER FORGET.

I will never forget a remark which Buemiller made his first day with the Angels. He was sitting on the bench, after having worked out preparatory to taking charge of the shortstop's position in a couple of days.

Buemiller sat close-mouthed about fifteen minutes, closely watching the play around short. Then he broke the silence.

"Why in h—l did they send for me?" said Al. "They told me they needed a shortstop on this club. Somebody lied."

That was one of the warmest compliments ever paid a ball player.

Buemiller never did land a regular job with the Angels, but on his first day he proved himself a real judge of ball players.

GIVEN TWO WEEKS.

But it is hard to break away from tradition, and the Angels will be given two weeks at Elsinore as a formality if nothing more. Aside from the change, they are dreading these dull, drab days of the drought unbroken by the frosted stein and soothing stout on which they depended to ward off staleness and lubricate themselves along life's parched and dusty road. As a last resort, some of the athletes have taken to water, but so far none of them have been able to get farther than a gargle.

GREAT SEASON FOR GOLFERS.

Big Tourneys on Deck from Now Until July.

Best of All Will be Amateur Championship.

Present Year to be the Most Popular of All.

Putting golf up in the major leagues is the ambition of the Southern California Golf Association this season. The schedule of tournaments mapped out for the first few months of the year looks like a parade. The San Gabriel Valley Country Club event just concluded was a howling success and from now on until July it is simply one golf battle after another.

ALREADY STATED.

According to the slate already arranged the following invitation tourneys are now on deck; January 21 to 24, at the Los Angeles Country Club; February 5 to 7, at the Altadena Country Club; February 19 to 21, at the Virginia Country Club; March 7 to 9 (open professional.) at the Annandale Golf Club; March 25 to 28, at the Brentwood Country Club; April 22 to 25, at the Annandale Golf Club; April 30 to May 2, at the La Cumbre Golf and Country Club; May 14 and 15, at the Victoria Club; May 20 to 23, at the Midwick Country Club.

For the best gross and net scores in the above tournaments the Indian Hill Golf Club and the Southern California Golf Association will give two special trophies. A record of all low scores will be kept and the winners of the special trophies will be announced at the end of the season.

BEST OF ALL.

And then greatest of all events will be the battle for the amateur golf championship of Southern California. The big doings will start April 6 over the Los Angeles Country Club course and will continue through the 11th. On the initial day will come the qualifying round over the first eighteen holes. In order to accommodate the largest possible entry list, only the best sixty-four cards turned in at the end of the first eighteen holes are to continue for the remaining eighteen in the qualifying round.

On April 7 the first round of match play will get under way with the exceptions of the first, second and third flights.

The finals and semi-finals in the championship tourney will consist of thirty-six holes. Prizes will be handed out to a large number of winners, near-winners and also-erans.

The date for the woman's golf championship has not yet been decided but a committee is working on the schedule and will announce the time and place in the near future.

ALL MEMBERS.

The following clubs are members of the Southern California Golf Association; Altadena, Annandale, Brentwood, California, Coronado, Indian Hill Golf Club, La Cumbre, Los Angeles, Midwick, Orange County, Point Loma, Redlands, San Gabriel Valley, Santa Barbara, Santa Catalina Island, Victoria and Virginia.

According to Handicaper Ed Tufts the following players will enter competition this year with a zero handicap: E. S. Armstrong, Wm. Campbell, R. J. Cash, Jr., Wm. Frederickson, Paul M. Hunter, Robert E. Hunter, A. D. S. Johnston, Hugo R. Johnstone, Norman Macbeth, H. C. Niven, C. H. Palmer, Jr., E. H. Seaver and Dr. W. H. Spinks.

In the two handicap class are W. W. Eacon, Jr., N. E. Barker, Geo. T. Cline, J. V. Eliot, H. B. Ingalls, J. A. Jevne, N. W. Mears, W. R. Millar, Elmer Ralphs, A. L. Schwarz, A. J. Shafer, Geo. H. Snyder, Frank D. Tatum, W. B. Walton.

With such a string of tournaments lined up for the local bugs there is no doubt that the present season will be a top-notcher. And if anything more is needed to prove that golf is one of the most popular sports in Southern California take a look at the string of enthusiasts lined up at the Griffith Park links any Sunday morning around 7 o'clock.

SWIMMING MARKS BROKEN AT MEET.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PHILADEPHIA, Jan. 17.—Three national interscholastic swimming records were broken here today in the annual national scholastic swimming meet, won by West Philadelphia High School, with seventeen points.

In winning the fifty-yard swim, Philip Ganthner, Brooklyn Poly Prep, established a new record of 25 3-5 seconds, clipping two-fifths of a second off the former mark.

Chace, of Berkeley Irving High School, New York, broke his own national record in the 220 yards race, winning in 2:38 4-5 seconds. The former mark was 2:39 3-5.

The third record was broken by Conn, Rutgers Preparatory School, who added six inches to the old plunge mark of seventy feet.

RAIN POSTPONES TENNIS MATCHES.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

SYDNEY (Australia) Jan. 17.—Rain here this afternoon caused a postponement of the second day's play in the Davis cup tennis matches. It had been planned to hold the doubles contest, but a heavy downpour deadened the turf courts and made play impossible.

A unique series of athletic tests will occur at Annapolis May 8 when the midshipmen battle against Syracuse University rivals in eight-oared shell crew racing, on track and field, lacrosse, rifle shooting and tennis.

PUT KIBOSH ON LOUD CHEERING.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—Boisterous cheering will be prohibited at western conference basketball games, it was announced tonight.

This ruling, which went into effect tonight at the Northwestern-Iowa game at Evanston, states that in the event spectators become boisterous the referee may penalize the captain of the home team with a technical foul.

Another rule was announced as follows:

"Spectators arriving late must wait until the end of the first half before taking seats."

JACK JOHNSON HAS NEW SOCIAL STATUS.

ENTERS THE REAL-ESTATE GAME AND ADVISES ALL TO OWN THEIR OWN HOME.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) Jan. 17.—Jack Johnson, once heavyweight boxing champion of the world, has acquired a certain social status in Mexico, C. L. Gardner, of Hot Springs, Ark., today told the Senate subcommittee investigating the Mexican situation. Johnson did it with the assistance of a group of armed Carranza army officers, the witness explained.

Johnson, the witness said, in July, 1919, entered an American-owned drug store and demanded service in the cafe division. The American waitress informed Johnson it was against the orders of the place to serve negroes.

Johnson left with the threat to "make trouble." He returned, accompanied by white Mexican women and army officers. The officers compelled the attendant to fill Johnson's order.

One of the owners of the store was called to the table by the officers, Gardner said, and with pistols displayed made him shake hands with Johnson and embrace him.

Johnson is a real estate agent. One of his advertisements addressed to "colored people," advising them to own a home in Mexico, "where one man is as good as another and it is not your color that counts."

BASEBALL FEDERATION DECIDES TO EXPAND.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CLEVELAND (O.) Jan. 17.—An effort to restrict the amateur class to players who never had played professional baseball failed at the annual meeting of the National Baseball Federation here today, but on reconsideration it was voted that city associations take up the question and report at the March meeting.

Several changes in the playing rules were made. To enter intercity championship competition a league must start the season with at least six clubs and finish with at least four.

Winning industrial teams of each city must pay to the federation entrance fees of $50 before they can enter intercity competition. Semi-pro teams must pay $100.

The 10 per cent. of gross receipts of championship intercity series which each association pays to the federation was raised to 15 per cent. Those cities not charging admission to championship contests must give 15 per cent. of funds derived from other games, the minimum to be $500.

A movement was launched to expand the organization to practically all parts of the country. The president will appoint a regional chairman who will visit cities in their districts.

SAN DIEGO WANTS P.C.L. FRANCHISE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 17.—James Wood Coffroth, president of the Lower California Jockey Club, and Jack Atkin, a well-known California sportsman, telegraphed President William H. McCarthy of the Coast League today that they are on the market for a franchise for San Diego.

Business interests here are behind the project. It is announced they have tentatively agreed to build a baseball plant and give the promoters free rent for ten years under a lease. The big city stadium is available for temporary use.

John P. (Chief) Meyers is handling the local details for Coffroth and Atkin, both of whom owned Coast League franchises several years ago, and may represent the promoters if they are given a hearing.

CHAMPION SPRINTER AILING WITH MALARIA.

W. R. Applegarth the world's professional sprint champion by reason of his victories over Jack Donaldson of Australia, is probably out of the game for sometime to come. Applegarth has been demobilized, but his health has been greatly undermined by malaria contracted while he was in war service in the eastern countries of Europe.

AERO EXPOSITION SLATED FOR NORTH.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 17.—San Francisco is to be one of the five cities of the country to be favored with a national aeronautical exposition, representatives of aircraft organizations announced here today. The exhibition will be held from April 19 to 30 and will include airplanes of American, Canadian, British, French and Japanese manufacture, it was announced. An air race from San Francisco to Los Angeles is a programme feature for the exposition.

VIETH PLANS BIG SWIM.

Vance Vieth has carded a flock of events for the handicap swimming meet which he is promoting for the evening of the 28th prox. at the L.A.A.C. pool. Vieth is the daddy of handicap swims in these parts, having several years ago discovered that scratch races were not in the same class as a means of developing embryo paddlers.

Besides the regular events Vieth has arranged for some special performances that will appeal to the taste of the fickle. Aileen Allen the national women's diving champ, will give an exhibition, as will some of the juniors—Al Doerr, Merritt Leach and Cameron Coffey. Miss Nora Moore of the Royal Life Saving Society of London will "Rescue" Aileen Allen just to show how it's all done, and then, to can the evening's festivities, there will be a relay race between two teams of Vieth's picking.

The entries to date follow:

Springboard diving for the Raymond Griffith trophy—Billy Williams, International champ; Clyde Swendsen, national champ; Eugene Field, Haig Priest and Eugene Mahoney.

500-yard handicap swim for the Wallace McDonald trophy—Jerry Witt, Edward Friel, Guy Sylvester and Kenneth Carraher.

SPEED LIMITED TO 15 MILES AN HOUR.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BAKERSFIELD (Cal.) Jan. 17.—The card-control system is to be enforced by the Los Angeles Country Board of Supervisors on the Ridge Route, twenty-nine miles long, to keep down speeding and to eliminate accidents, according to advices reaching Bakersfield. The speed limit has been placed at fifteen miles an hour, and cars at either end of the ridge will not be allowed to check out under two hours. Two motorcycle officers have been stationed on the ridge since the paved road, extending from Bailey's to Saugus, was thrown open to traffic last November. The control officials would have the power to arrest motorists who exceeded the two-hour limit as shown by their cards.

AUTO DRIVER MUST UNDERGO TUTELAGE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SALEM (Or.) Jan. 16.—A bill providing that any person who desires to drive an automobile must first obtain a personal license, after not less than five days' experience driving under the tutelage of a competent driver, passed the Oregon Legislature today and was sent to the Governor for signature. The fee for a driver's license is to be 25 cents.

U. OF C. TO HAVE BIG BASKETBALL SEASON.

The University of California basketball team will undertake this year one of the most ambitious schedules of recent years. Two Northwestern college teams—Washington State and Oregon—will be played at Berkeley, while the Bears will go north to tackle Washington State and the University of Washington.

In all probability the same five that represented California last year will wear the blue and gold this season—Symes and Horstman, forwards; Capt. Anderson, center; Green, last year's captain, and Majors, guards. It is possible, however, that some of last year's classy yearling team may crowd in for places on the varsity.

F. J. MARSHALL PLAYS GREAT CHESS IN EAST.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—On his way to Chicago, Frank J. Marshall, the United States chess champion, gave a simultaneous exhibition at the Capital Chess Club, Washington, D. C., making a score of seventeen wins, four draws and two losses. Justice Mahlon Pitney of the United States Supreme Court was one of the four who drew. Those who defeated the champion were Judge Sidney Ballou, former Harvard varsity player, and M. Zetkin. Playing against forty-one opponents at Pittsburgh Marshall won thirty-two, drew four and lost five. At Columbus, O., the expert won twenty-four, drew three and lost one.

L.A.A.C. ACCEPTS HOT DEFI OF THE Y.M.C.A.

The Los Angeles Athletic Club has accepted the hot defi of the Y.M.C.A. handball players for a home-and-home match to be played some time in the near future. Manager Charley Keppen announced yesterday.

At present the meat-swatting artists of the Mercury organization are busily engaged in the playing of the Ruggles round-robin doubles tourney. As soon as that is concluded — and possibly before, said Keppen yesterday—Beck and Tantrum of the "Y" will be gladly accommodated.

ENTRIES FOR TOURNEY CLOSE ON MONDAY.

Entries for the A.A.U. basketball tourney—all classes—must be made by 8 o'clock Monday night, according to an announcement yesterday by members of the tournament committee.

A meeting will be held at the L.A.A.C. on Monday night to outline the season's schedule. Entries can be mailed in, or they can be phoned in to Charley Keppen at the Seventh-street club.

H. E. HOLMES ACCEPTS COAST LEAGUE BERTH.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 17.—H. E. Holmes, Western League umpire, has been signed for the Pacific Coast League, W. H. McCarthy, president of the Coast League, announced today.

McCarthy said A. R. Tearney, president of the Western League, considered Holmes his best umpire and that T. J. Hickey, head of the American Association, who used Holmes in 1917 and 1918, recommended him.

BEAN AND GIFFEN WIN AT HANDBALL.

Clarence Bean and Babe Giffen easily defeated Nolen Allen and Jack Nest in the first match of the Ruggles round-robin handball doubles tourney at the L.A.A.C. yesterday. Allen was away off color, and Bean and Giffen had no difficulty in taking the first game, 21-12. The second was still easier, 21-12.

There are ten teams entered in the tournament, all picked by Ruggles, who is donating cups to the winning pair. The total number of points will count for a victory. An innovation in the mode of scoring is that all points not made by the losers shall be credited to the winners. Bean and Giffen, for instance, accumulated eight extra points in the first game and nine in the second yesterday. Their total is now 59, and that of Allen and Nest, 25.

L.A.A.C. SOCCER TEAM TO PLAY ST. GEORGE.

The L.A.A.C. and Sons of St. George soccer teams will hook up this afternoon at Exposition Park in a regularly scheduled game in the Southern California Soccer League.

The result of today's contest will not tumble the Uniteds from their perch at the top of the heap, but if the Sons win they will topple the Mercuryites from second place and step into it themselves.

L.A. GUN CLUB TO HOLD MORNING SHOOT.

A "Chicago shoot," so styled to honor four trap artists from that city, will be held at the Los Angeles Gun Club this morning. The visitors are Ben Donnelly, Charles Irrgang, L. B. Clark and W. E. Phillips.

SOUTHERN BRANCH OF U. OF C. BESTS OXY.

The score at the end of the first half stood 21 to 14 in favor of the southern branch.

Tuthill once served in a similar capacity with the New York Giants, one of the first clubs to engage a trainer. Before entering baseball Tuthill handled many of the foremost old-time prize fighters, including Jim Corbett, Bob Fitzsimmons and Steve O'Donnell.

Tom Daly, trainer of the Toronto International League team, it is understood, is to joint the Tigers.

SCHAS STARTS AGAIN TODAY.

Irwin Gelding Carries Top Weight in Ascot Derby.

Six Running Events are Down for Solution.

Curtain Goes Down on Bangtails for a While.

BY ED O'MALLEY.

Jake Schas is the Babe Ruth of Ascot Park and today he will again display his prowess in the big classic against seven other of the best thoroughbreds now stabled at the famous speedway. Since coming to Los Angeles about a month ago, Jacob has annexed three derbies to his credit and has yet to suffer a defeat in local fields. It is really a privilege to witness this equine stalwart in action and the real lover of high-class horse flesh is sure to be on hand at Ascot Park this afternoon to see him perform.

Handicapper Hayman has placed 125 pounds on Jacob's withers and well Hayman knows what he is doing, for the son of Norford-Laura E. was born to the purple and his mighty spirit flinches at no task. In his class, Schas is one of the best bangtails we have ever narrowed the binoculars on. He has speed to loan—all distances look alike to him and when the crucial test comes, he has a heart that is indomitable.

THERE UNDER GAFF.

Under the gaff his pluck shines with a peculiar luster—it is then that the Irwin gelding is seen at his best. Front runners, in but rare cases, are not there with the entrails when the cry for "help" is raised. The hallmark of worth, however, is never better exemplified than when the heart responds with a will in a pinch and refuses to be quelled when the stress is at its highest pitch. Such is the characteristic of Schas's courage and unless all signs fail he will give another demonstration of his high class this afternoon in the Ascot Derby, which is slated as the fifth race.

The other five events are nicely balanced and some rare sport can reasonably be looked forward to. When the sixth race will have been finished the curtain goes down for some time on the greatest outdoor amusement ever known to mankind—a sport that in all the civilized countries of both hemispheres has a pre-eminent place in al fresco entertainment—a sport that has come back in England, France and Australia with a popularity much in excess of that which it enjoyed in pre-war days. Verily, the noblest of all animals still holds a secure place in the heart of all true lovers of horse racing and will continue to enjoy that privilege as long as the word "sport" is used in connection with all outdoor entertainment.

REDLANDS VARSITY WINS AT BASKETBALL.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Jan. 17.—The sure-shooting basketball team of the University of Redlands won its second game of the conference schedule on the local floor tonight by a score of 39 to 14. Redlands took the lead from the first, having a score of 20 to 3 at the end of the first half. Dye and Lackey were doing the shooting for Redlands.

The game was starred with foul by both teams. Dye had eight free shots and he scored on all but one and Rech of Pomona had thirteen free shots, but made only four of them good.

McCredie is Giving the Towns Once Over.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Jan. Where will the Portland Beavers establish their spring training camp? Somewhere in Southern California, to be sure, but in just what locality is a question that is agitating Portland fans and Judge W. H. Credle and his manager, Bill Walter, as well. The Beavers appear to be popular with the Southern communities. To date only nine or ten towns have put in a bid for the Mackmen, among which are Riverside, Monrovia, Santa Maria, Redondo, Long Beach, Santa Rosa, Brawley, Escondido and San Diego.

Riverside and Monrovia are the two latest cities to put in their bids, have offered the McCredie-Walter outfit the use of their baseball facilities in the way of training camps. Riverside, especially, has made an attractive proposition.

To hear McCredie tell it, the Beavers are not made up any too well, and it was six months ago that he decided the Portland club will not be in the latter part of February. He cannot hold it back until then, for it is not known that he will be in one spot, but is looking the field over and expects to put in the

WASHINGTON Jan. 17.—With appointment today of ten department and commissioners for prohibition enforcement, the government's machinery to be created under the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution practically was completed. A few State directors have not been named but their duties are being performed by internal revenue officers.

Prohibition Commissioner Kramer's office had an inkling, in its first day of operation, of the multiplicity of problems it will face until the public gets acquainted with the law. Telegrams and telephone calls poured into the various members of the enforcement staff, and there were almost as many subjects to be discussed as there were messages.

Officials believed when Secretary Glass approved the final draft of the enforcement regulations they could meet any controversy with a definite answer through those rulings. But it was admitted freely that the first day of prohibition under the nation's basic law had proved there still were technicalities to be interpreted.

NO NEW YORK NEAR-BEER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Demon rum died hard in New York today, but he died, and even his distant relative, near-beer, will be no more in this State after January 31, according to announcement tonight by Deputy Excise Commissioner D. Harry Ralston.

Mr. Ralston asserted no provision had been made for licensing alcoholic drinks of any kind after this month, and that unless the Legislature rushes through a new measure, saloon-keepers who hope to sell near-beer and light wines will have to shut up shop.

Four minutes after the Eighteenth Amendment became effective in New York this morning—12:05 o'clock to be exact—a Brooklyn cafe owner was arrested by an internal revenue inspector for selling a glass of brandy. A bartender in the same establishment was arrested a minute later.

This news traveled in underground channels faster than prairie fire fanned by a cyclone, and in a short time the merrymaking over the demise of John Barleycorn came to a more or less abrupt end in the greater city's cafes, restaurants and hotels. The presence of 100 revenue inspectors in the White Light district, and the knowledge that the city's 15,000 policemen were watching for violations of the new law, caused the saloonkeepers and others to close their doors somewhat unceremoniously.

JOY MINGLED WITH SADNESS.

The final celebration of the passing of the wet era did not come up to predictions here. In some of the better-known establishments the revelry resembled the traditional New Year's Eve celebrations, but for the most part the interested ones declared the "last fling" was a rather sad affair.

Five hundred cases of confiscated whisky, piled on the sidewalks in front of the customhouse, and under guard, helped convince New Yorkers today that there was an official determination to enforce prohibition.

The whisky had been taken from bonded warehouses for export prior to the time the amendment became effective and its seizure began soon after midnight. Twelve warrants were issued for arrests in connection with the seizures.

A $2,000,000 cargo of whisky, gin and champagne left port today for Havana. Three thousand cases of whisky remained on the pier as there was no room for it on the vessel.

ALL BOOZE TO UNCLE SAM.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—All liquor in the United States may eventually become property of the government, in the opinion of Maj. A. V. Dalrymple, district director in charge of prohibition enforcement. He said today that after acquiring it the government would, in turn, transfer it to hospitals, druggists and other persons authorized to handle it.

"That is the probable goal that the government is leading up to," he added.

The store that Value Built It's Merchandise

Value is that indefinable something by which true worth is measured.

It is as variable as the moods and circumstances of men and times and should only be recognized as a desirable qualification where and when it is backed up by men or institutions of known worth.

So, when a store builds up a large clientele and attributes its success to the values it has given, it means that the principles as well as the merchandise that has been delivered has measured up to a standard somewhat higher than that of an average store.

It means further that the customer has received a dollar's worth of merchandise for every dollar he has left with that store. It is on principles such as this that this store is builded and operates for the mutual benefit of the customers and the organization.

There never has been a time—and there never will be—in the entire history of this company, when the quality of the merchandise in its salesroom has not been in exact consistency with the prices at which it was offered. We tell you exactly what you have a right to expect of your purchase and stand ready at all times and with every force at our command to make good these promises.

A store that is built upon honor in values is a good buying place not only because of the certainty of worthy merchandise, but also because of the fact that where merchandise is sold on merit only, there is not, and cannot be the annoyance of haggling and dispute should there ever be reason for the adjustment of any claim.

Such a store is this—a store where appearance and first cost is secondary to intrinsic value, a store in which there is a full measure of real value in every piece of merchandise it offers.

DEPORT RED ALIENS, OLE HANSON URGES.

FORMER MAYOR OF SEATTLE TELLS BIG AUDIENCE TO CLEAN UP RADICALS.

Ole Hanson, former Mayor of Seattle and champion of Americanism, addressed an audience that filled Clune's Auditorium last night, despite the fact that the "Radiant Way" carnival was being held just two blocks away. The public meeting last night was called to permit the public to hear the man who defeated the soviet rebellion in Seattle.

Mr. Hanson reiterated most of his patriotic utterances of the business and professional men's meeting of the day before. After a general review of the brief Bolshevik trouble in Seattle he assailed the enemies of America.

"The time has come in the United States when we must stand for white labor and not red labor," he said. "The time has come when we must run the United States for the United States. The time has come when we must get rid of the Red aliens. All that is needed is a good man in the office and a few good votes, then we can send the enemies of the country back to where they came from."

Mr. Hanson attacked the Seattle Union Record, organ of the Bolshevik element of Seattle, as "an anarchistic sheet."

"The Seattle Union Record is not a union paper," he said. "It is an anarchistic sheet. This same paper, following the death of Theodore Roosevelt, appeared on the streets with an editorial proclaiming thanks that Roosevelt was dead. This same paper, following the murder of American soldiers at Centralia on Armistice Day, printed an editorial stating the American soldiers got what they justly deserved. This same paper agitated a strike in the Seattle shipyards without the consent of any of the Seattle labor councils."

MYRON HERRICK HERE.

Passing Through with Family En Route to Santa Barbara.

Myron T. Herrick, former Governor of Ohio, this country's wartime Ambassador to France and more lately president of the American Committee for Devastated France, arrived here last night with Mrs. Herrick, their three children and a governess, en route to Santa Barbara. The party is stopping at the Alexandria, where Mr. Herrick in registering gave his home as Minneapolis. The only purpose of the present trip is pleasure, he said. He expects to leave with his family tomorrow for Santa Barbara, where he has close friends and is often a visitor.

STUDENTS MAKE RECORD.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VAN NUYS, Jan. 17.—Students of the Van Nuys High School, who established reputations as workers during the war-time period, added to this record during the holiday vacation. A report filed by Nathan F. Smith, superintendent of the school, to the Board of Education, shows that in the two weeks' vacation period 59 students out of an enrollment of 260 were engaged in different lines of work, with a total of 2600 hours of service and earnings aggregating $1197.

BURGLARS GET RICH LOOT.

Burglars visited the residence of Harry C. Keefe, an oil operator, at 629 Lucerne boulevard, last night, and stole diamonds and valuable papers worth $27,190, according to a report made to the police.

Climbing up a post of the rear porch the burglars gained entrance to the upper floor of the residence by cutting a hole through a bedroom window screen. When the Keefes returned home they found dresser drawers pulled out, clothing strewn upon the floor and found almost everything of value stolen.

A complete list of the stolen property of value follows: Platinum chain set with six diamonds, valued at $2000; platinum bracelet set with diamonds, valued at $1500; ring with two 2-carat diamonds and twenty small diamonds, valued at $2500; diamond ring with a three and one-half carat stone, valued at $2000; dinner ring, with three large and thirty small diamonds, valued at $1500; two men's silver wrist watches, valued at $100; two certificates of deposit on the Continental National Bank for $6250 each; a check made out to Mrs. Margaret L. Keefe for $4500 on the Colorado National Bank and a check for $590, on the same bank, made out to Mr. Keefe.

BANKERS TO TAHOE.

Convention to be Held in June at Mountain Resort.

The executive council of the California Bankers' Association, in session at San Francisco yesterday, designated Tahoe Tavern as the meeting place for the association's convention, next June 10 and 11. Word of the decision was telegraphed to this city by W. D. Longyear, vice-president of the Security Trust and Savings Bank.

WOMAN DIES AS RESULT OF ACCIDENT.

Mrs. Mollie Kahn, 54 years of age, who resides at 1507 North Mariposa avenue, Hollywood, received fatal injuries when she was struck by an automobile owned and driven by F. F. Bettangill of 7106 Fountain avenue, while she was crossing Hollywood boulevard with her daughter, between Normandie and Mariposa avenues, last night. She was rushed to the Receiving Hospital, where it was learned that she had sustained a basal fracture of the skull and compound fractures of both legs. She died there two hours later. Funeral arrangements will be made by the family later.

Mrs. Kahn failed to see the oncoming car, according to officers from Hollywood station, who investigated. She was crossing the busy boulevard in the middle of the block. The accident was held to have been unavoidable by the police.

Mrs. Kahn, who came to this city two months ago, is survived by a husband and daughter, who live at the Mariposa-avenue address.

"DIP" GETS HIS ROLL.

"Radiant Way" Spectator Watching Lights Pickpocket's Victim.

While Thomas E. Welch, of the Hotel Vidamar, 106 West Tenth street, was standing in Broadway in front of the City Hall last night, waiting for the lights to go on, a pickpocket stole $400 in cash and Liberty Bonds from his pocket. It happened just at zero hour, 8:30 p.m., when everyone was looking at the city officials in front of the City Hall.

When the lights were turned on a minute later, Mr. Welch discovered his loss, but could not see the thief. Mr. Welch's loss consisted of a $100 bill, two $100 Liberty Bonds and two $50 Liberty Bonds.

M. W. CLARK OWNER OF VALUABLE WATCH.

M. W. Clark of this city has a highly prized watch. It has been held on a number of new world marks. Mr. Clark has been serving as one of the timers at the motorcycle races at Ascot Park. Last Sunday the timepiece ticked off two world records in the twenty-five and fifty-mile events. He also held this watch as a timekeeper in the first fight that Jess Willard ever had. The watch has timed world records in hese-splicing and ladder-scaling contests by firemen, and has seen service in athletic events of nearly every description.

MOTION PICTURES OF CONSTITUTION

duced Secretary Lansing to enlist the co-operation of the press and motion picture industry to remind the people of this country of their debt to the land in which they live. Fearing a great crush to see the precious sheets if the plan became known, with the possibility of serious damage resulting, announcement of what was done was not made public until today.

Both the declaration and Constitution were found in excellent condition. The former for many years has been very faded, due to the fact that "letter press" copy, from which reproductions have come, was made about seventy years ago, and in the wetting necessary, much of the ink was lost. The signatures are very indistinct except for the famous "John Hancock," written extra large with flourishes and right in the most prominent place, so that his advocacy of the document's principles should be known to all the world.

In an address to the company witnessing the exhibition of the documents, Secretary Lansing said he had found the Constitution safe so far as the forces of nature were concerned, and that the American people should protect it equally well in their minds and hearts.

"Four great documents," Mr. Lansing said, "mark the progress of the struggle of a thousand years to attain the civil liberty which has found expression in American citizenship—Magna Charta in 1215, the English Bill of Rights in 1689, the Declaration of Independence in 1776, and the Constitution of the United States of America in 1788. Epoch-making as each of these documents is, it is the Constitution which represents the highest expression of the sovereignty of a free people.

"Gleaned from the collective wisdom of the ages and forged into a perfect whole in the fires of genius, the Constitution consummating the hopes and aspirations of generations brought into being a nation founded on the principle that all men are equal before the law and that all are entitled to an equal voice in the government under which they live.

"This great instrument, whose excellence has been proven in war as well as in peace, is the channel through which our national life finds true expression. It is the bulwark of our individual rights and the guardian of the destinies of the republic.

"With reference we stand in the presence of the Constitution of the United States, beholding in it the symbol of democracy victorious after centuries of conflict, the visible evidence that this nation is built on the eternal rock of human liberty. May we never surrender this great birthright of American citizens. May we give to it our undivided allegiance. May we defend it even with our lives, from every enemy who seeks to destroy it in principle or power. As it shielded our forefathers and has shielded us, let us always shield it from profaning hands."

Attempts of radicals to stir up discord in the navy have been without results, Commander C. H. Mayo, in charge of naval welfare work, today told the House Naval Committee. "Reds," he said, had taken a few subscriptions to radical publications where enlisted men thought they were labor papers and would possibly aid in obtaining pay increases.

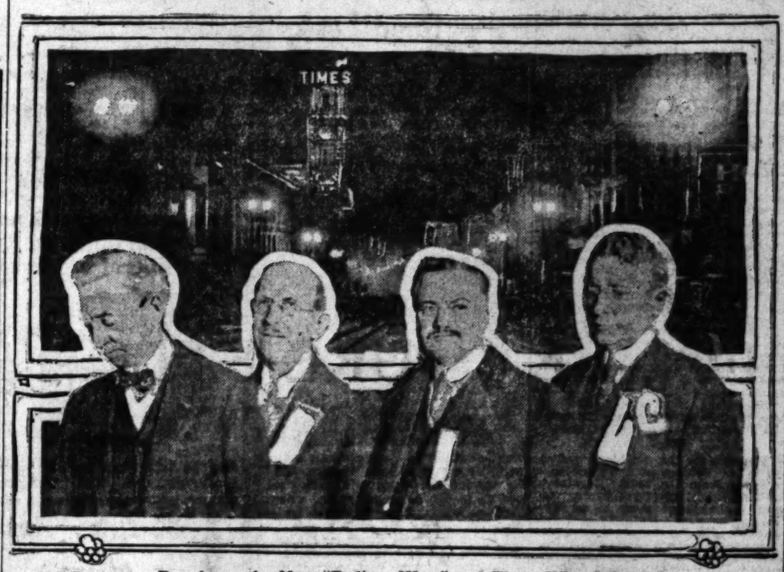
When the Lights Went on on Broadway Last Night.



Broadway, the New "Radiant Way," and Those Who Officiated.

The top picture was taken from in front of the Hall of Records, looking south, just after the lights were turned on. Below, in the reviewing stand, are, left to right, Mayor Snyder, Fred W. Blanchard, Walter d'Arcy Ryan and George M. Babcock. Mr. Ryan designed the lighting system. Messrs. Blanchard and Babcock are, respectively, president and secretary of the Business Men's Co-operative Association, which was largely instrumental in securing the lights.

MERRYMAKERS' CHEERS GREET "RADIANT WAY."

Thousands in Broadway's Carnival Throng Dance Under New Lights Turned on by the Mayor.

For just about half a minute last night Broadway was the darkest place in the entire city. Someone turned out the lights that have been doing duty along the street for many years and they faded slowly as if reluctant to quit a task they had grown to like. The brightness that comes usually from the windows of stores and buildings faded out also and thousands of persons, crowded into the blocks between First and Tenth streets looked upward, and waited expectantly for something to happen.

You could just hear the low murmur that came from the crowds as they tuned their voices in preparation for something about which they intended to make as much noise as possible. Then Mayor Snyder, stationed on a platform at the North Broadway tunnel, at 8:30 o'clock pressed a button and changed Broadway into the "Radiant Way" of Los Angeles, the most brilliantly lighted street in the world, far outrivaling New York's "Great White Way," that everybody has long considered the last word in street illumination.

STARTED WITH CHEERS.

The crowds in the street let loose then. They greeted the new lights with wild cheering. Ten bands and orchestras struck up lively dance tunes. The Times siren roared, bombs burst, red fire flared, store windows flashed into brightness again and the carnival that marked the city's welcome for the new lighting system was in full swing.

Something like 100,000 persons were out in Broadway when the new lights blazed forth for the first time. Most of them were in costume, all sorts of fancy dress regalia. Many were masked. All of them were there to have a good time and for three hours, when the music ceased and the crowds began to drift toward the car lines for home, they had their full enjoyment of the celebration.

It was an unusual thing in itself, turning a large city's main thoroughfare into a great dancing pavilion, and the crowds enjoyed the novelty time. Some of them were in costume, of it. Mostly the crowds were too thick to dance, so they promenaded and listened to the bands and the solo singers stationed at every band stand. Promptly at 6 o'clock the police began to clear the street. No further parking of automobiles in the blocks between First and Tenth streets was permitted after that hour. At 8 o'clock street car traffic ceased. Folks who wanted to go to the theaters were given until 8:15 to get into the playhouses and then the street was turned over to the merry-makers. From then till 11 o'clock Broadway saw a carnival such as has never been staged before on the main street of a big city.

ESCORT FOR MAYOR.

The official celebration was held around the platform at the tunnel entrance, Mayor Snyder was escorted from the City Hall by a platoon of mounted police, commanded by Chief of Police Home, and a committee of the Broadway Improvement Association, consisting of F. W. Blanchard, the president; E. Avery McCarthy, George M. Babcock and Glover P. Widney.

A large crowd gathered around the platform to see the official ceremony. Prominent city officials and particularly members of the Broadway Improvement Association, which signed the contract for the new lighting system, were there to see the fulfillment of their plans. The Liberty Boys' Band played several selections for the crowd.

Mr. Blanchard presented the new lighting system to the city in a short address in which he said:

"The new Broadway lighting system designed by W. D'Arcy Ryan, illuminating engineer of the General Electric Company, and installed by the Broadway Improvement Association, again places Los Angeles in the limelight as a leader.

BEST LIGHTED STREET.

"Broadway, Los Angeles, which twelve years ago had the honor of having the first system of ornamental lights, now has the distinction of being the best-lighted business street in the world. This does not necessarily mean the most brilliantly lighted street. The harmonious balance of the lighting standards by day and by night in conjunction with the general illuminating effect and in relation to electric signs and shop window lighting is perfect.

"A clean-cut sky line by night is just as essential to proper street lighting as is adequate illumination on the street surface. Both of these requirements are met in the new Broadway illumination. This is accomplished by the use of luminous arc lamps giving six to seven times the light of the old cluster lights which have been replaced. Due to the much higher efficiency of the new system the maintenance cost is not at all proportioned to the additional light. The new lights possess a distinctive quality of life and snap which the incandescent cluster lighting did not have."

MAYOR SNYDER'S SPEECH.

Replying, the Mayor said:

"This is perhaps one of the most momentous occasions in the annals of the civic life of Los Angeles—the turning on of the wonderful lighting system on Broadway—just christened 'The Radiant Way.'

"Although we now have another name for historic Broadway, one which lives up to the brilliant and beautiful fixtures, I feel sure that we will not want it to outshine that of the name given it by its founders, but simply be a new garment to enhance the attractiveness of one of our principal streets and encourage those who are engaged in commercial business, not only on Broadway, but in all sections of the business portion of our city, and that from this they may see that it is to the interest of all our business sections to attempt a similar system of lighting.

"It not only means much to all of our citizens, but it will be a wonderful attraction to our visitors from the East.

"With these new street lights as an inspiration, I feel sure that the merchants on Broadway, or 'The Radiant Way,' will find that they have made an investment that will come back to them a hundred-fold. And I trust that these same merchants will vie with each other in an effort to make their store lightings and displays in keeping with this beautiful new ornamental system.

"And now I shall turn the switch which will flash on the lights of the 'Radiant Way'—with the feeling that just one more thing has been accomplished to make the prosperity, wonder and charm of this great city of Los Angeles shine out to all the world."

As he finished his address Mayor Snyder turned on the lights and the official ceremony was over. At the City Hall a chorus of 200 voices sang several selections and another chorus between Ninth and Tenth streets also added to the musical programme. The fireworks display, arranged by the committee, was held near the tunnel stand just before and after the official lighting ceremony.

MANY "RECOGNIZED."

Probably every one of the thousands who participated in the carnival was "recognized" several times during the night as some noted film actor or actress—the reason being the $25 cash prize to be given to the first person who said, "You are Charlie Chaplin, fork over the kale," or words to that effect.

Sid Grauman arranged for this part of the programme and it kept things lively along Broadway for hours. It was announced that the film celebrities would be in costume and masked and that the first person who recognized any one of them and said the magic words, would not only receive $25 in cash right there from the actor or actress, but also would have the privilege of dancing with the "prize."

The film folks who wandered about with cash in their pockets for the sharp eyes that were to detect them under their disguise were Charlie Chaplin, "Fatty" Arbuckle, Charles Ray, Wallace Reid, Tom Meighan and Hobart Bosworth. Film actresses were Maria Prevost, Mary Miles Minter, Lila Lee, Gloria Swanson, and Ethel Clayton. Mr. and Mrs. Carter de Haven also were in the merry crowd only too anxious to be captured.

FAT MEN POPULAR.

It is safe to say that "Fatty" Arbuckle was "recognized" more than any other film actor or actress. In fact, it was a hard night for men who were anyway corpulent, and one man who said he believed always that "nobody loves a fat man" found himself very popular and was hailed as the film comedian a score of times, his captors being greatly disappointed when he refused to admit his identity and pay up.

The street dancing was in charge of a committee of prominent women who acted as chaperons under the direction of City Mothers Gilbert and Harris.

The musical programme at the City Hall, presented by Community Service, Inc., included selections by the Liberty Club of Service Men's Band, the Liberty Club Quartette and community singers, directed by L. S. Pilcher. Those who participated in the singing were organized groups from the organizations following: Southern California Telephone Company, Broadway Department Store, Humburger's, Clark Memorial Home, Western Wholesale Drug Company, Union Hardware and Metal Company, Macy Street Evening School, Santa Fe Evening School, Bullock's, Blue Triangle Club, Ville de Paris and the Young Ladies' Institute.

So great was the crowd that several persons fainted in the crush, but speedily revived and went right on dancing.

THE NEW SYSTEM.

The illumination system which was dedicated last night is the culmination of a plan adopted in 1916 by the Broadway Improvement Association for increased illumination of Broadway. F. W. Blanchard and E. Avery McCarthy, as a committee of the association, requested W. d'Arcy Ryan, director of the illuminating engineering laboratory of the General Electric Company, to plan the system. There are 134 standards or lamp posts, each carrying two lamps. Sixty-seven of the lamps will burn all night, the remaining 201 being extinguished at midnight. The total cost of the system was about $100,000, of which $35,000 was borne by the property owners and the other $15,000 by the city. The annual cost of maintenance will be approximately $14,000, of which the city will pay less than $1000. The city will supply the current and maintain the lamps.

The standards were built here and erected by the Keystone Iron and Steel Works of Los Angeles, of which H. L. Griswold is president and general manager. This is one of the most elaborate jobs of ornamental electroliers ever made on the Coast, and is a 100 per cent. home product.

SEATTLE MAN GAINED 20 LBS.

Lost Much Time from Business Because of Poor Health.

Never Loses a Day from Work Now.

Feels Fine and Praises Tanlac to His Friends.

"I have not only gained twenty pounds in weight since I started taking Tanlac, but doubt if I would be on my feet today if I had not taken it," said Frank Seymour, 2501 Sixth avenue, Seattle, Wash., recently. Mr. Seymour has been in the fish business in Seattle for forty years, and for the past nine years has conducted the Denny Way Fish Market near Fifth street. Continuing, Mr. Seymour said:

"For the past four years I have suffered with spells of cramps in my stomach so bad they would just draw me double and keep me laid up in bed for a day or two. I had no relish for the food I ate and what I did eat seemed to do me harm instead of good. After every meal I had the worst sort of pains in the pit of my stomach and would bloat up with gas until I could hardly stand it. I also suffered with rheumatism in my hands. I had pains nearly all the time through my whole body and my kidneys bothered me a great deal.

"I had tried many different kinds of medicines, but none of them did me any good. So many of my friends were praising Tanlac I decided to try it, and noticed a change for the better almost as soon as I started taking it. I have taken six bottles now and never have a cramp or any other kind of pain in my stomach and can eat anything I want without suffering any bad after-effects. In fact, I am simply feeling great in every way, and never lose a day from work. I can't say enough for Tanlac and expect to praise it whenever I have an opportunity."

Tanlac is sold in Los Angeles, Pasadena and San Diego by the Owl Drug Co.—[Advertisement.]

SAN FRANCISCO GETS 1920 POLO TOURNEY.

San Francisco has secured the water-polo championships for 1920 and the Olympic Club is spending a lot of time and money arranging for the swiftest affair ever staged anywhere.

Water-polo teams from New York, Chicago, Portland, Spokane and San Francisco have already been lined up and it is hoped that several other squads will enter the competition.

According to Vance Vieth of the L.A.A.C., the Olympic Club will have many pickings in the water event. The club team has worked together for years and can handle a ball like a hungry guy can juggle a knife and fork. The team from Chicago is slated to put up the stiffest battle for honors. There will be no team entered by the Los Angeles Athletic Club as water polo has passed into oblivion in these parts.

ATHLETIC CLUB SITE COSTS ONE MILLION.

The site of the new Continental Athletic Club at Sixty-first street and Central Park West, New York City, cost $1,000,000. A fourteen-story clubhouse will be erected on the site which measures 200 by 100 feet. One entire floor will be devoted to ice hockey with 2500 seating capacity. It has so far a membership of 1000. A feature will be an "Advisory Sport Congress" of 125 members who will be experts in sports and athletics.

AIRPLANE FAILS; DEATH IS VICTOR

Olive-Poisoned Victims Die Without Serum.

Motors Fail in Life and Death Aerial Race.

Only One Remains of Entire Stricken Family.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Death won a double victory in a grim race with an express train and a government mail airplane tonight, when two more members of the Paul Delbene family, poisoned from eating olives, died in Fordham Hospital.

The special serum necessary to save their lives was sent by airplane from Chicago, but was delayed by an accident. Other supplies were obtained from Washington. Hospital physicians, however, hope to save the life of the only surviving member of the family of seven—a 10-year-old girl.

Had it not been for delays caused by storms it is believed the serum brought by train from Washington would have arrived in time to save the life of Angelo Delbene, who died tonight before the fluid could be administered. His brother, Dominick, who also died, received one injection and rallied slightly. However, he lived but two hours after being treated.

The members of the family who already have died from the olive poisoning are Paul Delbene, his wife, their two sons, Antonio and Dominick, and two brothers of Paul Delbene, Angelo and Dominick.

Health Commissioner Copeland announced tonight he had traced the poisoned olives to an East Side store. The olives originally came from California, he said. There were forty-eight cases in the shipment, but it was learned part of them had been consumed without harmful results.

The serum arrived at the hospital too late to save the life of Angelo, who died shortly after 8 o'clock. Although he was alive when it reached the institution, he was dead before an injection could be given.

Physicians said they hoped to save the life of the other victim by administering the serum at once.

RACE WITH DEATH.

The call for the antitoxin was received at Urbana at 1 o'clock in a message from Dr. John Riegelman, medical examiner of the Bronx, who said the package must be in New York in less than twenty-four hours or it would be too late. Because trains could not make the trip quickly enough, it was suggested the antitoxin be forwarded by airplane.

L. S. Allen, manager of the U. S. Air Mail Service here, held the first mail plane scheduled to depart at daybreak until the precious package was received.

The antitoxin was perfected by Prof. Robert Graham, head of the chemical department of the University of Illinois, and is used to combat botulism.

FEW INFLUENZA DEATHS.

Another big increase in the number of influenza and pneumonia cases, but a continuance of a small death rate, was recorded today by reports to the City Health Commissioner. There were 865 new cases of "flu" and 146 of pneumonia. Seven influenza deaths were listed and twenty-one from pneumonia.

BLOCKADE OFF BLOW TO REDS.

the Peace Conference and to cease fighting on that zone."

PARIS, Jan. 17.—The prime ministers of the Allies, it appears, were not in entire accord respecting the decisions yesterday upon a limited opening of trade with Russia.

Premier Lloyd George proposed the measure, seemingly to conciliate the labor forces of England. Premier Nitti supported Lloyd George, explaining that the decisions would have a good effect upon political opinion in Italy, where a good deal of Bolshevik agitation is reported. Premier Clemenceau opposed any dealings with Bolshevik Russia, but finally said he would agree to such a measure of trade as that finally announced. He insisted, however, upon writing the final paragraph affirming that the Allies had not changed their attitude toward the soviets.

MILITARY CONCERN.

There appears to be more concern in the minds of military men over the recent defeats of Gen. Denikine, anti-Bolshevik leader in southern Russia, and the remnants of Admiral Kolchak's All-Russian forces, than in the minds of the statesmen composing the Supreme Council.

Military advisers have continually been pointing out to the British and the French governments recently that the situation in the Balkans and Poland is precarious in the presence of Bolshevik successes; but up to the present, it appears that the Supreme Council has not taken any important decision looking to armed resistance on a great scale to the Bolshevik advance." About all that is evident is that considerable military material and abundant counsel had been supplied to the Polish government and the other states fringing on Russia.

Marshal Foch has long had the idea that the best counterpoise to the armied soviet would be an international army composed of troops recruited from the Baltic states, Poland and Rumania and as large an army of Russians as could be enlisted, with other troops from all the Balkan states, the whole under French command. This plan was discussed by the military council months ago, but was abandoned because the representatives of the United States would not agree to finance the new army.

LONDON STUDIES RULING.

[BY CABLE AND ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

LONDON, Jan. 17.—Representatives here of Russian co-operative organizations are eagerly awaiting advices as to how the Allied decision to partially raise the Russian blockade will be made effective.

Although the official statement setting forth the Allied decision indicates that trading between private firms and individuals is still under the ban, the importance of the ruling may be appreciated when it is stated that the co-operative societies which alone are affected in recent years have become the chief medium for the distribution of goods to the Russian peasants. Ten of these organizations having offices in London claim to represent the interests of upwards of 50,000,000 peasants.

It is believed in some quarters that the lifting of the ban on the vast accumulation of Russian produce awaiting export may have a far-reaching effect on prices in the world's markets.

MANY URGENT NEEDS.

The protracted disorganization of Russian industry has rendered millions of Russians dependent entirely on importations of manufactured articles. The country's most urgent needs are clothing, drugs, chemicals, agricultural implements and railway supplies. There also are pressing requirements for hardware, tools and machinery other than agricultural and household utensils and for some food products and it is pointed out that the United States is in a position to supply all these needs. Apart from disorganization of transport, the greatest difficulty foreseen in re-establishing trade relations with Russia has been the matter of financing shipments and effecting payments for them. It is declared that there is plenty of money in the hands of the peasants, but they are reluctant to part with their produce so long as they receive only more paper money in return. On the other hand few foreign traders will agree to accept this paper money in payment for goods they deliver.

The only way out of the deadlock thus created will be resort to the principle of barter in which hides, skins, butter, flax, wool, cheese, bacon, grain, furs, lumber, minerals and fish will be Russia's main offerings. It is believed that the difficulties attending reorganization of Russia's industries will continue this plan of bartering as one of the factors in Russian export trade for some years to come.

BAN ON REDS STAYS.

Commercial relations will be reopened between the Allied nations and the Russian people at once as a result of a decision reached by the Supreme Council at Paris yesterday. This step does not imply an altered attitude toward the Trotsky-Lenine government, according to the statement issued by the Council.

Clothing, medicines, agricultural machinery and other necessities will be shipped into Russia from Entente nations, which will receive in payment grain, flax and other products which the Russian people desire to export. Arrangements by which supplies sent to Russia will reach the peasants will be made, it is understood.

Relations between the Allies and soviet Russia fill a great deal of space in this morning's newspapers. Dispatches from Paris show a strange conflict of views regarding the hurried journey to that city Thursday of ministers and chiefs of the army and navy. Some advices assert they were summoned there to consider the danger from Bolshevism, while others declare that they were called for a general discussion of the European situation.

CHICAGO TRADE OPINION.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—Opinions on the Chicago Board of Trade were divided as to the effect on prices here likely to result from the resumption of commercial relations with Russia.

J. E. Carney, with A. O. Slaughter & Co., said:

"It is undoubtedly the most bearish and promising development toward a reduction in the high cost of living since the beginning of the war. America, after being the dictator of world's values for five years, has not only been forced into a competitive position, but has become the probable dumping-ground of the world owing to its adverse foreign exchange position." In this connection he called special attention to reports of a large grain harvest in the south and southeast of Russia and that, as the number of live stock there was greatly reduced, fodder grain was available both for export and for human consumption, thus setting free for export quantities of bread grain."

TEXAN IS ACQUITTED OF SLAYING ARMY MAN

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BROWNWOOD (Tex.) Jan. 17.—Three and a half years under the cloud of a murder charge, Harry J. Spanell, a former Texas music teacher, was free tonight by action of a district court jury. The verdict came after two hours' deliberation.

AMERICA KEEPS BAN ON SOVIET.

soviet Russia, which now dominates practically all European Russia and is moving more deeply into Siberia while at the same time pushing its penetration into the near east. This government's view, however, is that these activities are not the concern of the United States.

It was recalled today that during the last months of the Peace Conference the American delegates refrained from discussing the Russian situation, such discussions tending in most instances to a consideration of the partitioning of Russia, and this possibility is now thought to be distinctly a practical, rather than an academic, question, in view of the attitude of Rumania, supported by France and of the British movements in the near East.

MAY CALL ON JAPS.

Among the likelihoods, in the event that Britain and her allies decide to take military measures against the extension of Bolshevik rule over the whole of Russian territories, is an appeal to Japan by the British government under the terms of the Anglo-Japanese alliance, for the maintenance by Japan of her military forces in Siberia.

While the United States refuses to engage in direct hostilities with the Bolsheviki it is not averse, as shown by Secretary of War Baker's recommendations in the case of Poland, to lending financial and indirect military aid to anti-Bolshevik operations. The arming of Poland would be one of the major elements in the creation of the proposed cordon sanitaire around Bolshevik Russia, and would prevent the egress of soviet troops into Western Europe. In the instance of Poland, however, it is a case of an independent state meeting foreign aggression and not of foreign powers taking aggressive action against Russia.

Secretary of War Baker commenting on the [illegible] of Poland:

"In my judgment, [illegible] Polish government, [illegible] set up by the [illegible] is occupying [illegible] assigned to it [illegible] the convention by which it came into existence. SUNDAY MORNING.

SAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Anybody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair with Sage Tea.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly nobody can tell it has been applied. It's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.—[Advertisement.

The Easiest Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, soft, glossy, silky and soft, and have that "feel" a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.—[Advertisement.

Thought His Time Had Come—Disappointed

Never was more surprised in my life than when I took the first dose of Foley's Wonderful Remedy. My stomach trouble had been of eight years standing, sometimes so bad as to cause convulsions, followed by sickness. I thought my time in this world was short, and believed it the last medicine I would ever take. I am now eight weeks since, and I am feeling better than for many years. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal matter from the intestinal tract and heals the inflammation which causes nearly all stomach, liver and kidney ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded. At all druggists.—[Advertisement.

GIVES PENNONS TO WELLESLEY.

Gen. Pershing Thanked by Los Angeles Girl.

Latter Selected to Represent Senior Class.

Famous Four-Starred Flag is Among Trophies.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WELLESLEY (Mass.) Jan. 17.—Featuring one of the most impressive events ever witnessed at Wellesley College, Gen. Pershing's famous four-starred battle flag—a flag of red with four white stars alligned through its center—together with his war helmet and the personal battle pennon of the kaiser were presented to Wellesley College yesterday through the Azora society of that institution and a receiving committee from each Wellesley class.

Long before the general returned it was known that the Azora society at Wellesley College was to have his flag and helmet. His late wife was a member of the Azora, and he is now an honorary member.

In the receiving line representing the class of 1920, was Miss Ruth Ault Bolgiano, of 498 South Manhattan place, Los Angeles, who in her turn delivered a remarkably impressive and touching address of thanks and appreciation.

Following the brief addresses of thanks the thirteen members of the Azora Society, Catherine Hughes, of New York City; Helen Humphrey, of Cambridge Springs, Pa.; Constance H. Gregory, of Newark, N. J.; Elibeth Tone, of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Dorothy W. Calvert, of Detroit, Mich.; Catherine Lindsay, of Milwaukee, Wis.; Dorothea Douglass, of Upper Montclair, N. J.; Clara Loveland, of Cincinnati, O.; Katherine C. Scott, of Cleveland, O.; Mary P. Saltonstall, of Elizabeth, N. J.; Marion C. Smith, of Detroit; Helen B. Robertson, of Yakima, Wash., and Miss Bolgiano, all of whom are to receive a personal trophy from Gen. Pershing, passed resolutions of thanks to Gen. Pershing which are to be engraved on a gold plate.

The presentation was made by Countess De Tiedekerke, chairman of Belgian Purple Cross, now in this country. The kaiser's personal pennon was given to the countess by the emperor personally, who detached it from his automobile at her request.

Following the ceremonies an arrangement was made between the college faculty and the Azora Society whereby each Wellesley class is to have the trophies for one week, they to be in charge of the Pershing Trophy Committee, of which Miss Bolgiano was chosen a member for the class of 1920.

Miss Ruth Ault Bolgiano.

Miss Ruth Bolgiano is a graduate of the Hollywood High School, having completed the course there four years ago. She is the daughter of Roland Bolgiano, a prominent real estate dealer of this city. In addition to the present honor bestowed on her, Miss Bolgiano was mistress of the Tree festival held at Wellesley last year, and it is declared the entertainment given at that time, which was completely under her control, was the best that has been held at the college.

Miss Bolgiano was born in Baltimore, and came here with her parents six years ago.

CARRANZA AIDS RADICAL UNION.

Protects Organized Labor in Fight on Americans.

Railroad Man so Testifies at San Antonio Inquiry.

Fall Denies that He has Any Holdings in Mexico.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.) Jan. 17.—Mexico's objections to Mexicans testifying before the Senate subcommittee investigating affairs in that country, will result in an increased number of executive committee sessions. The improbability that any efforts will be made by the committee to compel any Mexican to testify, was made clear by the committee today, but Mexicans asked to testify in cases where they fear the results will be offered such protection as a secret hearing can afford them. At least one witness today was a Mexican.

Mexican secret service agents have appeared here in greater numbers since the hearings began and there has not been held one session at which the Mexican government was unrepresented.

Most of the testimony taken in a closed session related to robberies, outrages and oppressions inflicted upon Americans in Mexico, especially in the southern and eastern part of the country. Those testifying asked the cloak of a secret hearing that they might return to their holdings in Mexico.

RADICAL LABOR UNION.

In the open hearings C. L. Gardener of Hot Springs, Ark., gave the details of the wording of the "Gran Liga," a radical railway labor organization organized during the latter part of Diaz's rule and which attained greater strength under that of Carranza.

It was largely due to influence of that organization that he ascribed the substitution of Mexican railroad men for Americans.

Gardener was one of the few Americans who continued to work on the Mexican lines. He was a conductor and for a time his "run" was in the country south of Mexico City, where he witnessed atrocities by the followers of Zapata. He related to the committee instances of mounted Zapatistas overtaking young women, throwing them upon their horses and riding away with them into the hills.

He also told the committee of the popularity of Jack Johnson, ex-heavyweight champion, in Mexico City.

HALL IS INVOLVED.

Part of the committee's time was taken today in examining witnesses regarding the sources of an International News Service article that originated here but was "killed" before publication. The writer cited Guillermo Hall as the one responsible for the statements made. Hall is the director of the Mexican trade bureau of the local Chamber of Commerce. The article questioned was that secret service agents of Mexico were investigating the record of Senator Fall, with the object of ascertaining what business interests he has in Mexico and the statement that he was said to be interested in the affairs of the Terrazas family. Hall denied responsibility for the statements, although a woman who appeared as a witness said he had so informed her.

FALL'S DENIAL.

Replying to charges by a Texas newspaper that he had interests in Mexico that prevent him from being a disinterested investigator, Senator Fall today went on the witness stand and under oath stated his only holdings there are $75,000 of mining stock acquired years ago.

Louis Cabrera, Mexican Minister of Finance, will not come to San Antonio to testify before the Senate committee investigating the Mexican situation.

In a telegraphic message to Senator Fall, chairman Senor Cabrera today declined the former's counter invitation and expressed the opinion that if Senator Fall thought it essential to know the opinion of various Mexican rebel groups, it would be useless for him to visit Mexico.

"I do not think that, being as you are, a man of very independent criterion, that you would not be able to see the truth even though you were our guest," Cabrera added.

CABRERA'S REPLY.

The following is the text of Cabrera's reply:

"I am very sorry that you have not taken my telegram in the sense and spirit in which it was sent, that is to say, a really sincere and candid invitation that you would visit and see our country.

"Your telegram declining my invitation is nevertheless the most illuminating document that could have been written since it gives us the opportunity of knowing the purpose of the investigation that you are carrying on. The fact is that the government of Mexico could not invite you to come and have conferences with the rebels, but we invited you to travel and see the country and I can assure you that there is not a railway line where you could not go in a special car under the protection of our troops.

"If you consider it essential to know what the opinion is of such and such a group of rebels and if you think that the best way of ascertaining the real conditions of our country is to listen to reports instead of really and actually seeing the way the nation is living and working, I do not believe that we can be useful to you.

"I do not think that, being as you are a man of very independent criterion, that you would not be able to see the truth, even though you were our guest.

"I am very sorry that I cannot accept your invitation to go to San Antonio, and, in fact, I do not see any purpose to my trip since my opinion has been perfectly consistent on that point that investigation that the Senate is carrying on is contrary to internal principles and to the respect due to the sovereignty of my country.

"I welcome the opportunity you have given me to exchange a few words and of knowing the true object of the investigation. Hoping to meet you personally some time in the future, I am most cordially yours.

[Signed] "LUIS CABRERA."

EL PASO(Tex.) Jan. 17. — If the exploitation of the oil fields of Mexico had been carried on at full blast in 1919, the production of petroleum would have doubled that of the United States for 1918, and would have placed Mexico first among the oil-producing nations of the world, according to Excelsior of Mexico City.

OFFICERS FIND VALUABLE GEMS.

Long Beach Boy Burglar had Fortune in Diamonds.

Is Recovering from Severe Sudden Illness.

Is Said Alleged Swindler Has $6000 Loot.

LONG BEACH, Jan. 17.—Valued at several thousand dollars, twenty-seven diamonds extracted from rings alleged to have been stolen from Leonard H. Martin, the latter's residence Tuesday night, were recovered today by Assistant Chief of Police Ben W. McFadden. It was announced at the police station this afternoon. The boy friend, it is said, in a trunk in the apartment occupied by young Martin, where the diamonds are said to have been found by the police to have been removed by the youth recently from a Long Beach store. With Lee Martin, a negro captured the same day in Martin was taken into custody and is to be responsible for a half-dozen other jobs pulled in this city, police say they now have in jail the two men responsible for the majority of burglaries committed in Long Beach lately.

Yesterday Detective Ralph Alyea recovered a valuable collection of old coins said to have been cached in a gopher hole by Martin four miles north of the city. Martin is said to have told the officers that following a job where he secured diamonds he would extract the stones and throw the jewelry into the sea from the end of the pier.

BANKER RECOVERS

Following an attack of acute indigestion and heart trouble that all but proved fatal, George H. Bixby, prominent Long Beach banker and pioneer, is recovering at the Seaside Hospital today. Mr. Bixby, who is 55 years old, has been in poor health since suffering from an attack of influenza last February. He was taken to the hospital in an unconscious state, but his condition tonight was reported improved.

GET VALUABLE PLUNDER.

Sugar and hard wall plaster, two of the highest-priced and scarcest commodities in Long Beach at present, were stolen in comparatively large quantities by burglars early today. Nine sacks of sugar weighing 100 pounds each, a sack of beans and a case of catsup were reported stolen by thieves who must have used a truck in their work, from the office of the American Avenue Transfer Company on American avenue. Nineteen sacks of plaster and a quantity of rough lumber were reported stolen from A. Ricke, 1705 East Broadway.

CHARGE SWINDLING.

Alleged to have posed as a building specialist and to have defrauded three Long Beach persons out of an aggregate of $6000 as a result of alleged building operations here, W. H. Holder is being sought by the local police. Holden was the appropriate name for the alleged contractor, the police say, since the swindled are holding the sack and he is holding the $6000. Detective O. C. Mitchell of the Long Beach police department announced this afternoon that the arrest of the so-called builder is expected within twenty-four hours.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CALEXICO, Jan. 17.—Yesterday a committee selling stock for a quarter of a million dollar hotel in Calexico received the subscription blanks and the actual raising of money started with a $5000 subscription by P. E. Carr. The check was turned over to Secretary E. E. Anderson.

The new hotel will be erected as rapidly as possible and will be one of the finest in the Imperial Valley, ranking favorably with the best. Calexico has long realized the need of a large hotel and it is expected to have it in operation within a year.

Commissioner at Pasadena Hit by Bicycle.

Suburban Postoffices Consolidate with Crown City.

Hotels Provide Entertainment for Winter Guests.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, Jan. 17.—City Commissioner John J. Hamilton was struck by a bicyclist while he was crossing East Union street early today and so severely injured that he will be confined to his bed for many days. The Commissioner was knocked unconscious by the collision, his head striking on the curb and cutting a deep gash. He was removed to his home, 482 South Los Robles avenue. William Zimmerman was riding the bicycle. He was uninjured. He filed a report of the accident in which he claimed the Commissioner stepped suddenly from behind an automobile directly in front of his wheel.

The accident befalls Commissioner Hamilton in the midst of his fight to retain his seat on the Commission, a recall election having been called for February 11.

CONSOLIDATION SOON.

Consolidation of the Altadena and Lamanda Park postoffices with the Pasadena postoffice, to be under the jurisdiction of the Pasadena postoffice, was announced for February 1 in telegrams received here from Washington. It was announced some time ago that the merger would be made. The Altadena and Lamanda Park postoffices will now become branch stations of the Pasadena office.

FRIENDS SAY GOOD-BY.

Approximately 100 friends of Dr. Jeremiah M. Rhodes, former Superintendent of Schools here, and Mrs. Rhodes gathered at the Santa Fe station today to say good-by to them upon their departure from Pasadena. Dr. Rhodes is going East to study new phases of education until September. His plans after that are not yet known.

SYMPHONY FUND GROWING.

Following close on the announcement by Mrs. Albert Sherman Hoyt, president of the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra Association, that $30,000 was subscribed the first day in the association's campaign to raise $500,000, nearly $35,000 more was subscribed before noon yesterday.

The fund is to be utilized in enlarging and maintaining the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra for the coming five years. The orchestra is now in the twenty-third year of its existence, having been founded in 1898 by Harley Hamilton.

"We are indeed gratified," said Mrs. Hoyt yesterday, "by the wonderful evidence of the music-loving public's interest in the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra. With the opening of next season we will be quartered in a commodious auditorium and the programmes we have in view for the season of 1920-21 are truly notable.

"The Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra, under the leadership of Adolf Tandler, will appear at the Potter Theater, Santa Barbara, the night of February 3. This is but the first of a series of concerts the Los Angeles Symphony will play in various Southern California communities, for we have received numerous requests from other cities."

With Gen. Pershing as the honored guest, the Los Angeles Symphony Orchestra will appear in a special concert at the Hotel Maryland, Pasadena, the afternoon of the 29th inst. This affair is creating considerable interest in local social circles.

This afternoon's concert in Clune's Auditorium will present a particularly bright programme, according to Conductor Adolf Tandler. It is made up of the following numbers: War March of the Priests, from "Athalie," Mendelssohn; Prelude to "L'Apres-midi d'un Faune," by Debussy; Polonaise from "Chopiniana," by Glasounow; Theme and Variations for Three Flutes, by Kuhnu—soloists, Leonardo de Lorenzo, Bela Adams and Wi Van Deeven; Caucasian Sketches, a suite, by Ippolitow-Ivanow.

NUPTIALS FOR W. E. BUSH.

William E. Bush, past potentate of Al Malaikah Temple of the Mystic Shrine, former president of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association and one of the best known automobile distributors of Southern California, obtained here yesterday a license to marry Mildred M. Williams, also of this city.

Though the friendship between the two was well known to friends and associates, the arrangements for the nuptials were surrounded with considerable secrecy, and the issuance of the license evoked much surprise. Neither of the principals could be found by inquiring friends yesterday afternoon, and all details of the wedding were closely guarded by the few who were told the secret.

Mr. Bush, who has long been prominent in Southern California business, is the Pierce-Arrow distributor here. He has a host of friends in the Southwest, and yesterday's news was met with the liveliest interest in many quarters. He is 49 years of age, and his fiancee is 31.

QUALITY is ECONOMY

THE CHEAPEST WAY TO DO ANYTHING THAT IS WORTH DOING IS TO DO IT RIGHT.

If the food is not properly prepared by chewing, the stomach has to break up the food as well as digest it. This places too much work on the digestive apparatus and thus causes trouble.

When the stomach is thus disturbed the whole body suffers.

RUGBY UNION TO SEND RUGBY TEAM ABROAD.

That Rugby is far from dead in Northern California is evidenced by the formation of a Rugby union which is to send a team composed of its stars to compete in the Olympic games to be held at Antwerp.

The union is composed of teams representing California, Stanford, the Olympic Club, the Davis Anzacs, the Barbarian Club and San Mateo. A round-robin schedule is to be played, and two teams are to be picked from the men playing in these games to form an all-American and an all-British team. California and Stanford will have their Rugby "big game" at Berkeley on February 14.

"Sure," responded the saint. "We quit that when they get in here."

The newcomer's wan face lighted with hope. "Then, for the love of Mike, let me in," he pleaded.

Peter looked him over carefully. "Your passport?"

NO REST FOR THE TIRED TAXPAYER

How Business in Los Angeles is Hectored and Harassed by Government, State, County, City and a Horde of Private Money-Seekers for This and That.

BY FREDERICK B. MOORE.

But as the noon whistle blew in Main and St. Peter was knocking off hitch, a dejected individual loomed himself at the Pearly gate.

"Hi, Pete," he asked, "the City of Los ...?"

"Yes, sir," said Peter.

"Well," yammed the dejected one, "what's income tax rate this year?"

"We have no income tax," replied the custodian of the gate.

"And how about State corporation tax, the franchise tax, the State license tax, the Federal capital stock tax, the luxury tax, the excess profits tax, the municipal business license tax, the city and county taxes on real and personal property, the—"

"Peace!" Peter assured him, "you're in heaven."

The dejected person leaned against the pearly gate post and mopped a fevered brow.

"Is it possible!" he cried. "But, the Crimson Cross, the Y.M. C.A., the Elevation Army, the Dorcas Society, the needy churches—do you have solicitors for them?"

"Why," responded the saint, "we find that when they get in the presence's wan face lighted up. Then, for the love of Pete, as he pleaded, Peter looked him over carefully.

"You don't support?"

"Don't say."

"Well, you know you can't leave the United States without a passport."

"But this is a case of emergency. Listen, and you will see."

THE PILGRIM'S STORY.

"I'd clerk this morning I was a man with a prosperous business. I parked my car and walked into my office, right in the heart of the no-parking district of Main, carrying with me many hopes of large orders in the morning mail. I found that the one-month correspondence lessons with intrigians which had proved to me the sad news that the grocer, the butcher, the gasman, the plumber, the baker, the apartment store management, the laundry, the electric light and my landlord, the fire insurance company, the life insurance man, my wife's dressmaker, my children's tailor, my son's tailor and my own, the ice man, coal man and the doctors, lawyers and the garbage collector, the fire department and unclassified—

"You have a good memory," commented St. Peter, admiringly.

"Well here, sir, here," the victim replied. "They never forget me. I was engaged in reading the correspondence, the United States government gave me a little diversion for my spare moments. I was invited to make a return for my income tax and surtax. Have you ever seen the forms they hand you? Well, Form 1040 was not designed by Sam Lloyd, which only goes to show Sam is a piker in the puzzle-making business.

"You see, it's dirt simple. At the current rate of 4 per cent. for the first $4000 of net income above the exemptions, and 8 per cent. on the remaining net income, with a surtax of 16 per cent. on the amount of net income between $5000 and $8000, and of 1 per cent. additional for every $2000 more of net income up to and including 48 per cent. on net incomes in excess of $98,000 and not over $100,000 a year—in view of this and of an uncomputed number of exceptions, exemptions, subtractions, additions, multiplications, divisions, abominations and botherations, a man owes the government a sum of money nobody but one certified public accountant and two income tax experts can hope even to surmise."

"It sounds easy," Peter told him. "The Americans are a wonderful race."

"Sure," agreed the tired one. "I hired a firm of lawyers to make out my income tax return, and devoted myself to figuring out my company's State corporation tax. That is only a matter of kicking through with a percentage of the year's gross receipts. So I retained a firm of auditors to get me off as lightly as possible, and diverted myself by reading my city and county tax bill.

"That, also, is simplified. City and county down in Los Angeles are in cahoots on the tax business, and hand you the wallop all in one envelope. It has the advantage of subjecting you to only one shock, where there used to be two.

"Well, then I wrote out a check for the Federal capital stock tax.

"Next, a policeman handed me a suspicious-looking blank, and I discovered I had merely to make out for the city a statement of the quarterly income of my business, to give them the necessary ammunition for soaking me under the new business license ordinance.

"Thereafter, being in a liberal mood, I wrote checks for the State license tax, the Federal excess profits tax and the police court that had assessed me $10 because I made a left-hand turn on Broadway.

"Business was rushing, in fact, when I was forced to drop my multitudinous affairs and dash to the Big Price Department Store. My wife is so absent-minded. She had spent a day's profits for a pair of hose, you see, and was in pawn for the luxury tax.

"Being a gentleman by nature, I couldn't quite make up my mind to let her go by default, so I bailed her out. Then I spent 20 cents for a 5-cent cigar and rushed back to my office."

Peter grew restive. "I'm missing lunch," he said.

"So am I," retorted the tired citizen. "You haven't anything on me. Lunch costs money in Los Angeles. After I gave my last nickel to the blind man on the corner—"

"Ah," quoth the Saint. "That is charity. Maybe I can let you in, after all."

"Charity!" The tired one summoned the energy to leave the support of the pearly gatepost and stand alone. "Why, man, that is my middle name. I was just getting around to charity.

"At my office, after I had repossessed myself of a wife, I found the following persons soliciting worthy charity:

"My pastor, working for a $1,000,000,000 denominational fund.

"The Y.M.Y.W. educational fund committee.

"The Crimson Cross campaign canvassers.

"The Dorcas Society Associates of the Friends of Falling Felines.

"The directors of the Little Uncles' Home for Bedridden Boilermakers.

"The Boy Reserves, the Siamese Relief, the—"

"Halt!" protested Peter. "Did you give?"

"Did I give? Why, man, I would have been giving yet, if it hadn't been for the shop committee."

"Nothing, brother, should dry up the wells of charity."

ENTER THE UNIONS.

"Well, admitting you're right on principle," objected the tired citizen, "I must add that you've never met a walking delegate of the International Federation of Wage Raisers and Hour Shorteners. Imagine yourself running a prosperous business; the government boverns it till you don't know you own it; you are inspected, suspected, examined and re-examined; informed, required and commanded; you are supposed to be an inexhaustible supply of money, and if you don't give at the drop of a hat you are cussed and discussed, talked to and talked about, lied about, boycotted, robbed and nearly ruined, and then—well, after all that, imagine you still have some hope, and then in walks a walking delegate and steps on you with a threat to strike at noon unless you give a 25 per cent. increase in all wages for a four-hour work day, four days a week. Just imagine that!

"So, I divided the remnants of my business among the Green Cross, the Black Cross, the Blue Cross and the Double Cross, gave the odd nickel to the blind beggar and came up here to escape the psychopathic hospital."

THE FORTY FAT 'UNS.

"Charity? Lemme tell you—and this is pure charity—I help support the forty fat commissions. Ever hear of them? Well, they supply jobs for most of the people in California who have a pull and can struggle along without working very hard.

"We pay the commissioners $10,000 a year each, for the privilege of doing nothing or of interfering with all our affairs, as they see fit. We have a Railroad Commission, not to mention a free text-book commission and an embalming commission, that catch us in the kindergarten and finally wrangle with our bones; we have industrial accident, water, labor, land settlement, insurance, banking, market, corporation, immigration and housing, industrial welfare, orphans' aid, civil service, motor vehicle capitol building and grounds, viticultural, horticultural, highway, reclamation, veterinary, dairy, horticultural, survey, pharmacy, dental, optometry, social insurance, fish and game, building and loan and irrigation district bond commissions. And those are only some of the lot. There are bureaus and boards and things, until one marvels at the fertile imaginations of our lawmakers. But, believe me, a commission by any other name costs just as much.

"Mind you, these forty fat commissions are only those of the State. We have many more than forty. Oh, my, yes! The city and the county do their bit very nobly, and, then, Uncle Sam is no piker when it comes to intensive and obtrusive, not to say exuberant, governmental interference.

THE LAST STRAW.

"You mentioned charity. Man alive, how well I know that word! In a weak moment, when I was younger and more foolish, I endowed a home for orphans in Los Angeles. I thought I was doing a noble thing; I felt quite righteous about it. Which only goes to prove man's folly and depravity.

"But I was quickly undeceived. If I had committed highway robbery I should have escaped with the attentions of a policeman, a bailiff, a prosecuting attorney and a judge. But, having committed charity in the name of brotherly love, I found myself right suddenly up against the real thing.

"Do the city and county inspectors ever get around here? Well, you're lucky to be in heaven, believe me.

"Why, as soon as they detected us in the act of running an orphans' home, we were inspected, threatened, warned, browbeaten and overriden, supervised and superintended, examined, cross-examined, re-examined and super-examined, until I was willing to plead guilty, ask for a life sentence and throw myself upon the mercy of the omnipresent law.

"During a quiet day at our orphans' home we received calls from the State Board of Control, the State Board of Charities and Corrections, the State Board of Health, the city and county boards of health, the fire department, the nursing department, the City Medical Board of Education, the city nurses, the milk inspector, the County Social Service Commission, the county outdoor relief workers, the grand jury, the Juvenile Pro-

LABOR SHORTAGE CUTS OUR CROPS

Many Fertile Acres to Lie Fallow and Many More to Yield Less Intensively Here this Year; Food Prices will be Increased by the Pinch.

California, by all tokens, will this year yield smaller crops than heretofore and the cost of food, as a resut, may be expected to mount higher. The outstanding reason for this economic disaster is the shortage and high cost of farm labor.

First-hand reports gathered by The Times from the principal farming regions of Southern California show that farmers have met, or failed to meet, the problem in these ways:

Lands that formerly produced in some places lie fallow.

Some lands heretofore used for food crops that require heavy labor are being planted to forage crops that can be handled largely by machines and few men.

To avoid harvesting, some grain and alfalfa crops are being fed to stock in the field.

Alfalfa is being plowed up in some places to be replaced by crops that require less work.

Some dairymen have abandoned that business and are turning their dairy cattle out for the meat market.

Many farms that require a large amount of help only at harvest time are being operated as heretofore, with the hope that the hands will be found when they are needed.

CONDITIONS VARY.

However, in no two regions, it would seem, are conditions identical. In places, no shortage of labor exists, in others, it has not seriously affected operations. In some places not an acre is idle, but crops different from those of former years are going in. In Tulare county, it is declared, the greatest effect of the labor difficulty has been a swing away from intensive farming, and therefore, an enormous decrease in the total amount of the output. Elsewhere, production will be, for one reason or another, fully up to normal or even better.

But, however, the effects of the labor pinch vary, from the farmers in almost all regions comes wholehearted complaint that the barrenness of the labor market and the vaulting wages exacted present a problem of the most vital importance.

THOUSAND ACRES IDLE.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PERRIS, Jan. 17.—According to the most conservative opinion, there are in this district—the Perris Valley—about 1000 acres which at one time were under cultivation, which last season were not cropped, and which this year are not likely to be, owing to increased costs of operation, higher cost of seed and materials and the high wages now asked for farm labor. This land for the most part has been dry farmed and under ordinary conditions produces eight to ten sacks of grain or about $30, per acre.

Before the war, the wages of farm laborers varied from $2 to $2.50 per day. At present, farm laborers are receiving from $3.50 for nine hours to a flat rate of 40 cents per hour. In the orange groves, of which there are few in this district, Mexican laborers are receiving $4 per day and up. The cost of a team of horses per day is about that of the average farm laborer $3.50 to $4.

TURN TO GRAINS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN LIUS OBISPO, Jan. 17.—There will be about 35 per cent. less land cultivated about here this season, than last, owing to a slight shortage of farm labor and the low price of beans. As a result of the latter, much acreage formerly used for beans will be disced for wheat and barley. This is a cheap method of cultivating the land for grain and requires much less labor. It is not probable that this county's bean crop will be anywhere near as large as it has been in former years. Much of the work formerly done by manual labor and teams is now being done by the use of the tractor, except on the small farms.

Farm laborers formerly employed at $1.25 per day and board are now receiving $4 per day and board, though in some instances they can be procured for $100 per month and board.

The special shortage in labor seems to be the scarcity of milkers. These men are offered $125 per month and board, but are hard to get. As a result, several dairymen have abandoned that business and are turning their dairy cattle out for the beef market.

ONE-FOURTH REDUCTION.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PORTERVILLE, Jan. 17.—In the opinion of the most careful investigators, agricultural production in Tulare county has been reduced at least 25 per cent. since the outbreak of the war, because of the shortage of farm labor and its inefficiency.

On the basis of an annual output of farm and orchard crops of $25,000,000, this situation will probably cause a loss to Tulare county of around $6,000,000 this year.

Reduced production is not confined to any one line of industry. Intercropping in young orchards is practically a lost practice because of the shortage of help. Dairymen are increasing their herds only where the work can be done by members of the family. Hay rotted in the fields last year and alfalfa fields are being plowed up to be replaced by crops, which require less hand work. General farming of all sorts suffers.

Labor is not only scarce and inferior, but its cost is about double that of pre-war times. Labor which was available in 1914 at around $2.50 per day now demands and gets $4 per day. Dairy hands, who would work for $40 to $45 per month and board three years ago, now receive as high as $100 per month and board. A man with a team used to get $5 and $6 per day, as against $10 and $12 per day now.

While it is probably true that only a small proportion of Tulare county land heretofore cultivated will lie fallow this season, the large part of the loss will not be in the number of acres producing, but in the production per acre. As a result of the labor conditions, ranchers generally are mapping out their programme for this year with extreme conservatism.

Attempts are being made to compensate for the loss of labor by the use of machinery, and with some degree of success. The use of the tractor has became almost universal, and where intelligent help can be secured, the milking machine is being generally used. These devices, however, make up only in part, and are of little relief to the grain grower and in the hay field.

INCREASE LIVESTOCK.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 17.—The shortage of farm labor and the high wages demanded have effected many changes in the farming of San Diego county. Many of the farmers of the Vista, Escondido and Ramona districts in the northern part of the county are solving the difficulty by using secondaries instead of the primary grain crop. These farmers have increased their livestock and will feed grain and alfalfa crops to the stock to save the labor of harvesting.

Another way in which many in this section are meeting the labor shortage problem is with the small combined harvester, which both harvests and threshes. A header crew of five or six men was formerly necessary, as the minimum for grain harvesting, and the same number was needed for the threshing. A small combined harvester requires two men and six horses. It will cover ten acres in a day.

Probably one-third of the 15,000 acres of grain and alfalfa about Ramona, Escondido and Vista are being handled in these two ways since the rise of wages.

FUND DRIVE TO OPEN TUESDAY.

Campaign will be Launched by Y.M.C.A. at Dinner.

Goal is Three-quarters of Million in Ten Days.

Money Needed for Programme of Constructive Work.

The opening gun in the campaign of the Los Angeles Y.M.C.A. for $750,000 will be fired at a dinner in the Hotel Alexandria Tuesday evening. More than 500 invitations have been sent out to leading business and professional men and women asking them to be present and aid in the final organization of the city-wide drive from the 27th inst. to February 6.

Mrs. Susan M. Dorsey, newly appointed school superintendent of Los Angeles, will be the guest of honor at the dinner. Harry N. Holmes, who represented Great Britain in war work of the Y.M.C.A. in Europe, and Leslie Henry, formerly of the Federal Reserve Bank of Southern California, will be the principal speakers.

The two-fold purpose of the meeting will be to disseminate the facts and figures of the campaign to those interested and to key up the workers for a whirlwind drive to raise the $750,000 that is wanted to carry out the programme of the Y.M.C.A.

NAMES OF LEADERS.

Former Lieut.-Gov. Wallace is chairman of the dinner committee. Police Commissioner Burge is general chairman of the campaign and he has built an organization of fifty business men to push the drive to a successful termination in the ten days allotted to raise the funds.

This "board of strategy" will have George E. Reid, cashier of the Home Savings Bank, as vice-chairman. The others are: G. F. Bidwell, E. T. Bishop, former Judge Walter Bordwell, J. G. Bullock, A. B. Cass, E. P. Clark, J. Ross Clark, C. C. Chapman, George I. Cochran, C. M. Conant, S. M. Cooper, Ray Mitchell, George H. Page, Dr. C. C. Seleeman, A. Z. Taft, J. O. Warren, A. J. Wallace, W. H. Wallace, F. E. Eckhart, Dr. J. A. Francis, H. W. Frank, G. G. Greenwood, D. H. Jones, E. G. Judah, Arthur Letts, D. E. Luther, Dr. George J. Lund and W. E. McVay.

Headquarters of the campaign have been established in the lobby of the Central Y.M.C.A. Noonday luncheons of the campaign workers will be a daily feature of the drive. They will be held in the men's gymnasium and each team will be provided with a table. A score board to tabulate the daily progress of the campaign will be erected.

Both San Pedro and Hollywood have organized auxiliary committees to handle the campaign, as a part of the general committee for Los Angeles.

PURPOSE OUTLINED.

Active management of the drive will be handled by E. L. Mogge, special representative of the International Y.M.C.A. committee, who conducted the United War Work campaign in California in 1918.

The object of the raising of a $750,000 fund, according to Mr. Mogge, is to clean the financial slate of the local Y.M.C.A. of a present indebtedness of $305,420 and commence a programme of constructive work for 1920.

New buildings are proposed for Hollywood, Lincoln Heights and San Pedro, which will mean an expenditure of about $211,000. Community work in Highland Park, southwest Los Angeles, southeast Los Angeles and Boyle Heights will total $80,000 for the year, it is estimated. Equipment and current expenses for the Ninth street institution for colored men will take $6000. Current expenses, industrial extension, repairs and the contingent fund appropriation will require close to $200,000. D. E. Luther, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A. has made the following statement explaining the budget and reasons for the proposed drive.

TO MEET OBLIGATIONS.

"Since the war began, the Y.M.C.A. has made no appeal for its local work beyond that of last May, when $40,000 was contributed for current expenses. While the war was on, we raised nearly $400,000 in two campaigns of our own, besides helping to raise the United War Work fund. All this kept us from getting back to our own work.

"We are now faced with the necessity of meeting our obligations to the boys and men in other parts of the city and in such a way as to make a vital impression upon their lives. The Y.M.C.A. has for many years carried financial burdens of which it is now proposed to rid ourselves, so that we may take a new start and expand our programme in a thoroughly constructive way."

Elderly People Have A Daily Health Problem

Stomach muscles and digestive organs slow to act as age advances

MOST people find the years slipping by without realizing it, until suddenly confronted with the fact that they can no longer digest everything they would like to eat. It then becomes their daily task to avoid what they know to be chronic constipation.

When exercise and light diet fail it will be necessary to resort to artificial means. Strong physics and cathartics, however, are not advisable for elderly people. They act too powerfully and a feeling of weakness results.

What is needed is a laxative containing effective but mild properties. This is best found in Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin which is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin. It acts gently and without griping, and used a few days will train the digestive organs to do their work naturally again without other aid.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin has been on the market since 1892 and was the private formula of Dr. W. B. Caldwell, who is himself past 80 years of age and still active in his profession. It can be bought at any drug store and one bottle is enough to last even a large family many months. It is a trustworthy preparation.

In spite of the fact that Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the largest-selling liquid laxative in the world, there being over 6 million bottles sold each year, many who need its benefits have not yet used it. If you have not, send your name and address for a free trial bottle to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 511 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

Doctor Tells How to Detect Harmful Effects of Tobacco

Try These SIMPLE TESTS

New York: Doctor Connor, formerly of Johns Hopkins Hospital, says: Many men who smoke, chew or snuff incessantly and who are seemingly healthy are suffering from progressive organic ailments. Thousands of them would never have been afflicted had it not been for the use of tobacco, and thousands would soon get well if they would only stop the use of tobacco. The chief habit forming principle of tobacco is nicotine, a deadly poison which, when absorbed by the system slowly affects the nerves, membranes, tissues and vital organs of the body. The harmful effect of tobacco varies and depends on circumstances. One will be afflicted with general debility, others with catarrh of the throat, indigestion, constipation, extreme nervousness, sleeplessness, loss of memory, lack of will power, mental confusion, etc. Others may suffer from heart disease, bronchial trouble, hardening of the arteries, tuberculosis, blindness or even cancer or the common affliction known as tobacco heart. If you use tobacco in any form you can easily detect the harmful effects by making the following simple tests: Read aloud one full page from a book. If, in the course of reading your voice becomes muffled, hoarse and indistinct, and you must frequently clear your throat, the chances are that your throat is affected by catarrh and it may be the beginning of more serious trouble. Next, in the morning before taking your usual smoke, walk up three flights of stairs at a regular pace, then stop. If you find that you are out of breath, your heart beat is forced, trembling or irregular, you may be a victim of functional or organic heart trouble. If you feel that you must smoke, chew or snuff to quiet your nerves, you are a slave to the tobacco habit, and are positively poisoning yourself with the deadly drug, nicotine. In either case you have just two alternatives—keep on with the self-poisoning process irrespective of the dangers and suffer the consequences, or give up the habit and escape the dangers. You can overcome the craving and stop the habit in a very short time by using the following inexpensive formula. Go to any drug store and ask for Nicotol tablets, take one tablet after each meal, and in a comparatively short time you will have no desire for tobacco, the craving will have left you. With the nicotine poison out of your system, your general health will quickly improve.

NOTE—when asked about Nicotol tablets, one of our leading druggists said, "It is truly a wonderful remedy for the tobacco habit; away ahead of anything we have ever sold before. We are authorized by the manufacturers to refund the money to every dissatisfied customer, and we would not permit the use of our name unless the remedy possessed unusual merit." Nicotol tablets are sold in this city under an iron-clad money-back guarantee by all up-to-date druggists, including The Owl Drug Stores. —[Advertisement.

ADVICE OFFERED ON CHILDREN'S HEALTH.

EXAMINATIONS WIL BE MADE FOR NOMINAL CHARGE AT SCHOOL DISPENSARY.

An opportunity for all parents to receive advice in regard to the health of their children is offered at the Public School Dispensary under the supervision of a committee of the Los Angeles Federation of Parent-Teacher Associations. Fifteen German officers accused of various crimes during the occupation of French territories by the German armies will be brought to trial in Lille. They are now confined in the citadel at Lille. Their trial will be the first in history of officers, after peace has been declared, have been brought up to answer charges growing out of outrages committed during the war. If the procedure will be something like a rehearsal of what may be expected when the former Kaiser is made to face a court, if he does not manage to escape legal investigation of his war responsibilities.

I was professor of English literature in Lille University from 1897 to 1909, when I was appointed to the same chair in Paris University. During all I have never ceased to visit Lille frequently and I know what its sufferings were during the war. Lille is by the fifth largest French city. It used to spell its name Lisle, and its goods come, or used to come, from its fine factories. It used to be an exceedingly prosperous place and a great deal of the American capital about it. But the war ruined

WOMAN :: SAILS :: BIG :: SHIP :: ALONE.

Mate Deserts; Captain Dies; His Widow Wins to Safety.

Mrs. Isabella Oram and the Jean L. Sommerville.

BY BY death and treachery in charge of a four-masted schooner, off the Canary Islands, Mrs. Isabella Oram, former resident of Los Angeles, took command of the craft and sailed her safely into Mobile Bay. News of the heroic exploit came yesterday to the Alabama city.

Mrs. Oram, who is 50 years of age and whose present home is at Bristol, Me., had for sixteen years sailed the seven seas with her husband, Capt. W. F. Oram, when they crossed the Atlantic, some months ago, in the schooner Jean L. Sommerville. At Las Palmas, Canary Islands, on the homeward passage, the mate deserted. Without another officer to help him navigate his craft, Capt. Oram put to sea. Soon he became ill. Then Mrs. Oram took charge.

As long as the dying captain could help, she kept him on deck. But she gave much of her time to nursing him, she became navigator and master, and she even supervised the feeding of the crew, as the unfortunate ship was short a cook, and nobody but the doughty woman could turn a hand in the galley.

Then Capt. Oram died and the full responsibility of managing the big craft fell on the widow. Without other nautical experience than she had gained through voyaging with her husband, she brought the Sommerville through winter storms that carried away the foretopmast and through the tortuous West Indian waters into Mobile.

Her husband's body was embalmed at Mobile, and sent to Bristol, Me., for burial.

It used to be ...exceedingly prosperous place ...great deal of the American ...ported it. But the war ruined it. The chief streets were severely bombarded in 1914 and the factories, all of them, without any exception, were completely gutted by the Germans.

DESTROY MACHINERY.

The machinery taken from our factories, apart from two exceptions, was never taken away to Germany. It was first dismantled and later smashed on the spot. Now we are getting machinery from America and the slowness of traffic, combined with the almost prohibitive exchange rates, delay its delivery. When I left in June only two factories were working. However, things are improving now.

The officers in confinement there are not to be tried for the damage they did to the factory, because they were working under orders. In fact it is surprising to note that one of them saved 40 per cent. of the machinery in Roubaix, the next big city.

His case is curious. Before the war he operated a mill at Roubaix and was regarded as a Belgian who had taken out French naturalization papers. He vanished in August, 1914, reappeared in September in a German uniform and was in command of the town throughout the war. Probably the manufacturer's instinct made him protect the factories against orders from headquarters.

He is going to be tried, not for the machinery smashing, but for numerous acts of brutality. No man was more mercilessly cruel. It would be better for him if he had let the machinery perish and had not confined 100,000 people to their homes from 1 p.m. till 7 a.m. during two summers, or imprisoned old women who could not deliver the six pounds of nettles (for rope manufacture) demanded of each person, or horsewhipped poor people in the streets.

As I tell you, officers under orders are not held responsible. The officers who conducted the wholesale plundering of another large neighboring city, Douai — not Donay, as the inscription on the magnificent French cannon in Lincoln Park here wrongly says twice—will not be held responsible. Even the officers who saw to the deportation of 1200 girls from Lille in 1916—the most abominable outrage the Germans did in cold blood—will not be arrested.

TELLS OF WOMEN.

I knew one very well, Mademoiselle Barrois, the daughter of a professor of chemistry at the university. She was made to work in beet-root fields; later on to cook for the soldiers who watched the other girls work, until after eleven months she fell ill. I also knew Madame Calmette, the wife of Dr. Calmette, the most illustrious pupil of Pasteur. At the age of 58, she was given an hour to say good bye to her friends and pack up what she could carry, and in the middle of the night she was shipped off to a German village near the Russian border, where she was made to render menial services to the family of a Prussian doctor.

"Individual thieving is another charge and the officer who compelled Mr. Walker, the British Consul in Lille, to get up from his bed and travel to Ruhleben in a high fever, would be tried if he were caught. Also the army doctor who scornfully refused to look after a Scotch friend of mine—an old lady ill in a German penitentiary, when he noticed her accent. Also a veritable monster, another doctor who, in a hospital in my own native town in the Ardennes, caused the death of many French people depotted there to work in the quarries. His calculated neglect of these cases roused the indignation of other German officers."

CROWN PRINCE'S THEFTS.

Thefts were innumerable. One of the most characteristic cases was the complete removal by the Crown Prince of the ancient furniture in a chateau in September, 1914, when this gentleman still thought war frisch und lustig. Such happenings cannot be counted. I know dozens personally, including the appropriation by a scholarly German officer, probably a university professor, of a unique collection of texts from the English writers of the metaphysical school, which it had taken twenty years to bring together."

I have lost practically everything. But individual losses like that are nothing. The real tragedy was that of the Lille hospitals, which during several months had to sell medicine to the poor because their boards had not one cent left. They actually had to sell cod liver oil, when they could get it, which was not often.

FOR KAISER'S TRIAL.

I have been asked if I think the Kaiser ought to be tried also. I answer "you ask me if the gang leader who teaches children to steal ought to be tried—the Kaiser or his son?" Let a fair trial be given to them, but for heaven's sake do not let us spare the mighty in the name of Christian charity. There is no question of revenge here. Only the responsible authors of all this misery—misery, not losses—ought to be held up to the contempt of the world.

I am here trying to interest the people of California in the woefully destitute Lille hospitals and have been very successful. I expect to stay here for another fortnight and have many engagements and my work for the Lille hospitals is going on splendidly.

NOTE: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent. in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." It is sold in this city by all good druggists.—[Advertisement.

DELAY RED TRIALS.

Cases Called for Tuesday Now Set for Hearing in March.

The cases of eighteen alleged I. W.W. members accused of criminal syndicalism, whose trials were set for Tuesday in Judge Willis's court, will be continued on that date, it was decided yesterday. Deputy District Attorney Keyes and S. G. Pandit, of counsel for the defendants, held a conference yesterday and upon request of both the court agreed to continue the cases until March 11.

Mr. Keyes said that he was still busy with various phases of the case of Harry S. New, for whom a motion for a new trial will be filed tomorrow, and Mr. Pandit informed the court that Mr. Cleary, his associate, is busy with syndicalism cases in Oakland.

Man Conceals Her Identity Despite Questioning by Police.

Attacked by a woman whose identity he refused to disclose to the police, Mauro Gill, 34 years old, of 221 New High street, was probably fatally stabbed Friday morning. Gill was discovered wounded by friends on the floor of his apartments. He stated that a woman had assaulted him, but declined to give any information to the police. He is being treated at the Receiving Hospital.

THE MEDICINE CHEST.

There are still over sixty million gallons of whisky in this country that is available, in case of sickness. This is almost enough to start another epidemic of influenza.

WELL STOCKED.

The celebration of the tercentennial of the arrival of the Mayflower might be marked by an exposition of the furniture brought over on that ship. There must have been enough of it to furnish the Alexandrias.

THE HOME BUILDERS.

In more than 200 cities the building permits for November and December averaged a value of $4741 each as against $1355 each for the same period the year before. This shows that the people are not only constructing better homes, but are paying a whole lot more for the materials going into them. We have apparently witnessed the passing of the $1500 bungalow that made Los Angeles famous as a world city of cosy and comfortable homes. It costs about four thousand bones to shake hands with the same shack in these feverish times.

GOOD OLD HEN.

It was said that eggs had fallen because of a drop in the price of hen fodder. If there has been a reduction in the latter the chickens haven't heard of it yet. The last they knew was another slight boost of about 10 per cent. in grain and bran. Eggs have dropped slightly in price because the hens have been reading the articles in the papers to encourage production and are doing that very thing. Eggs are selling at practically the same figure they were six years ago at this time, although every form of food and refreshment a hen indulges in has advanced 300 per cent. within the period and is now at a peak price.

FIGHTERS AND FINANCE.

Members of the American Legion who are knocking on the record of Jack Dempsey must remember that he is running true to form. Any heavyweight prize fighter is too busy scrapping for the long end of the purse to be bothered with the insignificant battles of his country. If Jess Willard had wrangled with the Germans as fiercely as he did with the matchmakers to get 70 per cent. of the Toledo rake-off Berlin would by now be one vast cemetery. Any real champion fighter doesn't actually fight. He does his training on the multiplication table and the cash register. It is hard to hold him in check when the adding machines are working briskly all around him, but he manages to keep himself in restraint. Even the present champion is practicing self-denial. He is eager to meet the enemy, but the manager announces that in three or four or maybe five months he will be able to begin to prepare to taper off his moving-picture engagements and then he can seriously direct his thoughts to the idea of thinking about commencing to take steps to inaugurate his plans for undertaking preliminary training preparatory to discussing the introductory arrangements for accepting the challenge of the best contender. After that it will be a matter for the largest purse. Until then the champion will try and hold himself down. As has been said before, there was only one John L. Sullivan. When "Jawn" died the mold was broken. He was a little weak on arithmetic and was better on compound fractures than fractions, but how that boy could fight.

JAPAN REACHES OUT.

Full details of the clash of Americans with Gen. Semenoff, commander-in-chief of the all-Russian army in Siberia, will be awaited with some anxiety. Semenoff, a Cossack hetman, stands very close to the Japanese. With the collapse of Admiral Kolchak the control of what was left of the all-Russian government fell to the 29-year-old chieftain who has long had the support of the Japanese military party. Japan, putting forward the excuse that it must combat Bolshevism, has recently reached out and practically grabbed Eastern Siberia. This action is a blow at American policy. From the first President Wilson has sought to prevent the Japanese from becoming paramount in Eastern Siberia. They resorted to trickery in order to get a larger number of troops in the territory than any other nation. They have now taken advantage of President Wilson's illness and gone much farther; in fact, they have scored a victory at the expense of the United States. Their statesmen are making the usual speeches about not planning to take an inch of territory and undertaking to restore the country inviolate as soon as the present crisis is over. Did they not make similar promises in regard to Korea and Shantung? They may say they haven't had time yet to carry out their promises concerning the latter, but they cannot put forward that excuse regarding Korea. Once they get a good grip on Eastern Siberia they won't let it go without being well recompensed. They have been reaching out ever since their victory in the war with China twenty-five years ago and they will have difficulty in convincing the rest of the world that they will entirely quit Siberia as soon the existing emergency passes.

BE JOLLY ABOUT IT.

Crying over spilt milk is foolish; crying over spilt booze is foolisher; but the foolishest thing of all is to cry because there isn't going to be any more booze to spill. And there certainly isn't.

Some of our citizens may not relish the fact, but all of us have to admit it. For it's a stubborn fact and won't budge. Why not, then, accept it with a good grace?

After all, this dry Sahara we hear so much about may not prove so gray and gruesome as it has been painted. Imperial Valley was once a desert. Originally dry deserts have given us many of the things most worth living for.

So Uncle Sam has settled us on this new American Sahara with unlimited possibilities. Everyone should buckle to and help make it blossom as the rose. A clean region in which to make a clean start. By and by we shall be as proud of our handiwork as the Imperial farmer is of his—after the initial hardships have been overcome.

A visit to the dentist is worse in anticipation than in reality, and how helpful and healthful are the after effects! Old-fashioned bon vivants have regarded the 16th of January very much as a date made with the dentist. But later on how glad they will be that they kept the appointment! And how miserable will be the consequences for those who resort to illegal and illicit doctors to escape the necessary extraction!

You can't beat an aching tooth or Uncle Sam's treatment thereof.

The new dry law is an amendment to the constitution of every citizen whose liver has been enlarged by beer and whose nerves have been frazzled by whisky. Therefore it is a double amendment to the national Constitution. For which reason it should be doubly welcome.

Pan, not Bacchus, was the real god of merriment. There are corking times to be had under prohibition. All the good spirits of the nation were not confined in bottles. All the effervescence has not disappeared with the champagne bubbles. The season is still open for the merry heart. Prohibition has not dried up the fountain of joy; it has merely taken the "vial" out of convivial and the "spit" out of hospitality.

Indeed the United States has not gone dry at all—it is still superbly, abundantly and ecstatically wet. Only the brand of wetness has been changed. He was a poor picker of words who first coined the expressions "wet and dry campaigns." Water is wetter than alcohol, it doesn't dry up so quickly. The real "drys" are the whisky drinkers.

Who will not rejoice that the good old American beverage, cider, is coming into its own again? What wider beverage prospects are opened for the California citrus fruits! What chances unfold for the inventor to concoct healthful drinks for freshly-formed palates and heroically-cleansed stomachs.

The "good fellow" in particular should rejoice in the changed order of things. Now he has been given a chance to justify his title. Now he can prove that it was he who put the joy into the wine cup, not the wine cup that put the joy into him. He can conquer the American Sahara with a smile. And these smiles will do himself and his friends far more good than did the old ones he used to take over a bar.

When you regard it in the light of pure reason, the devotee of Bacchus who grows peeved and disgruntled and provocative at the forced change in his habits is simply furnishing a last clinching argument against the regime he wishes to retain. He is proving that the joy and mirth and inspiration he would have us associate with the vineyard and the hop field is meretricious and artificial, since they have had no true effect on his temperament, but have shown him up to be without them a morose and unsociable creature.

On the other hand the truly jolly fellow, who once found in the goblet and the flagon romance and poetry and rich sentiment, will simply transfer that sentiment and poetry to the cider cask, the orangeade, the tea, coffee and cocoa cup and through them still vision the orchard and field and tropical verdure where these beverages had their birth.

There is as much poetry in an apple blossom as in a grape leaf, as much romance in a tea plant as in a hop vine.

And when you come to inspiration you can obtain it still more cheaply.

Take a brisk hike one of these fine January mornings up the Arroyo Seco or Millard's Canyon or along the Mt. Baldly trail. Walk and climb and clamber till the blood races through your veins and the sweat trickles down between your eyes. Follow the shining trail up and up and up till near the snow line you find a clear, deep pool among the rocks of the racing stream.

Plump down on your stomach and sup up direct from nature's cellar a generous draught of the finest vintage ever brewed for unregenerate man. If, then, you are not filled with romance and poetry and inspiration Uncle Sam for lo these many years has been wasting his efforts to make this world a better place for such men and women as you. Then, indeed, is prohibition a failure.

BRIGHT OR BROAD?

If Brightway were only forty or fifty feet wider it would be well worthy of the name of Broadway. There is the making of a beautiful thoroughfare, but when it is filled with its pulsing current of humanity it seems far from being broad. But there are other Broadways in America that cannot live up to the name. A hundred years or so ago a road which permitted a couple of horseback riders to pass without catching their spurs was a full-fledged highway. Now with a hundred thousand tin Lizzies looking for passage the conditions are different. It is hard to imagine a street being too wide.

MUCH MONEY.

There are over 18,240,000 depositors in the national banks of America alone. This is an increase of almost 150 per cent. since the last census was taken. It means that one person in every six is carrying a national bank account. Now add those who have balances in private, State and savings banks and the financial powers of the people of America are truly staggering.

JOHNSON'S POLITICAL RECORD.

Senator Johnson left the Republican party eight years ago, declaring that it was a tool of capitalism, a cesspool of corruption and rotten to the core, applying a few other choice expletives and mixed metaphors and ending with the assertion that every self-respecting man and woman would henceforth resent as an injury the application of the epithet "Republican."

Johnson loathed the name Republican then. Senator Root was a highwayman; President Taft was a porch-climber; a Republican convention was the greatest gathering of criminals ever assembled outside a penal institution. After the election he rejoiced that the most corrupt organization that ever polluted American politics had been forever destroyed. He said that the word "Republican" would henceforth be used only as a brand of infamy. He used his authority as Governor of California to dismiss from all the boards and commissions of the State every man who dared in 1914 to register himself as Republican. Even the civil service rules could not save him. Progressives were the elect; Democrats were tolerated; but a Republican was anathema. Gov. Johnson forced through the Legislature by a judicious distribution of patronage and the creation of a few hundred salaried position a law forbidding the use of the word "Republican" as a party designation on the State ballot.

It was at this point that the reaction set in. The electorate of the State made use of the referendum to preserve the name "Republican." The 1914 elections buried the Progressive party beneath a glacier of popular disapproval, while the Republican party polled more votes than in any preceding national election. Right then Mohammed began to advance towards the mountain. He ceased to apply derisive epithets to the Republican leaders and he advised his political friends that he would be grateful if they would make an attempt to secure for him the nomination for Vice-President in the 1916 Republican convention. But the best his friends could do was to get him a single vote out of more than 700 delegates.

Then came his campaign for Senator. Before leaving the East Johnson pledged to Republican leaders his support for Hughes for President and asked in return their good offices to aid him in securing the indorsement of the Republican party of the State for his Senatorial nomination. He was still registered as a Progressive. Then came the incident of Mr. Hughes's visit to California. Johnson sedulously avoided meeting him; and there was a reason. He was not at all certain about getting that Republican indorsement and there were 300,000 voters who had registered without stating their party affiliations. He was riding two horses. Johnson's friends have since set up the claim that Mr. Hughes snubbed Johnson while here, refusing to meet him. New and authoritative light has been thrown on that incident by a recent article written by Louis Seibold, Washington correspondent of the New York World, for that publication. He says:

> Johnson, running for Senator, declined to be coaxed into the Hughes camp. He was in Los Angeles the same day Mr. Hughes was. In fact, he was in the same hotel at Long Beach when Mr. Hughes dropped in on an automobile ride. I was one of two or three men who advised the Governor of the presence of the Presidential candidate less than a hundred feet away. Johnson seemed to view the situation as interesting, but not of importance.
> Mr. Hughes left California without grasping the hand of the State and Progressive leader, as he was manifestly eager to do. Toward the end of that momentous campaign Johnson supported the national Republican ticket in pretty much the same manner as the late Patrick Henry McCarren once supported the Hon. William Randolph Hearst for Governor of New York. McCarren said all the unpleasant things he could about Hearst and then, "in order to preserve the regularity of the Brooklyn organization," he indorsed the nomination of the editor-politician.

In discussing the incident further Mr. Seibold writes:

> He (Johnson) was never reconciled to the nomination of Mr. Hughes. When the latter came to California the Johnson Progressive army, made up of more than half a million men and women who believe in him with rare sincerity, made it plain that they were for Johnson, but not for Hughes. Johnson refused to be demobilized. In fact, Mr. Hughes attempted to harmonize the differences between the two factions to the end that he might secure the support of both. That's where he made a mistake. He might as well have tried to harmonize the north of Ireland and the south of Ireland.

Mr. Seibold's article is not written as an attack on Senator Johnson. Most of it is laudatory. The Democratic press of the country has never ceased to be grateful to Johnson for the part he played in the election of Wilson. Mr. Seibold writes without malice. He was with the Hughes party and relates what he personally saw and heard. The Democratic press has hailed with delight Senator Johnson's announcement of his candidacy for the Republican Presidential nomination. They hope it will develop into a split in the Republican ranks that will be wide enough for another Democratic President to crawl through. But Mr. Seibold has rendered the Republicans of the country a service by making clear that Johnson declined to meet Hughes and that Hughes sought to meet Johnson.

Mr. Seibold will be very much surprised to learn that, after the election was over, Senator Johnson made the statement that he devoted the whole of his energies, from the day he received the Republican indorsement, to carry California for Hughes. McCarren didn't do that. There is a certain honor in Tammany Hall that did not prevail in a certain brand of Progressive politics in California.

Mr. Seibold is slightly in error, however, when he writes that Senator Johnson "attacked the Democratic party" during the 1916 campaign. In no speech during the campaign, after he received the Republican indorsement for Senator, did Johnson mention either Woodrow Wilson or the Democratic party. It is that record which belies Johnson's words. He denounced Wilson bitterly when campaigning for Vice-President in 1912, and the Democratic party as well. The invective which he has hurled at the President personally during his campaign against the League of Nations is familiar to all. But when he was running for Senator in 1916 with the indorsement of all the labor unions he never said a word in criticism of the Democratic administration, which had then been in power for four years.

Senator Johnson's speech opening his campaign in New York this week reeked with denunciation of the policies of the President and of the Democratic party. If he were supporting Hughes, as he claims, in 1916, how could he find nothing wrong with a Wilson administration then and everything wrong now?

Despite his one-time loathing for the word "Republican," Senator Johnson's campaign for the Republican nomination for President is now in full swing, supported hilariously by the Democratic press of the country. He is pursuing a policy of "boring in" similar to that which the I.W.W. have used to get control of the American Federation of Labor. He is going after the nomination by holding a club over the heads of Republicans; his friends boast that they will win or they will split the Republican party so wide open that it can never be welded together again.

But The Times is confident that the Johnson managers misjudge the temper of the Republicans of the nation. All true Republicans are Americans first, and Americans are not wont to yield up their suffrage to threats. No rule-or-ruin campaign ever won in a Republican national convention. Every candidate has been expected to give a pledge that he would support the national ticket, winner or loser, before his name has been seriously considered. And the Republican party has never yet violated its fixed principle of nominating only Republicans for office.

THE ASCOT PARK CASES.

Among the many good things that Los Angeles enjoys are the services of a conscientious and highly-efficient Chief of Police. There is increasing evidence that the man and the job are well matched. In other words, George K. Home by all tokens is enforcing the law to the very best of an undisputed ability, fortified by seventeen years of experience in police work.

He assumed the office at a difficult time—the day war prohibition went into effect and a new order was substituted for the old. The change brought about new police problems that called forth initiative and vigilance. A succession of strikes—the shipyard walk-out, when 5000 men quit on a few hours' notice, the street-car and steam railroad strike and many others—presented situations that were handled with firmness and good judgment. Chief Home's powers as an executive were proved, just as his long-recognized skill as a detective was demonstrated, after he assumed charge of that department, in his handling of the mysterious Lawler bombing case.

His record as the city's Chief Police executive has, indeed, been no matter of surprise. For seventeen years he has been a member of the department. Fourteen years ago he became a detective sergeant, he has been, besides, a lieutenant and then a captain of detectives, and for twenty-three months he was the assistant Chief of Police. He has experience, a good record and the confidence of the public.

For these reasons it would seem wise to leave in his hands, as far as possible, the details of the administration of his office. The only proper ground for either interference or detailed supervision of his work should be to better it. When such betterment is problematic the wisdom of intervening in Chief Home's work may well be questioned.

No better illustration of this fact may be found, perhaps, than that offered by the recent book-making cases at Ascot Park. Betting on the races was in progress there. There is no question that arrests should have been made. But failure to convict a single one of the ten men arrested is strong evidence, to say the least, that something was wrong with the methods used.

What was it? Here are the facts: Chief Home detailed policemen to get evidence that would convict the bookmakers and told them how to get it. While they were engaged in this work Police Commissioner Burge and some clergymen appeared at Ascot Park and saw the betting. Mr. Burge ordered the policemen to make arrests. They telephoned Chief Home and asked whether Mr. Burge's orders or those of the Chief were to be obeyed. Mr. Home directed the policemen to do as the commissioner said. Ten arrests were made. A few days ago the ten defendants were acquitted in the Police Court.

At the same time three bookmakers, arrested downtown after evidence had been collected according to Chief Home's directions, were convicted.

Mr. Burge is a man of unquestioned motives, who is active in church work, but has been a member of the Police Commission only a few months. He doesn't know how.

The significant part of the Ascot Park episode perhaps lies in the fact that Chief Home was not consulted in any way before Mr. Burge directly intervened in the handling of the cases. Mr. Burge should have kept hands off. Chief Home is more capable than he of running the police department.

WINTER WINDS.

The winter, slow dragging, is spoiling our lives; the wild winds are nagging like Billingsgate wives; all day they are ranting, they give us a pain; all night they are chanting a dippy erefrain: The wild winds are bolder than wild winds should be, and keener and colder than bergs in the sea; they come and deliver a smart and a sting, and sufferers shiver and clamor for spring. And spring will be slippin' along pretty soon, and spring is a pippin, with roses of June. And how we will love her, the garlanded spring, when mocking birds hover around us and sing! If winter were banished, to come back no more, we'd find, when it vanished, that spring is a bore. We wouldn't be grateful for breezes of May, if winter, the hateful were out of the way. The long night is chilly and plastered with snow; the mercury's silly, it's fourteen below; and thus we're in training the spring to enjoy; so cut out complaining, and cheer up, my boy.

THE LANCER.

John S. McGroarty has some hard things to say of the person who dares leave in the middle of a lecture. He says it is underbred and is brutal to the lecturer—that no one has a right to attend who is not prepared to hear him out to the bitter end.

This is an appalling edict, especially as most lecturers sell their dubious wares. Looking a gift horse in the mouth may be bad manners, but who would dare suggest that when we have made a bad bargain and bought a box of rotten cigars or a shoddy suit or an unpalatable meal it is our bounden duty to smoke the lot, wear the wretched thing or eat the nasty meal as the case may be? Isn't it enough that we have been mulcted of our dollars and have forborne to demand our money back?

Besides, think of giving a bad lecturer that much encouragement. For the sake of humanity at large his crime ought to be brought home to him. The only possible excuse for a lecturer is that he has something worth saying and says it well. Otherwise he is an impostor, whom we have been lured to listen to under false pretenses. How dare he add to the sorrows of the world at so much per head?

Dr. Louis St. Maurice of Paris—Paris, the arbiter of fashion—comes forth with the unpleasant edict that everybody ought to wear nightcaps. Now, if he had said "take" nightcaps or "consume" nightcaps we might at least have shown a sympathetic understanding of his intentions.

With all due respect for every sophisticated edict that comes out of Paris I positively refuse to wear a nightcap. There is no dignity about a nightcap. It is always askew in a crisis, anyway. If Dr. Maurice had propounded his urge on the score of morality I might, for the sake of my soul, concur. There is something so deadly moral about a nightcap. But, no, the doctor says the things are healthy; that in the eighteenth century, when everybody wore 'em, colds in the head were unknown. Well, we all know, through painful acquisition, three score infallible cures for colds. Is all this accumulated knowledge of two centuries to be scrapped for a mere nightcap? A grotesque thing, usually with a tassel, forsooth, that shatters our last vestige of prestige—never!

The census men say that it is appalling how little wives know about their husbands—where they were born and who their forebears were. I will wager, however, that this is never the case when hubby has any Irish affiliations to brag about. Funny how men always love to boast about a "touch of Irish." It becomes a regular profession with some of them. They seem to think that, no matter what other important attributes they lack, that touch of Irish is an irresistible and conclusive alibi. And, of course, it often is.

As wives will be largely responsible for the data of the census, however, it is a lugubrious outlook for the accuracy of the statistics. Wives are such irrepressible guessers. And they have such an abiding faith in their instincts. According to the mood of the lady, hubby may go down as a Mormon, a Shylock, a professional gambler, a chicken fancier, a city magnate or the illegitimate son of a reigning king. Today might see him a literary genius and tomorrow an unsuccessful ad writer.

A carpenter who thought he had married a wealthy widow and would never have to work any more is suing for annulment — says the "wealth" amounted to a few paltry hundreds. "Fooled, by gosh, and by a woman!" "Why, dash it all, according to his own evidence, she actually told him to go to work after the ceremony. And yet women are supposed to be the gentler, more sympathetic sex.

There is a painful significance in this female preference for industrious husbands. Nasty idea, this exaltation of the worker. And the next thing we know men will be objecting to beautiful, idle, childless wives. We may well sigh for the good old days.

According to Armah Sohrab, Persian orator visiting this city, Buddha "advised men not to see women, but if they must see them not to talk to them, and if they must talk to them to express their minds collectedly."

Profound advice as far as it goes, but very inadequate. It takes no cognizance of what the ladies will be doing in the meantime. There have been husbands who endeavored to apply the advice conscientiously. Their reports have always been discouraging. Alas, for these impractical idealists, they mean so well, but they do not make for peace.

I am getting suspicious about this publicity on "stolen nectar" from private cellars. Especially as the miscreants never get caught. Naturally the owners of those cellars have found themselves a trifle overpopular—callers at all sorts of unexpected times with a yearnful glitter in their hectic eyes. One man, who had recklessly boasted of a $5000 private cache, had a long line of amiable callers every Sunday morning and had voiced his alarm at its vanishing celerity. He is naturally anxious to have it understood that all the rest has been stolen—so much more effective than having his hospitable charms impeached.

YOSEMITE PARK PLAN ADVANCED

Company's Reorganized and Directors Elected.

Committee's Work is Given the Highest of Praise.

Two and Half Million Dollars for New Work Assured.

Full speed ahead is now the watchword at the Yosemite National Park, where improvements involving more than $1,000,000 will immediately be undertaken with the complete organization of the Yosemite National Park Company, which was effected this week. The plan of operations and improvements is most ambitious and will be completed in full co-operation with the United States and State governments.

The organization was effected at the annual meeting of the company, at which the enterprise was taken out of the hands of the reorganization committee, which has acted for the stockholders, and turned over to a permanent board of directors and officers.

The board of directors is made up of San Francisco and Los Angeles men and four more directors at large will be chosen later. The board consists of: Harry Chandler, Los Angeles Times; H. M. Haldeman, president Pacific Pipe and Supply Company, Los Angeles; Gen. M. H. Sherman, Los Angeles; J. H. Coverly, Title Insurance and Trust Company, Los Angeles; M. H. Whittier, Los Angeles; John S. Drum, president Savings Union Bank and Trust Company, San Francisco; R. P. Schwerin, Federal Telegraph Company, San Francisco; R. S. Shelnwald, president Paraffin Paint Company, San Francisco; Alfred I. Esberg, San Francisco; Frederick J. Koster, California Barrel Company, San Francisco; A. B. C. Dohrmann, president Nathan-Dohrmann Company, San Francisco.

T. E. Farrow was again appointed manager of the company and named secretary and treasurer of the company. A. B. C. Dohrmann was reappointed president and H. M. Haldeman and Alfred I. Esberg were made vice-presidents.

Particular tribute was paid to the reorganization committee, which had developed and built up the company's holdings during the receivership and which was dissolved at the annual meeting. This committee consisted of: K. R. Kingsbury, president Standard Oil Company; M. J. Brandenstein, M. J. Brandenstein Company; J. K. Moffitt, vice-president First National Bank; S. L. Goldstein, California Packing Corporation; L. W. Harris, Ames Harris Neville Company; I. I. Brown and A. B. C. Dorhmann, Nathan-Dohrmann Company.

The immediate capital at the disposal of the company is $1,000,000, raised jointly in San Francisco and Los Angeles. Another $500,000 will be raised throughout the State and also used for improvements. This money is to be expended within the next two years and with about $900,000 already invested by the company in the Yosemite, about $2,500,000 will have been put into the park by the end of 1922.

It is the intention of the board of directors to put the bulk of the earnings back into improvements, it is stated. One of the first things to be done is the building of a new hotel, to be known as The Grizzly and equal in equipment and appointments to any resort hotel in the world. A commodious camp will be built at Tuolumne Meadows, in the High Sierras, the junction point of the roads to the principal points of interest. The present camps will be enlarged and a new camp will be built in the Hetch Hetchy Valley, one of California's most important scenic attractions.

The State is now building the Merced-El Portal highway, which will give the motorist an all-year road into the Yosemite and the government is perfecting the highways in the park, building new ones and installing a perfect sewerage system.

INVITE SERVICE MEN FOR PERSHING PARADE.

EACH ORGANIZATION PERMITTED ONE AUTO IN LINE FOR ITS REPRESENTATIVES.

Military and Allied organizations planning to take part in the Pershing day parade must file their applications at once in order to insure place, it was announced yesterday by the subcommittee in charge of this feature of the programme. Owing to the large number of organizations that wish to be represented, the executive committee is forced to limit each organization to one automobile. The entire parade will be on wheels, no marchers being allowed.

Service men will have a large part in the programme as they are not only on the executive committee, but on subcommittees in charge of the arrangments.

The general plan is to have the occasion of Gen. Pershing's visit a floral welcome. William Bowen is in charge of the committee arranging for the flowers and expects to effect an organization that will provide every school child with a flower to throw into the general's automobile as he passes. Persons having flowers will be requested to donate them.

Applications for places at the luncheon to be given at the Alexandria Hotel by the Chamber of Commerce are being received at the secretary's office. It is expected that more will wish to attend than can be accommodated, so the rule of first come, first served, has been adopted.

TO AID CHILDREN.

Jewish Committee Plans Drive for Polish Sufferers.

Plans for launching a fund drive in aid of destitute Jewish children in European war areas were discussed yesterday at a meeting of prominent business and professional men whose help has been enlisted by Earle D. Hodges, western director of the American Jewish Relief Commfttee.

Tentative plans were adopted for the campaign in Southern California under the direction of a citizens' committee to be formed immediately. It is planned to hold the drive here early in March.

RED ACTIVITIES REPORTS ASKED.

Federal Authorities Seeking Aid of All Citizens in Clean-up of City.

To aid in the campaign to drive the Reds out of Los Angeles, citizens of this city are asked to report any indication of activities of known radicals to the Federal authorities. A postcard or letter, addressed to Postoffice Box 388, Station C, will reach the proper authorities.

All letters giving information must be signed, as no attention will be paid to anonymous communications. The writers also are asked to give home addresses and telephone numbers, so that investigators can get in touch with them. Communications will be regarded as confidential.

Any information regarding meetings of Red societies, I. W. W. or radicals of any brand, or any information concerning any contemplated activities of such organizations will receive prompt attention and aid in the clean-up of the city.

ZIONISTS PLAN FOR FEAST OF THE TREES.

The Zionists of Los Angeles are preparing an educational campaign to enlighten the Jewish colony on the importance of the true celebration, or "Lagg Bomer," which is heralded the first part of February.

In Palestine the feast of the trees as it is denoted, signifies the joy and thanksgiving rendered to the opening of the spring season. It is a minor holiday, antedating the medieval period, but has been fostered many years by the nomadic Palestinians. Coincident with the campaign in this city and in other parts of the country, comes the Zionist drive for $10,000,000.

NOT ON "NEW" JURY.

W. C. McMullen, 3006 South Vermont avenue, is receiving many inquiries regarding the Harry S. New verdict, which he is not in a position to answer. Mr. McMullen was not a member of the "New" jury, but another Los Angeles man of the same name.

Fight for Senate Post Launched.

POLITICS.

THE WATCHMAN.

TREND OF POLITICAL THOUGHT AND ACTION.

By the Sentry on His Beat.

Edwin A. Meserve, who is definitely out for the Republican nomination for the U. S. Senatorship from California, has been visiting San Francisco, accompanied by that Republican wheel-horse, Tom Hughes. Mr. Meserve was given considerable attention in the Bay City newspapers, and the north now fully understands that the race for the Senatorial toga will not be confined to Phelan, Kent and Ralph.

"I am for the League of Nations with interpretive reservations," says Mr. Meserve. "I am for America for Americans. I have been a Republican ever since I could vote. I want this brought out—that if the Republican platform doesn't suit me, I'll not join another party; I'll simply withdraw from the race."

And now it appears that Mr. Meserve will not be the only candidate from Southern California. Former Lieut.-Gov. A. J. Wallace makes announcement of his intention to enter the contest. Wallace will trade on his "dry" record. He is dry as Sahara, I'll say that for him.

Gov. Stephens is not in the running, as was announced exclusively by the Watchman several weeks ago, when I gave his declaration to this effect to members of one of the important woman's clubs here just after he had addressed that body. In fact, the latest information is that Gov. Stephens expects to retire to private life at the completion of his present term as the State's chief executive. This is based on a statement he has just made to Assemblyman Maurice B. Browne of Tuolumne county.

Passing of Weinstock.

The stormy career of Col. Harris Weinstock as State Market Commissioner is soon to end. He has resigned, to take effect on the first of February, which, let us be thankful, is very near at hand. Ill health is given as the reason for this resignation, and I'm sorry if the colonel's health is not robust; but his action in tendering his resignation to Gov. Stephens comes right on the heels of a general movement through women's clubs and other organizations to circulate petitions asking the Governor to remove him.

For many months past many California citizens have felt that Col. Weinstock has practically reversed the spirit and intent of the State Marketing Act, and that its provisions have not been used for the best interests of the citizens generally.

Naturally, the question arises as to who will be the Governor's new appointee for this position, and friends of James P. Britt, at present superintendent of municipal markets of Los Angeles, are urging that he is the logical man for the place. They set forth that Mr. Britt is the market superintendent of the largest city on the Pacific Coast; that he has had wide experience in this line, and has qualifications that could be utilized in putting the real intent of the State market law into effect. They also point out that Mr. Britt, as a member of a commission appointed by Mayor Snyder and the City Council to investigate prices on food products, was one of the chief factors in calling attention to the actions of Col. Weinstock that caused such an uprising against his methods in handling the State market bill provisions.

Caminetti May Go.

Antony Caminetti, the Californian who holds the position of Commissioner-General of Immigration, may soon find the job legislated, out from under him, and this is said to be causing uneasiness among attaches of the immigration service in this State who are Caminetti appointees.

It is gossip that a movement, headed by Congressman Isaac Siegel of New York is on foot to recommend that the office of the Commissioner-General of Immigration be abolished and that the duties be given to one of the assistant secretaries of the Department of Labor.

The movement, it is said, is an outcome from the scandal in the immigration station at New York over Commissioner Frederick C. Howe and his liberal dispensation of favors to the Reds held for deportation, and in connection with which Mr. Caminetti is said to have refused to give certain details to a Congressional committee.

Leonard's New Post.

Edward M. Leonard is to be Assistant U. S. District Attorney at San Francisco. His decision to take this post came right after he had been named by Dist.-Atty. Brady of San Francisco city and county as a member of his own staff. Mrs. Annette A. Adams, U. S. District Attorney at San Francisco, recommended Mr. Leonard for the berth in the Federal office to fill the vacancy created when Frank M. Silva was made State prohibition enforcement officer. Mr. Leonard was a Knights of Columbus overseas worker.

Mellinger a Candidate.

Walter E. Mellinger, a resident of East San Diego for three years, and secretary of the San Diego County Farm Bureau, has announced his candidacy for member of the State Legislature as Assemblyman from the Eighteith District. This includes all of San Diego county outside of the city of San Diego.

Local Woman Honored.

The names of two women figure prominently in the preliminary plans for the Democratic national convention at San Francisco. They are Mrs. George Bass of Chicago, who visited Los Angeles not long ago and conferred with Democratic women here; and Miss Mary E. Foy of this city, who is the California woman member of the Democratic national organization. These two women are named, with fifteen men of the national committee, to select the temporary chairman for the national convention and to make up the temporary convention roll.

Opponent of Strother.

State Assemblyman S. L. Strother of Fresno will have opposition in his candidacy for re-election to the State Legislature. Stanley Moffatt, an attorney of Fresno, but formerly of Los Angeles, will try for the Democratic and Progressive nominations.

Plenty of Material.

Report now has it that Buron Fitts, first vice-commander of the Department of California, American Legion, will be a candidate for Assemblyman in the Sixty-fourth Assembly District. George Lynch is the incumbent and may stand for re-election. Other prospective candidates in this district include Leonard Hall, Harry Lyons and Fred Frank.

A Four-cornered Fight.

There is talk of a four-cornered contest in the Second Supervisorial District, with J. H. Bean and Ed Delorey as likely candidates; and the rumor now floats that George Lyons, for eight years constable, and only recently resigned from that post, may be up from the Boyle Heights district, and that State Senator Henry Yonkin may come out from the South End.

New City Manager.

The new City Council of Santa Barbara has elected Robert R. McGregor as city manager at a salary of $4000 a year. He is a native of Santa Barbara, served in the Philippine war and was commissioned a captain in the Twenty-first Engineers' Corps, A.E.F.

Dodge Stands Alone.

So far, no candidate has appeared as an opponent of Jonathan S. Dodge for re-election to the Board of Supervisors from the Fifth Supervisorial District, and it does not seem likely there will be opposition to him at the primaries. It is likely that Supervisor Dodge will be re-elected at the primaries, and without substantial opposition

Pasadena's Recall Election.

February 11 is the date set for the recall election at Pasadena on City Commissioners John J. Hamilton and M. H. Salisbury. Their opponents are William Esterbrook and T. L. Syvertson. Mr. Esterbrook has been a resident of Pasadena and identified with its business and civic affairs for twenty years. Mr. Syvertson has lived there thirteen years and is a street contractor and a veteran of the Spanish-American War. For ten years he was in newspaper work—and that's some qualification.

Doesn't Like the Job.

Edgar S. Van Meter ceases, on his own volation, to be City Attorney of Fresno on the first of next month. His resignation has been placed in the hands of Mayor W. F. Toomey to take effect on that date, and therein he declares that "the office has become burdensome and irksome" and that the salary "is so incommensurably small as compared with the burdens." A successor has not yet been named.

Psychopathic Ward None in America Thousa

Be it prince or pauper, if psychopathic treatment, is sought there is but one place to go in this State. This is the Psychopathic Ward of the County Hospital. In this ward, where 2155 patients were handled during the past year, there is no discrimination. One may possess a million dollars in actuality or possess it merely in an aircastle—his case is handled from a single basis of equality.

It is a well known fact that the general psychopathic ward is second to none in this country; but it is not generally known that this institution is unique in its disposition of patients. That is, when the patient's treatment at the psychopathic hospital is completed, he or she is sent to one of five private places, or to the County Farm, which places are regularly visited by parole officers and by Judge Reeve of the lunacy court, by which all cases for admittance to the psychopathic ward are first examined. If the relatives or friends of the patient can contribute in any degree toward the expenses during this period, the contribution is accepted; if not, the county assumes the cost and the patient is thus properly cared for.

Haven, at No. 765 College street, is one of the principal places to which these patients are sent to operate. It is the policy of Judge Reeve to keep the patients out of State hospitals when possible. Los Angeles county is the only one in the United States that assumes the extra expense of providing for the mentally deranged, upon their entering the psychopathic ward.

STORY OF DEVELOPMENT.

HISTORY OF DEVELOPMENT.

...The present building at the Coun- ...ty Hospital, known as the psycho- ...pathic ward, was opened five years ...ago and was built at a cost of $1556- ...00 on plans with the John Hop- ...kins institution and that at Boston ...affiliated with Harvard Medical. The ...establishment of the local psycho- ...pathic ward was primarily due to the ...efforts of the Social Welfare Society, composed of ...prominent judges, nurses and others, founded about eight years ago. There are about sixty members in this society. Dr. E. R. Brainerd is president.

"Formerly everybody who was mentally disturbed was sent to an asylum," said Norman R. Martin, superintendent of county charities, yesterday. "Now the degree of their insanity is tested, and we find 60 per cent. committed to our care in the psychopatnic ward never reach the State Hospital. They either clear up under treatment or are placed under psychopathic parole officers; they are on probation, in other words. Those who are violently insane are sent to an asylum; those who are not violently insane are sent to the County Farm."

NEW BUILDING.

The new psychopathic building at the county Farm is a one-story, rambling type of building of masonry construction with the exception of the roofs, harmonizing in style with other buildings on the premises. The plan takes the form of the letter H, the extreme dimensions being 158x254 feet and consisting of two wings and a central connecting pavilion, virtually inclosing a large open-air court.

The central pavilion comprises offices, reception room, matrons' quarters and a spacious sitting-room 34x45 feet, with a large sun porch. The wings contain fifty-nine private rooms, two wards, each 27x63 feet, which, with adjoining rooms, will accommodate approximately 100 inmates.

In the west wing is a dining-room 27x63 feet, with a diet kitchen adjoining. There are generous bath and toilet facilities with ample space for lockers, linens, etc., throughout. The rooms are well proportioned as to size and have large windows, giving ample light in all compartments.

Inclines afford easy access to all portions of the building, and good artificial heat and light are provided. The building will cost approximately $75,000 when completed. The plans were prepared by the mechanical department of the county.

As a building is to accommodate female inmates only, the old psychopathic building, having a capacity of 128 beds, being used exclusively for men.

Admittance to the psychopathic ward is usually obtained by a relative, friend or other interested party, procuring a warrant signed by the Lunacy Commission at the Hall of Records. Monday and Thursday morning of every week, the lunacy court meets in a special room for this purpose at the psychopathic ward. Formerly patients were taken from the hospital to the Hall of Records to be tried. The necessity of eliminating this condition was readily seen. For four years Judge Reeve has presided over this court, at which are present two medical court examiners in addition to the hospital examiners, the resident psychiatrist, the head nurse of the ward, an intern and whatever witnesses there may be. None but those directly interested in the case being tried are admitted, which is another feature of improvement over the old method, when all the gaping mob could feed its curiosity upon the pitiful mental breakdowns. The court has in its possession the history of the patient as far back as the grandparents, if this is possible, or even farther.

ECONOMIC SAVING.

An average of twenty-five cases is run through at each session of the lunacy court at the psychopathic ward. Of the 2155 patients received and discharged at the psychopathic hospital last year, 225 were discharged and 602 were paroled.

"I figure," said Judge Reeve after court Thursday, "that this institution saves the taxpayers more than $200,000 yearly, since about 40 per cent. of the people do not become a burden at the State hospitals and are saved the stigma of a State institution in many cases, by a few weeks of treatment here in the psychopathic ward.

"The average length of time we keep a patient at the hospital is seven days. Ninety-eight per cent. of those who come to my court are mentally sick. When I examine them, I live for that time in their world. It may sound foolish to the outsider, but I do this to gain their confidence; without that you can do nothing."

Judge Reeve, who is also head of the Juvenile Court, handled 11,000 cases in both his courts last year. In the lunacy court alone he had 4000 hearings, not signifying that that number were committed to the care of the psychopathic ward, but that in many instances a patient requires several hearings. In cases of specific diseases, Judge Reeve insists upon blood tests being taken of the entire family, thereby saving not only the present generation in the patient's family, but the passing on of such diseases to forthcoming generations. It is not uncommon for him, also, to save the property or money of some mentally deficient man or woman whom outsiders have preyed upon. The most dastardly case he has ever known, said the judge, was that of a boy who, after he had succeeded in getting his mentally deficient mother to deed all her property over to him, had then placed her in the psychopathic ward. Through a "tip," the judge was able to have the property returned to the mother.

SADDENING TASK.

Following the court's session Thursday morning, at which twenty-two cases were examined, a Times reporter went the rounds of the wards in the afternoon with Judge Reeve, while he arraigned fifteen cases for court the following Monday morning. Here was a beautiful boy of 15, who had recently become blind, across the way was a young negress who was an epileptic, further on was a weeping woman still very young, whom the judge would have to charge with having a specific disease, and so on it went, all of a pathos beyond words.

"There is nothing harder for me to do than that," said the judge upon returning to the courtroom. "I charge those people exactly as I would one who had committed murder or theft; and they are not guilty; it is their forbears who are guilty."

Dr. D. H. Calder, resident physchiatrist of the psychopathic ward, who has been in this work twenty-five years, estimates that from 70 to 75 per cent. of the cases committed to the ward for treatment are hereditary. At the same time, Dr. Calder declares, troubles and diseases are not transmitted; in cases of insanity in the family, there is no reason to worry; this very worry is the latet force that precipitates the calamity. In a case of tuberculosis tendecy running through a family, everything is done to counteract. Therefore, the thing to do in a case of insanity in the family is to forget about it, and work against the susceptibility that may exist. "The individual is no stronger than his or her weakest point," said Dr. Calder yesterday.

The mysteries placed upon various religions and wrong interpretations given them or supposed hypnotic influence directed upon certain minds often leads to insanity, as is illustrated in many cases taken up by the Lunacy Court.

ALCOHOL AND DRUGS.

Alcohol is variously estimated as the direct cause of insanity in from 12 to 20 per cent. of all cases committed to State institutions. About one-third of the living children of alcoholic parents suffer from epilepsy, and more than half of the idiotic children have alcoholic parents. Opium and cocaine are other factors in the cause of insanity, and also cigarettes.

Again, the restless spirit of the age, with its intense competition in every department of business and professional life, is held responsible for a large increase of mental disorders. Bankers, lawyers, ministers, doctors and captains of industry, many of prominence, who have gone to the psychopathic ward for treatment, illustrate this.

The following verses were written by a famous actor while at the Psychopathic Ward under the care of Dr. Calder, to whom they are dedicated:

"You're Booze," he said, with a leering laugh;
"And you," said the other, "are Drugs."
And they each sat down to tell of their joys
With many a smirky mug.
"What ho!" said Booze, "who's this 'tis here?"
And "Drugs" took a look and said,
"'Tis old Doctor Reason, damned old fool!
He hasn't a thought in his head."
"Go away! Go away!" the bright ones laughed,
And strolled along their way.
And Reason died as he stood in his tracks,
For the fools had had their way.

Drugs represented the actor and booze an equally well-known lawyer.

There are eighty-two rooms in the wards of the Psychopathic Hospital with an open and partitioned court separating the men's wards from those of the women. The lower floors are reserved for the more violent patients; as they improve, they are removed to the upper floors. The wards are spotlessly clean. There are eighteen nurses on duty and two doctors and two interns, with further assistance from the nurses and doctors of the main hospital, if necessary. There is nothing lacking in the equipment. The personalities of the doctors and the nurses are as important a factor in curing the patients as are the treatments given in the spray room, the steam and electric cabinets and the continuous bath, in which patients are placed in hammocks and even fed, remaining many hours.

In cases of emergency, there are facilities for receiving patients in the Psychopathic Ward, before securing the warrant.

CITY AND STATE OFFICIALS TO CONSIDER PARKING RULES TOMORROW.

Final plans for the no-parking ordinance will be discussed in an effort to recast it in a form that will minimize objections from motor car owners and will still meet the State commission's plans for the rerouting of street cars and general improvement of street railway affairs in this city.

Engineer Osborne arranged tomorrow's conference at the request of the Public Safety Committee of the Council. The conferees will meet in the commission's rooms in the Union League Building.

Fallow Lands, More Forage Crops and Sale of Dairy Herds for Beef are Farming Trouble Symptoms.

viser Weinland, the average wage for a general farm hand three or four years ago was $30 or $40 a month and found, and $50 and found for a skilled laborer. Milkers were paid $60 to $75 and found. Now the minimum wage for a general farm hand is $60 and found, for a teamster, $75 and found, and for dairy ranch milkers, $110 to $125 and found.

The small vegetable farms of the county are handled by the Japanese and other orientals and so the labor shortage does not affect them.

Farm Adviser Weinland states that while there are many changes taking place in the county, through secondaries being utilized instead of primary crops and through the use of tractors and harvesters, there are practically no farm lands that will lie uncultivated this year on account of farm labor shortage.

ACREAGE LARGER.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

VAN NUYS, Jan. 17.—Lands in the vicinity of Van Nuys will be more generally and more intensively cultivated this year than ever before.

The farmers have their crop plans largely perfected and the usual big acreage of baby lima beans, sugar beets, milo maize, barley, tomatoes, cabbage, lettuce and other vegetables will be set out.

A feature of this year's operations is the larger amount of land that will be farmed by owners. This is due to the many sales made in the Van Nuys section during the past year to farmers from other parts of California, who have moved here. Lease lands are practically all signed up. The acreage under plow will be greater than last year, according to all reports, and no land will be idle.

The total of land in the valley devoted to beans, approximately 25,000 acres, will remain the same as last year. The American Beet Sugar Company anticipates a considerable increase in the sugar-beet area, which they figure will reach 5000 acres.

There is no indication of any labor shortage at present. L. R. Hitchcock, director of the local farm center, and many of the leading farm operators in this locality anticipated no trouble in the labor situation.

Farm hands received from $3.50 to $5 a day last year in the San Fernando Valley. The scale for this year has not been fixed. The proximity of the valley to Los Angeles has proved attractive to farm laborers in the past and present applications on file indicate that there will be plenty of men to fill the demand this year.

NO IDLE LANDS.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

EL CENTRO, Jan. 17.—No farm lands will lie idle in the Imperial Valley this year. Prospects of the greatest year in the history of the valley will result in the cultivation of every acre which has been cultivated and every acre which it will be possible to get under the plow and ditch this year, in the opinion of real estate men.

Capt. A. N. Milner reports no shortage of men this year. Indeed, at this time, due to the warm winter and the mild climate, there is a surplus of workers in the valley. This is especially noticeable among tractor drivers; there are four or five men for every job.

Ranchers are paying good laborers anywhere from $70 a month and board to $100 a month and board. This may not be termed a rise over wages of last year, but it is up to the high standard which has prevailed for the past two years.

PRICES COMPENSATE.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN JACINTO, Jan. 17.—Farm laborers' wages in this district are higher than ever before, being 40 cents per hour for nine hours. Yet, as far as can be learned, this situation has had no noticeable effect on the area of land under cultivation as compared with former years, when laborers received from $2 to $2.50 a day. The increased prices paid both for grain from the dry-farming areas and for fruit have more than made up the difference in the cost of operation.

LABORERS ENOUGH.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

POMONA, Jan. 17.—While there is no great abundance of farm labor in this vicinity, there is enough to care for the actual demands and more people are continually pouring into this section. So far as can be determined now, there will be no idle acreage here this year, from any cause.

HARVEST'S THE RUB.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SANTA ANA, Jan. 17.—No important shortage of farm labor exists here and none is anticipated except during the harvest season. However, the land is so valuable that there is no prospect that any will remain uncultivated this year, even if there is to be difficulty when the crops are being gathered.

PLAN ENDLESS CHAIN FOR BRITISH RELIEF.

SHRINE AUDITORIUM'S BURNING CAUSES A CHANGE IN AID SOCIETY'S PROGRAMME.

Because the destruction by fire of Shrine Auditorium eliminated the plans of the British Soldiers' Aid Society to assist the needy British soldiers of Los Angeles by holding a benefit performance in the auditorium, February 14, the United British Societies of Los Angeles yesterday announced a new plan to give temporary assistance to the 400 British soldiers of the Southland.

"The idea of the campaign was born with the advent of the big fire," said Miss Geraldine Mortimer, assistant secretary of the British Soldiers' Aid Society, "and the plan is to organize a fire brigade for British relief. The proposal is to create a brigade by offering the position of fire chief to the Britisher willing to donate the sum of $25. Ten fire captains will be created for those willing to donate the sum of $10 each; 100 fire lieutenancies will be awarded to those subscribing $5; and ten fire companies will be organized, of 100 members each, to be made up of men subscribing $1 each. The members of these companies will in turn recruit their companies by securing 100 volunteer members in each company, such membership to cost 50 cents. By this method a full fire department relief plan can be organized which, when completed, will raise the necessary amount of money required to carry on and complete the relief work of the society."

Those interested in this movement are requested to apply for further information at the British Soldiers' Aid Society headquarters, 320 Coulter Building.

CHURCH SOCIETY TO PLAN FOR NEW WORK.

CONGREGATIONAL LEADERS TO HEAR REPORTS AT ANNUAL CONFERENCE.

Representatives from every Congregational church in Los Angeles and vicinity are to attend the annual conference dinner of the Congregational Church Extension Society Friday night at the First Congregational church at 6 o'clock. Each of the churches will send from twenty to one hundred delegates and the largest crowd that has ever attended such a dinner is expected.

Dell A. Schweitzer, president of the society, will be in charge. He has held this position for the past three years. Officers are to be elected and the report of the nominating committee will be one of the features. Dr. James H. Lash, chairman of this committee, is pastor of the Hollywood Congregational church. The address of the president will deal with the work of the past year and the prospects for the coming months.

Dr. George F. Kenngott, superintendent of the Church Extension Society, will follow with an outline of the work already accomplished. He will tell of the new Congregational structures already built and of the prospects for extending the work into other territory. The thousands of dollars already spent and the money still to be expended with the plans for enlarging the work will be gone into in detail.

WIFE SEEKS SAFETY.

Wants Maintenance and Protection from Convict Husband.

On the ground that he was convicted of fraudulent use of the mails in confidence operations; that he is serving a sentence in the Federal prison at Atlanta, Ga., and on the further ground of intemperance and failure to provide, Mrs. Marie M. Homer filed suit for separate maintenance against Harry Homer yesterday. The defendant's term expires the 31st inst., and Mrs. Tomer asks for an order to restrain him upon regaining his liberty from doing her bodily harm. The Homers were married in New York, April 17, 1914.

tective Association, the probation officers and the county veterinary board—which, I suspected, came to examine the donkey that had voluntarily taken on all this load of charity."

"You have a fine government down there," said Peter.

"We sure have," the tired one agreed. "Don't think for a minute that I've reached the end of the list. This morning, it would seem, a water tap squeaked at my orphans' home and therefore I received a call from the building and plumbing inspectors. More serious still, an inspector found a sheet—a sheet on a poor little orphan's bed—that was half an inch too short. Naturally, my criminal carelessness was reported to the municipal Social Welfare Commntee and I was in for explanation, explation, castigation and excoriation..."

The 1 o'clock whistle blew.

"What is that?" demanded the tired one, suspiciously.

"That" Peter informed him, "is the end of the noon hour. The angels are going to work."

The stranger drew back from the pearly gates.

"Well, I guess I'll be going," he said. Whereupon he hastened away.

"Hey, there!" shouted the saint. "Aren't you coming into heaven?"

The mere mortal paused in his flight.

"I'm homesick for Los Angeles," he yelled. "Besides, I've decided to postpone paradise, just to see what in hell can happen next."

ABOUT YOUR INCOME TAX.

Expert Outline of the Differences Between this and Last Year's Levy.

BY E. C. GROVES,
Former Deputy U. S. Internal Revenue Collector.

A digest of the Revenue Act of 1918, as affecting the calendar year 1919, will show no change in the persons required to file returns, being the same as the year 1918, $1000 for single persons, $1000 for head of family (although entitled to $2000 exemption) and $2000 for married persons. However, the law reduces the amounts of normal tax on individuals from 6 per cent. on the first $4000 above personal exemption and 12 per cent. on the balance, to 4 per cent. on the first $4000 above personal exemption and 8 per cent. on the balance.

Corporation normal tax is reduced from 12 to 10 per cent. The excess profits tax, affecting corporations only, is reduced from 30 per cent. of the amount of the net income in excess of the excess profits credit ($3000 plus 8 per cent.) to 20 per cent. and the 65 per cent. of the amount above 20 per cent. of the invested capital, to 40 per cent. There is no war profits tax for 1919.

STOCK DIVIDENDS.

Stock dividends received by stockholders from corporations declared after November 1, 1918, are taxable at the rates in effect for the year in which received, being in the same class as a cash dividend.

The law also provides an additional exemption of Liberty Bonds and Victory notes, the exemptions set forth in the various acts are shown in the following statement:

Five thousand dollars in the aggregate of first 4s, first 4¼s (issues of May 9 and October 24, 1918,) second 4s and 4¼s, third 4¼s, fourth 4¼s, treasury certificates and war saving certificates.

Thirty thousand dollars of first 4¼s (issue of October 24, 1918, only,) until the expiration of two years after the termination of the war.

Thirty thousand dollars of fourth 4¼s, until the expiration of two years after the termination of the war.

Thirty thousand dollars in the aggregate of first 4s, first 4¼s (issues of May 9 and October 24, 1918,) second 4s and 4¼s, third 4¼s, and fourth 4¼s, as to the interest received on and after January 1, 1919, until the expiration of five years after the termination of the war.

Forty-five thousand dollars in the aggregate of first 4s, first 4¼s (issue of May 9, 1918, only,) second 4s and 4¼s, and third 4¼s, as to the interest received after January 1, 1918, until the expiration of two years after the termination of the war; this exemption conditional on original subscription to, and continued holding at the date of the tax return of, two-thirds as many bonds of the Fourth Liberty Loan.

Twenty thousand in the aggregate of first 4s, first 4¼s (issues of May 9 and October 24, 1918,) second 4s and 4¼s, third 4¼s and fourth 4¼s, as to the interest received on and after January 1, 1919; this exemption conditional upon original subscription to, and continued holding at the date of the tax return of, one-third as many notes of the Victory Liberty Loan, and extending through the life of such notes of the Victory Liberty Loan.

One hundred and sixty thousand total possible exemptions from Federal income surtaxes and profits taxes, subject to conditions above summarized.

LOSS DEDUCTIONS.

Section 204 of the revenue law of 1918 allows the net losses of one year to be deducted from the net income of the preceding year, or if insufficient, then for the net income of the succeeding year. "Net losses" is defined as the excess of deductions allowed by law (other than dividends in the case of corporations) over the gross income, plus tax-free interest, such net loss resulting either from the operation of any business regularly carried on by the taxpayer, or from the bona fide sale by the taxpayer of plant, buildings, equipment, etc., constructed, installed or acquired by the taxpayer on or after April 6, 1917, for the production of articles contributing to the prosecution of the war.

Such net loss, however, must be sustained in a taxable year, beginning after October 31, 1918, and ending prior to January 1, 1920, and the taxpayer must produce satisfactory evidence to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, securing permission to make a new return for the year 1918, taking credit for the loss incurred as a deduction against the income for the year 1918, having the tax for that year redetermined. If the amount of loss incurred is found to be in excess of the net income for the year 1918, the balance or excess of the loss may be deducted from the net income for the succeeding year.

At the time of filing a return for the taxable year 1918 the taxpayer was allowed to file claim for abatement based upon a substantial loss (whether or not realized by actual sale) resulting from a material reduction (not due to temporary fluctuation) in the value of inventory for such year, or the payment after the close of the year of rebates under contracts entered into during the year on sales made in such year; and in either case the tax covered by the claim did not have to be paid until the claim was decided.

CLAIM STILL GOOD.

However, the taxpayer was required to give a bond in double the amount of the claim for the payment of tax and interest, which interest, if the claim be disallowed, is 1 per cent. a month. If a claim was not filed and it is shown to the satisfaction of the commissioner that during the taxable year of 1919 the taxpayer suffered such a loss, the tax for the year 1918 is to be redetermined by the commissioner and the amount of such loss deducted from the income for that year.

Accordingly, whether or not a claim for abatement was filed at the time of filing return for the taxable year of 1918, if within thirty days after the close of the taxable year 1919 it is shown to the satisfaction of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue that a loss was sustained, the tax will be redetermined and any amount found to be due the taxpayer will be credited on future returns or refunded.

The law otherwise than the above changes remains practically the same as for the year 1918, except corrections in the wording of certain clauses and decisions rendered affecting the act, which do not pertain to the majority of the taxpayers.

ASKS DIVORCE FIOM YOUTHFUL HUSBAND.

ANNULMENT, MAINTAINANCE AND LOST LOVE SUITS LEAD UP TO PREVENT ACTION.

As the latest in a series of actions Mrs. Muriel Barnhart Simons yesterday filed suit for divorce against Joseph T. Simons, her 19-year-old husband, charging him with desertion. Mr. and Mrs. Simons eloped to Santa Ana where they were married.

They separated September 17, 1918. Mr. Simons filed suit for annulment, alleging that he was under age at the time of his marriage and did not have the consent of his parents. Later the suit was dismissed.

Mrs. Simons filed suit for separate maintenance. She also sued her mother-in-law, Mrs. Laura S. Garfield, for $50,000 damages, alleging that she alienated her husband's affections. She charged her husband in the maintenance suit with desertion and going with other women in San Francisco. He denied the charges in an answer. It was said that the lost-love and maintenance suits have been dropped.

PROMISES MORE PAY.

Director Appeals to Revenue Men to Remain in Service.

Promising that an effort will be made to increase salaries, Supervising Director Mallon of the Internal Revenue Service in Washington, yesterday called a meeting of revenue agents in the Federal Building and appealed to them to remain in the service. It was stated that Mr. Mallon's appeal resulted from the large number of resignations during the past few months.

Many of the agents, it was stated, have left the service to accept positions with concerns that make a specialty of handling income tax returns for corporations or individuals and are receiving much larger salaries as experts in this line of work. H. J. Douglas, agent in charge of California and Nevada, was at the meeting and backed Mr. Mallon's appeal.

Attorney's Injunction Suit Against City to be Heard Today.

An important move in the enforcement of the license tax ordinance recently adopted by the City Council, for the purpose of increasing the city revenues, will be made in Judge Trippet's court tomorrow morning.

The application of Eugene Overton, an attorney of this city, for an injunction will be up for hearing, on an order to show cause. In the bill of the petitioner it is alleged that the ordinance is unconstitutional and void.

Jealous Rivals Spread Lie in Effort to Get a Few Subscribers Themselves.

Jealous and disgruntled newspaper rivals—would-be rivals—of The Times, are industriously spreading throughout Southern California a lie to the effect that The Times will shortly raise its subscription rate. NOTED EDITOR DIES HERE.

Lorettus Sutton Metcalf, former managing editor and business manager of the North American Review and for many years a newspaper publisher, died here on Thursday after an illness that began Christmas Day, when he suffered a stroke of paralysis. He was 82 years old in October and had been living here for more than two years at the Melrose Hotel.

Funeral services will be held at the Overholtzer undertaking establishment, at 1226 South Grand avenue, tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. The body will be cremated and the ashes taken East. Mr. Metcalf is survived by one son, Fred Metcalf of Plainfield, N. J. Two cousins live in this city.

Mr. Metcalf was born in Monmouth, Me., on October 17, 1837, the son of Mason J. and Hannah E. Metcalf. He was educated in the public schools of Boston and by private teachers. He received the honorary decrees of LL.D. from Iowa College and M.A. from Bates College.

"POLLYANNA" STIRS 'EM ALL.

Even Hardened Film Critics Weep at Showing.

Picture Looks Like Big New Triumph for Mary.

"Blind Husbands" Wins High Place in Year's Plays.

BY HARRY CARR.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 15.—The bunch that I saw sitting in the projection-room of the United Artists last night could ordinarily be expected to see a massacre of little babies without straining an emotion. It was that kind of a bunch. Two were film salesmen, another was a press agent and so on, yet they were all in tears. They were watching a trial run of Mary Pickford in "Pollyanna," which is destined to be known as one of the classics of the screen. "Pollyanna" is not as funny as "Daddy Long-legs," but infinitely finer. Personally, I thought "Daddy Long-legs" a very much over-rated play.

Mary Pickford is beyond any question of doubt the greatest artist who has ever been seen on the screen. But she is without compunction in the manner of getting laughs. She will win them even by sliding down-stairs with the seat of her trousers on fire as she did in "Daddy Long-legs." "Pollyanna" shows that she does not have to depend upon such crude devices.

I do not know what Miss Pickford will do before her career is completed. "Pollyanna" gives a hint of possibilities as yet undreamed of.

Don't be kidded by her stories of retiring, Mary Pickford has just started. A great majority of the pictures stars now adored in screen will go back to the ribbon counters and the hash foundries whence they came, but Mary Pickford is yet to do her biggest and finest work. If you don't believe it, see "Pollyanna."

The critic of the New York Times in reviewing the big achievements of the screen year places Eric von Stroheim's "Blind Husbands" as one of the three finest film plays made in 1919. The other twoof the sacred trio are D. W. Griffith's "Broken Blossoms" and George Loane Tucker's "The Miracle Man."

Von Stroheim's dizzy leap from a punk extra man to recognition as one of the three best directors in the world with his very first picture is a somewhat staggering event.

Nearly all the directors now before the public are cheap imitators without a speck of originality and with no remote evidence of anything resembling brains.

Von Stroheim is a queer character—at least queer to America, and he is, in fact, a typical Austrian cavalry officer, gay, cynical and unearthly clever. He is undoubtedly a forerunner. Within the next year or so there will be a lot of clever young French, Italian and Spanish writers breaking into the films and they will bring about a scattering of the stupid banalities that at present afflict the screen.

FOREIGN TRIUMPHS.

The most remarkable play now running in New York is "The Jest," which was written by an Italian. Perhaps the next most remarkable is "The Passion Flower," which opened up at the Greenwich Village Theater on Tuesday night. It is a gruesome but wonderful play by Jacinto Benavente, the Spanish playwright. It is a story of a Spanish peasant who hired a murderer to kill the fiance of his step-daughter with whom he had fallen in love.

The big striking theme of the play is the close entanglement of a great love and a great hate. The daughter can only express intense hatred for the man who supplanted her in her mother's affections, but it gradually develops that this hatred was a form of intense love, that the girl was fundamentally jealous of the man's relations with her mother. It has a terrific climax.

The mother is willing to forgive and tries to patch up the scandal. She induces her daughter to call the husband father. The girl goes to the man as bidden, but they fall passionately into each other's arms. In a frenzy of rage the mother summons the police and is shot by her husband. It goes into phases of human nature that all great psychologists have recognized but which the namby-pamby American dramatists have always ignored in favor of sweet stories about little half-baked girl creatures whose only tragedies really are losing their gum.

NANCE O'NEIL IN CAST.

In the cast of "The Passion Flower," is our old friend Nance O'Neil, who used to yell at us from the stage of the old Burbank. In this as in everything she is a queer mixture of genius and hokum. She has a strange untamed undirected power. Nance O'Neil always impressed me as being like an engineer at the throttle of a big queer-looking engine. Every once in a while she cautiously turns something on. It gives a loud snort and a leap and a roar and she turns it off again in a panic.

A very interesting announcement in the film world is the debut of Hugo Ballin, the art director at Goldwyn's, as director for Madge Kennedy. Mr. Ballin is a great artist, but that does not signify that he will be a great director. To my mind it is possible to be too darned artistic. For instance, Lenore Ulrich is appearing at the Belasco

CAPITALIZING OLYMPUS.

Andromeda's Adventure with the Titans, Who Sought a Celestial Location for Their Studio.

BY GRACE KINGSLEY.

[This is the third episode in the ethereal evolution of the film luminaries, who, upon invitation from the devotees of ambrosia and nectar, agreed to undertake their jobs in Jove's Court.]

"All aboard for the Olympian picnic grounds!"

That was the pleasant cry which awakened the great star-gods on the morning following the exciting events of the day Fatty Arbuckle Cyclops and Bill Russell Vulcan distinguished themselves by their bravery in rescuing Mary M. Clytie from the fascinating wiles of naughty Neptune T. Mix. The cry came from beneath the windows of the Lares and Penates Hotel, where the stars had been staying since they changed places with the gods on Mt. Olympus.

"All aboard for the exploring party!" sang the voice again, and Mary Pickford Minerva put her head out of her window and peeped down to see who was calling. Below she caught sight of Pan, the critic, along with the girl press-agent Amalthea, the goat, and Doug Fairbanks, who having to get up early anyhow to see about having the sun shined up for the day, therefore put himself in charge of the picnic upon the suggestion of same the night before.

Mary MacLaren Diana, who had been up practicing her archery, assisted by Lew Cody Cupid, joined the group just then, and set herself the task of waking everybody up by tapping on the various doors. Ceres hustled around and got breakfast assisted by the nymphs, and soon all were ready to start, with nice lunches put up by Ceres, of course, assisted by Antonio Moreno Bacchus, who had just invented a Nepenthe cocktail, which made the stars feel as if they didn't care whether they ever went back to earth or not.

Jupiter hesitated at the last minute about leaving, on account of the Titans, who, he said, were liable to get loose and raise hell. But Mary P. Minerva declared that was no fair. It would be a fine picnic, indeed, she said, without any mayor along! She was used to mayors and things, she said, wherever she went, and it just wouldn't seem official without him. So much flattered, he consented.

But he had a few little things to attend to, first. Fatty Arbuckle Cyclops, for one thing, was complaining bitterly that his publicity man down on the earth had sent word that nobody down there knew who Cyclops was. Besides he missed a lot on account of having only one eye. He heard a vestal virgin had winked at him and he hadn't even seen her. These things, he said, were embittering his naturally sweet disposition, and something just had to be done about it. It did seem to him, he said, that he might have a whack at the part of Cupid. Hadn't Lew Cody played it long enough? He thought that with his form and a neat pair of wings, perhaps assisted with a small motor and propellor to aid his flights, he would make a very nice Cupid.

CODY CHANGES ROLE.

So Jupiter, used during the long ages to dealing with a lot of temperamental gods, undertook to smoothe things out, and decreed that Lew Cody Cupid should be changed into something else, and as he had written a nice little song to himself, what fitter than that he should be turned into Aeolus, god of the wind? Cody said he didn't care, he hadn't learned so blamed much from Cupid, after all. So that was settled.

Wallie R. Mercury having ordered a dozen chariots from the Aegean livery stables, everybody hopped in, and the imposing procession, headed by Bill R. Vulcan, riding Pegasus, was about to start, Bill H. Hercules remarking wasn't it too bad there were no cameras around to take the scene for the Pathe weekly, when Gladys B. Liberia looked up and gave a little cry, pointing toward the sky.

Everybody looked where she pointed, and there, descending upon them, was an airplane. Pan, the critic, ducked his head, fearing it was Marion Davies, whom he didn't feel he wanted to meet just yet, while Hebe B. Daniels was just sure it was her mama coming after her on account of hearing about that little flirtation she was having with Bill H. Hercules; but Bryant Washburn Appolo said he bet it was some of the gods coming back to resign on account of being sick of their jobs as picture actors, while Anita Stewart Helen declared, in a slightly disappointed tone, that she felt sure it was her husband "Ruddy," and that while she should, of course, be awfully happy to have him along, still, she has been just dying to take a ride with Neptune T. Mix in his Charon Super-six motor boat.

As the airplane swiftly descended like a bird, it was discerned that the driver was a woman, and poor old Jupiter wiped his brow, believing that his wife Juno, who always was a nosey old dame, you remember, had came home to inquire into his attentions to Pauline Frederick Flora. So, excitedly, they watched the lady make a neat landing at Mercury Station, and then Bill R. Vulcan chased over on Pegasus to discover the lady was none other than Louise Glaum, who shook hands with the men and kissed all the ladies, and explained she had come from Perseus, who had gone down to earth and who couldn't bear to be separated from the lovely Andromeda, his wife, so, he being the one Olympian who hadn't divorced his spose, Miss Glaum felt she must help the good work along, and had consented to take Andromeda's place up here, even if Andromeda was only a bush-league goddess.

ANDROMEDA'S STOCK BOOSTERS

Jupiter took one look at Miss Glaum in her nifty little aviation suit, and promised to raise Andromeda to a place beside the other Olympian face-cards. Andromeda hastily packed a suitcase and departed, and then Louise drank the Gibson Gowland Plays at Life and in the Films.

Admits He's Lazy, but Says It's a Fine Art.

How He Walks Into Roles; His Al Fresco Personality.

BY EDWIN SCHALLERT.

He might be a sea-captain, or a Northumberland warrior of an ancient day, and he rolls his r's like a Scotch Highlander. He hails from Newcastle-on-the-Tyne, but has lived up and down the world from Klondike to Cape Town. He has done everything from digging ditches in the Northwest to hunting diamonds under the Southern Cross, and in Canada he came within an ace and a trey of being an oil capitalist—at least he thought so then. But—at the present time—he is one of the most promising comers among the picture character men—which goes to prove that a large and varied experience has its value in shaping the future of the man of the stage or the films, because it gives him an insight into every phase of existence.

When you saw Gibson Gowland on the screen in "Blind Husbands" you may not imagine that his fund of experience would have assumed such a varied texture as indicated in the foregoing. You would more probably have thought that he had spent all his life being a Tyrolean mountaineer—so remarkably does he seem to fit the desired type of Eric Stroheim's production.

Yet Gowland has never been within a thousand miles of the Tyrolean Alps. He has been in lots of other mountains, but to neither this nor anything tangible does he attribute his success in visualizing so clearly a rare character. If his travels and his experiences have aught to do with his achievements he himself is not conscious of it. They have become such an integral part of his personality, that they are not separate from himself.

Gowland declares that he has not even a preconception of what he is going to do when he is about to appear in front of the camera. "You know I am really lazy," he said. "That's why I like picture life. I learn't the art of being lazy down in South Africa. Many a man there makes his sovereign a day, and then spends the rest of the time in enjoyment.

"When I enter a scene I don't try to act. I just walk out on the stage and follow directions.

"I shall never forget my first experience with pictures four years ago. I never had any success, because they wanted people who could act. Whenever I was called on to play a part, and they came few and far between at that time, why they would say, 'Act man, act! Register some emotion!'"

It was not until the more modern methods were introduced into the picture game that Gowland succeeded in winning recognition. He is tremendously successful in expressing by the turn of an eyelash or other subtle means the most convincingly vivid points in characterisation. Take his trick of withdrawing the pipe from his mouth, spitting on the floor, smiling while like a good-natured watchdog, he observes the maneuvers of the Austrian officer in his effort to break the domestic peace of the American household in "Blind Husbands." Could anything achieved with such simple means be more effective?

IN "RIGHT OF WAY."

Gowland has recently portrayed some very striking roles—notably Joe Portugais in Metro's "The Right of Way," starring Bert Lytell. You remember Portugais—the murderer whom "Champagne Charlie" defended and who later rescued the brilliant attorney and took care of him after his injury. It is a great type in literature, and as portrayed by Gowland should be an equally striking personality of the screen.

Then, Gowland has also a big role in the Anita Stewart picture, "The Fighting Shepherdess," and other recent features. His largest opportunity will, however, probably be in "McTeague," by Frank Norris, for which Universal is now seeking to obtain the rights. In this

Dedicated to Better Homes

Furnishing the Home Involves Important Responsibility

When you furnish your home you create the environment that is going to leave its impress on your very nature, and on the lives of those who may share your home with you through the years to come.

The influence is subconscious, but it is there, and in your hands rests the responsibility of determining whether this influence shall be cultural and refining, or negative.

The suggestion is not implied that a properly furnished home must involve extravagances. The chief element in effective home furnishing is a thorough knowledge of that particular art, and the purpose of every home furnisher should be to accomplish the most desirable results possible within the limitations which circumstances only can determine.

We believe you will make best progress in this purpose by enlisting the co-operation of the "California." Our thought is not to merely sell furniture but to be definitely helpful to our patrons in creating maximum beauty and comfort in the home at minimum cost.

Men of long and high class training in home furnishing are here to give you the benefit of their experience and to fully and cordially co-operate with you regardless of the limitations or extent of your requirements.

Nepenthe cocktail which Antonio M. Bacchus had prepared for her.

But she didn't want to go to the picnic she said. Being a somewhat sensitive soul, she preferred solitude, and beside she was just dying to splash around in the Pompeiian baths, pick some flowers in the Elysian fields she had heard so much about, and do other things suited to her romantic nature. Normia Talmadge remarked icily she just bet Miss Glaum expected to land a god all to herself while the others were away, but Miss Glaum only gave her a pained smile, and so trouble was averted.

"The Titans may raise hell," said Jupiter to Louise Andromeda, "but don't mind 'em, dearie. They've been at it for ages, and they can't get loose!"

"And don't vamp 'em, either, dearie!" admonished Gloria Swanson Penelope sweetly, as the chariot procession pulled out.

No sooner was the lovely Louise Andromeda Glaum left alone, after splashing about in the Neptune Baths, Ltd., than she began to look about for something to read. The fan magazines didn't hold her long and, as the library seemed old-fashioned, she though she'd put on her hat and fly over to Parnassus, where she felt sure she could borrow the latest Elinor Glynn novel from the Muses. But just as she was seated in her airplane, which she had named the Jack Pickford because it was a swift bird, she heard a terrible tumult. It seemed made up of yells and groans and was horrible in an unearthly sort of way that made her blood run cold. She hopped out of the plane and looked about. Presently she located the sound off down one side of the mountain, the cries growing nearer as she ran down the slope.

Presently came a sepulchural voice close by.

"We're the Titans," it said hollowly.

"Yes?" she asked, her heart beating hard.

"Yes," repeated the hollow voice. "But you Janes got us boys down here all wrong. We ain't fierce nor nothing."

"Your grammar's fierce, anyhow," responded the star. Then, as the cries grew louder, "Well, boys, what can I do for you?"

"You mean, what can we do for you?" came back a voice that sounded strangely familiar, somehow. "I'll tell you what we can do for you. We can make you the greatest star in the world!"

"How do you make that out?" said Louise Andromeda, drawing back.

"Let us out and we'll tell you," said the same oily, persuasive voice.

"Makes a noise like a picture producer," said Miss Glaum to herself, yet loath to betray her trust.

"Oh, we're suffering something terrible here," groaned another voice, and a chorus of groans followed. "We've had prohibition here 3000 years, and—"

So pity overcame Andromeda, and, as there was a tap on a trap door, bolted on the outside, which lay at her feet, she pushed the rusty bolt aside.

Out burst four big giants, two of them picking her up and making a cradle for her with their hands, they headed straight for the top of the mountain.

Louise Andromeda was now overcome by thought of what she had done. Oh, if Bill H. Hercules were only here, she thought!

Arrived at the Lares and Penates Hotel, but not able to get inside, they set her down in their midst on the lawn and gathered about her, and then all at once she recognized them. They were none other, indeed, than Messrs. Sellsquick, Shoonberg, Telly and Lemmonly, picture impresarios, who had bribed the keeper of the Titans to let them exchange places with the giants, with the idea of breaking into Olympus!

"What's the idea, boys?" inquired the star in her sweetest tones, aware she must keep these big fellows good-natured, yet determined not to let them get away with anything.

SOME ENTERPRISE!

"Why," exclaimed Mr. Lemmonly, "we hope to get an option on Olympus, with a view to making it the greatest motion-picure plant in the world!"

"But it isn't in the world," declared Miss Glaum, horrified. "Why, this place is the most famous in all tradition It's—"

"Oh, I don't know," demurred Mr. Shoonberg. "I give you my word I never heard of the place till Mr. Telly told me about it. But if it's as old and run-down as that we probably can get it cheap!"

"I think we had better file on it right now!" said Mr. Lemmonly, leaping to his feet.

"I'll tell you, boys," said Louise Andromeda, whom we shall call Louise Ann for short, and who had to think quickly. "Let me show you over the place, first, and get you some lunch. But, first, have a nice splash in the Neptune Baths. I think Hercules and Mars and the other boys left bath towels there this morning. Of course, their bathing suits—" and she blushed. "First, however."—because, embarrassed or not embarrassed, Louise Ann was going right to the root of the thing, "what are you going to do for me?"

"I give you my word," said Mr. Shoonberg, "we make you the biggest star in the world, but you gotta stand by us."

That settled it. Louise Ann had no thought of betraying her friends; she merely wanted to find out how much in earnest these people were in grabbing off the picture studio concessions on Olympus. Also, from experience, she knew how much credence to place in a picture producer who said, right off that bat, "I'll make you the greatest star in the world!"

So she subtly flattered them, got them down to the Neptune Baths, gave them lunch, in other words saved the day and kept Olympus sacred to the gods. How did the brave girl do it? Let her tell it in her own words, as she did to Jupiter and the others when they came home that evening after the star-gods had returned, and the Titans had been hustled back to their infernal abode by Messrs. Bill S. Hercules, Bill R. Vulcan, Tommy M. Mars, and the others.

"How did you do it, Louise?" asked Jupiter.

"Miss Glaum, if you please," answered Louise Ann coolly.

"Oh, all right, answered Jupiter good-naturedly, "did you vamp 'em? What were they here for anyway?"

"Why, they told me they were here," said Louise Ann, "to try and find a place for a picture company that Adolph Zukor couldn't horn into!"

"And what did you do, brave girl?" demanded Jupiter.

"Why—why, dear old kid Jupiter," answered the brave and fair Louise Ann, "I—what do you think I got 'em to playing pinochle, and they forgot all about what they came for!"

BELGIAN AUTHOR FOILS THE SLEUTHS.

MAETERLINCK MAKES LECTURE APPEARANCE DESPITE LEGAL TANGLE.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 16.—Melodrama stalked over the green plush carpets of the Ritz Carlton yesterday. Detectives popped from behind the palms, and Maurice Maeterlinck, the hero, made a stealthy, but successful journey to the stage via the back elevator, cleared for the occasion of its usual hampers of table napkins.

So the "villains" were foiled, and the lecture went off according to schedule and the management of Bailli Horneman. The detectives had been engaged to protect Maeterlinck from the serving of an injunction by agents of the J. B. Pond Lyceum Bureau, for Mr. Horneman was sure that Maeterlinck was in a tangle over his contract with Mr. Pond and that "revenge" was being plotted.

The audience knew nothing of this. It was large and fashionable, the kind that attends musical afternoons at the Ritz. Its members were quite conscious of their ability to understand Maeterlinck's French without an interpreter, but quite unable to understand the "hists" and the "ah's" which reverberated through the corridors.

On the stage Maeterlinck was accompanied by a husky personage, who sat with folded arms and beetling brows, watching ferociously the movements of a dapper little man out in the green plush hinterlands who occasionally peeped through the curtains, but made no attempt to disturb the decorum of the proceedings. This was none other than James B. Pond himself.

If his pockets were bristling with legal documents he kept them to himself, and afterward he denied any intention of trying to break up the meeting.

Hamburger's Importations

—Importations—what glorious, delightful and beautiful things the very word conjures up—what visions of warm, gay things from Switzerland, from England, from Spain, from France, from Italy.

—Hamburger's foreign buyer has sent us the treasures of the world to enchant the stay-at-homes—he has sent the most beauty-satisfying things from the master-artists of Europe—for out of the crucible of war has risen a pure vision of perfect art—and this art is what Hamburger's brings to you—

—France has been most generous with her treasures, for her supply is very limited, but she has sent metal laces from her war-torn heart, Lunneville—and gowns from Paris! And bronzes, laces and marbles have been Italy's contribution, while linens and woolens from the British Isles invite the connoisseur—to Hamburger's.

—There is still more to come—for we maintain offices in London, Paris, Florence and Yokohama—and you'll not have to wait long as they are arriving daily!

Spain

—the land of mysticism and dreams, brings us Mantillas with delightful memories.

—Hand-wrought lace mantillas are en route from Spain! The national head-dress of the dark-eyed beauties of that land are coming to grace the costumes of the American beauties. One that was made for the Queen of Spain was duplicated for Hamburger's. It is a glorious thing created of ethereal Chantilly lace of cobweb fineness.

—And already here are lace scarfs—encrusted with vivid sequins so lovely as to bring an answering light to every woman's eyes that sees them.

—And capes and throws of light, airy marabou are fluffing themselves in the bright light of the glass cases on the Main Floor of Hamburger's! You can't miss seeing them as their beauty will compel your interest. The lace scarfs are priced 19.50 to 195.00.

—The marabou from 22.50 to 125.00.

(Hamburger's—Main Floor—Monday)

From the ruins of

Belgium

come Laces symbolic of that patient land!

—Laces so novel and lovely, of such intricate designing as to make us marvel as to the patience of those who have learned to do the "little things" well. Hamburger's finds itself supplied with laces of the rarest workmanship done with the true feeling of beauty.

—Italy, France and Switzerland also have given us of their plenty and have sent the most gorgeous, the most extravagant of their riches—laces of copper, gold and silver. You will revel in their glittering fairy-like beauty. They are creating quite a furore in Europe and the master designers are using them on the gowns with the most lavish abandon. Prices 7.50 to 25.00 a yard.

(Hamburger's—Main Floor—Monday)

"Anklets"

—Worn over, or under, the lace-like silk stockings just as you prefer—but cunning! —indeed they are.

—Of course, if you'd rather, you may fasten these small black ribbon anklets, glinting with buckles of white stone, far up on a rounded arm quite as effectively. They wear them either way in Paris and we assure you that they are very fetching.

—We have them in our Jewelry Section and you may see them any time you wish.

Gowns from France always have had an enchantment, a glamour for the purely feminine!

—And these importations have lost none of their power to allure the woman-heart as Hamburger's can attest. It took the necromancy of Premet, Callot, Jenny, Doucet and many others to create these gowns of memorable charm—these suits and wraps.

—And it must have been subtle witchery that wove a fairy-like evening gown that we caught a glimpse of—or can we call such a creation "a gown"—for 'tis made of white beads, strands and garlands of them, until a mere mortal is lost in a maze of crystal! And the decollette bodice is fashioned of a wide strip of scintillating sequins held by bands to slim shoulders of the debutante that wears it.

—And have you seen the "Gaby Deslys" gown of gold? It is a golden dream of lacy clouds.

—Really you must see them if you haven't—for the costumes that were brought direct from the fashion mart of the world—Paris—are enthralling, there is no other word to express the impression they make on one. And to think that one can step into Hamburger's and see them all is most unusual—you can though any time you wish. Gowns and suits and evening wraps!

(Hamburger's—Second Floor—Monday)

to the last extreme are the blouses of Satin, Georgette and Linen.

—The most happily inspired blouses are these, for whether brief or long, they provoke the most attentive interest. Who could possibly resist a black Georgette embroidered in huge silver medallions and made in such a fashion that it puzzles the most learned of those versed in the ways of blouses! And who wouldn't succumb to the charms of a raspberry satin embroidered in gold, —Or a casaque of blue charmeuse squared off in a delightful checker-boardy way, with wool in colors of jadette, coral, gray and blue.

—Some may prefer those exquisite batiste and linen blouses with their dainty touches of hand work! But one could choose with strict impartiality, blindly, of these imports and find that they had a veritable treasure priced anywhere from 17.50 to 125.00.

(Hamburger's—Second Floor—Monday)

The last word— Sweaters

—It would take one with the gift of a bard to describe these sweaters that our buyer sent from France, England and Switzerland! Slip-overs and clever coat styles priced from 35.00 to 150.00! Prices do not mean much, for they cannot give you any idea of the tinsel weaves of the silks and the fiber fabrics of which they are created.

—One of canary rope silk laces up the side with amber cords in a most intriguing way—another of blue silk will catch your eye because of its beauty and the unusualness of the chenille embroidery that finds itself wandering in lovely patterns over most of the sweater.

—Would that we had pages to tell you of these novel sweaters from Paris—but, you see, we have so much to tell you of, that we must limit ourselves.

(Hamburger's—Second Floor—Monday)

Slave Bracelets

—When Cleopatra went forth to enchant she may have worn a trifle of just such weighty import as one of these galalith bracelets carved with scarabs of Egyptian fame, or maybe one of simple colorful smoothness.

—Anyway, Hamburger's has these bracelets and charmed necklaces that are like those worn by the enchantresses of old. They are priced from 2.95 to 15.00 and are indescribably original.

(Hamburger's—Main Floor—Monday)

Gloves from Grenoble

—The softest of mousquetaire gloves are here in white, champagne, mode, mole, gray and brown, and in the sixteen-button length one may choose white and black also.

—So many soft little kid's skins went to make these fashionable gloves that every woman needs for her short-sleeved gowns.

(Hamburger's—Main Floor—Monday)

French Mouchoirs

—Very chic! Silk or lawn ones—handkerchiefs that are uniquely French are printed with designs made by well-known French artists.

—And these artists did not follow the old, accepted and bromidic designs of flowers and vines, but struck boldly out and cajoled automobile parties and Egyptian dancers to lend their aid to the novelty "mouchoirs." Also they took the Futurist's colors and sprinkled many of the handkerchiefs generously. But they are good-looking and clever there is no gainsaying that fact, and the price is anywhere from 20c to 5.00.

—Of course the sheer linen, Swiss and real lace handkerchiefs are priced up to 35.00.

(Hamburger's—Main Floor—Monday)

Lingerie

Dreams of Imagination

Indeed they are! Could one describe in cold words the new and bewitching loveliness that is imported from France in every luxurious chemise, gown, and combination suit that we are showing in the Lingerie Shop!

The way of one entrancing "set" of coral crepe de chine is strewn with gold embroidery and the wealth of "ohs" and "ahs" that greeted its advent would immediately acclaim it a French creation.

Chemise and gowns of cobwebby linen and embroidery—of lace and of chiffon. Pajamas of pink chiffon smothered in clouds of airy black lace and trimmed with puffs of ostrich—can you imagine undies afluff with ostrich—this set has it though, marvel as you will — even the saucy boudoir cap that goes with it is attired to conquer with whirls of ostrich.

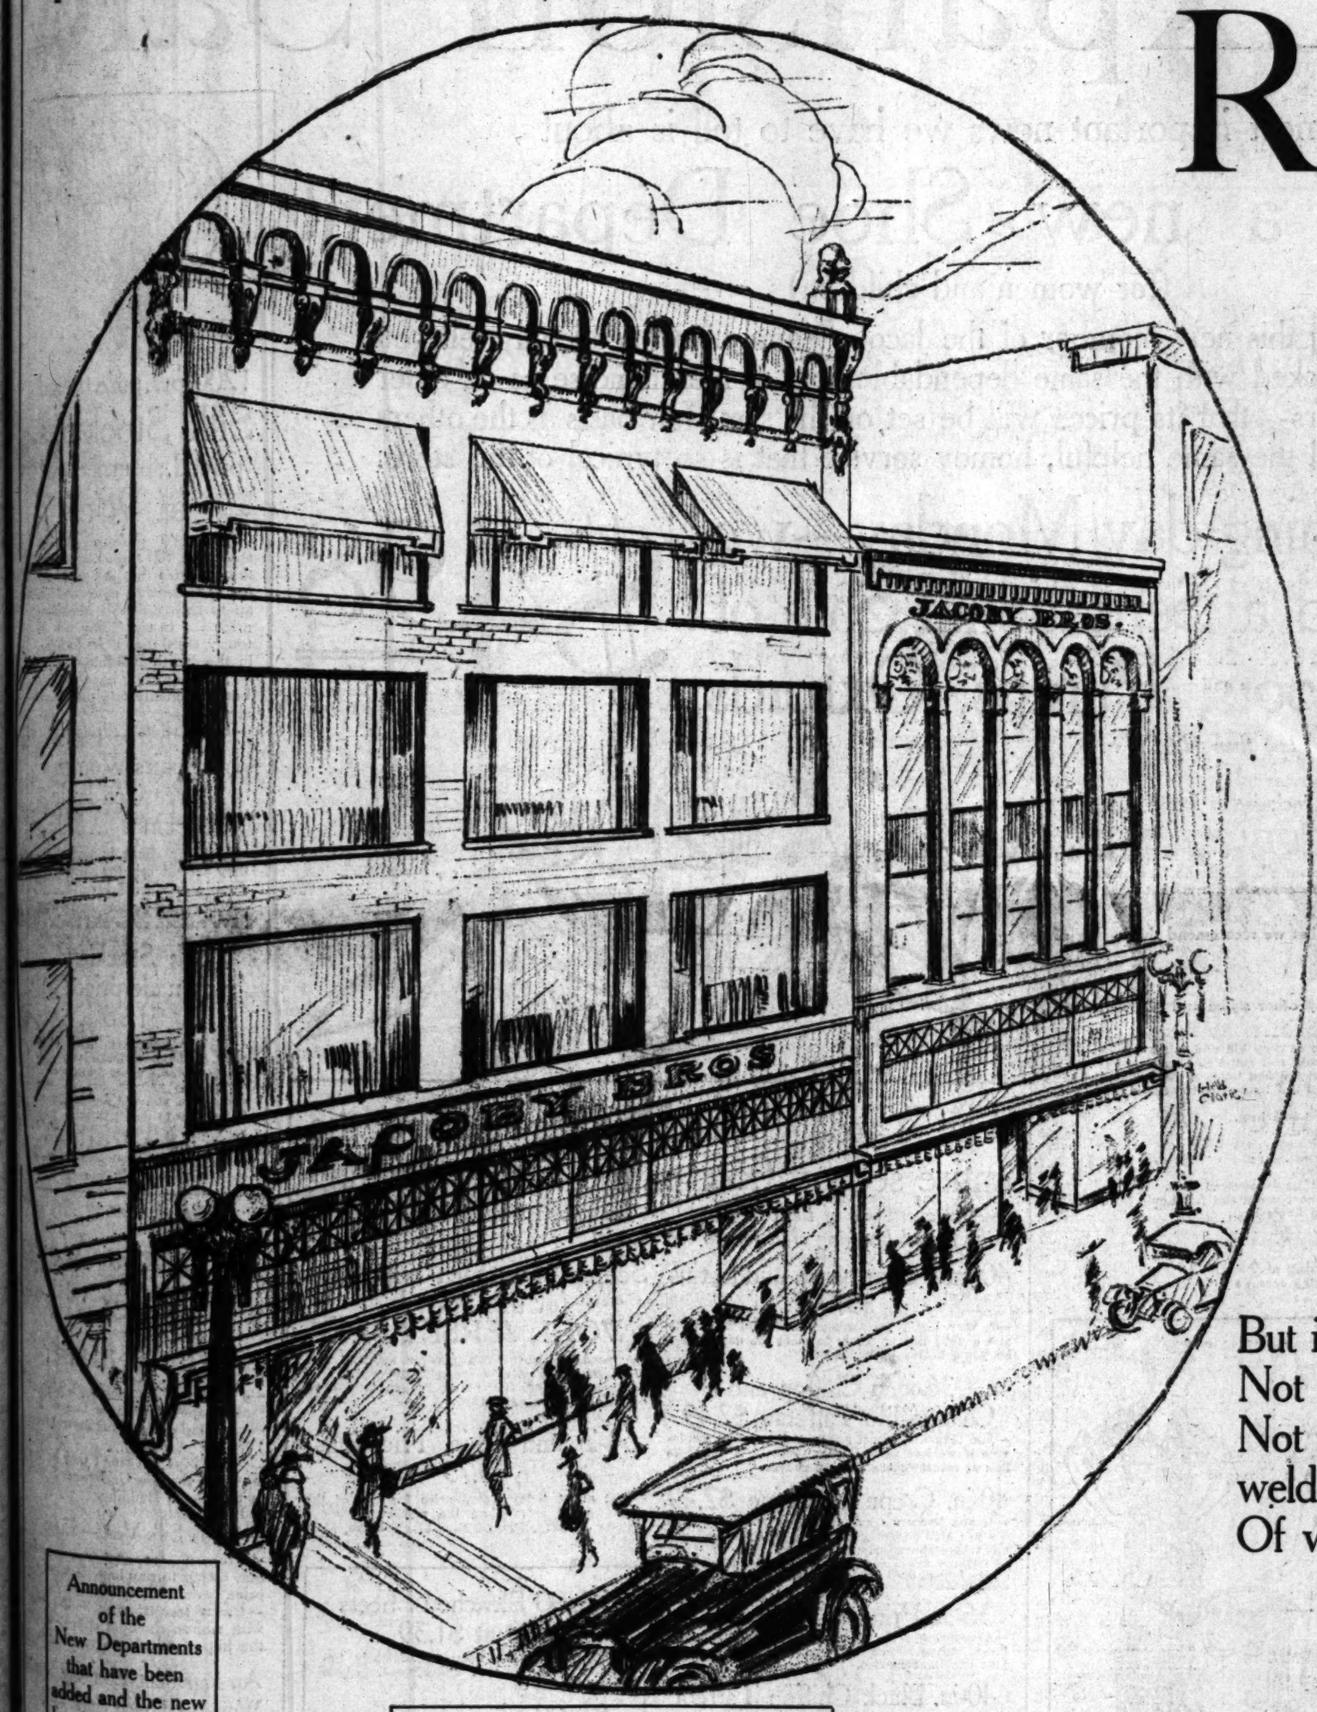
Today—just eighteen days after we took over the building—(which is from now on to be known as our "North Building")—we are proud to announce that construction work is practically complete—and that we will be—



Ready

—to open the doors of this "new and greater Jacoby's" Monday morning at 9 o'clock.

—This new building gives us nearly forty thousand square feet of selling space in addition to our present store and it brings our Broadway frontage up to one hundred and twenty feet—with our Arcades we now have approximately two hundred and sixty feet of display windows—

But it is not the building, new or old—
Not the window frontage—
Not the record time in which we welded these buildings together—
Of which we are so proudful—

BUT RATHER

—it is our merchandise—
—and our fair prices—
—and our service—

Announcement of the New Departments that have been added and the new location of the other departments will be found on the next page!

The new and greater JACOBY'S
ON BROADWAY
Between Third and Fourth

And it has been this trinity of merchandise and fair prices and service that has won such legions of friends that our business is making consistent increases of approximately 100%—

We look upon the opening of this new building as the most auspicious event in our store's history and we have planned a mighty selling event to begin Monday—that is quite in keeping with its importance! Further particulars on the following pages!

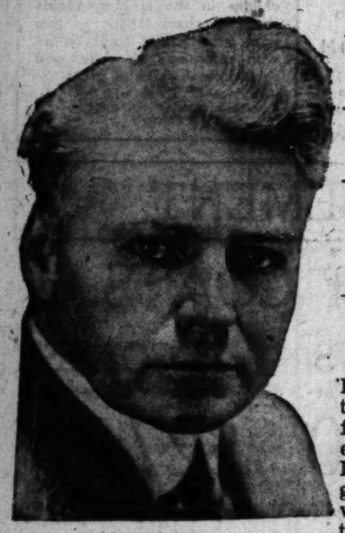
Beauty in Artificial Teeth



—nature's beauty is the inspiration of art which the masters have endeavored to reproduce through all ages.

—beauty is the outward expression of refinement and comes to those who want and appreciate it.

—by Dr. Foster's System of Specialists cooperating, every branch of dentistry is scientifically handled from our X-Ray department, which is the best, to our laboratory, which is most complete.

—every piece of work is designed and finished in my offices and for you individually, completely harmonizing with your face, features and temperament.

Dr. Foster's restoration Gold Plate is the best of its kind, giving back the fullness to the cheek and youthful expression to the mouth and lips! Is cool, non-irritating, eliminating the gradual wasting away of the tissues, which give that worn expression to the face.

Being made of special gold, it retains its beauty of polish and absolute cleanliness—is a lifetime investment at a very nominal fee.

Scientific Plate Construction

Absolutely PAINLESS Methods

Aluminum plates are extremely desirable, being light, cool and fitting more snugly than it is possible to fit the ordinary rubber plate.

Rubber makes an excellent temporary plate, but on account of its porosity soon becomes saturated with food, is filthy and ill smelling. Owing to the large percentage of dangerous mercury salts or equally dangerous coal tar dyes, rubber is poisonous to the tissues. A month under a rubber plate is never in its normal healthy condition.

You do not need to wear plates if you have a few good teeth remaining. The Foster Replacement is distinguished for mechanical accuracy, extending as it does every advantage of a perfect set of teeth.

Brooches of Surpassing Elegance

RIO DE JANEIRO, (Brazil) Jan. 2.—Miss Laurita Pessoa, daughter of the President of Brazil, has just received from Queen Elizabeth of the Belgians a brooch of pearls and diamonds with the monograms of King Albert and Queen Elizabeth in gold and sapphires, the whole surmounted by a small royal crown of silver and diamonds.

THE visit to Los Angeles of Queen Elizabeth, gracious ruler of the Belgians, ever will be pleasantly remembered by all. At that time the Queen was presented with a wonderful gold vanity, made especially for her by Brock and Company.

In connection with the Queen's gift of a pearl and diamond brooch Brock and Company are pleased to call attention to their wonderful brooches now on display, many new ones of exquisite design having just come from our own shops.

We extend a cordial invitation to you to visit this Broadway house of jewels and view the new masterpieces in artistic gem set brooches—a collection of surpassing elegance.

On Friday evening, January 9, a Leap Year masquerade party was given in I.O.O.F. Hall. On this occasion the usual order of things was reversed. The ladies, carrying out the Leap Year idea, did the "asking" during the evening, permitting the men only a few gentlemen's choice dances. Dancing started promptly at 8:30 o'clock, with a grand march. Much variety was in the costuming. None but masquers were allowed on the floor until 10:30. Gentlemen were asked to present their invitations at the door, as admission for them was by card.

The Saturday Afternoon Club celebrated this week its sixteenth birthday anniversary—on January 10. This included informal reminiscent talks by Mrs. Ida T. Easy Way to Keep Your Hair in Curl

If you have trouble keeping your hair in curl, you'll do well to try plain liquid silmerine. Apply a little at night with a clean tooth brush, drawing this down the full length of the hair from root to tip. The hair will dry in the prettiest waves and curls that you can arrange, and the effect will appear altogether natural. Instead of that dull, dried-out look which the heated iron gives, the hair will be bright, lustrous and beautiful.

Liquid silmerine is of course perfectly harmless to hair and scalp, and is neither greasy nor gummy. If you will get a few ounces from your druggist you will find it quite inexpensive to use.—[Advertisement.

The NEWS about This "HOUSE OF BETTER HOME-MAKING" is Real LIFE!

IF IT'S SERVICE you want please call upon the people whose responsibility it is to see that you GET it—

BARKER BROS.' SERVICE DEPARTMENT!

—if all the stories of Barker Bros.'—all the "adventures in better home-making" that are lived each week by the nearly fifteen hundred persons in this organization—and all the aspirations and the triumphs of the families whose homes they help—could be told truly, week by week, it would be news full of happiness, full of victories, and full, this month particularly, of ECONOMIES! For at Barker Bros., January, 1920, is being celebrated as—

A MONTH OF MANY SAVINGS!

THE delights of living a ... hours' ride from the crowded city are multiplied by adding to the charms of your home through—

BARKER BROS.' MAIL ORDER SERVICE!

LAST NIGHT WE SAW "RADIANT WAY" burst forth on Broadway.

The stores, with their glistening windows, sparkled in the rays of these magnificently beautiful and brilliant new street lights.

Increased illumination is a satisfaction when there is everything to be proud of and nothing to hide.

Broadway is not the only thoroughfare that has put up strong and searching lights. All the highways of Life and Business have bright rays bent upon them, and it is stimulating to know that activities are "in the open" during these reconstruction days.

There is a refreshing, wholesome spirit of sincerity pervading all the actions of women and men and stores whose MOTIVES are broad and big and honest.

And such persons and such stores always improve upon acquaintance, as the light of your understanding penetrates their "front" and illumines the chamber of their heart and soul.

(Signed) W. A. Barker.

(Signed) Chas. H. Barker

New things are being done here — new ideas are being crystallized into exhibits — new goods are flooding our floors with fascination — new ideals are inspiring the hearts of our salespersons (who prefer to be thought of as "assistant buyers," and who really are just that to our customers.)

There is very much of helpfulness and interest to be gained from a trip about the store this week — and, of course, the MANY SAVINGS are shedding a particularly brilliant, beckoning beacon-light that's all their own and certainly most alluring at this time. Please let us welcome you!

Depending upon Refinement Not Riches for its field of popularity in Los Angeles, this gracious Queen Anne Dining Table has come to Barker Bros. Not but what it is thoroughly worthy to stand and hold its charming own among the proud possessions of a wealthy home, but Croesus can buy anything and it is unusual for those less favored financially but fully as fond of refinement in their furniture to find a Dining Table so attractive and so fine—at an emphatic price saving.

That's why we say this Table will look to Refinement and not to Riches for its appreciation. Brown mahogany, antique mahogany, red mahogany or walnut finish—ample size—extendable to six or eight feet in length. Dining Chairs in two patterns to match, cane or wood backs, also substantially underpriced.

SAVINGS STILL THIS WEEK UPON ABOUT 30 TEA WAGONS — BROWN MAHOGANY, KENILWORTH OAK AND FUMED OAK FINISHES

Sometimes a Change of Furniture Means Youth and Pep

to a whole houseful of folks!

If the family is tired of the same old sideboard, same old chairs, some old everything that has been in your home for years, wouldn't it cheer them up to have a change—and wouldn't it, perhaps, mean happiness and hope to you, the home-maker?

Barker Bros.' EXCHANGE AND BARGAIN BASEMENT will be glad to help you weed out the things that need to be apologized for and to credit the value of these articles to your account, so that the new furnishings with which you replace the old will not be costly.

Prompt response to your phone call—Pico 1840 or 10423.

The Art and Gift Gallery Proclaims Its Entire Stock at Savings!

(Mezzanine Floor)

EVERY LAMP and every Shade is discounted generously, 10 to 33⅓ per cent. Broadly speaking, the finer the Lamp the larger the saving—so it's a golden opportunity to obtain a "lamp de luxe" to light up that sumptuous rug or queenly cabinet of which your home is so particularly proud.

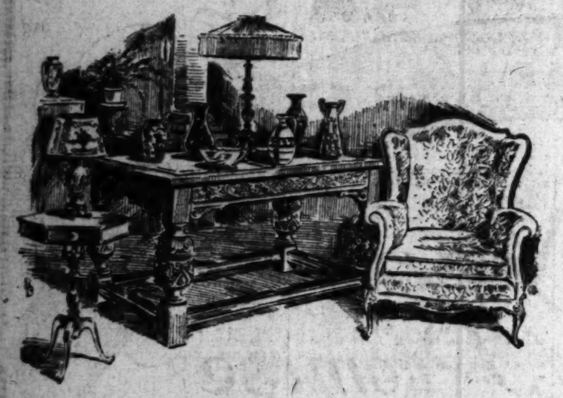
But all Lamps are included, at all prices, and important among them are many stunning Torcheres and Floor-Lanterns, carved, polychromed or wrought in iron, as well as Bridge Lamps and the friendly three-quarter-height Reading Lamps (like the sketch above).

EVEN ALL OUR VERY NEWEST SHADES—a whole shipment of smart, popularly-priced creations are included in marked reductions. Example: A fully shirred Shade of suitable floor lamp size, has the new flat, dome shape, double fringe, a complete "repertoire" of colors, and a present price of only $22.50

FRAMED PICTURES and PHOTO FRAMES are shown in satisfying assortments at 10 to 50 per cent. off. And prices are rising—so you'd better bring your pictures to be framed THIS WEEK! If you're interested in owning original PAINTINGS, you'll be thrilled with the news that we are closing out most of our fine collection at HALF PRICE.

And MIRRORS—almost as scarce as precious stones these days—are boasting becomingly of 10 per cent. reductions, although every one of them is worth a third more than the regular price marked upon it.

THE January Readjustment of Stocks in the Art and Gift Department will soon be completed—this Month of Many Savings is moving swiftly in the direction of February! But meanwhile, please remember, EVERYTHING in this department is priced exceptionally low. Indeed, so warm has been the response of beauty-lovers, that we have been inspired to include even the extremely NEW goods—arrived since Christmas—and so you'll find the latest ideas in Lamps and Objects of Art at decided discounts upon the Mezzanine Floor—this week!



Sparks from the Rainbow and an Artist's Soul

—animate the shimmering Porcelains that are among the rich wares offered now at savings in Barker Bros.' "Beautiful Salon."

Color is vibrant, and true beauty—always the result of an artist's instinct—is most apparent in the Lamps displaying discounts here.

If you crave a Vase, a Lustre Bowl, a quaint Picture in an imported Italian frame, a piece of fine Decorative Furniture—anything sincerely lovely for your home—come and see if it is not specially priced on our Fourth Floor this week!

Fitting Out the Floors

is an operation that may be one of the easiest and pleasantest parts of your home-furnishings—or the hardest and most trying.

The important thing about buying Rugs and Carpets is to choose them from a stock sufficiently diverse to make it actually possible to find exactly the right style and shade and pattern for every floor—and then you're satisfied, and your furniture looks its best and your home expresses you.

We're sure you will enjoy picking out your new Floor-Coverings at Barker Bros.' this week.

Drapery Fabrics to Put Sunshine and a Garden Into Your Home ---at Savings!

A few window-lengths of Cretonne to replace the strips now faded in the breakfast room.

—Some sheer, sun-coaxing scrim or voile with cheery-colored border to make the bedroom windows smile all year, in any weather.

—Sundours for new side-draperies in the living room—perhaps several lovely new Cushions to make beauty in the boudoir and add artistic luxury to the davenport—or maybe a richly-toned new Table Runner and a smart Couch Cover in some harmonizing shade.

—These are a few of the ideas suggested by the savings being offered in the Drapery Section now.

If you love the hominess of home, you'll have a good time browsing 'mid the attractive curtainings and cushions, and all the pretty fabrics underpriced at Barker Bros.'—this glad week.

Imagine It YOUR Home

It won't be hard to imagine that the MODEL BETTER HOME (Second Floor) at Barker Bros.' is your own, because it is so obviously a LIVED-IN sort of home, with cozy, loving home-touches to soften the severity that an irreproachably correct pattern-home might otherwise possess.

All the rooms and settings at Barker Bros.' are yours—made for you and always ready to "invite you in"; The two homes on the fourth floor are being redecorated. We shall soon announce their readiness to "receive" again.

Snappy Lines and a Fine Quality of Reed are the points that strike you upon "first glance" at the new STURGIS WICKER BABY CARRIAGES that have just arrived in Barker Bros.' Children's Store.

Then you notice the smart color-effects — the new cafe-au-lait shade with harmonizing brocade and corduroy upholstering—old ivory carriages with maroon or Alice blue cushions—French gray, frosted blue and other finishes.

And you scrutinize and approve the easily-adjustable backs, the new Sturgis wheel-lock, the new attachment for reversing the hood by foot-operation, etc., etc.

But through all and above all is your consciousness of the inimitable luxury and soothing comfort of the matchless Sturgis springs—and so you decide that your baby's royal chariot shall be a Sturgis Carriage, and Baby wins!

Watching the Windows

at Barker Bros.' has come to be a habit with a great many persons in reading the newspaper or looking over the magazines to see what's interesting and new.

The rooms that are created within our windows must measure up to ... liberal—each room must be a PICTURE and each room must look like a HOME.

If you have any favorite type of room which you'd like to see furnished, call one of Barker Bros.' windows, then tell us and we'll try to do it for you.

Visions of Your Bedroom "As It Could Be"

will be not only excited, but economically satisfied at Barker Bros.' this week!

An encouraging variety of complete Bedroom Suites will show you prices that are pleasantly lowered from former figures, and there are odd pieces also upon which you may realize worth-while savings—NOW.

Once you catch a vision of your bedroom as it could be, we think it will flutter temptingly before you until you come and see how beautifully such dreams come true at Barker Bros.'

There's Oratory in the Name "Barker Bros.' Own-Make Mattresses!"

It's a name eloquent with the most potent appeal that can be made to normal human beings—the appeal of SLEEP.

It's a name that rings with the clear, sounding note of Cleanliness and vibrates with the luring cadences of Comfort.

And so the man or woman who speaks feelingly of Barker Bros.' Own-Make Mattresses is an orator, and not even the attractive attribute of Economy is needed to insure the effect of such a speech upon an understanding audience.

But just now—to be specific, during this MONTH OF MANY SAVINGS—there are economies to be enjoyed in Barker Bros.' Mattresses (consisting chiefly of some samples that are being replaced.)

Please come and "talk sleep" with our experts this week!

The Latest and Greatest of His One Hundred Thousand Dollar Comedies

MANY THRILLS FOR FILM FANS.

Unusual Variety of Plays on Local Screen.

Little Mary in "Pollyanna;" "Everywoman" to Show.

"Behind the Door" and "In Old Kentucky" Billed.

The sightseer on the cinema boulevard will have little difficulty in picking and choosing a view to suit his fancy this week, for everything from the deadly serious to riotous comedy is to be offered. A number of very unusual and picturesque attractions, especially, will command attention. One of these will be "Behind the Door," in which Hobart Bosworth plays the big role; another will be the spectacle "Everywoman," which is to have its first showing locally. Then for glad romance nothing will perhaps exceed in interest Mary Pickford's "Pollyanna." "Toby's Bow," with Tom Moore, is also turned in the lighter mood of comedy-drama. Owen Moore is to be seen at another theater in "Piccadilly Jim," a play of the gayer fabric.

One of the chief comedy attractions will be Douglas MacLean and Doris May, who won fame in "Twenty-three and a Half Hours Leave," in their latest release, "What's Your Husband Doing?"

Two dramas of a woman's quandary over the effects of her past will be "Should a Woman Tell?" starring Alice Lake, and "The Day She Paid," with Francelia Billington. Thrills will be furnished by H. B. Warner in "The Pagan God" and Tom Mix in "The Heart of Texas Ryan," which latter feature will be supplemented by a miniature girl and music show.

Among the continuations of the week will be "Blind Husbands" and "In Old Kentucky," with Anita Stewart.

Grauman's.

Gouverneur Morris's dramatic story, "Behind the Door," a Thomas H. Ince production with Hobart Bosworth in the leading role will be shown at Grauman's Theater, beginning tomorrow. It is said to be a soul-stirring picture in the tenseness of its situations.

The personality of Mr. Bosworth was never before presented so forcefully as in this drama of a man who loves his enemies, and whose gentleness is his dominant characteristic. Capt. Krug's traits are said to be brought out so convincingly by Mr. Bosworth, that when the climax of the story is reached, in which the mild-natured seaman finds the human fiend who has stolen his wife a contrast is achieved as a complete metamorphosis takes place in the man and he wreaks a vengeance on the wife-thief that is positively startling.

The directing of the picture was done by J. V. Willatt, the supporting cast includes Janes Novak, Wallace Beery, James Gordon, Dick Wain, J. P. Lockney, Gibson Gowland and Otto Hoffman. Mr. Bosworth will personally appear on the stage it is announced, in a dramatic scene to "Behind the Door," which, with other added attractions, will complete the programme.

California.

"Toby's Bow," starring Tom Moore, will be the comedy-drama feature at the California Theater, opening today. This Goldwyn production is an adaptation from the stage success by John Traintor Foote and it is said to be one of the finest vehicles ever accorded Mr. Moore.

The story shows the folly of resting on laurels won by one clever piece of work, and the indolent habits that usually follow. It depicts the frivolous fads of the Greenwich Village Bohemian set in New York in a realistic manner, later revealing in charming contrast, the sweet simplicity and beauty of an old southern plantation.

The cast supporting comprises Doris Pawn, who plays the lead opposite Mr. Moore, Arthur Housman, Augusta Phillips, Macey Harlam, Nick Cogley, Catherine Wallace, Violet Schram and Ruby La Fayette.

An exceptional programme is announced as surrounding the feature. The numbers include selection from "Maytime," as an overture, by the California Concert Orchestra; a semi-classical cycle, sung by Myrtle Pryibil Colby, soprano, and Raymond Harmon, tenor; "In a Rose Garden," an innovation in stage production, introducing novel scenic and lighting effects; a Prizma color subject; Topical Magazine and Review; "Illiterate Digest," by Will Rogers, and Harold Lloyd in his comedy, "From Hand to Mouth."

Clune's Auditorium.

Mary Pickford in "Pollyanna," the screen adaptation of Eleanor H. Porter's novel, is announced as the attraction for Clune's Auditorium, starting tomorrow.

"Pollyanna" is all about a little "glad" girl, whose sunny philosophy of life makes you find something to be joyous about, something that might have been worse, no matter what the trials and tribulations. A story of unusual sweetness and charm, it has in it so much of humor and pathos that besides being fascinating, it is delightfully wholesome and refreshingly appealing.

"Pollyanna" is Miss Pickford's first "Big Four" release, and because of this, every effort has been used to make the picture a bigger and better one than anything in which this winsome star has ever yet done, it is stated.

In the cast supporting Miss Pickford in "Pollyanna," the juvenile lead is played by Howard Ralston, who has the role of Jimmie Bean, William Courtleigh is Mr. Pendleton, the principal feminine supporting part is taken by Katherine Griffith, while Helen Jerome Eddy is seen in the role of Nancy.

Grauman's Rialto.

Everybody has heard of "Everywoman;" it was hailed as something wonderfully new on the American stage when first produced in New York eight years ago, and it has been played continuously on the road since that time. The screen version is to be the attraction gracing the silversheet of Grauman's Rialto Theater beginning tomorrow.

However great as its popularity as spoken drama has been, the screen, it is said, has brought out the entertaining and spectacular values of "Everywoman" to the full. Lavish beauty is declared to be the keynote of the picture.

The leading role was played by Violet Heming, prominent in such stage successes as "Turn to the Right" and "Under Cover." Miss Heming won new laurels recently in "Three Faces East," one of the outstanding hits of the 1918 season in New York.

The story deals with the experiences of a young and beautiful girl who is wooed at a society bazaar by a millionaire, an actor and a young and struggling physician; the picture merges into symbolism after she is given varied advice by her girl friends. She becomes Everywoman. Her companions are Conscience, Youth, Beauty and Modesty. Flattery appears and urges Everywoman to enter the stage of life and seek his master, "King Love the First." She accepts the offer and becomes a star overnight. Wooed by Passion, whom she mistakes for Love, she succumbs only to discover her error, the end of her adventure in life being eventually consummated in a remarkable way.

The cast of "Everywoman" includes Theodore Roberts, Wanda Hawley, Monte Blue, Clara Horton, Margaret Loomis, Mildred Reardon, Edyth Chapman, Bebe Daniels, Irving Cummings, James Neill, Raymond Hatton, Lucien Littlefield, Noah Beery, Jay Dwiggins, Tully Marshall, Robert Brower and many beautiful women.

A programme of other events will also be proffered in addition to the feature picture.

Miller's.

Alice Lake heads the cast of the Screen Classics, Inc., all-star photoplay "Should a Woman Tell," from the story by Finis Fox, which will be shown at Miller's Theater beginning today. As the title implies, the picture is a dramatic depiction of the struggle within a woman's heart between her desire to confess her whole past to the man she loves and her fear that such confession may cost her his adoration. It presents one of the most perplexing and at the same time most human vital problems a woman is called upon to face.

A vividly portrayed shipwreck is but one of the stirring scenes.

A breezy two-reel comedy is an added attraction and the latest news weekly will complete the bill.

Palace.

"The Pagan God," with H. B. Warner, star of screen and stage, in the part of an American secret service agent, serving his country's interests in China at the time of the Boxer rebellion, will be the feature at the Palace, beginning today. The story is thrilling in its dramatic situations and has a beautiful love story woven into its thread, it is said. Settings of beauty and oriental splendors are used. The cast supporting Mr. Warner includes Marguerite de la Motte, a Los Angeles girl, and Carmen Phillips, among others.

A number of short subjects of timely interest are also on the programme.

Superba.

"Blind Husbands," Erik Stroheim's vigorous drama of the Tyrolean Alps, will enter its second week at the Superba today. Mr. Stroheim is the author, star and director of the production. He plays the part of a Continental officer, who visits a mountain resort seeking diversion. The play carries the spectator through a strong plot, unfolded amid the inspiring grandeur of rugged mountain tops.

Symphony.

A big double bill, in which patrons of the Symphony will see and hear a miniature musical comedy and behold a picture play with genuine human interest, will commence today. Jack Roberts's Leap Year Girls, in a revue with songs and dances, will make their premier bow to a Los Angeles audience.

For the picture offering the Symphony has selected Tom Mix in "The Heart of Texas Ryan."

The efforts of the Symphony management, it is stated, have been directed toward providing a bill that is considerably out of the ordinary.

Tally's Kinema.

Anita Stewart, in Louis B. Mayer's production of C. T. Dazey's "In Old Kentucky," the American classic, has proven such a sensation that T. L. Tally announces the second week at the Kinema, starting today. The picture was directed by Marshall Neilan from the scenario by Tom J. Geraghty.

"In Old Kentucky" is one of the most tense and gripping dramas, and with it all has just the proper amount of comedy relief to make it doubly enjoyable, it is stated.

Anita Stewart in the star role is alluring and convincing by turns. In the highest moments she shows herself capable of a dramatic passion that places her among our foremost screen stars. Ed. Connelly as Col. Doolittle is a veritable hit. Mahlon Hamilton, Adele Farrington, Edward Cexon, Charles Arling, Marcia Manon, Frank Duffy and John Curtis are exceptionally well cast.

A programme of novelty and melody is declared to be in keeping with the standard of the attraction. As regards the special prologue, entitled "Kentucky Koons," he deserves unusual praise.

Victory.

"The Day She Paid," taken from Fannie Hurst's story of "Oats for the Woman," and starring Francelia Billington, is to be the offering at the Victory, commencing today. The play revolves around Marian Lane, portrayed by Miss Billington, a pretty clothing model, who marries the man she loves, but does not tell him of her relations with her former employer. When the man who caused her downfall becomes infatuated with her stepdaughter, Marian, in order to save the girl the mother is forced to tell the husband of her own part.

Charles Clary plays opposite Miss Billington and the supporting cast is said to be unusually strong.

Alhambra.

Owen Moore in "Piccadilly Jim," a story of the bright lights, is the show at the Alhambra, starting today. The scenario was written by P. G. Wodehouse.

After he filmed the story Moore said he was ready to return to the quiet and simple life, pronto.

"I thought 'Piccadilly Jim,' instead of being my latest play, would be my last," said Mr. Moore, in speaking of his experience while making the picture. "I actually lived in cafes and jazz parlors and near-beer saloons and vaudeville shows. My life was one continual round of excitement—they would keep me up until 2 a.m. shooting the wild night life and have me out at 7 o'clock in the morning doing interiors. I thought I knew a good deal about the man-about-town sort of thing, but this 'Piccadilly Jim' had me faded."

Owen Moore is supported by Zeena Keefe, the ingenue in the play. Others in the cast are George Bunny, brother of the famous John Bunny; William Hase, Doris Mill Adams, Alfred Hickman and "Harlem Tommy" Murphy. The picture will be shown for only one week, it is announced, as the management booked Rex Beach's latest picture, "The Vengeance of Durand," the following week. On the same programme with "Piccadilly Jim" will be Charlie Chaplin in his comedy, "The Floorwalker."

Clune's Broadway.

The first picture co-starring the two talented young people, Doris May and Douglas MacLean, was "Twenty-three and a Half Hours Leave," and was hailed throughout the country as the "best comedy of the year." "What's Your Husband Doing?" their second, will be the Clune's Broadway attraction, beginning today.

The picture is screen version of George V. Hobart's stage farce of the same name, which was a hit on Broadway not so long ago. The story concerns a newlywed wife, played by Doris May, who is suspicious of the scented notes received by her husband every morning, bearing the crest of a roadside resort of sporting character, Honeysuckle Inn. She decides to consult a lawyer and solicit his aid in her attempt to discover what attraction Honeysuckle Inn holds for her husband. The jovial lawyer finally agrees to go with her to the inn and spy on young husband. Then develops a merry mix-up at the roadhouse, with amusing complications galore and a big police raid at the last minute.

Augmenting the features will be a new Burton Holmes travelogue, "Push Car Trails in Formosa," Clune's topical news events and musical solos by Stella Landon.

Tally's Broadway.

Mary Pickford in her play, "Heart o' the Hills," adapted from the novel of the same name by John Fox, Jr., will have a reshowing, beginning tomorrow, at Tally's Broadway.

"Heart o' the Hills" is the comedy romance of a little mountain girl fighting her battles for freedom and happiness. The entire country has declared this Pickford play as a topnotcher.

Miss Pickford is supported by Sam de Grasse, Betty Bouton, Jack Gilbert and many others. Sidney Franklin directed the picture, with Charles Rosher, Van Dyke of the camera, officiating as photographer. Bernard McConville adapted the scenario.

Louise Glaum, in Louis Joseph Vance's thrilling melodrama, "The Lone Wolf's Daughter," will be seen for the last times today.

Tally's Kinema.

"In Old Kentucky," in which Anita Stewart is starred, will enter its second week, today, at Tally's Kinema. The critics have praised the charming star and the production. Miss Stewart, it has been stated, has rarely, if ever, been seen to better advantage, and she is being supported by an exceptional cast.

The same show will accompany

BOSWORTH DOES HEROIC STUNTS.

Many Episodes of Daring in "Behind the Door."

Authenticity Features the Submarine Scenes.

Happenings Along the Stage and Screen Rialto.

Many thrilling submarine and battleship scenes were enacted in Gouverneur Morris's "Behind the Door," the picture in which Hobart Bosworth is to star, at Grauman's, this week. Not only were these scenes exciting, but they were assured of technical correctness when Director Irvin Willat enlisted the services of Lieut. John Cook from the H-8, at the submarine base located at San Pedro, to guide him through the nautical maze. Lieut. Cook approved all the interior sets before they were photographed and was with Mr. Willat on the battleships and on the submarines in making these scenes.

The majority of the stirring scenes in the Thomas H. Ince special take place, in fact, on board battleships and submarines, and because of the drama's strict adherence to the technique of the navy and the many new and unusual scenes within the confines of the "devils of the sea," wide interest is evidenced in the picture.

In making the feature, Mr. Bosworth was required, among other things, to leap from a battleship thirty feet into the ocean; he had to cling to the periscope of a submarine while it submerged; he was called upon to fight a mob of men, and had to rescue a sailor and swim a quarter of a mile in a heavy sea.

Mr. Bosworth scorned a "double," performing all these feats himself, as the camera vividly reveals. In taking the submarine scenes, he was exposed for three hours, drenched to the skin on the submarine deck with a stiff ocean breeze blowing against him.

New Sennett Special.

The completion of his fourth five-part super-production, "Down on the Farm," has been announced by Mack Sennett. In its release at an early date there is promise of a success to rival that of "Mickey."

"Down on the Farm," like "Mickey," appeals with the simplicities of life. A day's doings in rural pastures provides the episodes of the entertainment. But it is said to be different in character from anything Mr. Sennett has hitherto created.

Rogers Will Park Gum.

The fact that the price of Mexican chicle—fundamental element of chewing gum—has gone up 34 cents a pound doesn't worry Will Rogers a bit. Rogers will have his bit of a wad no matter what the cost, he says.

"I've stuck my gum on a hitchin' post more than once and gone back after it and I can do it again if necessary," said the cowboy comedian, now a Goldwyn star, when informed that the Mexican government has increased the tax on chicle and that the price of gum may be raised as a consequence.

When Rogers first broke into the stage limelight with his lariat he was chewing his cud of gum. He is seldom without it even yet when he twirls the rope and it is a great bore to him when a serious picture compels him to quit.

Grimwood Commutes.

Herbert Grimwood, the noted English actor, whose first film appearance in America was made in Fairbanks's latest picture, has purchased a home in the "outskirts" of Hollywood. He's a regular commuter, has to walk a block to his letter box and is a mile from a movie show. Grimwood has sent to London for his furniture and the rest of his wardrobe.

Nonunion Scene Shifters.

Lionel Belmore, playing now in "The Strange Boarder," in support of Will Rogers, is always telling of the things that have happened to him in the years he has been on the stage. Perhaps the best story of all has to do with the time when the company of which he was stage manager had been commanded to appear at Sandringham before King Edward. Needing extra help in the shifting of some scenes before the performance began, Belmore called on some men who were watching the proceedings to assist. They worked well and when the shifting had been done one of them asked Belmore if there was anything else he'd like.

"Yes," said Belmore, "I'd like a Scotch and soda." A moment later the drink was brought to him. Just then the head carpenter came in and he looked as though the eyes would pop out of his head.

"What's the trouble?" asked Belmore. "Got a fit or something?"

"Those men who shifted the scenery," he managed to gasp out, "were Earl of Aberdeen, the Earl of Huntley, the Duke of Westminster and Lord Derby."

King Edward rocked with glee when he heard the story and 'tis said the four noble gentlemen never left off telling it.

"Anyway," Belmore always ends the story, "they were mighty good scene shifters, those earls and dukes and lords. I'd give 'em a job any day."

Teddy a Money Maker.

Teddy, the Great Dane of the Bennett Studios, earns enough money to support a family even in these days and he is only 6 years old. At the age of two weeks his present owner bought him in Healdsburg, Cal., Teddy's natal place, for $50. He intended to make a pet of the pup but that precocious animal revealed at once those tendencies that brought him, an actor, to the screen. He evinced, for one thing, a supreme distaste for labor; he also revealed a temperament highly sensitive—a fine capacity to make friends with a certain disposition to stay up late o'nights.

Mr. Sennett placed Teddy under a long-term contract on his pay roll,

MOSTLY FUN AT PLAYHOUSES.

Comedy Rules Over All in Footlight Gleams.

"Up in Mabel's Room" Tells Story of Lingerie.

First Stock Performance of "Country Cousin."

The playgoer will have an opportunity to enjoy much of comedy and some seriousness along the Radiant Way and elsewhere this week. The sparkliest stage piece will probably be "Up in Mabel's Room," which belongs to the genus farce, species bedroom play, that has enjoyed a vogue on New York's Gay White Way.

Another comedy of an entirely different description is "The Country Cousin," which is to have its first local stock presentation. Here a vein of more serious stuff runs through the humor. Of course, that laugh jewel supreme, "Civilian Clothes," is going to scintillate more brightly because another week has been added to its luster.

Fun and frivolity will reign again at the new musical comedy house. The Orpheum is headed by a dancing act, that will provide pleasant entertainment. Pantages has an after-war novelty, while the Hip bill will be led off by a William Russell picture.

The "Mission Play" is now running in its ninth season.

Mason.

It is from a pink chemise—which unfortunately had a tell-tale inscription—that all the complications arise in the farce bill, "Up in Mabel's Room," to be presented by A. H. Woods at the Mason Opera-house, beginning tomorrow night.

Playgoers are familiar with A. H. Woods's "flair" for farces and his successes, "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath," "The Girl from Rector's," "The Girl in the Taxi," "Potash and Perlmutter," and others. "Up in Mabel's Room" is described as one of the funniest from the Woods office. It filled the Eltinge Theater, New York City, for months, after having broken all records in Boston.

The pink chemise which starts the trouble was one that a newly-married man had, in his bachelor days, given to a beautiful girl and thoughtlessly inscribed. The chemise and the owner turned up at a house party where the newly-married hero is spending his honeymoon. His atempts to recover it from a threatening woman and thereby save his domestic happiness, furnish the chief action of the play. The plot moves to Mabel's bedroom and even as far as Mabel's bed, but the difficulty is not solved until the story has gathered more laughs than a ship does barnacles.

The company includes Julie Ring, Carewe Carvel, Dorothy Fox Slaytor, Dorothy Blackburn, Jeanette Bageard, Sager Midgley, Nicholas Judels, James Norval, Frederic Clayton and Joseph A. Bingham.

Majestic.

"The Country Cousin," a brilliant comedy, with delicate touches of the serious here and there, written by Booth Tarkington and Julian Street, will have its first stock presentation in Los Angeles at the Majestic Theater tonight. Miss Evelyn Varden and Edward Everett Horton will play the leading roles, supported by the Wilkes Stock Company. Miss Varden will be seen in the part created by Alexandra Carlisle in New York and which Miss Carlisle played in an unusually successful transcontinental tour.

The play tells the story of a young English Beau Brummel, who comes to America with matrimonial intentions. He meets the country cousin, who impresses him with her remarkable foresight and keen business ability. There are plenty of good laughs which arise from cleverly-built situations.

Olga Eide, Alice Elliott, Marie Curtis, Franklin Pangborn, Arthur Allard, Forrest Seabury, Harry Garrity and George C. Pwarce will be seen in the cast.

Orpheum.

Mabel and Dora Ford are the topliners of the new Orpheum bill, opening with the matinee tomorrow. The Ford girls have been real dancers ever since their baby days, and their father before them was a famous stepper in his time. The Four Fords, including the two girls and their brothers, were a popular act. After the separation from the boys, the girls went out on their own. Recently they have added to their act by carrying their own orchestra.

Ernest Evans and his girls offer a unique divertissement. Evans is a ballroom dancer. One girl steps with him, one plays the violin, another is a pianiste and a third is a singer, thus making a varied combination.

"Skeet" Gallagher and Irene Martin, whose act, "Sweaters," was seen here not so many months ago, return. Marshall Montgomery is a kingpin of ventriloquists, and Edna Courtney adds to the act with her clever impersonations. Jack Osterman is a youngster who has broken most successfully into the monologue class with his "Fifteen Minutes of Something," and Grace DeMar with her "The Eternal Feminine" comes back.

Howard's Spectacle, with its dogs and ponies, and John Hyams and Leila McIntyre in "Maybloom" are the only acts to remain over.

"Mission Play."

A three-minute car schedule, it is stated, carried the big crowds to San Gabriel yesterday afternoon and last night where John Steven McGroarty's historical romance of the early days of California, "The Mission Play," began its ninth season. The same schedule will be maintained this afternoon.

Frederick Warde is appearing in the role, that of Fra. Junipero Serra, and Mrs. Tyrone Power carries the feminine lead.

Hollywood Community.

The fourth production of the Hollywood Community Theater's current season will open February 2. Miss Neely Dickson, director, has returned from a six-weeks' study of the latest plays and stage effects in New York City, where she also secured production rights to a number of plays with which to complete the Community Theater's season.

Morosco.

Rapidly approaching the best record of Chicago, "Civilian Clothes" goes into the thirtieth week at the Morosco Theater with today's matinee.

If the longest run of any play in Chicago is passed Los Angeles will be the second theatrical city of the nation. Of course, it is out of the question to think of equalling the New York longest record run, but observers are anxiously watching the trend here in hopes that Los Angeles will better Chicago's best.

Herbert Hayes is getting much approbation with his interpretation of the role of Capt. Sam McGinnis. Eleanor Woodruff, leading lady, continues to add laurels to her already enviable reputation.

The newest addition to the cast is William Austin.

Burbank.

"Oh, Baby" is the title that will blaze forth on the electric light signs in front of the Burbank Theater, starting today. This will be the piece de resistance of the show at the reopened playhouse, where last Sunday the Armstrong Baby Dolls inaugurated their season. The house has been drawing big audiences the past week.

Ed Armstrong, the writer and producer of the play, "Oh, Baby," has chosen Paris, France, as the locale, and the entire cast of principals are supposed to be French people, all of them speaking the language except the two comedians, Armstrong and Rhen, who are Americans, and cannot parlezvous a-tall. The way they get along in the foreign land furnishes the laugh. Several popular musical numbers are introduced during the show, the most important being "You'd Be Surprised," "Patches," "Peggy," "Come Play With Me," "Carolina Sunshine" and "I Ain't Got No Time to Wave the Blues." "Bobbie" Dean will sing most of the French songs in her own inimitable style. The juvenile, Howard Evans, will render several numbers new to Los Angeles, and together with his dancing partner, Grace Newton, will endeavor to show some new steps.

The Armstrong Trio of Harmony singers will again appear.

The Baby Dolls have been supplied with costumes of the Frenchy sort.

Pantages.

A patriotic spectacular production, entitled "The Rising Generation" will be the feature of the new Pantages vaudeville bill, beginning tomorrow afternoon. Ten talented "kiddies" of stageland comprise the personnel of the company, offering comedy, songs and ending with a sensational rifle drill. Girls as Red Cross nurses and boys who play parts as internes open the act, and when the war is declared over the various participants in the play demonstrate their ability as performers. Charles Mohana, the child yodler, and Mary Caroline Daniels, the "wop" impersonator, are the stars.

Happy Jack Gardner and company will offer their sketch called "In the War Zone," in which the tribulations of an American negro who finds himself stranded in Belgium when the Germans arrive, supply the opportunities for comedy; Willie Solar sings some of his latest successes; Grace Church and Ernie Forrest are two clever dancers, while Forrest also plays a variety of instruments as accompaniment to Miss Church's dancing. Stephens and Brunelle are exploited as the team with the "thousand dollar wardrobe;" the aerial Macks perform difficult Paris Green stories and sing comic songs and the third episode of the graph serial, "The Iron will round out the bill.

ROTHAPFEL AS A CINEMA REFORMER.

Tribute to Director of Film Presentation from English Author.

BY RAYMOND BLATHWAYT.

[Mr. Blathwayt came to America on a special mission last year. He is an English author. His autobiography, "Through Life and Round the World," which Robert Hichens, the famous novelist, described as being one of the most remarkable autobiographies ever written, was published in London and New York two years ago and is in all public libraries in America and the British Empire.]

In this brief article I do not deal with the production of the film as requiring reform. It is growing better every day, but nevertheless its presentation in the picture palace still remains, in many cases, sadly lacking in artistic merit. And it is in this respect that reform is absolutely essential.

It is a Herculean task and one that calls ofor exceptional imagination and ability. And like most reforms, it demands a fanatic for its leader, if it is to be carried through to a triumphant issue.

"You must first find your fanatic," a great statesman once said when he and his colleagues were discussing a vast and overwhelming departure in the government of their country. "Without a fanatic to lead the cause and the people you can do nothing."

And it is of such a fanatic I write today—a man who believes in his cause with his whole heart and soul, a man capable of imagination, experience, and above all a man with a vision and a man capable of creating out of his dreams a glittering edifice of hard, brilliant, solid, concrete fact.

It is, as I say, in the presentation of the pictures themselves that so much remains yet to be done. It is not sufficient, important though they be, that photography and dramatic skill only should be evident; the accessories are almost more important—color and harmony, rhythm and exact appropriateness are absolutely essential if the final effect is to be attained. Hitherto these essentials, if not actually altogether lacking, have been ruthlessly ignored or thrown in the background. But there has lately risen in our midst a young man who is a veritable wizard in all these matters and gradually, but surely he is bringing about a revolution which will transform the picture world from being what it is today, an almost purely commercial concern, into one of the greatest branches of art that we have ever known. S. L. Rothapfel, proprietor of the famous Rialto and Rivoli Picture Palaces in New York, has devoted many years of thought, knowledge, experiment and experience to the solution of this great problem, and has succeeded in making the cinema more that a mere chilly, official, commercial record of contemporary life and thought rather a medium for the loftiest poetry, the essence of romance and the combination of color and of melody.

We talk much of the necessity that exists for the theatrical manager giving the people "what they want." Mr. Rothapfel pooh-poohs this idea altogether. "They don't know what they want and I don't either. And, therefore, I am not attempting to meet a demand which has no practical existence. My theory is that one must be a natural psychologist, a practical psychologist, and that one must therefore make use of the available, of the actual material on hand, that is my plan—I build as I can."

Rothapfel is a fanatic where music is concerned. Therefore, music plays literally a very great part in all his productions. And herein especially he displays his thoroughness, his capacity for detail, which demonstrates him a genius in his own particular line. And it is a remarkable thing that though he possesses that passion for detail, which so distinguished the famous mediaeval school of the great Dutch artists, he is capable also of canvases of pewhe is playing to you one of Mendelssohn's delicate "lieder ohne worte" and the next moment he is thundering out a superb and crashing chorus from "Lohengrin."

I sometimes wonder if he is not in danger of overdoing it. If it is not possible to be too esoteric in thus catering for the many-headed public, but he has no doubt on the subject whatever. He credits the public with the possession of better taste than they ever dreamed they possessed, and in giving them of the very best, he maintains that he is satisfying their inmost desires, even though they themselves are unconscious of the existence of those desires. And he may be right.

I once argued with him that so long as the picture on the screen, exactly depicted what it was intended to depict, the public required no accessories. He absolutely disagreed with me. "It is by those very effects," he replied, "that we make the pictures live."

One of his pet ideas for the near future is a cinema opera, in which actual voices, exquisite singing, shall exactly synchronize with the emotions of the figures upon the screen. This of itself will be a veritable revolution. He is a great believer in preparing the minds of the people for what they are about to see thus getting them subconsciously into touch and harmony with the comedy, the tragedy or the drama upon the screen, and this he accomplishes by the most carefully thought-out and considered choice of orchestral music.

It may be a somewhat fanciful idea. It rather reminded me of the man in Max Adler's work. Do you remember? He was hired to play the music at accompaniments to the pictures of an old-fashioned magic-lantern show away back in the '60s of the last century. "And remember that the music must, as far as possible, be suitable to the picture," said the promoter of the show of this would-be professor of music.

And so it came to pass that when the first picture was flashed upon the screen and the lecturer said, "Here we have Christ raising Lazarus from the dead," the unhappy organist pealed forth "Come, Rise Up, William Riley, and Go Along 'ome." The audience, though horrified, kept their seats, but when the next picture depicted the Savior walking upon the Sea of Galilee and the wretched man gaily burst out with "Oh, for a Life on the Ocean Wave," they rose in their masses and in their wrath and hurled him out of the building.

Mr. Rothapfel makes none of those mistakes. His music is in exact response to, and in exact correspondence with the psychology of the moment; it is artistic correspondence with the picture upon the screen, for it is his deliberate intention to study always and always to keep in mind the psychology and mentality of his audience, which is an even more subtle and delicate element in the mass than it is in the individual. He endeavors to bring the intellectual performer into actual, human correspondence with the simplest and most elementary of his audience, realizing as a public orator always realizes, that if he secures the rapt attention of the simplest person in his audience, then he has secured the attention of the whole mass.

Mary Starts New Play.

Mary MacLaren, the Universal star, has started on her next photodrama, "Wife or Woman," under the direction of Philip Rosen. The story first appeared in magazine form under the title of "The Better Half," and is from the pen of J. Grubb Alexander. Prominent in the cast are Edward Peil, Bonnie Bill, Eugenie Forde, Helen Davidge, Roy Stecker and Gloria Holt.

Cheer 'Em Up Off Screen, Too.

Doris May and Douglas MacLean, recent acquisitions to the ranks of motion-picture stars, their latest play being "What's Your Husband Doing?" are "the life of the party" out at the big Ince studio these days. Miss May is only 17 years old, and Mr. MacLean is a youth in his early twenties. Happiness is their middle names. They fairly radiate the joy of life, and old-timers on the Ince lot say their presence is as good as a youth-bringing injection of Dr. Voronoff's famous "monkey serum."

Mr. MacLean insisted upon his dressing-room being papered with a bluebird design, and amuses himself and others between scenes by playing the ukulele and singing popular airs in a most jazzful manner.

Butterflies adorn the walls of Miss May's private room at the Ince studio. She breezes in every morning with a big bouquet of beautiful California flowers and presents everybody with one for their buttonholes.

Pudding from England.

Harry Hilliard, who is engaged to play in the Universal production, "The Girl in the Mirror," has just received from a relative in England half a real plum pudding of the Yorkshire variety. The leaden pastry was addressed to him in care of the Lambs Club, New York, where it arrived in plenty of time for the Yuletide feast; but some facetious member of that club guessed at the contents of the package, opened it, and appropriated half of it for his own use. The rest he forwarded to Universal City, with a note: "Thanks, Harry. Now we're even on that quart of Scotch you borrowed last summer."

Garrick.

"Woman," Maurice Tourneur's picturization of Charles Whittaker's story, will be held over for a second big week, starting today at the Garrick. The picture is one of the most artistic spectacles ever flashed on a silver sheet.

The film is a review of femininity from the Garden of Eden to the present time, and battles the theory that women were born to be the playthings of men in its final episodes.

Played Same Role on Stage.

Edward J. Connelly, who plays the role of Col. Doolittle in C. T. Dazey's beloved American classic, "In Old Kentucky," in which Anita Stewart is starring at Tally's Kinema this week, had the same part in the stage production over twenty years ago.

Marse Henry Watterson Jackson, who enacts the role of the darky servant in the Anita Stewart cinema, "In Old Kentucky," at Tally's Kinema, celebrated his eighty-fourth birthday last Sunday. During the Civil War he was a slave on the plantation of Jeff Jackson, one of the biggest plantation owners of the South.

NEW SANTELL COMEDY.

"Vamp the Little Lady" is the title of Al Santell's next feature comedy to be started Monday, with new faces and newer twists to the usually unusual.

Nostrils Mistaken.

Once again the husband came staggering home late.

"Oh, John, have you been drinking again?" sobbed his wife as she caught a whiff of alcohol.

Lois Wilson Has Troubles.

Lois Wilson is in a dilemma. And she blames it all on the fact that the styles change so often. Most of the members of the feminine sex are perfectly agreeable that the styles should change often, but not so with Miss Wilson. Here's the reason:

"I found an opportunity to get down town and do some shopping yesterday, for the first time in six weeks," said Miss Wilson. "I bought a lot of new gowns, thinking I would have two or three weeks' vacation in which to wear them, as I had just finished my work with Robert Warwick in 'Thou Art the Man.' But now they tell me that I am to start work again in a new picture in three days, and I will have to hang my new gowns up in the closet and let them stay there for another month or two. By that time the styles will be changed again and I will not be able to use them at all."

Says Dancing's Difficult Art.

The Ford Sisters, who will be at the Orpheum this week in their new dance treat, called "Frolics of 1920," take their work seriously. "Dancing develops the imagination to a greater extent than almost any other art," said one of the sisters in a recent interview. "The painter or the sculptor can describe his emotion exactly through the medium of his work. Modern music has become almost as accurate in describing everything from nature sounds to the most complex emotion. The dancer has only nimble toes and a supple body to work with in depicting a scene or an emotion of the heart, and consequently must put her own intelligence into her performance in order to convey her meaning to the public.

"Hence, a good dancer must be a close student of nature, she cannot draw on her imagination for the details which go to show a public exactly what is passing in her mind. In a descriptive number much more concentration of mind is necessary than in ordinary fancy dancing. Not only must all the steps and the details be remembered and executed in time but the dancer must keep her mind on the story she is trying to tell."

—o—

Too Much Racket.

Maj. Robert Warwick is becoming unpopular with his neighbors. The soldier-actor realizes it, but does not see how he can adjust the difficulty. The matter has simmered down to a question of good health and personal popularity, and the latter is deemed a minor consideration.

The Famous Players-Lasky film star has a private gymnasium at his residence in the Wilshire district. Each morning at 7 o'clock sharp he and Norman Selby, known as Kid McCoy, take possession of the gym for an hour's work.

The session is opened each day by a set-to with the punching-bag, and that is where the neighbors start objecting. The rat-a-tat-tat of the bag awakens the people from their slumbers.

"That punching bag is better than any alarm clock ever invented," smiles Maj. Warwick. "The trouble is the neighbors are not asking for an alarm clock or anything like it."

Each morning's work-out is wound up with four rounds of strenuous boxing. "Sometimes the rounds are cut a little short," the soldier-hero admits, "when the Kid gets excited and clips me a stiff one on the chin."

Mary Minter, Orator.

Mary Miles Minter, the petite star of Realart Pictures Corporation, is fast becoming the silver-tongued orator of the silver sheet. She will motor this morning to San Diego, where she will make a short speech at the Plaza Theater on the occasion of the opening of her picture, "Anne of Green Gables," tonight. She will remain overnight at the U. S. Grant Hotel, and return to town tomorrow morning.

As if this were not enough speech-making for one week, Miss Minter is memorizing another talk to be given at Santa Barbara on Thursday, at the California Theater, where another of her celluloid doubles will make its appearance.

—o—

Marjorie Rambeau's Sued.

Marjorie Rambeau is the storm center of a law suit now going on in New York. The contending parties are A. H. Woods, theatrical producer, and Albert H. Capellani, for whom she is starring in pictures.

Mr. Woods states that Miss Rambeau has failed to keep her contract by refusing to go to Boston and appear in "The Unknown Woman," and Miss Rambeau on her part alleges her failure to keep her contract is due to the fact the Woods company still owes her 10 per cent. of last year's receipts. Mr. Woods returns that Miss Rambeau has mistaken the terms of her contract. Mr. Capellani is being sued because he has taken on Miss Rambeau's services as star of "The Fortune Hunter."

No, Not Superstitious!

Pauline Starke of the Goldwyn repertory players is one actress who is not superstitious—she says so herself. Just to prove it, she always breaks a mirror on Friday, and on the 13th of the month. No, decidedly she is not superstitious, although her friends are twitting her over the fact that on Friday recently she was in despair because she had forgotten what day it was and hadn't broken the mirror. She was out motoring with a party in the evening when she thought of it. She insisted on stopping at a drug store and buying a small mirror and demolishing it. For she just must keep up the reputation she has had for not being superstitious.

Scenarioist Engaged.

Charles E. Whittaker, well-known playwright and scenario writer, has been engaged to write the scenario for Marah Ellis Ryan's story, "The Soul of Rafael," which Clara Kimball Young is filming at San Juan Capistrano.

—o—

Betty Blythe at U.

Betty Blythe has been engaged to appear with Frank Mayo in his Universal photodrama, "Burnt Wings," as leading woman. This is the feature based on Bayard Veiller's stage success, "The Primrose Path," and is being directed by Christy Cabanne.

—o—

New Aquatic Sport.

Here's the latest thing in sensational sports. Eddie Polo, the Universal serial star, vouches for it. Polo was at San Pedro the other day taking some hydroplane scenes for "The Vanishing Dagger," when he conceived the idea for the new sport. The actor tied a rope to the boat-like part of the plane and he himself grasped the other end of the rope. The plane was started and it dragged Polo through the water a fast rate of speed. "There's nothing like it," said the star. "It has aquaplaning beat a mile if you're looking for something sensational."

—o—

Sherry Goes South.

Barney Sherry, who has just finished the Universal production, "The Forged Bride," in which he supported Mary MacLaren, has gone to Texas for a few days to look after some oil interests. He will return next week, as he has been cast for an important role in an early production at Universal City.

—o—

Beban has Competition.

In one of the scenes in his heart-interest drama, "One Man in a Million," George Beban used a parrot. He worked industriously for several days getting the bird in a mood to talk. The bird was very timid at first, and kept its tongue very beautifully. In getting close-ups of the parrot, Mr. Beban found he could achieve better results by talking vehemently to the feathered actor—or actress, as it happened to be. The parrot responded just as forcefully.

However, when Mr. Beban in strident tones began to direct himself, as well as his son, George, Jr., Miss Helen Jerome Eddy and Miss Irene Rich in one of the principal scenes, Mrs. Parrot also took a hand, or rather a voice.

When Beban called for lights the parrot yelled to turn 'em off. When Beban began one of his tender love scenes with Miss Eddy, while Miss Rich looked on, the parrot kept saying "Bum work!" alternating with the phrase, "No good," and "Haw, haw, Jack Dalton!"

Mr. Beban, as well as the other players, soon became demoralized, and work stopped. The parrot never even hesitated.

"Ham actor" was the last words Mr. Beban heard as he tumbled into his dressing-room, almost a wreck. Calling his assistant, D. W. MacLeod, Mr. Beban told him to arrange to have the scenes retaken, but, to be sure, the day following, to substitute a deaf-and-dumb canary for the parrot.

—o—

Beery in "Round-up."

Wallace Beery has been chosen for the role of Buck McKee in George Melford's production of "The Round-up." Beery has recently finished the heavy lead in Priscilla Dean's initial super-production for Universal.

—o—

Directing Selig Film.

Bertram Bracken is well under way on the Selig lot with his initial production for Col. Selig. The production is titled "The Mask." Bracken formerly directed Henry Walthall.

BLUE SHIRTS FOR SALARIED ONES.

The blue shirt was once upon a time the familiar garb of the wage-earner, the white shirt the conventional garment of the office holder and the salaried man in industrial life. The time is coming, and presently will have arrived, when the salaried classes, including governors, will have to wear blue shirts, or none. Any white shirt sold with the equivalent of the shoe guarantee, "warranted not to rip, tear or run down at the heel," is, nowadays, a luxury about which a Governor, a college professor, a professional man, a clerk, must think twice before buying. Both times he thinks that when the present supply comes to an end he will be embarrassed, financially and otherwise.

Inasmuch as the "biled" shirt is getting out of the reach of the classes which once affected its distinctive elegance, it may be well for those classes to consider the possibility that by adopting a style of dress which has, historically, won sympathy, they may rehabilitate themselves. When the thirty-five cent collars and the white shirts are worn by none but wage-earners and profiteering proprietors; when the bank clerks, the educators, the salesmen in shops, the office-holding class, salaried folk generally, shall have been forced into the blue shirt because it is more economical, not only in cost price, but also in maintenance, perhaps a wave of sympathy for the wearers of the blue shirt will sweep through the land. Possibly it will be said, upon the political stump and elsewhere, that the honest college professor in his blue shirt and overalls, with his dinner pail upon his arm; the honest physician in wholesome blue; the surgeon with his blue shirt sleeves rolled up; the Governor with the bright blue patches upon the faded blue elbows of his proclaiming garment, ought to have "living salaries" and ought to be encouraged to aspire to the possession of at least enough biled shirts for Sunday wear.—[Louisville Courier-Journal.

The Editor's Office Boy.

"Tommy," said the editor to the office boy, "take this manuscript out to the waiting woman and tell her we are very sorry but we can't use it."

"Yes, sir."

"And, Tommy?"

"Yes, sir?"

"Try to look sad as you go out. That's part of your job around here."—[Birmingham Age Herald.

THE NEW.

IN STORES AND HOMES.

NOVELTIES, IDEAS AND PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS.

By Olive Gray.

Up-to-date!

The new crepe, bearing the Japanese name "Yama Naka," composing the delicious little frocks so useful for the between-seasons, and as spring-like, with their odd designs and unusual color compositions, as are the first out-putting of the wayside flowers and branches of budding trees.

"Frisette"—that new sportish angora-ish material, appearing in the first wraps for country club and beach wear—has a cachet inexpressible. One stunning wrap, shown at a leading apparel shop on Broadway, was in the capeish coat shape, and the colors were lemon-yellow and white—a combination so fresh and enlivening as to impress the thought of the new season upon the beholder. The swinging cape-like effect at the back and the belted-in front, are the latest development of the spring wrap for sports wear.

Now is the Time to Buy:

The long-deferred articles of apparel or of items for household use. That great annual sale has offerings which are genuine savings, as to price, without diminished quality. Although the sale continues throughout a month, half the time has passed; and it behooves us to hasten in filling lists.

The shoes, either high or low, to complete the full quota of our foot needs. At that sale wherein are savings, in both slightly defective models and also in perfect pairs, of short lines.

Yarn for knitting. Prices are inviting, and fingers which long to be busy may do so without extravagance.

Rompers for baby. Special prices are here again and the coming warm season, warns that chambrays and other cottons will be a necessity.

New Flouncings.

A window on Seventh street, wherein are exhibited the new frilly flouncings for summer wear, proclaim the glad season which even here is always welcome. Flouncings of full length for skirts are ruffled and ruffled again, in obedience to the demands of Mme. La Mode and in some instances the ruffles are edged with narrow ribbon. Other examples are embroidered upon batiste and upon organdy and in any case the effect is charmingly airy and suggestive of warm weather daintiness in attire, as well as of the utmost chic.

Quality Versus Quantity.

These are the times when the wise administrator of home affairs will plan ahead and will decide what is needed both in the way of purchases for the personal wardrobe and for the household; and she or he will not be long in making the discovery that quality is more worthy of considering than is mere quantity.

In buying vegetables or fruits, a slender supply of truly excellent fruits is better than a quantity of that which must be wasted in preparation. In buying prunes, which despite the age-long jest, are excellent for steady diet, it is an economy to purchase the larger fruits, since the pits in the smaller varieties more than offset the additional cost.

The same is true in relation to dress. It is better to purchase one really good suit or dress, than several of flimsy quality.

This does not, of course, apply to the simple dancing frock, which is worn but a few times and must then be changed or replaced for variety's sake. On the other hand, the evening gown of Madame, must be of excellent quality. The best of silks, satins, velvets should be incorporated in this; otherwise her taste will be impugned. And here, as in the daytime garments, quality pays, in the long run, as there is no end to the make-over possibilities of handsome silken fabrics; and matrons may wear modes longer than girls wish to do.

Beauty's Reflections.

Lives there a woman who does not like to have about her a multipilicity of mirrors?

If a woman be beautiful, she likes to see her loveliness reflected in the glittering surfaces wherever the eyes may rest. If, on the other father. Her gown was of white georgette, braided, with pale pink roses at the shoulder and half concealed at the cuffs, a slip of delicate pink being worn beneath, and she carried a shower bouquet of white roses and pink sweetpeas. Supper was served at the conclusion of the service, and Mr. and Mrs. Bullard left for a short trip, planning to return to their new bungalow on Santa Barbara street.

Members of the American Legion, Ventura County Post, were guests of Santa Paula on Tuesday evening, when the Ebell Club House was the scene of a banquet and smoker attended by 175 service men from various parts of the county. A substantial meal had been prepared, and at its conclusion a musical programme was given by Miss Arley Mott, Howard Williams, a male quartette and the Baumgartner stringed trio. A business session called forth discussion of the plans for the memorial building, which Ventura county Legioners are to erect for the memory of the men who fell in the war.

Mrs. Frank Edgar and David Millar, for many years residents of Santa Paula, were married in Los Angeles last week, and will make their home at 194 West Forty-first street in that city.

Miss Ruth Hardison and Viola Nichols left on Saturday evening's train for San Francisco, taking the Lark at Ventura, to return to their studies at the State University at Berkeley after a vacation of three weeks at their Santa Paula homes. Miss Mary Thille returned to college on the 12th.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Walter of Good Springs, Nev., have come to Santa Paula to make their home, and have purchased the Murray property on West Main street for their residence.

EL CENTRO.

Miss Virginia Scripps of La Jolla, and an heir to the Scripps newspapers, is visiting in El Centro. She is traveling East with a number of friends. Among the party are: Mrs. Francis Lomluston of West Park, N. Y., Mrs. J. P. Johnson of New York, Dr. Clara Barrus of New York, Miss Agnes McClinton of Steubenville, O., and Edison Sherwood of Ottawa, Ont.

The history section of the Women's Ten Thousand Club met with Miss Agnes Ferris in the Public Library, Monday afternoon. The lesson was on Belgium, prepared by Mrs. T. H. Gebbie. The next meeting will be held next week.

Mrs. Jennie Hodges, president of the Imperial county W.C.T.U., announces a prohibition amendment celebration at the Christian Church next week. A varied and interesting programme has been arranged.

Mrs. M. J. Grove of Warren, Pa., is visiting with her daughter, Mrs. J. S. Loofbourow, and will spend the winter here.

Mrs. Helen N. Stoddard of San Diego is in the Imperial Valley in the interest of the W.C.T.U. jubilee campaign.

The Imperial county Epworth League held a social, Friday evening, at the Central Union High School Building. The six leagues of the valley were present, and H. E. Gleason, county superintendent, invited the B.Y.P.U. and the Christian Endeavor to attend, and between 250 and 300 people were in attendance. There was a short address by Rev. Tirrie, the new pastor for Mexican work at Calexico; a song by Miss Cora Nuffer, Julia Foncannon and Messrs. B. F. Enyeart and Harold J. Burt, and an exhibition of club swinging. H. B. Mather, the San Diego president, delivered the address of the evening on "Challenged."

ATASCADERO.

H. A. Wheatley, who, with Mrs. Wheatley, left for a short vacation in Los Angeles, is very ill in the Hotel Rosslyn and unable to be moved.

V. M. Corbaley had the misfortune to have his car stolen in Paso Robles the first of the week, and as yet no clew has been found as to its location.

Rev. and Mrs. Street and Miss Edith Street entertained informally on Monday evening.

Mrs. Eva du Vol Avery of Santa Maria was soloist at the Musical Club concert, given Wednesday evening, and her many friends were delighted to hear her once more.

Dr. W. M. Cameron returned the last of the week from Los Angeles, where he completed a post-graduate dental course.

Dr. C. A. Love motored to San Francisco the last of the week. Mrs. Love accompanied him as far as Santa Clara, where she visited for several days with the W. B. Jones family, former Atascadero residents and neighbors of the Love family during their residence on the highway south.

Mr. Joseph Clarke of San Francisco is a guest of his sister, Mrs. W. M. Cameron.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Hansen entertained forty of the Young People's Bible Class on Wednesday evening. A short musical programme was given and games were played. A Christmas pie, from which favors of all sorts were drawn, afforded no end of amusement. Dainty refreshments were served, and a general good time enjoyed.

A short time ago a dinner was given by Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Wink in their new home in Hollywood, to a number of Atascadero residents located there and in Los Angeles. Covers were laid for eight and included Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Wheatley, Rev. and Mrs. E. A. Berry, with the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Wink. That a delightful time was enjoyed goes without saying.

BEAUMONT.

The regular fortnightly meeting of the Woman's Club was held Tuesday, January 6. Mr. W. J. Dwyer made a very strong plea to the club to take up the matter of the beautification of the Mountain View Cemetery. Then followed the programme of the day, a lecture on "Color and Balance in Home Decoration," given by Mrs. Henrietta Kapp. After the programme, afternoon tea was served by Mrs. McCahan, Mrs. Cunningham and Miss Boulton. The next meeting of the club will be January 20, when the topic, "The Plumb Plan" will be treated by Dr. Thatcher of Beaumont.

Dr. and Mrs. I. W. Keith entertained a party of young folks Tuesday evening at their residence in honor of Miss Alma Keith, a student at Berkeley. News comes to Beaumont friends of the marriage of Miss Hazel Rose Way, who formerly resided here, to Chester Alvin Parker of Los Angeles.

RIALTO.

One of the notable events of the week was the public installation of officers of the Woman's Benefit Association of the Macabees held in Crowder's Hall and largely attended. District Deputy, Mrs. Bertha Fitzpatrick of San Fernando, acted as installing officer and the team work was put on by Arrowhead Lodge No. 91, of San Bernardino. Complimentary to Mrs. John Lindner of Minnesota, who is spending the winter at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. G. Milligan, Miss Mary Knoblaugh most delightfully entertained on Saturday afternoon at her lovely home on North Riverside avenue. The living-room was decorated with fragrant carnations, while the luncheon table was dressed in dainty violets with yellow oxalis effectively placed about the room, the purple and gold combining to form a royal setting for the handsomely-gowned guests. Violet cards marked places for Mrs. John Lindner, Mrs. C. G. Milligan, Mrs. W. W. Dalgleish, Mrs. E. A. Randall, Mrs. George T. Nichol, Mrs. May Nealey, Mrs. J. N. Knoblaugh and the gracious hostess.

In Ireland, dampness and sunshine combine in singularly balanced proportions for producing superior linens.

Fine hand weaving is possible because of the ever moist atmosphere. This same moisture holds the bleaching action of the sun to a slow process with curiously perfect result.

The growing of flax and its development into linen has been cultivated into one of the fine arts by the Irish people.

That exquisite creation known as Satin Damask is of Irish origin.

From the productions of the best Irish Linen weavers, our stocks were selected on a strict technical grading, to assure our patrons of the high quality of linens for which this house has been recognized for nearly forty years.

Linens, like diamonds, must, to some extent, be bought upon faith unless one is an expert.

These Linens are dependable. They are made of carefully prepared, pure Linen Thread woven—some times by hand, some times by machines—into a large variety of beautiful patterns. We have them in all sizes and in several of the better grades.

IS MINNEAPOLIS "TRIBUNE" HEAD

Rome G. Brown Now Directs Famous Newspaper.

Has been Legal Adviser for Well-known Owner.

Journal has Made Wide Field in Minnesota.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 13.—Announcement is made by the board of directors of the Minnesota Tribune Company, publisher of the Minneapolis Tribune, Minneapolis, Minn., of the election of Rome G. Brown as president and executive manager in the place of C. George Mcgness, general manager, who has resigned.

When W. J. Murphy, who, during his lifetime owned the Minneapolis Tribune, bought the Tribune property and came to Minneapolis, Mr. Brown became his personal legal adviser, and, for a period of twenty-five years prior to the death of Mr. Murphy, he was his personal adviser and general counsel in all his business interests. During the same time Mr. Brown was vice-president of the Tribune company, participating for and with Mr. Murphy in all phases of its business. Since Mr. Murphy's death Mr. Brown has been in charge of all the properties left by Mr. Murphy, including the Tribune, holding the same relation to the properties after Mr. Murphy's death that Mr. Murphy had previously held. Now he takes full charge of the Tribune's affairs, with the title of president and executive manager.

IS PAPER MAKER.

Mr. Brown is president also and in charge of the business of the Manistique Pulp and Paper Company in Manistique, Mich., and last spring brought the construction of the pulp mill to completion, and later to successful operation and is now in charge of the construction of the paper mill, which is expected to begin operations next March, and after that furnish to the Tribune its entire requirements of newsprint and furnish for the market about 5000 tons per year more. The pulp mill has an average capacity of sixty tons of pulp per day and the paper mill will be started with a capacity of fifty-five tons per day. This pulp and paper mill plant was started by Mr. Murphy, prior to his death, as a means of solving for the Tribune the print paper problem, which he foresaw as a necessary adjunct of his property if it were to be maintained at the highest point of efficiency.

Besides the Tribune company and the Manistique Pulp and Paper Company, which are closely allied in interests, there are other large properties, owned and operated by Mr. Murphy in his lifetime, which are now under the management of Mr. Brown; the Manistique Light and Power Company, operating a public utility plant at Manistique, Mich.; the F. E. Murphy Company and the W. J. Murphy Company, owning large real estate interests in Minneapolis and at Lake Minnetonka; and the three so-called "Red Lake River companies" in the northern part of Minnesota, the Crookston Waterworks, Power and Light Company, operating a public utility plant at Crookston, Minn.; the Electrical Development Company, a hydroelectric plant six miles above Crookston, and the Red River Farm and Land Company, holding large tracts of land, including extensive undeveloped water powers, on the Red Lake River.

Mr. Brown graduated at Harvard University in 1884, and, after being admitted to the bar in Vermont in 1887, he came to Minneapolis, where he has ever since been engaged in the general practice of law. Mr. Brown has never been in politics, but has been conspicuous in many phases of public life. As a lawyer he has become a national authority on the law of water rights and has made a nation-wide record during the past nine years in the fight he has made as chairman of the American Bar Association committee to oppose judicial recall, against the recall of judges and recall of judicial decisions, and against the socialistic tendencies of the day.

Mr. Brown will not sever entirely his previous connections in the practice of law, but will retain an interest in the law firm of Brown & Guessmer, as partner and general counsel.

SERVES GREAT FIELD.

The Minneapolis Tribune serves a territory which this year will produce from its fields, its forests and its iron mines more than $1,000,000,000 in new wealth. It is the only morning newspaper tapping these vast resources from Minneapolis. The Sunday Tribune is firmly intrenched as the dominating Sunday paper of this territory, its September A.B.C. report showing a total net cash paid circulation of 126,143 in Minneapolis and the Northwest. The same report credits the Morning Tribune with a net cash paid circulation of 62,497 and the Evening Tribune with 52,813, a combined daily circulation of 115,309.

A compilation of circulation figures from reports, to the government for the six months ending September 30, 1919, just published, credits the Minneapolis Morning Tribune with a circulation growth of 17.1 per cent, since 1915, which places it eleventh in ratio of circulation gains when compared with the greatest morning papers of the country, including those published in Chicago and New York. The Tribune has shown a similar marked growth in national advertising lineage, its gain between 1915 and 1919, first six months of the year in each case, having been 587,310 lines, or 93 per cent., ranking it eighth among fifteen of the largest cities of the country in ratio of advertising gain in national lineage alone.

Under the stimulus of Mr. Brown's aggressive management it is anticipated the Minneapolis Tribune will make greater strides in the future toward 100 per cent. efficiency in successful operation than even its good showing in recent years has evidenced.

Both Are Good Advice.

A Minnesota preacher took this text: "Be Ye, Therefore Steadfast." The local paper printed it, "Be Ye There for Breakfast."—[Lincoln Journal.

They are Beautiful!

These new Spring Fashion themes—beautiful with color, with artful originalities that reflect in every alluring detail the vivacity and freshness and beauty of Spring—

—And the inspirational thought which sponsored these new Bullock Fashions has made of them delightful Personalities, blending into them new and perfect harmonies of material, color and craftsmanship—

—And outstanding among them, the Eton Jacket Suit, a new silhouette, is flashed upon the screen of Vogue—A silhouette from the Couturieres of Spain, reminiscent of Spanish toreadors and old Seville —

—Two of these stunning creations are shown in the illustration—and they are only two, remember, of many more charming variations that are ready at Bullock's for you to know—

—And the frocks—enchanting French motifs—witched from brocade Kitten's Ear, Silk La Jerz, graceful-clinging Silk Charmeuse and other truly beautiful weaves of the loom, and to lend additional picturesque touches hand wrought oddities of braid, Chenille and beads are levied upon—

—Sports clothes—or Country Club Clothes—more firmly entrenched in the pathway of Fashion than ever before and more distinctively beautiful—they too, are here and there and everywhere in gorgeous profusion on that inimitable third floor of Bullock's, and already Milady is exclaiming over them.

—And there is the new Bullock Millinery eloquent with originality and charm, so entirely different from the headwear of former seasons — and the Blouses—Skirts—and on Bullock's Fourth Floor—the luxurious Bathing Costumes—

—Yes, they are beautiful, indeed, all of them. —At Bullock's.

—A vest of henna colored duvetyn embroidered in blue and black silk—a graceful black satin sash heavy with embroidery—and touches of the duvetyn on the collar, cuffs and bodice back—give this Eton Jacket Suit its originality as well as its charm. The flaring back tunic lends an additional, as well as an unexpected air of smartness to this new Fashion exponent.

—If arguments were needed for the new Eton Jacket Suit—this smart maiden attired in navy tricoline would be a most convincing one. Rows of buttons—V cut pockets—scroll designs and long silk tassels are added just for the joy of it.

MARY JOHNSTON'S NEW NOVEL.

"Michael Forth," a Remarkable Book That Marks This Author's New Attitude Toward Life and Fiction.

MICHAEL FORTH. By Mary Johnston. Harper & Brothers, New York.

A notable book is this new novel of Miss Johnston, marking as it does a new attitude on her part toward both life and fiction. The first part of the book differs little from any other novel of life and character in the South from the earliest years of reconstruction up to the present decade of the present century—the prostration, the poverty, the hopelessness, followed by the gradual awakening of industry, the coming of capital and the final realization of a new prosperity, are sketched with the author's sure touch and with that ability to envisage a vanished period of history that we have come to expect from Mary Johnston.

The central figure is Michael Forth, who tells the story. His boyhood life at Restwell, with his energetic and capable mother; his Aunt Sarah whose lover had been killed in the war and whose whole life became a long reaching out toward the unseen world, her inner theme "the ultimate union of lovers;" and his grandfather who struggled so hopelessly against poverty and debt and finally turned to Swedenborg and the mystics for a philosophy that would make life endurable.

Typical southern families are the Richmond Warringers and the Flowerfield Dallases, cousins of Michael, of whom Miriam was the dearest. Even in childhood a special relation grew up between these two. "She was oil to my fire and I was oil to hers. Our flames shot up, blended, coruscated, sang. . . . When we were together light penetrated farther, was intenser—warmth was warmer. . . ." We find this on page 58. A few pages farther on the mystical power these two develop together is more plainly stated: "Miriam and I sit very still. The fire . . . pine feeds it. The flames blend, roar together, rise superb. Suddenly, again, as in the swing, Miriam and I flow into one. The 'she' and 'I;' the 'twoness' come into 'weness.' But the 'twoness,' itself—and that is the increase—springs into a new 'I-ness.' Something, flashing together, uses the 'twoness,' but as we use arms or hands."

Of course, to some this will seem like the merest balderdash; but others, and these will include only a small number of Miss Johnston's former readers, will see in it the conception of a new and greater philosophy of life, dwarfing and making petty and even nonsensical the ordinary attitude toward human problems and human limitations.

The book is merely the elaboration of this conception. The power of the spirit to break away from the limitations imposed by the body, to soar at will into the future and the past, to come into peculiarly intimate relations with other human beings near or far, living or dead—this is the power that Michael and Miriam developed and this is the message and purpose of the book.

In this power and this inner inexperience all the events of Michael's life are subordinate. His college career, his entering upon the profession of civil engineer, his experience with a great mining company in helping to develop the resources of the South, his exploring and scientific expedition to Africa—all are merely externals. Even his marriage to Miriam, after a long engagement, is of secondary importance. For these two union was possible at all times—separation in space or time could not keep them apart.

The style is in places as impressionistic as the theme is mythical. The glimmering lights visible only to the eye of the mind, vibrations that are not of material things, sensations that come not through the senses—these are suggested in words, phrases, sentences, in which dots, dashes and blank spaces so dear to the symbolist abound.

And yet with all the mysticism, the author skillfully manages to tell a story and to keep up the interest in that story to the last. Many a reader will throw down the book in disgust, only to pick it up and finish it in the end, for it is written with conviction, with ardor and with much of the verve that has made its author one of the most widely read in the land.

As for the mystic conception of life, Mary Johnston is only one of many who have believed that there is a constant rhythmic movement in nature with which we may place ourselves in harmony and so achieve the power to communicate with all things carnate and discarnate. It was Emerson who said:

"Throb thine with Nature's throbbing breast,
And all is clear from East to West."

BUSINESS BOOKS FOR BUSINESS MEN.

Public Library Maintains Special Department for Commercial and Technical Works.

BY MONICA SHANNON.

A prominent Latin-American Consul recently remarked, "The American business man has a lot to unlearn if he wants to get the $500,000,000 worth of orphaned trade now in South America." A wise, reliable book by A. H. Verrill, "South and Central American Trade Conditions of Today," Dodd, 1919, tells the American business man what to unlearn and just how to unlearn it.

If you pick up "Making the Office Pay," by W. H. Lemingwell, you will see at a glance that its suggestions and ideas have quite obviously been collected from every nook and cranny of effective office management. It is an easy book to read; the writer handles words as readily as he handles methods.

Perhaps the importance of chemistry has never before been so acutely felt in industrial life. Hendrick has written a book on chemistry for the business man. It is written with so much humor and grace that one might be even tempted to give it to the "Young Lady Across the Way" and then sit back for the rest of his life and listen to her rare remarks. It is called "Everyman's Chemistry."

John Roger Commons has a small and extremely readable book on labor—"Industrial Goodwill." And after all John Roger Commons has a fine, well-balanced intellect and has spent the better part of his life holding labor up on the end of a pin under his magnifying glass.

The Shaw Company recently published a book called "How to Run a Wholesale Business at a Profit." Three hundred and eighty-seven wholesalers helped to write it. It presents cost figures which should give a man a rough idea of where his business stands in comparison with others and indicates the expense at which it should be possible for him to operate.

More and more business fails or succeeds because of the city which harbors it. When a man takes his goods to market he takes with him his city, whether for good or bad. And so for this reason and because the book is virile and alive you may want to read "American Cities: Their Methods of Business," by Arthur Benson Gilbert.

Henry de Man, a Belgian, has written a brilliant book which probes into puzzling places and will help to push any man's horizon a little further away. It is called "The Re-making of a Mind."

All of these books and innumerable others just as exhilarating may be had at any book store or from the shelves of your public library.

"WHITE SHADOWS IN SOUTH SEAS."

How Pacific Greeks Affect White Men Who Linger in Lotus Isles.

BY FREDERICK O'BRIEN.

The quest in life is happiness, which is the god of each one. We grope and stumble, seize and lose, make sure of attainment, weep at the error, seize again and fall into the mould of our mother with hands still stretched out to grasp. We take our food from the ashes of the billions who have searched as we have. All that each has left behind is a trifling enrichment of the soil, except he fashion something, book, picture, music or statue, invention or discovery, which kindles a spark in others after him. Only then does his divine fire flame after his extinction. All of us who are not possessed by the mere flesh seek, though blindly, and often unwittingly, to strike out of our souls some scintillation for survival.

In "White Shadows of the South Seas," now three months born on the bed of the Century Company, press, I have, after years of more fugitive effort in writing, tried to picture a small cosmos in a bywater of the world's seas, and to show there savage and civilized pacing or racing on mysterious trails in the same mad desire. I have lived in many countries but the hearts of men are everywhere and always the same. Life is perhaps our sole adventure. My urge has been to see all of it I could and to laugh though my belly ached. Praise be to God and the intelligent public, "White Shadows in the South Seas" is in its fourth edition. I am also the author of "Unpublished Memorabilia," "Rejected Marvels of Literature" and "Vers Refuse."

A fortnight ago I returned from a year in Asia, more fixed than before in my belief that my beloved cannibals of the South Seas are the only real philosophers I have known. I saw the whites in Siberia destroying one another, while the Japanese said "Banzai," which means "the more dead the more space." I saw religionists stopping their marking and sweeping of the path to heaven to clout one another, while the heathen smiled in long sleeves. And I saw eminent American prophets of business preaching the new war in the Far East, the while the poppies are frozen in Flanders field on the bosoms of uncounted dead.

I return to Glendale, my home for ten years past, to continue to grow goats and goldfish, beings which live in amity and wag their tails at humanity. The mocking birds are in their passion dance on the lawn by my window, the redbreast drinks at my fountain, and my dog breathes heavily in the sun. Buy my book and let me stay a while. I have found it a misrepresentation of promoters that goats will live on tin cans and goldfish on air. I traced "White Shadows in the South Seas" here among the kids and the brilliant dwellers with the lilies and papyrus, and need but time and sustenance to emit, mayhap, some other glimmer of Whimsical Intelligence.

Replying, my book editor, to your suggestion that I detail a little of my personality, let me say that it is all in my book. I am still young, fair and unafraid of most manifestations. My favorite sport is swimming in the sea and my leisure is spent most satisfactorily lying on my back in the grass or on the beach. I deplore the crime against vines. I like alligator pears, mangosteens and durians, papayas and corned beef, and I was brought up in a monastery, am all Celt in blood, love symphonies but most of all the accordion. I like nakedness better than clothing and during my happiest year wore only a breadfruit leaf pinned with a thorn.

In my book I tell of fierce men and the most beautiful women of the world, of women who take three or more husbands, whose unmorality is a startling contrast with the teachings of the zealous missionaries and I describe the madness with which these Pacific Greeks have afflicted white men who linger in their lotus isles.

I spent a twelvemonth with them and fled to put on again the fetters of civilization, fearful of myself. Those islands lie under the equator a thousand miles from here and three hundred leagues from any steamship route. They are the Dangerous Group, named not only because their people ate humans, but because their spell upon the white was fatal to a western soul. Though I forsook them as did one of old the Sirens, yet when I die and my body no longer pulsates, I want to go to the valley of Hanahevane, island of Tahuata, in the wondrous Marquesas.

Safer.

At an Indiana high school the other day the athletic society was putting season tickets for ball games on sale. One of the most popular boys in the senior class came up to the desk at which the tickets were being sold, bought two, had his name inserted in the blank on one of the tickets and then reached for the tickets.

"But you haven't told us whose name to write on the other ticket," protested the ticket seller, "and the rules of the association require that all ticket purchasers have their names on their tickets."

Now the senior had planned to pass the favor of his company along to several girls. "Well," he drawled, "if you have to write something in that blank, just write anonymous."—[Indianapolis News.

WHAT WILSON DID AT PARIS.

Stannard Baker. Doubleday, Page & Co., New York.

When the Peace Conference met at Pars the hopes of the entire civilized world were centered on the outcome. Nations great and small, victors and vanquished, had accepted President Wilson's fourteen points as a basis for the final settlement. But, alas for human hopes and aspirations! The men who were the most influential in shaping the course of the deliberations, the hardened, cynical diplomats of Old Europe, had other fish to fry than hopes and aspirations based on lofty ideals of Christian brotherhood among the nations of the world.

In his book, "What Wilson Did at Paris," Ray Stannard Baker gives us a graphic account of the epic events that took place at that conference, which was beyond question the most important meeting of nations and leaders of nations in all world history.

"No one," says the author, "who saw the President in action at Paris, saw what he did in the grilling months of struggle, fired at in front, sniped at from behind . . . will for one moment belittle the immensity of his task, or underrate his extraordinary endurance, energy and courage."

"No soldier ever went into battle with more enthusiasm, more aspiration, more devotion to a sacred cause than the President had when he came to Paris, but day by day in those months we saw him growing grayer and grayer, grimmer and grimmer, with the fighting lines deepening in his face. . . . It was he who was always the driver, the initiator, at Paris; he worked longer hours, had more appointments, granted himself less recreation, than any other man, high or low, at the Peace Conference. For he was the central figure there. Everything headed up to him."

To the charge bruited about by the bitter-enders, the adherents of Lodge, Knox, Johnson and Borah, that the President refused to see or even discuss with his commissioners or with the only delegates at the conference important points that were to be settled, Baker replies: "It is easy and cheap to judge people, even presidents, without knowing the problems they have to face. . . . He worked everybody at the Peace Conference to a standstill. He worked not only the American delegates, but the way he drove the leisurely diplomats of Europe was often shameful to see.

"It was clear to everyone from the beginning that the President was the only one who had faith in or believed that a league of nations was possible. M. Clemenceau treated both the League and the mandatory system with finely-turned irony and mirrored his opposition more clearly than by direct attack. The French press also took a cynical attitude and supported Clemenceau as far as they dared in the open. They continually harped on the President's "impractical ideals," and though the American correspondents found it hard to glean information as to what was going on, the French newspapers seemed at all times well posted. Lloyd George was never in open opposition to the President, but he was playing a hard game in which politics at home and the attitude of the colonies, particularly Australia, were continually thorns in his side.

The trouble with the representatives of the nations at Paris was that they were all attempting to bolster up their political fortunes at home, with the possible exception of Clemenceau, whose one passion is to get for France all that can be gotten, regardless of consequences. "Everyone wanted a good, strong league of nations to guarantee a treaty in which each first got all he wanted! And often in these struggles the President was absolutely alone; but sometimes he could form combinations with other powers, usually the British."

That the President, good Presbyterian that he is, is also an adept in the great American game, poker, as she is played at the diplomatic table, was shown by his statement issued to the press on March 15, just twenty-four hours after his return to Paris, that in accordance with the decision of the Peace Conference in its plenary session, January 25, the League of Nations should be made an integral part of the treaty of peace is of final force and that there was no basis whatever for the reports that a change in this decision was contemplated. This was in reply to a secret agreement made by the big three to abandon the league principle, which would have been carried out had not the President forced them to a showdown by this statement, which was in effect a diplomatic Big Bertha. His ordering the George Washington to Paris was another splendid piece of bluffing, for the President had lost all his illusions as to the status of the men with whom he was dealing.

This, however, deals only with his efforts. The big question is, what did he accomplish? To what extent did his ideals prevail at the Peace Conference?

Of the treaty itself, as it now stands, Mr. Baker says: "It is a tremendously human document. It has all the imaginative greeds, the fears, the vanities, the petty interests of the nations. It is indeed a terribly naked document; it makes one ashamed to read it, for it lays bare so brazenly the very soul of modern civilization. And yet it also has in it the finest aspiration and hopes of the world; the beginnings of a world league, the principles of a new colonial policy . . . and the aspirations, the hopes, the forward-looking, the moral aspects, were all put there by our American President—and no one else."

So throughout the sordid days, weeks and months, human passion, human greed, human ambition for place and power, with only once in a while a glint of idealism showing like a brilliant star through a rift in a clouded sky, had their sway. Out of this rock was fashioned a treaty, not a perfect document, but one that possesses within itself the seeds of a better code of international relationship and a promise at least that war, if not banished from the world, will be held in leash until the sober sense of mankind can examine the causes that trivial though they have often been, have set the world afire with hate in the wake of which death, pillage and all that is base in human nature have stalked.

UNDER STRAIT OF GIBRALTAR.

If it is feasible to tunnel the English channel, twenty miles in width, it is even more feasible to tunnel the Strait of Gibraltar, which is but eight miles wide at its narrowest point. I do not imagine that such a man as Samuel Rea, of the Pennsylvania, would hesitate at such a job.

This would mean that it would be an easy matter indeed to send a through train from London under the English channel, across France and Spain, the selfsame Strait of Gibraltar and straight to the wonderful new port of Dakar, which the French have been so quietly constructing these past few years in Senegal at almost the extreme westernmost point of Africa.

There the Atlantic is narrow indeed. An ordinary fast steamer can cross from Dakar to South America in four to five days, while the traffic experts in London figure out that, with such a through rail route, from Charing Cross or Victoria to Rio De Janerio will be but eight days and Buenos Aires nine days distant from London; with Santiago de Chile, by means of the Trans-Andean railroad, only two days farther.—[Edward Hungerford in the Saturday Evening Post.

BOOK NOTES.

Stevenson and Meredith.

Charles Scribner's Sons announce for publication early in January "A Book of R. L. S.," by G. E. Brown, in which is gathered together more fully than ever before information about the works, travels, friends and commentators of Stevenson, and "Memories of George Meredith O. M.," by Lady Butcher. Readers of Meredith's letters know Lady Butcher well as Alice Brandeth, a lifelong friend of the novelist. In her book, besides presenting a vivid, intimate picture of him spread over the years of his development, she has added many of his letters hitherto unpublished.

Padre With Nine Lives.

"In any extended campaign it is a very rare soldier who does not get the experience of being in a hospital at least once; although we could not possibly spend as much time in them as rumors that they get at home make our people think we do," writes the chaplain of the famous Fighting Sixty-ninth in "Father Duffy's Story" (Doran.) "I myself have been killed or wounded at least a dozen times. The other day Lester Sullivan, who comes from my parish, looked up from a letter he was reading and said to me, 'Father Duffy, if you had ten thousand dollars insurance for every time you were killed you'd never need to work for the rest of your life.'"

"Noa Noa" Announced.

Nicholas L. Brown announces for early publication Paul Gauguin's "Noa Noa," with ten illustrations, translated by O. F. Theis. "Noa Noa" is the great French painter's own story of his flight from civilization and life among the natives on the island of Tahiti in the South Seas. Paul Gauguin stands with Cezanne and Van Gogh as one of the three dominant personalities who have broken new paths in modern art.

Better Americans.

Since her return from England Kate Douglas Wiggin has taken a very lively interest in some of her step-brother authors (a relationship due to their mutual connection with the Houghton Mifflin Company publishing house.) Recently she was moved to write a long appreciation of John Drinkwater's play, "Abraham Lincoln," just appearing on the American stage. "All good Americans," to quote the following paragraph, "lately returned from London, have seen Drinkwater's 'Abraham Lincoln' at a suburban playhouse, and however good Americans they were when they went into the theater they were better when they came out, or at least I was!"

Seventh Volume Out.

The seventh volume in the series, "The Mythology of All Races," published by the Marshall Jones Company, will be ready this month. It will be Volume II of the series and will be on the mythology of the Latin Americans. The author is Prof. George B. Alexander of the University of Nebraska.

Simplified English Grammar.

It was Samuel Johnson who said that the English language has no grammar at all. However, this has not prevented generation after generation of English-speaking young hopefuls from having all the joy taken out of life by those who have written English grammars or who have compelled their use in schools. It would seem, however, that the task of learning English grammar is to be made somewhat lighter. Prof. Carl Halliday has discovered that many of the rules and explanations contained in the average grammar are useless and would be better eliminated. With this idea in mind he has written "The Grammar of Present Day English," which has just been published by Laird & Lee, Inc., of Chicago. The book has been cordially indorsed by many prominent educators. The author is professor of English in the University of Toledo.

New Book on Maeterlinck.

"The Psychology of Maeterlinck," by Granville Forbes Sturgis, a book which the Four Seas Company is publishing, humanizes in a masterly way the plays of the great Belgian dramatist, who is visiting this country. The author, who is himself a playwright, actor and producer, makes the characters stand out as realities, rather than dream people. In a separate portion of the book he tells the story of each play, and develops the plot in reference to its relation and sequence in scenes and acts as written by Maeterlinck. The book fills a long-felt need by all lovers of this master. It will give his admirers a deeper reverence for his writings, while those who have found him too involved will doubtless understand his symbolism simplified so that they can enjoy it.

Hero Worship.

During Children's Week there should be books for the boy who needs a hero. There comes to mind at once that splendid and thrilling account of "Georges Guynemer: Knight of the Air," by Henry Bordeaux, translated at the request of the author by Louise Morgan Sill (Yale University Press,) price $1.60. Guynemer was but a boy himself, physically weak, yet with an indomitable will which carried him through his early struggles, step by step, to his final victory as the preeminent champion of France in the air.

Life of Christ.

The Revell Company is just issuing "The Source Book for the Life of Christ," compiled by Hiram Van Kirk, D.D. The book furnishes material for a study of the life of our Lord, being at one and the same time an analysis, a synopsis, a harmony of the Four Gospels, a collation of references, together with a resume of the record of gospel events mentioned by St. Paul, Josephus and other writers. The text employed is the American Standard Edition of the Revised Bible.

Biography Announced.

Roger W. Babson, the industrial statistician and former director of the Information and Education Service of the Department of Labor, has written a life-story of William B. Wilson, First Secretary of the Department of Labor. It will be published in December by Brentano's of New York. The foreword is by John Hays Hammond and the book contains a description of the organization, machinery and policy of the Department of Labor and a forecast of the future of union labor.

America's Race to Victory.

In America's Race to Victory (Stokes) we learn what France has to say about America's part in the war. It is written by Lieut.-Col. E. Requin of the French army, who was taken from his duties on the French General Staff to go to Washington and help our government in whatever way he could. What he tells is "from the inside" and vouched for by the French and American governments. The book also has an introduction by Gen. Peyton C. March, Chief of Staff of the United States army.

New Editions.

The Macmillan Company has issued a new and less expensive edition of The Boy's Book of Great Inventions. Mr. Darrow is head of the science department in the Polytechnic Preparatory Country Day School; his book had very interesting reviews and a large sale last year. Boys and their fathers alike are delighted with the scientific explanations and especially with the experiments and adaptations of inventions at the end of each chapter, which are within the compass of every amateur workshop.

Basil King Returns to Cambridge.

Basil King, whose last book, "Going West," was published this autumn, has just returned from the Pacific Coast, where he has been giving his personal attention to the motion picture production of several of his novels. He expects to spend the winter in Cambridge, where he will read the proofs of his forthcoming novel which the Harpers will publish next spring. The theme of this novel is very remote from "Going West," which resembles "Abraham's Bosom," both stories dealing with the continuance of life and personality after death.

A CLUB NEOPHYTE'S CHATTER.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15th.

Dear Aunt Sophia:

Of course the arch flutter in club-land was the appointment of Mrs. Susan M. Dorsey as nabob of the schools. They gave a wonderful party for her at the Friday Club and oh, my, but she has some eulogies to live up to. No woman could be as superior as all that. There were oodles of educational speakers and they all had a sumptuous time saying nice things about Mrs. Dorsey—and dragging in a few for themselves not so very much on the side. Mrs. Lobingier, for instance, just could not help telling how advantageous it is to be a Vassar girl, and Dr. Moore naturally felt a few words on his own sphere of influence could not come amiss. Then there was dear Mrs. Sartori, who, by the way, is mentioned frequently as successor to Mrs. Barnum in the Friday Club presidency (her previous term of office having been so successful.) As regent of the university she has attained added eclat.

Mrs. Barnum made a gracious hostess as usual, nor failed to exude a dozen or so more of her vast stock of classic jokes, which we suspect her of thinking up in her sleep—keeping a notebook under her pillow.

Talking of presidential possibilities, Ebell is due for a new president to succeed Mrs. Mathew Robertson next term. So far, Mrs. Charles H. Toll, first vice-president, seems to be the choice. She is mentioned as having special "strength of character," besides thirteen years' membership of the club, and Glendale is indebted to her for many valuable civic services. But there are also Mrs. Grantland Long, who is essentially the Ebell "refined" type, and Mrs. Jay B. Millard, who is so vivaciously alive and has proved such a good programme chairman.

A perfectly awful thing happened to poor Mrs. Mathew Robertson. Some cruel profiteers have stolen her southern cook. That is far worse than having even one's cellar rifled these days. Mrs. Robertson had trained the dusky genius through lo, these many years, until she had indeed achieved poetic epicureanism de luxe. A dinner at that house was all the political pull the Ebell president ever had to exercise. But such a light cannot be hid under a bushel and covetous eyes and a capable all-embracing purse has lured the fickle dame to pastures new.

Myra is asking what has become of the Black Cat Dinner Club. It is not dead but hibernating. Two of

The Skipper and the Designer

The Skipper of an H. Liebes & Co. steamer stood watching our head designer as he put the finishing touches to the sketch of his newest fur creation.

The designer came to us from Paris. His creations have helped to procure for H. Liebes & Co. first honors at most of the great world expositions and recognition by fur connoisseurs in America and Europe.

The skipper is the best known and most intrepid mariner of the Western Arctic. He has just returned from his most perilous trip into the Far North, during which he opened up Banks Land, the world's newest frontier, to commercial exploitation.

Both of these men, the artist and the captain, although their life work is so widely different have their part to perform in H. Liebes & Co.'s task, which is to bring to its clientele the finest furs that the world affords.

C. P. Scott of Manchester is Premier's Great Prop.

Wields Tremendous Power in British Politics.

But Blundering in Ireland may Cause a Split.

BY T. P. O'CONNOR.

[SPECIAL FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Dec. 27.—When Mr. Lloyd George went down to the Manchester Reform Club he had to face about as critical and unfriendly an audience as ever it was his bad fortune to meet. The Manchester Liberals are a very robust race, and they are especially robust on the issue of free trade against protection, for their great cotton industry depends entirely on that system of free trade which permits them to get cheap food from all parts of the world; and through cheap food they are enabled to give the lower wages that reduce their cost of production to a level that enables them to compete with all the world in the production of cotton goods, though an ounce of cotton cannot be grown within the borders of the great county of Lancashire. Of all the people who were present at this critical lunch to Mr. Lloyd George, there was one above all others whom he wanted to capture. If he caught him nobody else really counted. If he failed to catch him then his mission to Manchester was a failure.

That man was C. P. Scott. C. P. Scott is one of the great and even decisive forces in the public life of England, though few men in such a great position are so little known to the general public. Everybody knows the Manchester Guardian, but few people know C. P. Scott, and yet C. P. Scott is the Manchester Guardian in just as real a sense as in my early days C. A. Dana was the New York Sun. Many men drift into journalism because they find it the readiest way of making a living when they are young and penniless and have not the money to pay the big costs and to live through the delay before business comes. But Scott took up journalism as the main and only business of his life almost from his birth.

COUSIN HEAD OF GREAT DAILY.

This was doubtless partly due to the fact that a cousin of his was the chief proprietor of the great daily of Lancashire; but it must also have been from sheer inclination, for he was well enough off to choose another profession, and he had got all the advantage of a university education at Oxford. But as far back as 1872 he came to the Manchester Guardian, and there he has remained ever since, rarely leaving the city, rarely leaving his office, except for a comparatively brief interval when he yielded to the temptation, to an Englishman, of becoming a member of Parliament. That was a foolish and even a disastrous interruption in an otherwise perfectly harmonious and well-ordered life. As a great editor Scott began, as a great editor he has lived; as a great editor he will die.

The Manchester Guardian is one of the very best papers in England. Its leaders are sober, well-informed, written by university men with a close touch on life; above all, they are honest. They represent a consistent, perhaps, even a rigid school of doctrine; often they are in violent opposition to the current and dominating opinion of the English people as a whole; but they always remain consistent with a body of doctrine which is adhered to with the same rigidity as a system of theology. Often the Manchester Guardian has risked its whole existence on standing by convictions which are repugnant to the whole mass of popular opinion. This was the case mainly during the Boer War, when, in spite at first of English defeats and then of English victories, the Guardian stood by the cause of the Boers.

A great property bringing in a princely income, it was supposed to tremble in the balance between continuance and bankruptcy. But the Guardian went steadily and boldly on its way and damned the consequences. As a matter of fact, I do not believe that the commercial position of the Guardian ever confronted anything like serious danger, and for the good reason that whatever might be its editorial vagaries—as they appeared to a country inflamed with war passion — it always remained a great newspaper, a great purveyor of news, that is to say. Manchester is a business city, and every Manchester business man knew that if he wanted to get the fullest, the latest and the most reliable news with regard to business, he could find it only in the Guardian. He might swear at the leaders, but he had to read the story of the Stock Exchange and the cotton markets, and it was in the Guardian alone he could find such news.

ITS FAMOUS LONDON LETTER.

Another great feature in the history of the Guardian is its London letter. The London letter indeed was to a large extent the creation of the Guardian. It is a comparatively new feature in the history of British journalism, at least in its present form. It is there that you find not merely the inner gossip of the House of Commons and of the clubs, but also of society. It is the human side of the paper which deals with the personalities as well as the principle of politics and other things. And this London letter of the Guardian has been built up on a plan which when it started was unknown to British journalism. Instead of being written by one writer, as is usually the case, this letter is open to everybody; the smallest free-lance journalist can send in a paragraph with the certainty that at least it will be considered on its merits, will be used if acceptable will be well paid for.

I have earned many a guinea in its columns during the dreary years when I had no settled position on any newspaper. When I entered the London office of the great paper I was sure to find entering or departing people from all kinds of circles—a great civil service official who did not object to adding something to his income; a man of the stage; a lady of high social connections. This feature of the paper was so carefully looked after that no money was grudged that might make it important. I have heard of fifteen men being all engaged and all paid for finding out a certain piece of important information; when the paragraph appeared it created a sensation, for it gave definite news for the first time to the great public of a great impending political event; but the paragraph consisted only of three sentences. To that small dimension all the accounts of the fifteen different contributors had been boiled down. But the Manchester Guardian found its reward for the unused and yet paid for "copy" in having one of the big newspaper scoops of the epoch.

Thus it is that the Guardian occupies such a dominating position in all Lancashire, and, after all, Lancashire is the "key" county of England; it is always doubtful and it is always powerful; a minister who keeps Lancashire can retain office; a minister who loses it is doomed. You can understand, why Mr. Lloyd George wanted to capture Mr. Scott.

FRIEND OF LLOYD GEORGE.

There is another reason, however. Mr. Scott has been for many years an intimate and almost confidential friend of Mr. Lloyd George. It will be no news to your readers that that intensely modern man grasped long before any of his rivals the importance of the press as a political and personal agent. Even more than Theodore Roosevelt, he has been his own best publicity man. When the great break came between Asquith and Lloyd George during the war Scott was a Lloyd George man; he had lost hope in Asquith as a minister. The ties thus formed remained close and Scott remained a friend of Lloyd George long after all the other old associates of Lloyd George had turned away from him in suspicion and even in disgust. Scott would like to stick by Lloyd George still, but Lloyd George has violated the ark of covenant in Scott's mind on two subjects—free trade and Ireland. To free trade, in common with all Lancashire Liberals, Scott must remain inflexibly true, and the anti-dumping bill and other flirtations of Lloyd George, with the protectionists who keep him in power, became the touchstone of this friendship. On Ireland, Scott has been equally inflexible and immutable, and Lloyd George's patronage of the worst militarist and coercionist system Ireland has had for more than a quarter of a century has shaken to its very foundations the friendship between the two men.

What manner of man is this great editor who wields such tremendous power with such unfailing intelligence, with such rigid and inflexible honesty? He is a man of middle height, rather below than above it, with a robust and energetic frame, but a slight frame all the same—a small and slight scabbard with a gleaming sword inside. It is the eyes only that give you an insight into the resolute and fiery soul—fiery in the English sense where emotion is always submerged under an appearance of frigid reserve. But these eyes tell you the tale; large, open, red glinting in color, flashing quietly, but perpetually.

It is these eyes, as well as the well-shaped nose and the lightish beard that suggest the rather close resemblance between him and Parnell which so many people have observed. The likeness indeed is so close that the first time I saw Scott after Parnell's death, and when Scott turned upon me those wonderful eyes of his I got almost an uncanny shock; I saw Parnell's strange, mysterious, dominating gaze upon me once again; he seemed to come as a ghost beyond the grave.

Watch, then what the Manchester Guardian says during the now critical months of Lloyd George's Premiership. So long as Scott does not turn openly against him there is still the hope that Lloyd George may remain both Prime Minister and a Liberal; when Scott gives him up, Lloyd George may remain Prime Minister, but he ceases to be a Liberal. Lloyd George will then have chosen the path of leadership of a Conservative, moderately liberal and capitalistic party, and abandon the ways of the turbulent and raucous-voiced tribune who once stirred the masses to rage and revolt against the ruling classes.

THE PEOPLE AND THEIR TROUBLES.

DOROTHY DIX TALKS

May and December.

BY DOROTHY DIX.

When will people have enough intelligence to learn that, of all of the barriers between a man and a woman, none is so insurmountable as the barrier of age; that for an old man to marry a young woman is disastrous folly, and for an old woman to marry a young man is fatal imbecility?

Nature works many miracles, but it never unites the springtime bloom of May with the wintry snows of December. It takes human beings to be rash enough to try that experiment and illogical enough to expect that the venture will turn out successfully.

Among my acquaintances is a young woman who recently took part in an escapade in which she was seriously compromised, although she was innocent in reality, quite as if she had been the heroine of a popular farce on the stage. When asked why she did anything so rash and foolish as to enlist:

"I am married to a man twenty-five years older than I am. I am young; he is old. I want to amuse myself. He wants to sit at home and never stir from his own fireside. We spend evening after evening, weeks and months, yawning in each other's faces until I feel that I could scream. I have got to the place where I could not stand it no longer. I had to do something to break up that awful monotony or die. And I don't care if I did. I'll at least have something to think about that's got a thrill to it while my husband groans over his rheumatism."

And there you are. There you have a concrete picture of the disparity of age that makes any real happiness impossible, because the husband and wife do not belong to the same generation. They have not the same interests or inclinations, they look at life from different standpoints.

The man has had his fling. He is tired. He has seen the wheels go round. Parties, theaters, restaurants, travel, all are old stories to him. His idea of a delightful evening is to spend it in the quiet of his own home, with slippers and dressing gown and pipe.

But the wife is young. She is still a young girl eager for the amusements that belong to her age. She is bubbling over with energy that longs for an outlet. She looks out with curious eyes on the pleasures of the world that she has not yet had. Her idea of spending a happy evening is to rush from dinner to theater, and theater to supper and cabaret.

How is one to reconcile these two conflicting desires of age and youth? Is the old man to squeeze his gouty feet into patent leather pumps, and fare forth with his young wife to eat restaurant food that will disagree with his old tummy, and do fox trots that will agonize his aching old bones? Or shall the young wife bide at home with her venerable spouse and divert herself by preparing him health food messes, and rubbing his rheumatism with chloroform liniment?

Which ever way the case is decided, one or the other is bound to be a domestic martyr. Generally both are made miserable, for it is the privilege of the martyred one to shriek so loudly about the sufferings of being sacrificed on the family altar that it is about as comfortable to be the victim as it is to be the victor.

If it is a fatal folly for a man to marry a woman much younger than himself, it is even more deadly a mistake for a girl to marry a man much older than she is, because marriage to an old man emphasizes every disagreeable feature of the marital relationship, and robs it of most of its ameliorating circumstances.

Girls are cruelly misled in this matter. There is an old proverb that teaches them it is better to be an old man's darling than a young man's slave. Many girls marry old men in the fond illusion that they will be pampered pets, able to wind their doting old spousers around their little fingers, and that their grandpoppery husbands will do nothing but sign checks and urge them on to enjoy themselves.

Never was there a more baseless dream. It is true that the elderly husband, if he be rich, generally does delight in dressing his pretty young wife up like a circus horse and parading her around now and then in public. Also he provides her with a fine establishment, for, after all, a wife is her husband's show window where he can make a splurge by displaying his wealth.

But that's about all the child wife gets for her bargain. And she doesn't get that if the old man is stingy, as old men very often are. Some of the hardest working women I have ever known in my life were the young wives of elderly men who had to corkscrew every penny they got out of miserly old hands that had a death grip on their pocket books.

Also practically all old people are tyrannical and arrogant. They feel that their age gives them a right to be dictatorial and impose their views and code of conduct on everyone else and so the young wife instead of being able to lead her old husband around by the nose finds that she is treated like a child and expected to give a child's obedience. It takes an old husband to enforce domestic slavery on his wife in these days. No young man has the nerve to even attempt it.

Generally speaking, the marriage between May and December turns out disastrously for both parties. There may be exceptions to the rule, but the risk is too great to make it worth while even to take a sporting chance on it.

NOT COMING AGAIN.

One of the volunteer drivers of a London food lorry during the strike is said to have displayed the following notice on his vehicle: "The driver of this lorry is a prize fighter. If any one thinks he can take his place he is welcome to try." It reminds one of a story that was current in Stockholm towards the end of the last Olympic games there in 1912. One of the boxing "professors" was called away one evening from his seat in a cafe where the athletes and their followers were wont to gather together. He left behind him a handsome gold-headed cane, but beside it on the chair a pencil notice that ran: "The man who owns this stick is the world's champion boxer. He is coming back." When he did return the cane had vanished, but a new notice lay on the chair. It read: "The man who took your stick is the world's fastest runner. And he is not coming back."—[Unidentified.

LETTERS TO "THE TIMES."

President is Right.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 9.—[To the Editor of The Times:] The President is right. Better no action of the treaty now than a resolution that nullifies while pretending to ratify. America is no quitter and the idea of truckling to Germany for a separate peace is absolutely nauseating. So let it stand. If the "bitter enders" want an issue, let them have it.

GEORGE RINGS.

Perpetual Holdup.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 10.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Do you think the rent profiteers are doing your city any good? Rents in the apartment-hotel where I live are now being raised at the rate of about once every month. The victims are writing to their friends all over the country and warning them against coming to Los Angeles. I have heard people sitting at tables near me in the cafeterias say they were doing the same thing.

I had a letter from two friends in my home city saying they were thinking of coming to Los Angeles on a trip. These girls take a nict trip every year and do not spare expense. But I felt it my duty so to do, and wrote them to avoid Los Angeles as a pestilence; if they were going to be robbed by profiteers of any sort, to go somewhere on their trip where they could get far greater compensation for the robbery than can possibly be found here.

I heard a man say the other day that the outrageous treatment accorded tourists would simply prove a boomerang and probably would result in a boycott of this city. This mad rush of travel is only a temporary aftermath phase. One grows weary here of hearing this place boosted, its drawbacks being so patent to those who have seen anything of the world. It is bad enough to be deceived to so great an extent in regard to the climate, to observe the waiters in the cafeterias doing sleight-of-hand work for fear of giving 3 cents' worth of potatoes for 7 cents, etc., and in addition we are held up. It does not take a newcomer here long to grasp the fact that your people can grasp but a single idea, namely, to get out of the stranger every dollar or cent he may possess.

It is all well enough in a way to boast of your increase in population. But do you not think it would be better in the long run to treat newcomers decently, and in that way induce more temporary residents to remain permanently, and thus have a normal and steady growth of your population instead of mushroom performances? Then you might get some progressive citizens who would have the streets cleaned occasionally, have the streets named so that the names can be seen, have traffic regulations, and some lively building operations. Then you would not have to boast and boost so much, but the city's advantages could speak for themselves, as other cities do. Then so many of your temporary residents would not be honing to get away from here as quickly as they can, if they can save car fare from the dishonest rent hogs.

The old-fashioned hold-up and robbery in the West used to be an occasional performance. Now it goes on every minute.

If you will help to get after the rent hogs you will be doing your own locality a real and permanent service.

ONE OF THE VICTIMS.

Quality Not Quantity.

LONG BEACH, Jan. 14.—[To the Editor of The Times:] In your Letters to The Times department W. Simpson and Charles E. Stowe seem pretty rough on our women. If these two persons had their wish the world would resemble an ant hill, only the moving objects would, instead of ants, be humans. So dense would become the population that man from necessity would become cannibal, eating each other as food, for it would be impossible to raise food enough to feed even a small portion of the earth's human population. No! The women, thank God, have the right idea and to them alone is the credit given for having enough sense to limit the size of families. The nature of man is not so, never was and never will be.

The late war and the present unrest was and is largely because of over population. What is dearly needed is quality and not numbers. Look at France. Had she numbers instead of the fine quality of people she has the Hun would be in Paris today. Her increase in population is the least of any nation and has been for a number of years. Why this "holler" about large families? Just one and only one reason. And that is religion. One sect is afraid that some other bunch will outnumber them and rule the earth and heaven. Let's wake up and face this with common sense and without fear. I believe the only solution for the world unrest is to cut down the birth rate. Make a limit of two children in a family. At this point sterilize the man and take no chances. Poverty is at its worst in large families where both father and moth have become discouraged. My God, how I pity the poor woman with eight or ten children! No. Don't lay all this trouble on the woman (I do not include the lap-dog variety in this,) but rather give them credit for judgment where man has but very little.

HOMER L. WEBBER.

An Excellent Idea.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 8.—[To the Editor of The Times:] The article in this morning's Times in regard to rent profiteering written by S. A. Bennett interested me greatly, and surely the plan of establishing a rent profiteering board is an excellent idea. The outrageous doings of some of the landlords here in Los Angeles are absolutely without reason. For instance—I am living in an apartment on South Hope street, which a few months ago rented for $25. A raise of $18 was made last November, which we all considered perfectly legitimate, but now for the shock! Last week the house was sold, and the new owner has raised the rent on all single apartments from $30 and $35 to $55 and $65; and the doubles are raised from $75 to $125.

Incidentally, all the comfortable lobby chairs have been removed and the woman now in charge remarked that they "wanted no lobbyists," also that they wished all the old tenants would leave so that they could fill the house up with new people. Imagine! And the average tenant has lived there five and six years. That respectable people should be so grossly insulted is more than can be understood. Surely there is a way of dealing with such unscrupulous people and that way should be found at once.

A TENANT.

Law and Sense.

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 5.—[To the Editor of The Times:] The old-fashioned idea regarding the war powers of Congress was that when the existence of our country was at stake Congress must be allowed freedom to pass any laws necessary for national defense, the necessity for the law being the sole consideration. It would follow that when the necessity passed, the validity of the law would lapse because necessity was the foundation of the law and if the foundation were removed there could be no valid support for the law.

The new idea is that the existence of a state of war automatically gives to Congress war powers and that these powers continue till peace has been declared. This last seems to be indorsed by our Superior Court and the consequences are rather far-reaching. By the simple expedient of declaring war with some small country like Haiti, Congress could take away the liberty of the citizen and the rights of the States under pretense of war powers and could retain these powers indefinitely by merely refusing to approve a peace treaty. The first idea has the support of common sense and the latter seems to be the law. Yet we have good authority for saying that the perfection of the law is the perfection of common sense.

H. W. REED.

One Reason

GLENDALE, Jan. 7.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Not to be outdone by Los Angeles, Tropico, now a portion of Glendale, has on Walnut street a large bungalow that has stood vacant for two months. The owners have refused large rentals and they declare nothing but a sale will interest them. The property is desirable and the price right.

Tenants abuse property to such an extent there is nothing in it for the owner.

There would be more apartments for rent if the tenants respected other people's rights and property as they would their own. That is one reason why people are not finding places to live.

Owners are about done spending all their incomes for repairs and rent dodgers.

E. C. WITHAM.

Not the Jap.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 5.—[To the Editor of The Times:] After hearing Senator Phelan talk on the Japanese question this evening I want to say that there is another broad side to that subject in favor of foreign emigration into this State. I would like to talk on that subject to any audience that wants to be educated on both sides.

Mr. Phelan says that the Japanese are driving the white race from the land in California. In my native State, New York, there is any amount of devastated farms because the young men either went to big cities to live or became degenerates. Who is to blame? Surely not the Japanese.

EVA RUGG GARRISON.

Lincoln a Christian.

GLENDALE, Jan. 7.—[To the Editor of the Times:] The comment of W. C. Stickler on the letter of R. S. Vanderlip of Pasadena is possibly misleading. Frank Crosby, member of the Philadelphia bar, published in 1865, "The Life and Public Services of Abraham Lincoln." He relates that he was an "avowed Chritian" and often said that his reliance in his gloomiest hours was on his God. to whom he appealed in prayer, although he had never become a professor of religion. To a clergyman who asked him if he loved his Him; when God took my son I was greatly impressed, but still I did not love Him; but when I stood on the battlefields of Gettysburg I gave my heart to Christ and I can now say I do love the Savior." A reverant spirit pervades his official papers. Leaving home he invoked the prayers of his townsmen and friends. During the excitement of his Washington life, he leaned on a more than human arm.

LENA B. PALMER.

Look up Sims.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 9.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I note that a great many newspapers are making a steady persistent attempt to create a political sentiment favoring our Gen. Wood for President. Now I do not think there is anything in Gen. Wood's career to make me feel that he is in any way especially fitted for such an exalted position. Nor do I think that, with possibly one exception, have "soldier Presidents" of this country been anything like an exalted success. But if we must term that class of citizens for a leader, why not look up Admiral Sims, who I think has given some evidence of sufficient character to speak his mind, as well as think for himself. Kindly give him "the once over" and see how it takes.

THOMAS B. WELCH.

To Stop Car Theft.

SAN PEDRO, Jan. 13.—[To the Editor of The Times:] I would like to offer the following plan for apprehending the persons who are stealing motor cars. It seems that under the present conditions the thieves are becoming bolder, and as many as twelve cars are stolen on some days in the city of Los Angeles.

The State Legislature should be asked to pass a law requiring all garages, oil stations, or other places where automobiles are bought, sold or exchanged, to keep a record of the cars coming to their places of business for supplies, repairs or for any reason whatsoever, and to compare the numbers of the cars and their general description with the records of stolen cars, which would be furnished them by the police department or other designated authority. It would seem that the above plan would go a long way to stop the practice of stealing cars if the thieves knew that every oil station and garage would look the car over, especially if the driver was a stranger.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Question: Has the government made a profit from the operation of the railroads? G. M.

Answer: Senator Cummins, who has made a close study of the railroad problem, says that if everything the railroad companies owe the government is paid, and if there are no claims for returning the property in poorer condition than when received, the government will have lost in the operation of the railroads for two years something like $650,000,000.

Q.: During the illness of the President, who presides at the Cabinet meetings? E. R.

A.: Secretary of State Lansing has been acting in the place of the President as presiding officer of Cabinet meetings.

Q.: Who stands the loss in case a bank cashes a forged check? R. T.

A.: If the signature on the check is a forgery, even though it cannot be detected by the naked eye, the bank that cashes the check is responsible for the loss.

Q.: How does the percentage of American casualties in the World War compare with those of the Northern Army in the Civil War? C. M.

A.: Out of every 100 American soldiers and sailors who took part in the war with Germany, two were killed or died of disease. The number of northern soldiers killed during the war between the States was ten out of every hundred.

Q.: When and where did Roosevelt use the phrase "the strenuous life"? T. P. A.

A.: In a speech delivered before the Hamilton Club of Chicago, April 10, 1899, he said: "In speaking to you men of the greatest city of the West, men of the State which gave to the country Lincoln and Grant, men who pre-eminently and distinctly embody all that is most American in the American character, I wish to preach, not the doctrine of ignoble ease, but the doctrine of the strenuous life," etc.

WANTED A REAL WEAPON.

A returning officer brought the following story from the fighting front. He was commandant of a colored soldiers' company. Inspecting his men shortly before they went over the top, he saw an implement, not provided for in regulations, swinging from a soldier's neck by a piece of string.

"What's this?" he demanded.

"Why, cap'n, boss, da's mah raz," said the soldier.

"Why is it suspended from your neck by a cord?"

"Ah may get to v'ey close quahtehs, cap'n, boss, an' all Ah'll have t' do 'twill be t' yank on d' raz.' D' cord'll snap an' Ah'll shore be ahmed."

"But you have your bayonet for close work, Rastus."

"Bayonet!" sniffed Rastus. "Cap'n, boss, you jes let them's doan know how t' fight wid a real weapon use de bayonet. If'n Ahm t' be in a real fight. Ah wants a real weapon. Please, cap'n, boss, doan tak' mah raz' away."

There is Certainty in Our Service

The choosing of a funeral director is too often left to chance or to the recommendation of self-interested outsiders.

It is a sad mistake to entrust so important a work to any concern unless you are sure of its facilities, experience and financial responsibility.

The E. E. Overholtzer Sons Company has been in Los Angeles for the last fifteen years and all during that time has continually improved its facilities and service until today we believe it to be equipped in every way to a standard that is seldom reached.

There's a certainty that goes hand-in-hand with the E. E. Overholtzer Sons Company service that eliminates all possible embarrassments and uneasiness coincident with work of this nature.

A phone call on lines Home 65688 or Main 6002 will receive very prompt and most courteous attention.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS:

Being the Confessions of the Seven Hundredth Wife.

BY HELEN ROWLAND.

My daughter, wouldst thou gain a man's EAR?

For, verily, verily, as surely as the lamb after Mary, as surely as the soup after the oysters, and the fish after the soup, so surely will his heart follow after it.

Then, harken unto my wisdom, and refuse not my counsel, for I have known much men, and not ONE of their little quaintnesses is hidden from me.

Behold, if thou but learnest to ring the changes upon the adverb, "HOW," not one man shall escape thee! For this little word is the magic key which unlocketh the way to every man's vanity.

Hear, then, the fifty-seven variations of the wise maiden's prayer, which she chanteth unto the man of her heart's desire

"How wonderful!

"How didst thou ever THINK of that?"

"How well we keep step together."

"How distinguished thou lookest."

"How MUCH thy profile resembleth Napoleon's! (or Bushman's—or Sothern's!)"

"How HARD thou workest—how much TOO hard!"

"How is it thou never hast thought of becoming an actor? (Denoting beauty.) Or an author? (Denoting genius.) Or a lawyer? (denoting astuteness.)"

"HOW," not one man shall escape thee! For this little word is the magic key which unlocketh the way to every man's vanity.

"How dost THOU think the League of Nations will work?"

"How broad are thy shoulders—and how strong thy muscles!"

"How dost thou like my hair, this way?

"How SWEET of you!"

"How COULD she treat thee so!"

"How generous thou art!"

"How thou must suffer!"

"How shall I do this—or that—or the other?"

"How didst thou EVER accomplish so much?"

"How DIFFERENT thou art from other men!"

"How much thou hast seen of life!"

"How well thou understandest me!"

"How similar are our ideas and how CONGENIAL our tastes!"

My daughter, ask me not why the reiteration of this word-of-three-letters is as the "Song of the Lorelei" unto masculine ears, luring them into the whirlpool of love and onto the roofs of matrimony.

I only know that it is SO. Therefore, go thou and practice it upon thy beloved; and thou shalt return unto me and pour blessings upon mine head, crying:

"Mother, mother, it hath WORKED!

"Behold, he that I thought made of adamant and of stone, hath become as putty in mine hands, and a down pillow beneath my feet!"

Nay, ask me not, neither, how I came to know this thing, for lo! my daughter, I am a woman—and I have TRIED it!

Selah!

DOESN'T KNOW HOW TO ACT.

picture Gowland will have the lead, according to present plans.

It is his ambition to produce his own pictures—either here or in England. He feels the longing to return to his home at times and to give to his birthplace some of the fruits of his wide experience. But still, he is doubtful about leaving California, where the manana atmosphere accords with his disposition. The laziness of Gowland is not the dangerous kind; it is a healthy type, which makes merely for the desire of getting the best out of life while he is going along. He has always been busy—but he loves employment where he is not held down to a strict routine, where he can indulge in a friendly conversation and an exchange of anecdotes between times.

It is Gowland's desire to produce some sea stories, like those by Joseph Conrad. He made a big hit with his captain in Maurice Tourneur's "The White Heather." As a matter of fact, this was the first role which won him universal recognition, and he is anxious to return to this type, because his physical appearance so eminently fits him for its portrayal.

"There is just one other ambition I have, and that is for my boy," said Gowland. "You know, I would like to take that lad to South Africa and bring him up there. It is a glorious country. It is free from petty political intrigues—a fine atmosphere for youth to grow up in, with a fresh view on things. What's more, I'd like to go back there myself to see how well I have put into practice the art of being lazy, which I learnt there."

Free Dessert Molds

These Individual Dessert Molds come in assorted styles, six to the set. The six will serve a full package of Jiffy-Jell. We send the full set for 5 end labels. The molds are aluminum, and the set is worth 60c.

We make these offers to show more women what Jiffy-Jell means to them.

Jiffy-Jell differs vastly from other quick gelatine desserts. Each package contains a bottle of condensed fruit juice.

We crush the fruit, condense the juice, and bring you real fruit in abundance in these Jiffy-Jell desserts.

That's the important point. Flavor is mere taste, and often artificial. The fruit itself is rich in earthy salts. Everybody needs it every day.

For a Few Cents

Fresh fruit and canned fruit are expensive. Here are rich fruit dainties which are not.

And they are rich in fruit. Half a pineapple, for instance, is used to flavor one Jiffy-Jell dessert. Then almost a whole lemon is used to acidulate the mixture.

Yet a package of Jiffy-Jell serves six people in mold form, and twelve if you whip the jell—all for a few cents.

It is also quick. Simply add boiling water, as directed on package, then the fruit-juice flavor from the vial, and let cool.

Millions are using these quick, economical fruit desserts, and no home now should miss them.

Try These Flavors

Try Loganberry and Pineapple for desserts. Try Limefruit flavor. It makes a tart, green salad jell. Mix in your salad before cooling. Or mix in meat scraps and make an appetizing meat loaf.

Try Mint flavor. It makes a restful mint jell to serve with meats or as a side dish.

Try them now. Then send us the end labels which mention the flavor, and get the Jiffy Cup and any of our molds. See the coupon. Cut it out so you won't forget.

I understand that the various attractions of the lively and ubiquitous Morris Gest are soon to be screened. I blush in advance and also speak for a seat when "Aphrodite" is screened. The most exquisite of the famous Mack Sennett bathing girls is positively muffled by comparison with the most heavily-clothed young lady in "Aphrodite."

My impression is that Mr. Gest borrowed a lace handkerchief from a friend and slyly snipped out a few threads which he used for the wardrobe of his 500 damsels who appear in "Aphrodite." Also it is rumored that he will make a film play of "The Light of the World," that amazing version of the "Passion Play." As one of the New York critics has pointed out, this play is the first one in which any

HARRY MESTAYER.

Some of the finest acting of the year, by the way, is done by our old Los Angeles friend, Harry Mestayer, in the Chinese gambler.

I understand that the various attractions of the lively and ubiquitous Morris Gest are soon to be announced. I blush, in advance and ask for a seat when "Aphrodite" is served. The most exciting part of the famous Mack Sennett bathing girls is positively muffled by comparison with the most bare-clothed young lady in "Aphrodite."

My impression is that Mr. Gest himself a lace handkerchief from which he used for the wardrobe of his 200 damsels who appear in "Aphrodite." Also it is rumored that he will make a film play of "The Light of the World," the coming version of the "Passing Fly." As one of the New York critics has pointed out, this play is the first one in which any author ever had the nerve to use "Father forgive them, they know not what they do," and "Let him who is without sin cast the first stone," as melodramatic "gag" lines. It is all right, of course. No one can really object when the audience greets the entrance of Jesus Christ with a yell of applause. But it does give you a jolt. Yea, it certainly do give you a jolt!

"Forbidden," the play of the American Army of Occupation, has failed and has gone to the scrap heap in spite of the beautiful, if chilly, Martha Hedman. The American public does not seem quite ready for any story in which an American soldier falls in love with a German Countess.

Laurette Taylor is going into the movies. Her "Peg o' My Heart" has already been put on the screen, but she has several other big successes, none more charming, by the way, than "One Night in Rome," in which she is now appearing.

Channing Pollock, the dramatist, is soon to have the unique distinction of being paid for kidding himself. Mr. Ziegfeld is soon to stage a burlesque on Mr. Pollock's "The Sign on the Door," said burlesque being written by none other than Pollock himself. There was a new outburst of girl shows last week, the most gorgeous among them being Broncho Billy Anderson's "Frivolities." All these girl shows seem to be just the same, they are about equally unclothed and equally tiresome. When you have seen one bare leg you have seen all bare legs. Beyond that there is nothing to any of these shows but yowling and smirking.

Neophyte's Chatter.

its members have temporarily retired pending the advent of kittens. One is in Serbia, sending home post cards of handsome Serbians to explain why she purrs so ardently on their behalf and is such a good mouser for the cause. Another is busy building new houses and qualifying to be a vulgar parvenu in the near future.

Oh, yes, and two others, finding time hanging heavy on their hands, found strictly temporary inspiration in the lofty "New Thought" spiritual treatments at $10 per of F. L. Rawson, the English exploiter of yearning souls. They were so enthusiastic until they found out a little more about him. Now they are trying to live down—and through—the avalanche of ribald teasing that has fallen to their lot. Their next conversion will be less recklessly instantaneous.

The Orient has certainly caught the lecture habit. Both India and Persia have been helping to elevate the club woman in the persons of facile orators. And, bless their hearts, they have learned their lesson well. They all spread their discourses thick with compliments for American women and emancipation and votes and all that sort of thing, and we can't help wondering whether they are as broad-minded when they are at home among their veiled sisters. But then, of course, there are not any big influential women's clubs, with the gilded-lecturer-employing wherewithal to be propitiated in India and Persia. Circumstances alter cases, don't they.

Mrs. Sloane-Orcutt, Park Commissioner, has been made a deputy sheriff. We are all aching to know whom she is going to arrest. She declares she is only going in for "good deeds and noble thoughts"—so maybe that is why the City Jail is at last to be made habitable. Still, we had no idea that Mrs. Sloane-Orcutt found good deeds and noble thoughts so obstreperous. You don't suppose she means some of the more ardent reformers, do you?

There was a little rumpus at the Friday Club recently when the club's least kindly gossip undertook to make a few remarks anent the antecedents of another member's husband. There is a traditional protectiveness towards husbands in clubland, you know, and a valiant defender arose forthwith. Now said valiant defender is one of those plain-spoken souls who say what they mean in alarmingly embellished language when their ire is up. And the "least kindly gossip" rather prides herself on being a perfect lady. Wherefore the contest was unequal from the start. Hence, while listening members were shocked at the valiant defender's form of defense, they were secretly delighted that the least kindly gossip should "get hers." She got it. And no Bowery Queen could have achieved the free gift in a wider assortment of expletives. We fear diplomatic relations have been irrevocably severed. So long, auntie dear,

Your Irrepressible
BETTY.

THE HELPING HAND.

"Now for that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a weighty world."

"In addition to taking care of and providing hospitality for soldiers and sailors of this country—and there have been more than 3,000,000 of them during the last two years"—said the Morning Telegraph in New York recently, "the New York War Camp Community Service, according to a statement relased yesterday, has given similar help to more than 25,000 soldiers and sailors of the Allies. According to the record, the War Camp has done more than 150,000 services for these men. These services include everything from theater and dance invitations to providing bed and board.

"There have been a number of occasions when whole detachments of Allied troops, such as the West Indian volunteers, have been guests of the War Camp and have spent weeks at its military hotel in No. 55 West Twenty-seventh street. Sailors of visiting warships have been the guests of the organization during the time their ships were here and at the present time the men of H.M.S. Renown, the floating home of the Prince of Wales, are being entertained by the War Camp.

With branches of the National League for Woman's Service in every part of the country and with the women exerting themselves to carry on the kind of work which best fulfills the needs of the locality, a great variety of service now is being done by the organization. During the war the work of practically every branch, no matter in what part of the United States, was more or less uniform. A programme was followed.

The attention of women now, however, is directed toward the problems with which they live. Everywhere members of the league are seeking to improve social and economic conditions in their States, cities, and towns, and as the conditions nowhere are the same, the work differs greatly.

In two years the scholarship loan fund of the Oregon Federation of Women's Clubs has loaned nearly $25,000 to assist needy young people in securing an education.

The office of the assistant to the Secretary of War, formerly concerned only with jobs for service men, has entered a new field—its staff will hereafter assist all who need vocational training in every possible manner.

Maj.-Gen. William G. Haan, director of the war plans division of the General Staff, has now directed all field representatives of that department engaged in soldier employment work to give special attention to aiding disabled veterans. This corps of representatives, under the direct supervision of Lieut.-Col. Mathew C. Smith, of the General Staff, has been in the field for over six months engaged in placing discharged service men in jobs. Their work has carried them into practically every city and community of the United States, and the connections which they have established with various industrial plants, as well as with civic and welfare organizations and their knowledge of local conditions will make them most valuable in aiding wounded and disabled veterans.

WHAT OUR CONSULS SAY.

"Unless the disease with which the cacao trees and fruit are affected is checked, cacao growing in Ecuador on a large scale is doomed," states Consul-General Goding, at Guayaquil. The 1916 crop amounted to 9,831,300 pounds; in 1917 receipts were 7,656,300 pounds; in 1918 they were 4,200,800 pounds; while to date (October 13) the 1919 crop has yielded only 2,817,100 pounds.

It is reported that a large corporation in the State of Sonora is arranging to secure credit in order to realize funds for the establishment at its camp of a school of arts and occupations, in which families of employees will be taught trades and callings. The school is to include a clothing factory, giving employment to women.

The New Zealand government has recently added 1,800,000 acres to the provisional State forest, making a total of 10,500,000 acres, but of this total area of milling value is only 1,371,000 acres.

The total area planted by the State since 1896 is 35,158 acres. The planting in the North Island has been more than double that in the South Island.

There are 20,458 ex-members of the Canadian forces undergoing retraining in schools and industrial plants under the vocational branch of the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment.

The Minister of Marine states that the Canadian government is about to build a fleet of coasting vessels to operate on the Pacific. The government has lately taken over the Canadian National Railway and intends to build up a big merchant marine in connection with the railway terminal at Vancouver.

Harvesting machinery is not manufactured in Belgium; it is imported from the United States and Canada, or manufactured in American-owned factories in Europe.

American motor vehicles continue to predominate in the Philippine market. The total number of trucks registered in 1918 was 547, with a tonnage capacity of 1052 and a passenger capacity of 6345. Due to the lack of railroads and the need to transport agricultural products, motor trucks are beginning to play an important part in the country's commerce.

The Minister of Public Works has introduced a bill before the Danish National Legislature providing for the erection of a powerful wireless station by the Danish government. It is planned to build a station of sufficient size to send wireless messages directly to the United States.

Food products form one of the leading imports into the Dominican republic, flour, rice, fish and lard being especially important. The value of such imports per year varies from two to three millions of dollars. The United States furnishes the greater part of this amount, although in former years the bulk of the rice was brought from Germany. While large quantities of meats, fats, etc., are imported, canned goods constitute a very small proportion, no doubt due to the fact that canned meats are higher in price than cured meats, and so are beyond the reach of the average consumer.

MUSICAL.

MELODY ON THE WING.

STEADY SEQUENCE OF EVENTS DURING COMING WEEK.

The midwinter season, always the most active in the musical world, will soon be in full swing. During the holidays there has been a partial cessation of concert events, but beginning this coming week the schedule of recitals by visiting artists and local musicians is very complete.

Schumann-Heink will give two concerts Tuesday evening and Saturday afternoon, respectively, this week. Following her will come the Cherniavsky brothers trio; they will appear first as soloists at the Philharmonic pop next Sunday, and during the following week in a concert of their own. They have just completed a very successful tour of the Orient; they will leave immediately after their recital here for a transcontinental trip, and will then cross to England.

Carolina Lazzari, the contralto, is to sing here shortly, and Alice Gentle is scheduled for two appearances with the Philharmonic Orchestra prior to her engagement with the San Carlo Opera Company. The Minneapolis Symphony is to play three concerts the first days in February. Jascha Heifetz, the Russian violinist, who was a sensation in New York last season, comes about the middle of next month.

Local recitals are planned in the near future by the Saslavsky Chamber Music organization; the ensemble formed by members of the Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra, the Trio Intime, and various soloists, among them Estelle Heartt-Dreyfus, who will be heard early in February. The Beckers have planned two more sonata evenings to follow their very successful appearance during the past week. Many other interesting affairs are planned by local musicians.

Lazzari's Success Continues.

Carolina Lazzari, the distinguished American contralto, who will be heard for the first time in Los Angeles on Tuesday evening, January 27, at Trinity Auditorium, is having a series of successes en route to the Coast. Her appearances in Omaha, Denver, Colorado Springs, Salt Lake and Sacramento have attracted enthusiastic audiences.

Alice Gentle Soloist.

Alice Gentle, remembered for her operatic appearances here a few years ago, will be the soloist at the next pair of Philharmonic Orchestra concerts, February 6 and 7.

Since her last engagement here Miss Gentle appeared with the Metropolitan Opera very successfully.

She sang last week with the San Francisco Symphony. Her appearances there and with the Philharmonic are due to the courtesy of Fortune Gallo, the impresario of the San Carlo Opera Company, with which she is under contract.

Heifetz Violin Solos.

Jascha Heifetz, the sensational young Russian violinist, who is to be heard for the first time in Los Angeles on February 17 and 21, will play, among other numbers, the Handel D Major Sonata, the Wieniawski D Minor Concerto, Tartini's G Minor Sonata, Mendelssohn's E Minor and groups of shorter compositions, such as the E Minor Nocturne (Chopin-Auer,) Hungarian Dance (Brahms,) Melodie (Tschaikowsky,) etc.

Minneapolis to Bring Soloist.

Wendell Heighton, for many years manager of the Minneapolis Orchestra, is a firm believer in the possibilities of the young American artist. This season he is presenting Harriet McConnell, contralto, whom he considers one of the most promising of the young American stars, as soloist with the Minneapolis Symphony.

Conductor Oberhoffer is offering these symphonies in the key of E minor, namely, the Brahms Tschaikowsky and Rachmaninoff in this tonality.

Heartt-Dreyfus Recital.

Estelle Heartt-Dreyfus, contralto, announces as the date of her annual recital for February 9. Her programme will be given at Trinity Auditorium, with Blanche Ebert Seaver as accompanist and Jay Plowe, the well-known flutist of the Philharmonic Orchestra, as assisting artist. This will be Mrs. Seaver's first public appearance since her return from the East, where she has been living the past two years, and where a number of her compositions are being published and rendered by most concert singers.

Schumann-Heink's Two Concerts.

Mme. Ernestine Schumann-Heink will be heard in two recitals at Trinity Auditorium Tuesday evening and Saturday afternoon. After forty years before the public, this singer still commands the tributes she has so richly earned in the past. Her tour this season has been the sensation of the musical world; everywhere she has been greeted by audiences which have crowded the auditoriums.

Mme. Schumann-Heink is assisted by Frank la Forge, the well-known American composer, this season. He will not only play the accompaniments, but also give two short solo numbers, and be represented in a third capacity as composer.

These will be Mme. Schumann-Heink's only two concerts in Los Angeles, while in Southern California she will sing in Pasadena, Santa Monica and Long Beach.

Cherniavsky Trio.

The next pop concert of the Philharmonic Orchestra, scheduled for Sunday afternoon, January 23, at Trinity Auditorium, will offer three soloists—the Cherniavsky brothers, Leo, violinist; Jan, pianist, and Mischel, 'cellist.

Leo, the violinist, has selected the Allegro movement from the Tschaikowsky D Major violin concerto; Jan, the pianist, will play with orchestral accompaniment the "Hungarian Fantasie" by Liszt, while Mischel, the 'cellist, will offer the Andante movement from the A Minor Golterman concerto.

The balance of the programme as arranged by Conductor Rothwell includes "March of the Dwarfs" from the "Ballet Laurin" (Mosskowsky;) "Dreams" (Wagner-Svendsen;) "Prize Song" from the "Mastersinger" (Wagner-Jungnickel;) "Petite Suite" (Roger-Ducasse) and "Marche Slav" (Tschaikowsky.)

Harmonia Club.

Beethoven's Symphony No. 4, in Liszt's solo transcription, will receive interpretation by Mme. Matilda Rudorf, at the meeting of the Harmonia Club, Thursday. Following this symphonic recital, she will present her lecture, "What Posterity Knows of Beethoven's Loves."

Advocates American Ideals.

J. Spencer Kelly, who has won note here as a teacher, is a great believer in the Americanization of music, both vocal and instrumental. The English language, he said, is rich in thought, color and tone and the fact that this tongue contains so many consonanta makes it the best language for the singing voice, especially when one considers the preservation of the voice. "I am ready to admit," said Mr. Kelly, "that, for beauty, the Italian language, with its rich vowels, is unsurpassed, but it is a scientific fact that hoarseness and loss of vocal control inevitably results from following the old Italian method of singing. This is because the vocal cords are strained by the strong vibrations caused by the constant enunciation of vowels. The system requires too great and too swift expansion and contraction of the vocal cords. This fact is becoming so well known that many of the greatest Italian masters today are advocating the English and not the Italian method."

Will Render Ball Songs.

Chauncey Olcott will sing four new songs by J. Kiern Brannan and Ernest R. Ball during his engagement at the Mason Operahouse, starting the 26th inst. "That's How the Shannon Flows," "Macushla Asthore" (Pulse of My Heart;) "'Tis an Irish Girl I Love, and She's Just Like You," and "I'll Miss You, Old Ireland, God Bless You, Good-by," are expected to win favor like popular songs Mr. Olcott has given on previous visits.

Norma Gould in East.

Norma Gould, director of the Norma Gould School for Dancing, who has been in New York City during the holidays for the purpose of taking several professional and teachers' courses and also for intensive research work in the Metropolitan Museum and Library, will return in a few weeks. During her absence the class and private work has been conducted by her assistant, Miss Doris Carl. Immediately upon her return Miss Gould will resume the instruction of her own classes and take up the work at the University of California for which she has been recently selected.

Rhoades Engagements.

Esther Rhoades, the harpist, recently made a very successful appearance in recital with Miss Matilda Barley, contralto; Kelso Murdock, reader, and Marjorie Morrison, pianiste, on the San Diego Philharmonic course. She is also to appear on the Ellis Club programme the 29th inst.

Violinist of Note Here.

A violinist of note, William F. T. Mollenhauer, is a recent arrival in this city. Mr. Mollenhauer came here from Minneapolis, where he achieved an enviable reputation as a soloist. He has also played before the New York public, where his work was described by one of the critics as being a revelation to all lovers of the masters. "The depth and high intelligence he put into the work," says the same critic, combined with the exquisite poetic phrasing, was a musical marvel, as not once did he forget the traditional pedantic style of that period and permit himself the slightest outburst of modern emotionalism."

MANY SUCCESSES IN COMPOSING.

Federation Compiles Large List of Successful Music Writers.

That there are nearly a hundred composers who have achieved distinctive success in writing music in the simpler forms—namely, solos for violin, piano and voice—in California (most of them in this locality) is indicated in the recent list compiled by the California Federation of Music Clubs. This list is to be used as a guide by contestants, under the auspices of the State federation, at the annual convention in Fresno this year, at which prizes of $50 each will, it is announced, be awarded to the winner in each of the three departments of solo work. One group of selections to be presented in the contest is to consist of resident composers' works.

The list of composers includes such names as Charles Wakefield Cadman, John W. Metcalf, Fannie C. Dillon, Carrie Jacobs-Bond, Lucile Crews, Henry Edmond Earle, George Edwards, Camillo Engle, Adele Farrington, Grace Adele Freebey, Theodor Gordohn, Louis F. Gottschalk, John Homer Grunn, Frederick A. Herrmann, Abbie Norton Jamison, Julian Pascal, Louis Persinger, Frieda Peycke, Mrs. M. Hennion Robinson, Gertrude Ross, Vernon Spencer, Frederick Stevenson, Carlos Troyer, Harold Webster, Jaroslav de Zielinski and others known in this city.

The book does not make any pretense of including all the composers in Southern California, and does not comprise those who have achieved their success in the larger forms.

Organist Plans Programme.

Otto T. Hirschler, organist, who recently took up his residence in this city, is planning to present a concert programme in February in the auditorium of the Church of the Open Door. He will be assisted by the male quartette, composed of Messrs. Trowbridge, Wheatley, Books and Bodlar.

Mr. Hirschler was for several years head of the organ department at Coe College, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and was also director of the organ and theory department at Albion College, in Michigan. He has held a number of important church positions, both as director and organist, in Chicago and other middle western cities.

At one time a student with Alfred A. Butler, organist and pianist of this city, and with Fannie Dillon and Jaroslav de Zielinski in composition, he graduated from the American Conservatory in Chicago, receiving the bachelor of music degree, as well as the gold medal for his organ playing. In Chicago he studied organ with William Middelschulte, the virtuoso; piano with Henlot Levy, and composition with Arthur Olof Anderson.

Engel Pupil in Recital.

Florence Gleason Davis, young singer, who has been studying for several months with Camillo Engel, instructor of voice, has been engaged to sing at the Ebell Club of Fillmore. Her programme will be historical in character, including songs from the seventeenth century to the present time.

Hilda Nolte Students.

Miss Hilda Nolte, pianist, presented her pupils in her second criticism recital at her studio, 1623 Cherry street. Two of Miss Nolte's pupils are to appear in programmes this week, and Miss Nolte will herself give a recital at Glendora.

Organist in Recital.

Charles Demorest will present Raymond McFeeters in organ recital at the Broadway Christian Church next Tuesday evening, January 20. John K. Jackson, tenor, will assist, singing three groups of songs. Mr. Jackson will also appear before the Fine Arts Club in Pasadena, rendering classic and modern selections.

Organists' Dinner.

The Southern California chapter of the American Organists' Guild held its annual dinner and ladies' night and inauguration of officers in the supper room of St. Paul's Pro-Cathedral Monday evening. Charles H. Demorest was elected dean.

Portland Pianist Here.

A young pianist from Portland, Miss Dorothy Cox, will arrive in Los Angeles about February 1. She will remain here until the late spring, studying with Desider Vecsei, Hungarian pianist.

Westlake Art Studios.

A recital was given by the faculty of the Westlake Art Studios recently. Carolyn Wood, director, made an address. Each member of the faculty was presented in solos.

Music Teachers' Association.

The annual banquet and installation of officers of the Music Teachers' Association will take place January 19 at the tea room of the Little Theater at 6:30 p.m. Mrs. Norton Jamison will preside.

Student Recital at Kamaile.

The pupils of Maude Fischer were presented in concert at Kamaile studios last week, some of the children playing compositions of their own. Eurhythmic studies also were given.

Singer Comes West.

Recka Wehrman-Roberts, a young singer, contralto, student of the University of Wisconsin and formerly with the Chicago Opera Company, arrived in Los Angeles recently, with her husband, to make their home here. Mrs. Roberts is considering entering moving pictures for which she has had several offers. She was the winner of the diamond medal in the school of acting of the Chicago Musical College, the judges being Sarah Bernhardt and Ethel Barrymore. The singer appeared in leading roles at the opera.

Wa-Wan Club.

At the next meeting of the Wa-Wan Club Wednesday afternoon, January 14, at 2:30 p.m., at the Alexandria, three well-known musicians will be presented—Mary Gowns, contralto; Eunice Landrum, pianist, and Esther Rhoades, harpist.

The altruistic section of the club has a splendid record for the past year, having provided entertainment on several occasions for the County Hospital, Juvenile Hall, McKinley Industrial Home for Boys and many other institutions in need of entertainment. The head of this section is Mrs. Joseph Zuckerman, who, with the assistance of Mrs. Harry Palmer and Adna Widney Vance, are endeavoring to visit at least six institutions a month with a good programme.

Mary Gets Spanking.

For the first time in her life Mary Pickford, queen of the films, who will appear in "Pollyanna" at Clune's Auditorium next Monday, received a good, sound spanking recently. It wasn't a "fake" screen spanking but a real one like mother gives Johnny, administered with the palm of the hand while the film beauty was turned over the knee of the spanker.

The punishment was given little Mary by Katherine Griffith, also appearing in "Pollyanna," and it was one of the scenes from that film play. The director wouldn't let Miss Griffith "just pretend" and the actress, who admires little Mary as everybody does, declared at the conclusion of the affair that it hurt her worse than it did Mary. But little Mary didn't agree with her and there were several minutes when the most famous motion picture actress in the world held serious doubts as to the advisability of realism in acting!

Would Write Her Subtitles.

From Tokio Louise Glaum received a letter yesterday in which one Maru Yakima expressed his esteemed good wishes for the new season and incidentally begged permission to come to this country at his own expense to write the subtitles for the export print to Japan of the star's current Tally's Broadway attraction, "The Lone Wolf's Daughter." Maru stated that all Japan was anxiously awaiting her new picture since the advent of "Sahara," and that he owned seven theaters in Tokio. He offered a big sum for the exhibition rights in that city alone.

CHILDREN IN BALLET.

Three-Act Dance Performance Planned by School.

That she is preparing a three-act ballet of "The Sleeping Beauty" in which 300 children will take part and which will be given at the Gamut Theater sometime within the next month, was the announcement made yesterday by Ethel W. Abbott, head of the Abbott School of Dancing and Drama. "The children are rehearsing the pantomimic drama daily," said Miss Abbott, "and they are overjoyed to think they are soon to give an entertainment to the grown-ups."

Contrary to the opinions held by certain teachers of the terpsichorean art, Miss Abbott is a firm believer in teaching children to dance and she has earned an enviable reputation for her success in this particular line. "It is as natural for babies to dance as it is for them to walk or breathe," said Miss Abbott, "and it is a great pleasure to watch the little ones as they develop, in body and mind, for of course dancing tends to make the mind graceful."

Several adult pupils of the Abbott school will render a programme of readings and dancing before the Los Angeles Travel Club, in the Brack Shops, January 26, in the afternoon.

A Purist.

"Don't you see that sign?"
"Of course."
"It says, 'Keep Off the Grass.'"
"Ain't I keeping it off?" demanded the other, as he kicked up another tuft.—[Louisville Courier-Journal.

PIERRE KEY'S Music Article

BY PIERRE V. R. KEY.

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—With ping foreign ways—English ways, at any rate.

Over there the people seem satisfied to hear the same artists—and none too many of those—year after year. Once a favorite always a favorite, in England, until Father Time gets out his scythe. Of late America has reached out to snatch from continental Europe every rising "star." Before France or Russia or Italy has ceased exclaiming over a concert or opera "sensation," he or she is signed for and delivered unto United States audiences, for whom it is profitable to perform.

I foresee in approaching years a stream of foreign musical artists touring Europe via the U.S.A. Odd! Paradoxical, if you will, yet unquestionably true. Along with these tourneers I predict an accompanying contingent of worthy American musicians—young artists, in the fullness of their powers, who will do much to enlighten other countries upon what our nation is accomplishing in one field of the art.

OUR GRAND OPERA FUTURE.

No such accomplishment could have ensued without the spirit of emulation which so strongly prevails. Giulio Gatti-Casazza, the Metropolitan's general manager, emphasized this fact only a few days ago. We met in Seventh avenue, near our respective homes, and walking along together I listened to the opera impresario's explanation of his views.

"The musical pace New York has so long set for the rest of the country has borne rich fruit," declared Mr. Gatti. "It is chiefly because New York is the largest city and a seaport that she leads the music way for her sister cities. And the artists who sing and play here nearly all appear in scores of these cities of which I speak. That is why the people in every part of the land want to know what is going on musically in New York.

"I believe the day when opera will flourish in half a hundred United States cities is nearer than many of us suppose. The establishing of so many symphony orchestras could not have come without a pretty general demand for good music. Nor the extension of concert courses. In a comparatively short time I expect to see other communities following New York's and Chicago's lead. They will go about raising subscriptions and then train their own choruses and orchestras. Thereafter visiting artists will be signed, these distinguished guest singers moving from city to city over what you might term an operatic circuit."

PITY THE POOR MANAGERS.

Arriving near the middle of the programme at a recent symphony orchestra concert, I encountered the manager in Carnegie Hall's outer loboy. In the midst of ensuing conversation my eye caught a hand-lettered sign which announced a certain violinist to play the Bruch G minor concerto at a coming concert to be given by another orchestra.

"Why," I asked, "don't these fiddlers occasionally give the public something new?"

"Why?" countered the manager, "you can search me. The Bruch and the Mendelssohn and the Beethoven concertos about lets them out, and most of them unable to give a real performance of the Beethoven. It's the same with many pianists. They stick to the sure-fire pieces. Only last spring we signed a famous woman pianist to appear with us on condition that she would play the Schumann A minor concerto. Yet she wrote us, just before sailing from abroad, that she hadn't learned the work."

"Did you mention her contract?"

"I didn't dare," replied the manager. "We had been announcing her, with other soloists, for nearly six months. A cancellation would have invited a stream of protesting letters from subscribers. I realize that some defensive measure should be adopted to fit such cases, yet I confess to having found none.

"But we have, as you know, equally exasperating experiences of another sort," he went on. "The artists who arrive just in time to go upon the stage, when they have no excuse for tardiness, are among the chief offenders. Then there is the too-important musician whose success has gone to the spot where the brain is supposed to be. Once, during a tour, I had to go into a cellar in my evening clothes to find a platform for a temperamental 'cellist to sit upon. At the last minute he refused to play unless we found a platform two inches higher, but when I declined to assist him further he gave in.

"Josef Hofmann, Jascha Heifetz, Sergei Rachmaninoff, Fritz Kreisler and a few other of the great artists are most considerate. Yes, and Percy Grainger, John Powell, Ernest Hutcheson, Albert Spalding and Mischa Levitzki. Most of the Americans are level-headed. I think such discourtesy or insolence would cease if the offending artists' actions were made known to the public."

I suggested that the manager let me print some names, but he exclaimed in alarm.

"Don't!" he cried. "They give me trouble enough as it is."

ORCHESTRAL CLASH THREAT.

Do not be surprised if some near-by morning you read about a free-for-all contest among New York's symphony orchestras to secure the best players. Only a few weeks ago I wrote about the New Symphony's needs. It now appears that Arthur Bodansky is putting under contract for next season some of the finest musicians who at present are numbered among the rival organizations. There is a world of money behind the New Symphony, and Bodansky's instantaneous success in the concert field is exerting its effect upon susceptible players.

The Philharmonic, the New York, the New and the visiting Boston and Philadelphia symphony orchestras have been falling over one another with their concerts. Still, the patronage holds to its high mark. The "sold-out" sign is becoming weather-beaten enough to bring happiness to managerial hearts. And Sergei Rachmaninoff may celebrate somewhat, for his compositions are finding a place on the programme of all the leading orchestras.

Fritz Kreisler and Eddy Brown, violinists, and Rachmaninoff, Alfred Cortot and Rosita Renard, pianists, have been the principal soloists. Cortot is still the polished French artist who made a sterling impression at his previous appearances here. The critics have had many kind words for the conducting of Bodansky and Stokowski, of the New and the Philadelphia orchestras. Walter Damrosch likewise won some praise for his reading of Beethoven's "Eroica" symphony. Pierre Monteux of the Boston band and the Philharmonic's Josef Stransky, occupied the "back seats."

BY AND LARGE.

George Engles, manager of the New York Symphony Orchestra, should be in Europe by the time this appears in print. He will pave the way for next spring's foreign tour of the Damrosch musicians.

"Le Coq d'Or," the fantastic Rimsky-Korsakoff pantomime-opera, which strikes a popular chord, had its season's introductory performance at the Metropolitan a few evenings ago, with Bodansky conducting it for the first time. I am told that this leader required one rehearsal to prepare the orchestra—which is twenty rehearsals less than Albert Wolff had for "The Blue Bird."

Mischa Elman and John Charles Thomas were the soloists on the Stony Wold benefit programme in which the New Symphony Orchestra also figured. Mr. Thomas, who is singing in "Apple Blossoms," was announced as a "tenor." Why will these baritones and mezzo-sopranos insist on attempting impossible (for them) high notes?

Lambert Murphy pleased us with his singing at a recent song recital, and so, in a lesser degree, did a newcomer soprano, Alice Moncrieff. We were also favorably, if not greatly impressed by the piano playing of Winifred Christie. Carried to a higher artistic level by Richard Buhlig's pianism, we were sent, later, in a proper mood to appreciate Percy Grainger. His first recital of the season was a triumph.

I saw two distinguished musicians just as they were about to enter their boxes at a recent Carnegie Hall concert. One paused before opening the door to comb his ample locks. The other—I give you my word—took a powder puff from his pocket and removed the shine from his nose.

HERO-WORSHIP AND VERDI.

Italian Composer's Patriotic Fame; His Opera "Le Forza del Destino."

BY JEANNE REDMAN.

In any attempt at the criticism of the methods Verdi, whose almost unknown opera, "La Forza del Destino," is to be revived by the San Carlos company, which comes here next month, we are treading on the sacred ground of Italian hero-worship. Verdi had that public acclaim which today is seen so adequately in Italy's approval of D'Annunzio, and which exists nowhere else in the world to such a degree. When a musician or writer strikes anything resembling the taste of the populace, the entire nation falls at his feet, and whatever he does thereafter cannot but be right. But this would not account for Verdi's popularity in America, as well, were it not for many other contributing causes. The outstanding feature of Verdi's hold upon the minds of his own people was his ardent patriotism—that adulation of country which can place a person on a pinnacle from which he looks supercilliously down upon all the rest of the world and can use whatever others have created or invented for the nation's glory, grafting the discoveries of foreign genius onto the native tradition.

Verdi was born at a singularly stagnant period of Italian music, a period whose operas were humorous buffooneries or sweetly sentimental debauches, whose characterizations were laughable in their superficiality, whose libretti were almost unworthy of semi-professional pens, and whose orchestration was puerile melodic bombast. Verdi being wholly of the people, knew instinctively what the people desired; indeed, he could have felt nothing beyond or above the popular taste, and being one with his audience he sounded the profoundest depths of their desires. He felt their love for that traditional piffle known as "bel canto," that dramatic gasping after emotional climax, that quivering tremolo with solo interpolated, which lends itself so admirably to the soft and unvirile passages of sadness, that sharp pizzicato utterance so perfectly allied to the stamping movements of the tenors, and he wrote for the voice as no one has since Mozart. But contrary to Mozart, who was more interested in music, per se, Verdi made opera in which the orchestration was only a finger that pointed to the performer.

The Italians of that day and this have difficulty in considering art as a subjective manifestation, and must needs turn their attention to the individual who is performing. Hence the star system, with its many objections to us who are interested primarily in music, and remotely, secondarily, in those who perform it.

Verdi's insistence of this focussing of attention on incommensurately dominating characters further endeared him to his compatriots, and when he began, toward the end of his career, the use of Wagner's leitmotiv, and the enrichment of his orchestration for greater emotional effects, he reached the apex of popularity.

His "Otello," done at nearly the age of 80, is considered, by critics, the best of his works. In that opera he has felt Wagner.

The "Forza del Destino" belongs to the earlier period. It is classed in group second, after "Traviata," "Trovatore" and "Rigoletto" had brought him fame. The opera was shelved for many years, and was revived about ten years ago. Campanini produced it with the Chicago Opera Company, and he played the overture with the Chicago on tour in Los Angeles about eight years ago. The music I prefer to the other works mentioned. There is a flamboyant tendency in it, but it is less florid, and there is less striving for popular effects than in his other operas. He has a fair tonal balance in the orchestra, and less of sheer accompaniment to the singers.

As for Verdi's popularity here, as well as in Italy let us not forget that he was a great melodist. He had this talent, eminently traditional, of making luscious sounds, not too unusual in their progression, and contagious in their softness and drama, which can be whistled by anyone after two hearings, which persist in the mind, while they do not intrigue it. Add to this enormous advantage the fact that Italians mostly fill our operahouses, that their repertoires are replete solely with Italian music, and that loving these melodies and understanding them, they sing them with greater fire and enthusiasm, and we have another satisfying reason why the American public will listen year in and year out to these familiar arias, cadenza-filled, theatrically pompous and artistically negligible.

Another reason, which, while not an artistic point, is nevertheless in the question is that the production of Italian operas, with two or three principals and simple scenery costs less than, for example, the operas of Wagner. The astute gentry, the managers, understand that a well-known melody, sung by an average voice, attracts more than a complicated aria sung by any but a superlative performer.

SCHUMANN-HEINK SOON IN RECITAL.

Ernestine Schumann-Heink will be heard in two song recitals at Trinity Auditorium the 20th and 24th insts.

Everywhere of late she has been greeted by audiences who crowd to the limit the largest auditoriums—audiences who assemble early not to lose a single note of the song and are loathe to depart after the programme has been nearly doubled by encores.

Mme. Schumann-Heink is bringing Frank La Forge, the composer-pianist, as accompanist. His own songs, which will be included, are greatly favored and his appearance as solo pianist on the programme adds another acceptable feature.

How Lack of Iron In the Blood May Change a Woman's Appearance And Break Down Her Physical Strength

While Plenty Of Iron Makes Rich Red Blood Corpuscles That Give Health, Vitality and Beauty

Every Woman Who Looks Pale, Haggard and Worn Should Have Her Blood Examined for Iron Deficiency—Administration of Simple Nuxated Iron Will Often Increase the Strength and Endurance of Weak, Nervous, Careworn Women in Two Weeks' Time and Make Them Look Years Younger.

100% These illustrations show how a woman may look when she has only 25% red blood corpuscles 75% and her blood is starving for iron and the change that takes place in 50% her appearance when the percentage of red corpuscles increase as her blood becomes filled with 25% strength-giving iron.

Looking for the keen activity, the bright step, the fresh rosy cheeks and sunny disposition of perfect health is making many a woman unhappy. Prematurely old, wrinkled, worn out before her time, sleepless nights and worrying over their ailments, constantly doctoring with habit-forming drugs and harsh and useless cosmetics to brace up when coffee do not the real cause of their trouble which is nothing more than a lack of iron in the blood. Thousands of iron a woman may look and feel old at thirty, haggard and all run-down at 50 or 60 with good blood and plenty of iron in the blood may still be young in feeling as well as full of life and attractive as to defy detection of her years.

Any woman may become stronger, more beautiful and better able to fill her sphere of home, social and business by increasing the supply of iron in the blood. That is the opinion of Dr. [illegible] formerly Physician to the Out-Patients Department, Bellevue Hospital, who says: "What pale women need is iron in their cheeks and lips, the glow of life into their eyes, and nothing is so effective for putting iron into the blood as organic iron. Iron is one of the greatest strength and blood-builders I have found nothing in all my years of practice so effective for helping pale, sickly, thin, red-blooded people to get strong. From a careful study of the formula and my knowledge of organic iron, I feel confident that Nuxated Iron is a preparation which any physician can take himself or prescribe for his patients with the utmost confidence of obtaining highly beneficial and satisfactory results."

Among other physicians asked for an opinion was Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author. Dr. King says: "By enriching the blood and increasing its oxygen carrying power Nuxated Iron will often transform the flabby flesh, toneless tissues, and pallid cheeks of nervous, run-down women into a glow of health and make them look years younger within a surprisingly short time."

Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.) New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, says: "As I have said a hundred times over, organic iron is one the greatest of all strength builders. I have prescribed Nuxated Iron—organic iron—many, many times, and I have seen frequent instances where it gave renewed strength and energy, increased power and endurance, steady nerves, and the rosy bloom of health in about ten days' or two weeks' time. I consider Nuxated Iron one of the foremost blood and body builders—the best to which I have ever had recourse."

It is surprising how many people suffer from iron deficiency and do not know it. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.

MANUFACTURERS' NOTE: Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recommended above by physicians, is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by Boswell & Noyes Drug Co., Dickinson Drug Co., B. & B. Drug Co., Chambers Drug Co., Sun Drug Co. and all other druggists.—[Advertisement.

FERRY'S pure bred SEEDS

More food for less money

Did your father and grandfather pay whatever price was asked? No, they planted good seeds and harvested big crops. They did not depend on others to grow, harvest, haul, and distribute their garden truck, consequently they did not pay Fifth Avenue prices. Strikes, transportation troubles, delays and other disturbances of food supply did them no hurt. They were pioneers.

You can be a pioneer. A few feet of earth and Ferry's pure-bred Seeds are all that you need for a start.

But be sure you start with Ferry's pure-bred Seeds.

For sixty years professional and amateur gardeners have preferred Ferry's Seeds, because they are pure-bred.

We make sixty thousand tests a year to determine the germination of Ferry's pure-bred Seeds. But any seed may grow. We want to know what it will produce, therefore we make the supreme test—the test for trueness to type. Every vegetable, every flower, must measure up to Ferry standards for size, shape, productivity and quality.

Start your garden now and start it right. Ferry's Seed Annual will help you. It tells you what, when and how to plant; tells how to cook vegetables to retain their full, fresh flavor; and how to put up your surplus crop for the winter. Write for your free copy today.

Dealers everywhere sell Ferry's pure-bred Seeds

LEARN THE ART OF SINGING—
DAVE TRIX ADV.

Voice culture is a need that cannot be overestimated from a health standpoint alone, the living breathing pumped makes red blood, creates the nerves and gives correct poise to the body. It requires only a little intelligent study, time and money to equip you to take your place as a singing artist.

Learning to use the breath correctly you will be greatly gratified at the interest your audience will take in your singing. Your voice will be heard farther, the tone will be sweeter and you will not fatigue, but will enjoy the singing as much as your friends.

We teach everything a singer should know, including breath control, tone color, phraseology, diction, interpretation and repertoire; studio is given an opportunity to sing publicly at all times. Students accompanied to good positions when they are qualified. Daily lessons may be arranged where the practice is impracticable. Interviews cheerfully given with free voice tests to prospective pupils. Lessons may be taken before or after business hours; terms reasonable. I have several exacting student teachers giving voice test and tone interest at reasonable rates. Come in and talk it over; you will not regret it and it may mean much to you.

IRISH SET UP TAXATION CRY.

Two-Parliament Scheme is Going by the Board.

All Demand to Have Free Grip on Purse Strings.

Want to Become Commercial Leaders Themselves.

[BY CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DUBLIN, Jan. 15.—Small hope is entertained in Ireland for the government's two-Parliament scheme. Leaders of all shades of political, religious and economic opinion feel that the Irish papers accurately presented the opinion of the vast majority in Ireland when they declared the plan would not work.

Nationalists declare that when England proposes a plan maintaining the crown's present control over taxes it does not meet the nationalists upon common ground, however much control is given Irishmen otherwise over their affairs. You and all they draw an analogy between the present situation in Ireland and that which caused the American revolution in 1776. They say the country that does not control its own taxes is not free economically or otherwise.

To point out, as the governmental adherents do, that Ireland was never so prosperous as today leaves the nationalists cold. They argue that with command of their own finances the Irish would have another £15,000,000 that could be devoted to further economic development.

WANT TO EXPORT.

Given that command, there are many nationalists in the south of Ireland who would accept the new Parliament plan. Under, they assert, would be bound to come in with the rest of Ireland in a few years under economic pressure. Prices would be lower in the south and taxes so, and they declare the loyalist industries would not stand out long against such advantages.

It is the financial measures of the proposed bill that Irishmen in general utterly refuse to accept. It is widely asserted by both politicians and business men of the south of Ireland that England's stake is one of unfair trade advantage. Ireland, they point out, come via England, adding heavily to the burden of transportation costs, whereas it is one of Ireland's greatest assets to establish close and direct trade relations with the United States. A few steamships now come direct from New York and the Irish business interests are seeking to increase the number.

TRADE WITH FRANCE.

Ireland is also beginning a export business with France. The vessels next week for Dublin and will bring back a cargo of French manufactures. The French Consulate here is enthusiastic over the prospect of developing the trade.

One finds the difficulties in the way of a satisfactory Irish settlement confusing and magnified by political and religious considerations. But it is the question of trade and commerce that in the end may prove to be the real stumbling block. Just now the question is: Could Ireland hold her own economically as a nation in case of separation? "Yes," answer the Sinn Feiners and the republicans, emphatically. Big business men, however, shake their heads doubtfully.

Ireland unquestionably is self-supporting. Agriculturally the country is prosperous and calculated in the big profits. But when it comes to a consideration of manufacturing Ireland is hopelessly in the rear, behind France and Belgium and, as one competent observer points out, behind even Italy and Spain.

DISLIKE FACTORY WORK.

Irishmen, it is said, are inherently unfit for factory work. They make foremen, but there are few skilled artisans among the Irish population. It seems impossible to get Irishmen to work in factories and those that do work in them are usually found to be lacking in that sixth sense of artisanship which makes the really valuable factory worker.

There are great industries in Ireland—Guinness' stout, Jameson whisky and factories for the famous Irish lace and poplin. There is also extensive cattle-raising industry in all of these Ireland is famous. Italy.

Thus, to the impartial observer it might seem that, while the nationalists base their chief claim to consideration upon economic grounds in Ireland, on the very same grounds conceivably may be doing the best thing for Ireland by retaining control.

JOHNSON TO ENTER NEBRASKA PRIMARY

SENATOR ASKS FINAL DATE WHICH PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATE MAY QUALIFY

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

LINCOLN (Neb.) Jan. 17.—Telegrams by U. S. Senator Johnson, republican, of California, to have his name placed on the Nebraska presidential preference primary ballot have been taken.

This was learned here today. Secretary of State Amsberry announced the receipt from Senator Johnson of a telegram asking the final date on which candidates may qualify for the primary ballot, inquiring as to what requirements are necessary for the filing of petitions to place a candidate's name on the ballot.

Mr. Amsberry replied giving March 24 as the last day for filing petitions, which must have the signatures of 100 voters in each congressional district. The primaries, both Republican and Democratic, will be held April 20.

LANSING (Mich.) Jan. 17.—In formation as to the procedure to be followed in placing presidential names on the Michigan Presidential preference primary ballot was requested by telegram today by Senator Hiram Johnson of California of Secretary of State Vaughn.

Only Scared.

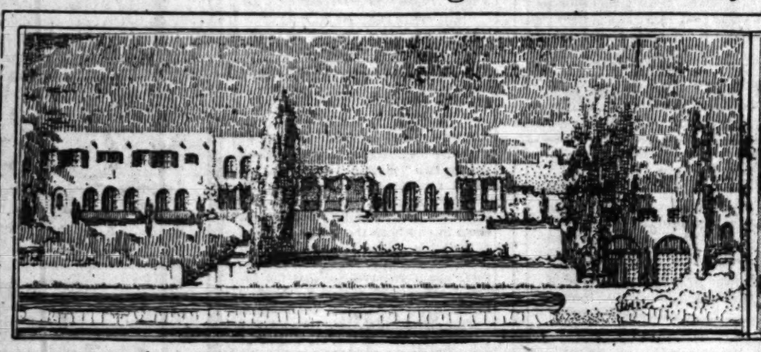
FACT AND COMMENT.

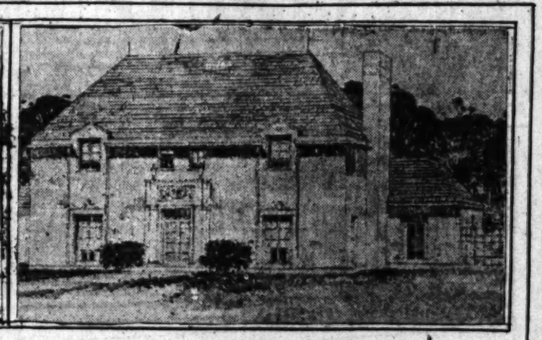
Building operations in Los Angeles and vicinity continue to go ahead under the spur of necessity which investors were paying materially lower bills on the basis of those now generally remembered pre-war days. There is a strong undercurrent of feeling against the continued upward tendency of building costs that is undeniably to a public which is growing weary of carrying a burden too heavy to bear.

Signs only move among those trades where successful building operations depend—the contractor, the architect and "the man who pays the bills"—to confirm this fact. There is a growing resentment against mounting building costs. Moreover, this resentment, now growing beyond the bounds of the investor into almost every field interested in seeing that building programme go on without hindrance or interruption, is beginning to crystallize into the form of open and determined protest. It is not to be denied that there is a growing anxiety among those who watch the present situation of building material prices the probable date of early reaction and a consequent stoppage of certain kinds of building, particularly the construction of homes now so urgently needed in Los Angeles as elsewhere. There is no longer reason to dispute the fact that the investor, the builder and the builder are beginning to look with suspicion at the high cost as the deliberate and calculated action of the present high-priced material. The time for complaint because of his exactions, they argue, has passed. That building costs today passed the meridian of reasonable and necessary profit into the realm of speculative selling as well as other basis or reason for the opportunity is here. There is a widespread among the investors and constructing class now that "the limit of the lumber harvest has been reached," and that beyond the present scale of prices will mean that the material interests will be jeopardized in the process of business which now so "actively at stake in the lumber field.

Charming Homes for City and Suburbs.



Hollywood Foothill Home.



Beverly Residence.

South Pasadena Home.

Place in La Brea Canyon, Hollywood, to be built for Hector Turnbull, author and playwright; Harwood Hewitt, architect. Beverly Hills residence being erected for R. A. Lockwoods, designed by Frank Meline. Residence in Oneonta Park section of South Pasadena for Max E. Hayward; Myron Hunt, architect.

back before the State Supreme Court occasioned little surprise, although the tunnel supporters admit of keen disappointment at the new delay put in the path of this vastly needed project. The court, in effect, held that the Board of Public Works could not be compelled to award the tunnel contract to John Hays, the contractor who submitted the lowest bid, but if the project went forward it must be under entirely new arrangements.

This ruling, of course, does not remove the need for the tunnel, the construction of which is daily growing more imperative; nor is it likely to lessen the determination of the tunnel advocates to put it through on some other basis. To abandon the project at this juncture would be as hurtful to the city's business interests as to seal up the Third street tunnel or to block the passage to and from Hollywood by way of Sunset boulevard. In the light of the building improvements which are now working such important changes in the character of the North Wilshire and South Hollywood districts, it has become more than ever manifest that the completion of the Second street tunnel is of vital community interest in its bearing on the problem of traffic relief.

An Expanding Southwest.

Those progressive residents of Southern California who hold the future of the fertile and promising region about Elsinore in their keeping are no longer content to merely watch the currents of new development which are flooding the Southland with the spirit and effect of progress. They intend to get into these currents, to harness them for their own prosperity and well-being; and with a fine display of belief in their region and its immense promise to residents and investors they have just launched a campaign of publicity designed to draw public attention to the opportunities of Elsinore, Murrieta, Temescal, Alberhill and the country thereabouts. The campaign is being directed through the joint efforts of the business men of these communities; and that it will bear fruit beyond any present calculation is not to be doubted when the fertility, charm and desirability of that region are better understood and the full meaning of the present movement of population to Southern California is felt.

This region has not been backward. It has progressed measurably in the last few years, although its attractions have been more proclaimed from the viewpoint of its scenic beauty and health-mending springs than as offering advantages to the agricultural settler and business man. Now these advantages are to be advertised and a broadcast invitation, through newspaper publicity, is to be extended to the world to come and investigate. Meantime great development works are progressing in these fertile valleys, which fortunately are connected with Los Angeles and the south by excellent highways, and before the end of the present year new wealth in amazing figures is likely to be flowing from this forward-looking section of the Southland.

Big Sales Month.

The Wright-Callender-Andrews Company's residence sales department reports sales of residence properties aggregating $250,000 in the past thirty days. One of the heads of the company refers to this year's business in homes as the most active in his experience of thirty-six years in Los Angeles.

HOTEL SOLD.

H. U. Bear, hotel broker, reports the sale of the lease and furnishings of the Rosegrove hotel, 532 South Flower street, for Eugene Studer and Henry McMordie to William Fischer, and the Elyria apartments, 1233 Trenton street, for J. P. Transue to Mr. and Mrs. A. Noesen.

HEAVY SALES MADE AT NEWEST TRACTS.

WINDSOR HEIGHTS SOON TO SEE MANY NEW HOMES RISE.

As a result of the continued demand for new homes in the North Wilshire section, reports of the subdividers of Windsor Heights and Marlborough Square show the purchase of a large number of building sites by investors who expect to erect residences within the next few weeks. These attractive subdivisions, situated just north of Windsor Square on the Sixth street car line and adjacent to the new Marlborough School for Girls and the Wilshire Country Club, were opened recently by Tracy E. Shoults & Co., who report between $80,000 and $100,000 worth of lot sales within ten days in Windsor Heights alone.

The work of improving this tract with new streets, paving, sewers and lights is progressing rapidly, and within a comparatively short time the district, according to the subdividers, will have undergone a remarkable change. Larchmont boulevard, El Centro and Vine streets are now being extended through this tract, giving a direct passage through from Hollywood to Wilshire boulevard. According to Shoults & Company, plans have been prepared by lot investors for the erection of fifteen homes in Windsor Heights, and work will start on these as soon as the street work is finished and the building materials can be assembled. These improvements will be in addition to the thirty homes which are now either in course of construction or in completion at the Marlborough Square tract.

Shoults & Company have two tract offices, one at the corner of Larchmont boulevard and Third street and the other at Larchmont boulevard and Rosemont street. These offices are open today.

BUSINESS LEASES.

Paper Company Adds to Local Warehouse Facilities.

The W. Ross Campbell Company, through Richard C. Willis, reports the lease of the three-story and basement building at 331 Jackson street to the Zellerbach Paper Company to be used as a subsidiary warehouse in connection with that company's Los Angeles business. The property is served by a spur track and contains 25,000 square feet of floor space. The broker also reports leasing the warehouse at 2411 Modoc street to a concrete manufacturing company.

Through R. C. Murray of the same company, the leases of the storeroom at 509 South Los Angeles street to Morris Gluckstein, and the ground floor at 317 West Second street to Alberto Almada, are reported.

ARCADE BUILDING.

New Structure at Ventura Will House Two Clubs.

Work is nearing completion on the new Arcade Building being erected at Ventura by a group of Los Angeles and Ventura business men. The new building, one of the most important improvements undertaken recently in that near-by city, will house a branch of the Automobile Club of Southern California and the Citizens' Club of Ventura. It is of brick construction with a terra cotta front and a marble arcade. The plans were prepared by Architect Albert C. Martin.

The Arcade building company includes T. S. Newby, president; John Lagonarsina, Jr., secretary; John G. Bowker, J. E. Rains, C. G. Bartlett, L. A. Durfee and Neill Baker.

NAME NEW TRACT.

Investment Company Soon to Open "Angeles Vista Heights."

"Angeles Vista Heights" is the name selected by the Los Angeles Investment Company for its new subdivision soon to be opened on the ground in the city's south end section formerly known as the "Cabbage Patch." It adjoins the company's New College Tract on the west and extends up on the east slope of Baldwin Hills.

Street improvements, according to the Investment Company, are well under way from Sixth avenue to the east side of Mesa drive, on the south side of Forty-eighth street and numbers of new homes have already been started on the tract. The building programme of the Investment Company, according to Sales Manager C. E. Culberson, calls for a completed home every day. Thirty-one houses were started in November, thirty-four in December and eighteen so far this month. The company, Mr. Culberson says, will not be hampered because of a material shortage because an adequate supply of lumber and building hardware has been provided to meet the demands of its extensive building operations.

MONEY CENTER.

Beverly Hills Opens a New National Bank.

An interesting addition to the city's financial institutions is the new First National Bank, which has just been opened at Beverly Hills to servie that suburban community, together with Brentwood, Sawtelle and Sherman. The bank building at the junction of Burton drive and Santa Monica boulevard is of hollow tile construction, of Spanish architectural design, and is equipped with every modern banking appliance, including a heavy reinforced concrete vault. The bank also has electrical protection. It was designed and built by Frank Meline.

The bank was organized by prominent residents of Beverly Hills to meet the growing needs of that and near-by communities. In addition to its other departments it will have an escrow service. The directors include R. P. Bishop, King C. Gillette, Douglas Fairbanks, Kirk B. Johnson, Stanley S. Anderson, O. N. Beasley, W. E. Woods, Sidney C. Rowe, Leland P. Reeder.

LEASED TO OWL.

Drug Store Company Takes New Main Street Corner.

R. A. Rowan & Co. report leasing the storeroom at the northwest corner of Sixth and Main streets in the Severance Building to the Owl Drug Company for a term of years at a total rental of approximately $300,000. After the completion of extensive alterations the Owl company will open another branch of its chain of drug stores.

The Rowan company also reports these additional leases: To Stratford & Green, booksellers, the storeroom at 642-44 South Main street; for J. V. Rider to S. Fujioka, the storeroom at 114 East Fifth street; to A. Posner, the store at 535 South Main street; for O. Morgan to O. Larsen, the storeroom at 627 West Eighth street.

WILSHIRE SALE.

The McCarthy Company reports the sale for W. E. Burris to W. W. Wilson, head of the Wilson Oil Well Supply Company, of the residence formerly owned by Boas Duncan at 426 South St. Andrews place for $24,000. The same company, which has recently completed six new bungalows on Sixty-sixth and Sixty-seventh streets, between Main street and South Park avenue has sold to L. C. Thomas, formerly of Akron, a house at 355 East Sixty-seventh street for $3400.

TOURIST INFLUX ON THE INCREASE.

COMMERCE CHAMBER BUREAU REPORTS LARGER NEED FOR RENTAL PLACES.

Instead of the expected lull following the holidays there are more tourists than ever coming into the city, according to a report made yesterday by the tourists housing bureau of the Chamber of Commerce. There is immediate need for a large number of small flats, apartments, houses and rooms with kitchen privileges. Nearly 12,000 strangers have been served by the department and the applications range from 200 to 300 a day.

Incoming tourists are bringing reports of all sorts of wild stories circulated in the East relative to Los Angeles, attitude toward the visitors. These are, in effect, that the entire population is profiteering; that rents are extortionate, prices on everything excessive and tourists are forced to sleep in churches, autos and parks.

"It is the duty of everyone to cooperate with the chamber in its efforts to make all strangers comfortable," said Secretary Frank Wiggins. "We want those who know of vacant places to list them with us at once. Some one is waiting for every small apartment or flat we can get."

LUMBER GOES UP.

Local Dealers Announce Another Increase in Prices.

Effective January 12 a new list was issued, advancing prices of lumber in the Los Angeles retail market. Present quotations are now $2 to $11 per thousand feet higher all along the line. Common fir was advanced $5 per thousand and is now on a $55 base. Finish lumber is up $11 per thousand. Flooring is quoted at $106 to $116 for No. 1 clear vertical grain and $101 to $105 for flat grain. Sanded fir finish is quoted at $116 to $118 for flat grain with $12 added for vertical grain. Lath are listed at $23 per thousand for 4-foot lengths and $38.50 for 6-foot lengths.

Red wood common was advanced $2 to $3 per thousand with a quotation of $54 for 2x3 inch. Clear redwood is up $11 per thousand with finish quoted at $118. Prices of redwood siding were advanced $6.50, making the quotation for No. 1, random length, $52. Ten cents was added to the price of redwood shingles, with No. 1 quoted at $1.70, and 15 cents was added to the price of cedar shingles, Red Star A being quoted at $2.05 and White at $2.25 per bundle. Shakes are up $2, No. 1 sawn being quoted at $44 and split at $41.

This advance in the local retail prices of lumber was forecast before the holidays. It reflects higher prices at the mills in the Northwest, which are ascribed to increasing eastern demands for fir and redwood, scarcity of and higher prices of logs and conditions unfavorable to production.—[From the Southwest Builder and Contractor.

RIPLEY GROWING.

New Palos Verde Town to Start in Promising Way.

The Blythe Construction Company, owners and developers of Ripley, the new townsite in the Palos Verde Valley, near Blythe, report sales of town lots aggregating more than $20,000 during January. Nearly every purchaser bought with the intention of building, according to the statement of the Los Angeles office of the company. Plans are in view for early construction which will start the town off with more than $200,000 worth of business and residence structures. The most important buildings to be erected are the new hotel, to cost approximately $50,000, and a cotton-seed and oil mill to cost $100,000 for building and equipment.

Ripley townsite has been divided into restricted districts to provide for various classes of buildings, in line with the company's announced plans. The main business section is restricted to brick and concrete buildings, which must also have uniform arcades over wide sidewalks. Streets are now being laid and curbed, and a water system and ice plant are projected.

AUCTION OF LOTS.

Barry & Austin, realty auctioneers, who recently opened offices in the Kerckhoff Building, announce their intention of holding a series of auction sales of lots within the city limits. This company, which has held similar sales in several cities in the United States and Canada, will work in co-operation with the Title Insurance and Trust Company, according to their announcement. Maps of the property and descriptive information may be obtained at the company's office. It is also stated that payments may be made on easy terms.

CITY'S BUILDING IN SIXTH PLACE.

Los Angeles Shows Amazing Stride, Says Report.

Record Better than Cities of a Million Population.

Greater Gains Expected from Industrial Progress.

The amazing recovery from the building lethargy imposed by war-time restrictions is seen in no city in the United States, comparable in size, as in Los Angeles, according to the government's report on the country's 1919 building operations, which has just been made public. This report puts Los Angeles in the sixth place in the valuation of its building. New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Cleveland and Detroit, with one exception all cities having more than a million population, registered tremendous building gains but the building progress of this city during this period of twelve months, as analyzed by local builders, tells a story which puts Los Angeles in a class alone.

In the five boroughs of New York City the total building valuation was $251,055,796 from 33,562 permits. Chicago's total was $105,080,850, from 6530 permits, or 6754 fewer permits than were issued to builders in Los Angeles. This difference is ascribed to the fact that the new construction in Chicago was largely of an industrial and commercial character and therefore more costly than residential. From the same deduction it is pointed out that the industrial building and development now going forward in Los Angeles will naturally mean a tremendous expansion in both population and business here.

Drawing the same inference from the experience of Akron, O., where from 6649 permits $35,449,498 worth of building resulted, builders contend that from this year's industrial and commercial building will come proportionately this city's greatest benefits. Los Angeles' total of permits amounted to 18,334 in 1919, and its building valuation reached $28,253,619, which gave the city a lead over the Ohio rubber tire center. Akron's building during 1919, as the report shows, reached a large total in industrial and business construction, and with the advent of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, its associated textile mill and allied industries here it is expected that the 1920 building record in Los Angeles will be largely fattened through new industrial construction.

The report also shows that Los Angeles ran far ahead of San Francisco in its 1919 building operations, the total in the Bay City being $14,834,282 from 5360 building permits.

As had been generally predicted, the year just closed saw a tremendous advance in building operations throughout the United States, and this despite the readjustment of material prices to a higher level and the tendency of the part of the lumber companies and mills to advance building costs as the demand for new construction increased.

According to the reports from 171 cities of the United States, the total building valuation in 1919 reached the staggering total of $7,326,936,702, as compared with but $445,549,492 for the preceding year. While it is considered too early to estimate with any degree of accuracy the probable total of local building operations for the present year, the city building department expected to see it exceed the 1919 total by from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000.

Two hundred and thirty-five loans were made, totaling $400,000, Secretary O. M. Robbins said. W. E. Winslow was elected a director to succeed F. W. Mansur, resigned, and other officers were elected as follows: P. G. Beissel, president; E. B. Sprague, vice-president; O. M. Robbins, secretary; H. L. Hanson, treasurer; directors, P. G. Beissel, E. B. Sprague, G. M. Kryhl, N. A. Beals, J. C. Horton, R. S. Gregory, W. E. Winslow.

ONTARIO SECOND.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ONTARIO, Jan. 17.—Ontario's 1919 building record gives this city second place in operations among the towns of San Bernardino county, and third place among the interior cities of Southern California, according to figures made public here today. The figures are: Riverside, $336,935; San Bernardino, $296,425; Ontario, $229,670; Redlands, $219,365; Pomona, $173,930. The other four cities mentioned claim much greater population than Ontario.

GARAGE LEASED.

The Lowrie Realty Company reports leasing to Harry Leonard the garage building being erected at the corner of Stephenson and Esperanza avenues, Bolye Heights, for Mrs. Minnie C. Taylor. The building, constructed of brick, has a frontage of 100 by 100 feet. Edward Cray Taylor is the architect.

HARBOR HOMES.

Seventy-five homes will be built in the Los Angeles Harbor district within this year, according to plans announced by Regan & McLin, local contractors. The houses will be five and six rooms. It is estimated by the builders that the enterprise will involve an expenditure of between $150,000 and $200,000.

FEMININE REALTORS.

Whittier Field Invaded by New "Women's Rights" Firm.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WHITTIER, Jan. 17.—The real estate field here is considerably stirred over the appearance of its latest realty firm, composed of Mrs. S. O. Gibbs and Mrs. Catherine Hobson, strong "women's rights" advocates, who declare they will soon end the "masculine monopoly" on the business of bartering and selling property in this vicinity.

In other words, they intend to "feminize" the business and "make it safe for femocracy," as was explained yesterday at the office of the new firm. The new realtors already have chalked up several deals to their credit, and lively competition with the masculine realty element is expected when they get under full headway.

PIPE TESTS FIXED.

Council Committee Agrees on Sewer Material Specifications.

By a vote of 3 to 2, a special committee of the City Council yesterday approved and adopted City Engineer Hansen's recommendations in regard to the proposed revised specifications for clay and cement sewer pipe to be used in city contracts. Councilmen Wheeler, Fleming and Langdon favor the recommendations, while Councilmen Criswell and Conaway oppose them.

Monday morning the committee will present its finding to the City Council.

The proposed revised specifications provide a hammer test for clay pipe, the requirement being that it have a metallic ring, while cement pipe must pass the absorption, percolation and crushing tests.

ON TRAFFIC PROBLEM.

Council and State Railroad Commission to Confer Monday.

The State Railroad Commission will meet with the City Council at the commission's offices in the Union League Building, at 11 a.m. Monday, for the purpose of discussing the proposed traffic ordinance, as was recently requested by members of the Council. Information to that effect was received yesterday by Chief Engineer Osborne of the Board of Public Utilities, in a telegram from the Railroad Commission. Many phases of the local traffic problem will be considered at this meeting.

FOR SMITH COLLEGE.

Launch Campaign Here for Four-Million Fund.

A campaign to assist in raising a $4,000,000 fund for Smith College, the largest women's college in America, was launched yesterday by a group of Southern California young women, who are graduates of that institution.

The campaign is to be conducted throughout the United States, and will be continued for one month. The fund will be used in paying bigger salaries to the faculty, to erect additional dormitories, and new academic buildings.

The campaign in Southern California will be conducted from the old Army and Navy League quarters, in Pasadena. Miss Ethel L. Norton is district chairman. The Southern California women will endeavor to raise $89,550.

SEEK EARLY TRIAD.

In Judge Bledsoe's court tomorrow morning another effort will be made to fix a date for the trial of Nat Shapiro and A. Phillips, charged in an indictment with violation of the Lever law, in having profiteered in the price of sugar. The defendants are auctioneers.

MAGIC ISLE IS FAST BUILDING.

Catalina Changes Call for Big Expenditure.

Two Millions Involved in Wrigley Plans.

Hotel, Boardwalk, Homes and Dock Included.

With improvements under way at Catalina involving an expenditure of nearly two million dollars, that island resort, called by William W. Wrigley, Jr., his "best real estate investment," is among the busiest spots in Southern California in point of building operations. This is the first official winter season of the resort, which Mr. Wrigley and his associates say they intend to develop to the limit of its great possibilities.

The plans which Mr. Wrigley has personally laid out call for improvements to exceed $1,000,000 to be finished by April first. This work will be done under the supervision of D. M. Rentor, general manager of the island. Included in the development work under construction is a six-mile boardwalk extending from Hamilton Beach on the north side of Avalon to Pebbly Beach on the south. This boardwalk has been completed from the St. Catherine Hotel to Avalon. It will be arranged along the entire way with settees covered with awnings and lined with palms and decorative lights, making the Catalina promenade among the most picturesque in the world.

Ground has been broken for Sugar Loaf Casino, a large dance pavilion of Italian renaissance architecture. This pavilion is situated on a site north of Sugar Loaf, almost adjoining that famous cliff. The structure will be of reinforced concrete, with heavy plate glass at each of its eight sides. There will be about 25,000 feet of floor space, and in the two wings of the building will be shops and concessions.

A new hotel of 180 rooms, three stories high, is being erected on Metropole avenue. It will have a cafeteria to seat 1500 persons, one of the largest in the West. A new sawmill, a two-story freight shed, and an enlarged dock to accommodate the new palatial steamer Avalon, now being fitted at a Brooklyn, N. Y., shipyard, 100 new bungalows, an addition to the St. Catherine Hotel, and a residence for Mr. and Mrs. Wrigley to cost approximately $100,000, are included among the other island improvements.

Extensive private building is also in progress. The Independent Order of Foresters have nearly completed their clubhouse, and the entire Le Favor block is being remodeled and enlarged with new stores, while twenty private residences are in course of construction. In the city of Avalon, under the supervision of A. R. Waddingham, city manager, improvements are being made to the sewer system, the gas and electric plants, and Crescent avenue is being paved.

CAMP FOR WOODCRAFT TRIBES IS PLANNED.

LOS ANGELES MEMBERS WILL MAKE DRIVE FOR THREE THOUSAND DOLLARS.

A campaign to raise $3000 for a permanent camp in Dark Canyon, at the whead of the Arroyo Seco, will be waged by the Los Angeles tribes of the Woodcraft Ltague of America the 23rd to the 31st inst. Scores of young boys who belong to the organization will work in the drive, in the hope of securing a camp where they can lead a wholesome out-of-door life for a few weeks every year.

An initial feature of the campaign will be an entertainment at the Hollywood High School next Friday evening, under auspices of the Hollywood High School tribe. Mrs. Dark Cloud, a noted Indian, and a troop of full-blooded American aborigines will give a sketch, and there will be dancing and music. A general tag will be held next Saturday in Los Angeles and Hollywood, when the public will be asked to support the Woodcraft League.

Harry C. James, Woodcraft ranger of the Los Angeles district, is in charge of the campaign.

An illustration of the good done by the Woodcraft League is given by Mr. James in the fact that one tribe in the city is composed of some fifty boys, only three of whom have fathers. These fatherless youngsters are given many advantages through the league and are taught woodcraft and the value of open-air life.

URGE IMPROVEMENTS AT GRADE CROSSING.

Efforts are being made to have the Pacific Electric lower its tracks at Thirty-eighth street and Long Beach boulevard. The South Park Improvement Association by letter yesterday urged the City Council to take the steps necessary to lessen danger at the crossing and to pave the street there.

It was declared that there are no danger signals at the crossing and that water stands in the street during the rainy weather.

TRADE DELEGATES TO INSPECT CITY PLANTS.

CHAMBER ARRANGES TO ENTERTAIN VISITORS FROM LATIN-AMERICA.

The Foreign Trade Club of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce will attend the seventh national Foreign Trade Council in San Francisco May 12 to 15, not only as delegates, but as bearers of personal invitations to the delegates from Latin-America to visit the Southland following the convention.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee, of which Sylvester L. Weaver is chairman, held yesterday a tentative programme of entertainment was outlined for the visitors and plans made to go to San Francisco in a special train.

The Los Angeles delegation will establish a registration booth at the convention in order to get in personal touch with all delegates from Latin-America. These visitors from foreign countries will be invited to come to Los Angeles for the following Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Those who come will be given opportunity to visit the leading industries of Los Angeles, to become personally acquainted with representative exporters and importers and to see in the making products that go over the world bearing the Los Angeles brand.

The programme will include a brief informal reception Tuesday morning, May 18, at the Chamber of Commerce. Local manufacturers and exporters will be invited to attend this, to meet the foreign delegates, and they also will be permitted to install exhibits of samples. Following the reception, the delegates will be given an automobile ride, including a visit to one of the leading motion-picture studios. All day Wednesday will be devoted to showing the delegates around factories, jobbing houses and the harbor district. On Thursday a side trip of some sort will be arranged.

OF ART AND ARTISTS

BY ANTONY ANDERSON.

The Inner Vision.

Most sweet it is with unuplifted eyes
To pace the ground, if path there be or none,
While a fair region round the traveler lies,
Which he forbears again to look upon;
Pleased rather with some soft ideal scene,
The work of fancy, or some happy tone
Of meditation, slipping in between
The beauty coming and the beauty gone.

If thought and love desert us, from that day
Let us break off all commerce with the Muse;
With thought and love companions of our way,
Whate'er the senses take or may refuse,
The mind's internal heaven shall shed her dews
Of inspiration on the humblest lay.
—[Wordsworth.

Pages From Paris.

Generally speaking, puns have no place in an art column, but when Jules Pages recently arrived in Los Angeles, bringing himself and some other interesting pages from Paris, the temptation of the caption proved irresistible. So let it stand.

You all know Jules Pages. Born and "raised" and launched on the uncertain sea of art in San Francisco, and having many affiliations and relations in Los Angeles, he really "belongs" to California, even though he has spent many years of his maturer life, first as a student, then as an instructor, in Paris. He has had classes in painting and drawing in the Julian Academy for a long time, and his visit to us over, he will return to them shortly.

Mr. Pages is a citizen of the world. He seems to feel himself at home anywhere and, now and again, he is wanted somewhere else. He does so much traveling that we wonder how he finds the time to paint so much and so well. He went to Paris in 1915, after doing good service for us on the art jury of the late lamented exposition in San Francisco. Now he is with us again, showing us, at Cannell & Chaffin's, some of the pictures he has painted in the past four years.

These nineteen pictures are not dark in tone or somber in conception, in spite of the sinister cloud of war that hung over France when they were painted. For Mr. Pages eschewed the brush when his mood was pessimistic. The scenes hold the joyousness of light and air and fresh breezes blowing. They breathe the spirit of peace and contentment, the large sanity of nature, whose rhythmic beauty is not turned to discord by the roar of cannon. They speak the health that is inherent in the artist himself—the rosy, smiling, good-tempered and friendly Jules Pages.

"When I arrived in Paris," said Mr. Pages, "it was night time, and the city was plunged in darkness. What a contrast to the bright sunlight of California that I had just left! I felt homesick, yet I was glad to be back. There was so much that I wanted to do for my Paris. Even a painter of pictures need not be entirely useless in time of war. He may, indeed, help a good deal.

"My class at the Julian had one teacher, myself, two pupils and a model. My boys, all the French ones at least, had gone to war, and many of the Americans had joined the corps of camouflage. So those of us who were perforce left behind started to work in all the channels that were open to us. The American group at the Beaux Arts began to publish a paper for the boys at the front, a paper printing addresses, news, communications and contributions of all sorts. I was made editor, and I soon found myself very busy.

"My classes at the Julian began to pick up with great rapidity. Soon there were eighty in my women's class, where before the war there had been only eight or ten. A reaction in favor of drawing set in. Almost everybody worked in charcoal from the model, only two or three were painting. The color orgies of the 'moderns' had of last swung the pendulum in the opposite direction, and our young artists began to feel the need of construction and form.

"War cleans up many things, and art, in spite of its temporary eclipse, has not suffered but gained. All through the war picture sales were brisker even than in times of peace, for many people had become rich and were anxious to spend. Just before I left Paris, in October, a large exhibition opened at the Luxembourg in which 140 American painters and sculptors were represented, and no less than 125 of these artists are living in America. And now we in America are inviting the French to hold an exhibition in the Metropolitan Museum next spring. These ententes cordiales are certainly encouraging to art and artists. They tell us of a world solidarity. I, too, have been invited to show in the spring, not, however, at the Metropolitan, but at the Georges Petit galleries in Paris. As M. Petit seldom asks, but is always eagerly besought, I feel rather proud of the compliment he has paid me."

We, too, feel rather proud of our native son. And we feel pleased that he is showing us some of his pictures before he hands them over to M. Georges Petit. The nineteen on West Seventh street are all representative, and they are new. Let us examine a few of them, briefly here, much longer when we find ourselves in the charming gallery that has been so well lighted—so precisely like daylight from the north—through Mr. Pages's genuity and resourcefulness. Artists, as we know, are the greatest inventors in the world.

How bright is the sunlight that lies on the yellow road that leads through a sloping hill of green fields in "The Village of Kerioual," how ruddy the hues in the trees, how halcyon the whole subject of the picture. Mr. Pages's technique here, as in all his pictures, is direct, forceful, sincere. The canvas is the impression of a keen observer and lover of nature who rather distrusts hyper-subtleties. The pictorial truth is amazing. Yet exquisite graduations of tone are not lacking in the scenes where nature spread them out for the artist's sensitive eye. Note the sky in "Village of St. Julian, Brittany," all silvery gray with hints of green and blue. How delightful are the French houses with their high-shouldered yellow and gray roofs.

The skies that Mr. Pages sees and feels are always beautiful. In "The Old Book Shop," a Parisian subject, it is gray twilight suffused with the golden light of autumn; against it we have the green book stall, an old man browsing among the books, slender trees with a few brown leaves clinging to them, Notre Dame looming in the distance. In "Moret Near Fontainebleau" it is pale gold, and the three tree-trunks and the red-roofed buildings that tower in the middle distance are bathed in sunlight. It is gold, again, in "Little Port, Brittany," a scheme of pale blues under sunshine. And gold in "The Old Mill of Quiberon," three advancing figures of women in a road, the circular mill to the right.

An attractive scheme of grays is found in "End of Day," a man leading a horse past a bridge and picturesque old Paris buildings. Here are the poetry and pathos of labor. Very different is the lyric liveliness in the two subjects, "Afternoon at Villeneuve, Burgundy," and "Late Afternoon at Villeneuve," red-roofed houses reflected in quiet waters. The two sparkle with color; they palpitate with light. They record one of the artist's most frequent moods.

This attractive little collection of French impressions will remain in the gallery one week longer.

Landscapes by Bartlett.

Dana Bartlett's exhibition of twenty-seven landscapes has just been transferred from Long Beach to the Elisabeth Battey gallery, 294 East Colorado street, in Pasadena. It is thoroughly representative of this artist, being various moods of nature painted in broad sunlight, at twilight and at night.

To me the series of paintings that he calls nocturnes are the most beautiful, the most tender and the most poetic from his brush. He feels intensely the glamourie of night, the rich morbidezza of its sky, the elusive mystery of its forms and the tender subtleties of its colors, and he transfers his impressions to canvas with great skill.

One of these is entitled "In the Park," though it might have been called "Among the Immortal Gods," so classically perfect are the long balustrades, gleaming white in the moonlight, that surround the foreground lake, so like a votive fire is that which burns on one of the columns. The subject, indeed, painted in cool greenish tones, is like that of a temple in the groves of Academe. Hardly less attractive is "The Pool," purple and blue, the slender tree lifting up a sort of bouquet of foliage, the blue-green sky set with one palpitating star. "Evening" has a sky of gold and rose, and here, also, is pictured a pool. The canvas has great charm of color, though its composition is rather conventional.

"Morning Calm" is painted in water-color gouache, its tones being delicate blues and grays touched with yellow in the sky. We see a warship in the offing, the white wings of the wheeling seagulls are reflected in the placid water. The painting is simply and forcefully done. "Early Morning" gives us the river docks of a city seen through mists of a warm gray. We are shown warehouses, huge tanks, puffing tugs, the smoke rising from tall stacks—all the busy life along the wharves. Another interesting city scene is that done in crayons and opaque water colors, "River Front, Portland." Yellow and red buildings are placed against a light-blue sky.

We have golden hill slopes, mountains of gray and rose, with lines and forms rythmically seen and rendered, in "Landscape." Another canvas, "Spring Landscape," is jocund with light, two white goats on a green meadow, the distant mountains being purplish, the clouds pink and purple. We also find much light in "May Morning," whose mountains are a rosy purple, and whose foreground sycamore offers us the gold of a handful of leaves.

Miss Bush's Miniatures.

Another attractive exhibition at the Battey gallery is that of seven miniatures by Ella Shepard Bush. Miss Bush paints these tiny records of character with rare distinction, touching them with the beauty of a high idealism. The most of the pictures in this collection have been seen by us before, but we are glad of the opportunity to study them again—"The Hostess," "Michael in Paracelsus," "Barbara" and "Barbara's Mother." The charming portrait of Marion Moore is (I think) new, a blonde girl against a light green background, and so is the fine characterization called "Mrs. Mullin."

Sharp's Landscapes.

It was my intention to review this week the fifteen landscapes, fine essays at the rendering of California's sunlight, that Louis Hovey Sharp is showing at the Ely gallery, 288 East Colorado street, but for lack of space I shall be compelled to keep my opinion for another week. These are the best studies in landscape that Mr. Sharp has so far given us, and should not be neglected by those who are interested in the progress of art in Southern California.

California in the Corcoran.

The bi-ennial exhibition at the Corcoran gallery, Washington, D. C., opened December 21. Only nineteen paintings out of 200 were accepted from Philadelphia. About 25 per cent. of those offered from Boston and New York were taken. From the West pictures were accepted from Donna Schuster, Benjamin Chambers Brown and Edgar Keller and also from Ritschel, Groll and the other painters in New Mexico. As the jury was a stiff one our western painters did well.

In Pasadena.

The gallery at O'Hara & Livermore's, in Pasadena, is holding an exhibition of strikingly fresh and colorful pictures from the brush of Kathryn Logan Luke, who hails from Birmingham, Ala., and who has just returned there after a visit of six weeks with a sister in Hollywood.

Old Bridge at Villeneuve, Burgundy, by Jules Pages.

Miller & Lux Lands

The Rush Is On

Never, perhaps, in the history of land-selling in California, has there been a more immediate and remarkable response to an announcement than that to our announcement last week of the first allotment of Miller & Lux lands.

Letters, telegrams, long-distance telephone messages, have come, not only from all over California, but from outside the State.

Our offices have been thronged with persons inquiring about this truly unusual opportunity.

And no wonder—for these lands were chosen by Henry Miller when he had all of California to choose from. Undoubtedly Henry Miller was one of the greatest land buyers this country has ever known, and he chose the best. The Miller & Lux corporation owns 600,000 acres, and this is the FIRST OPPORTUNITY to acquire a part of this greatest and choicest land holding in California, and one of the greatest in the world.

This first allotment of 30,000 acres is located at Madera. The land is wonderfully well adapted to the raising of peaches, figs, apricots, Thompson seedless and Muscat grapes.

Land will be sold on easy terms.

Considering the rising tide of demand for this allotment, we urge all persons interested to communicate with this office at once.

Do not delay.

BLAMES CORNER TIE-UPS.

Dunlop Says Congestion Cause is not Parking of Autos.

BY GEORGE H. DUNLOP.

Automobiles parked at the curb do not interfere with traffic on wide streets such as Main, Spring, Broadway, Hill and Seventh. Automobiles parked at the curb do interfere with traffic on narrow streets such as Third, Fifth and Sixth.

On wide streets there is ample room between the street car tracks and the auto parked at the curb for moving autos to travel.

The thing that limits the carrying capacity of our wide north and south streets is the difficulty autos have in crossing the intersections. These intersections are closed half the time for travel on the cross streets. For this reason alone the center of the block can deliver more autos to the street intersection than can get across the intersection after they have arrived.

MUST FORM IN LINE.

Even though autos come down the center of the block to the intersection two abreast they must reform in single line at great risk, in order to cross. This formation at the intersection is necessary because, between the curb and the safety zone for passengers getting on and off the street cars, there is only room for a single line of autos.

Mathematically, there may, at some corners be room for two autos abreast between the safety zone and the curb, but they would be jammed so close together that collisions would be frequent, and as for the poor street car passengers attempting to get on or off street cars, through the double row of moving automobiles, their fate would be tragic indeed.

A little observation will show that on our wide streets it is the conditions at the street intersections, not the parking of autos in the middle of the block, that interferes with general travel.

On narrow streets that carry street car lines, such as Third, Fifth and Sixth streets, automobiles parked at the curb seriously interfere with general traffic, because there is not room for moving autos to pass between the street car and the autos parked at the curb.

Under these conditions, both street cars and moving autos have to use the street car tracks. As a result, if the autos arrive at the intersection ahead of the street car, and wait at the intersection for the signal to cross, the street car is held back in the middle of the block, where passengers do not get on and off, and later, when it reaches the corner, must make another stop for its passengers.

A CORNER MIX-UP.

If, however, the street car reaches the corner first, the autos behind it are blocked, and even though the signal to cross is given, the autos behind the street car cannot move until the street cars has finished its loading and unloading, and is itself ready to move. The absurdities of this situation rise to a ridiculous limit on Sixth street, being accentuated by the curving of the street car tracks at certain corners.

Prohibit the parking of automobiles at the curb, on Third street from Los Angeles street to the tunnel, on Fifth street from Los Angeles street to Grand avenue, and on Sixth street from Los Angeles street to Figueroa, and we will have secured all the relief from traffic congestion that can be secured by prohibition of parking.

Further relief from traffic congestion can only be secured by providing additional street facilities such as the Second street tunnel, the North Hill street tunnel, the opening up of Fifth street to Figueroa, etc. Even then Los Angeles will not have as much street space in its business center as it ought to have, in comparison with the amount of area on which buildings can be erected. Our east and west streets are too narrow and too far apart.

BROADWAY TRAFFIC.

As a matter of fact, much of the congestion on Broadway is not due to the traffic that really wants to go south on Broadway, but is due to the traffic that wants to go west, but because of the impassible condition of Fifth and Sixth streets, is forced to go south to Seventh street to get a chance to go west. There is no congestion of north and south traffic at Broadway and Eighth street, because so much traffic has turned west before reaching Eighth.

Our north and south streets are wide and close together. Our east and west streets are narrow and far apart. Open up the now nearly impassable east and west streets, Third, Fifth and Sixth, and there will not be so many automobiles crowding down Broadway to Seventh, in their round-about effort to go west.

The rerouting of the street cars, which has already been ordered, will eliminate the turning of street cars at Seventh and Broadway, and at other important corners and this of itself will do much to relieve traffic congestion.

HOME AUXILIARY TO GIVE ENTERTAINMENT.

Mrs. H. M. Hand will entertain the Woman's Work Auxiliary and circles of the Florence Crittenton Home at her residence, 1200 West Sixth street, on Wednesday. Following a review of the past year's work a musical entertainment will be given, those on the programme being Mrs. Carleton Bain Bridge, Miss Sylvia Harding, Mrs. Susanne Joyce Spear and Mrs. C. E. Vermilyea. One of the features of the entertainment will be the auctioning of one of Mary Pickford's dolls, donated to the auxiliary.

SEED FOR DISTRIBUTION.

Congressman Henry Z. Osborne states that he has received an allotment of vegetable seed for distribution among the people of the Tenth Congress District, comprising nearly all of Los Angeles, except Boyle Heights and East Los Angeles, and also including the territory west of the city to the ocean, and that he will mail a package of such seed to any resident of the Tenth District who may request it in writing, distinctly giving his address. These will be sent out so long as they last.

WON'T BE OUSTED.

Sonora Governor Denies Report of Action by Carranza.

Gov. Aldolfo de la Huerta of Sonora, Mex., today telegraphed to Teodora Frezieres, his personal representative here, denying recently-published statements that President Carranza had sent Gen. Pesquera with 5000 men to oust Gov. de la Huerta and place Sonora under martial law.

The original report stated that such action had been taken, because it was reported that Gov. de la Huerta was a sympathizer of Gen. Obregon, a candidate for President of Mexico.

Senor Frezieres said he brought Gov. de la Huerta's attention to the published statements, and that the latter's denial followed at once. Senor Frezieres also drew attention to the fact that the report was improbable, because, he said, under the constitution of Mexico the Governor of Sonora is an elective officer, and can be removed by the Federal authority only by impeachment and trial.

SHOCK KILLS TOURIST.

Aged Woman's Hip Fractured on Train While on Journey Here.

The death of Mrs. Augusta Simpson, a tourist, who died at the Santa Fe Hospital last Wednesday, was caused by shock due to a fracture of the hip, sustained in a sudden lurch of the sleeper in which she was riding, according to a statement made yesterday by Dr. A. F. Wagner, county autopsy surgeon.

Mrs. Simpson was about 80 years old and, in company with a daughter and daughter-in-law, was coming to Los Angeles to spend the winter. Funeral arrangements are being delayed, pending the arrival here of Mrs. Simpson's two sons from Texas, where they are engaged in the oil business.

SHOW FOR RABBITS.

Pet Stock Association to Hold Exhibit Next Week.

The annual championship show of the Southern California Rabbit and Pet Stock Association is to be held for five days from January 24 to 28, inclusive, this year, according to announcement made yesterday by Andrew T. Wilson, manager of the exposition. The show will be held at 241 South Broadway, but all entries must be sent to 814 South Main street.

The officers of the association are William D. White, president; L. H. Salisbury, vice-president; C. E. Chittick, secretary; J. E. Love, treasurer. Carl E. Sherman is superintendent of the show and Homer Anderson, secretary and treasurer.

Tht judges will be C. S. Gibson, of Detroit; L. H. Salisbury of Pasadena; C. C. Hawley, of Dallas, and Edward Deicke, of Lombard, Ill. Entries will be received up to next Friday, the date set for judging. The show will be thrown open to the public on Saturday. The manner in which entries are pouring in indicates an unusual amount of interest in the exposition.

SAYS WIFE BEAT HIM.

Used Broomstick, Husband Charges in Suit for Divorce.

Judge Taft intimated yesterday that Mrs. Margaret Snider could amend her cross-complaint with the possibility of obtaining a divorce. The action was brought by Adrian H. Snider, who charged his wife with striking him with a broomstick and being a careless housewife.

He admitted under cross-examination that his wife had him arrested as a slacker and that he had been charged in Judge Crail's court with failure to provide. Mrs. Snider denied that she had been cruel to him.

Some Prize Winning Building Plans

¶ Our recently-advertised architectural competition for a Hollow Tile House to cost $5000 attracted wide attention among architects and draftsmen, many of whom participated in the contest.

¶ Our chief reason for offering cash prizes was to stimulate the keen interest already awakened in Hollow Tile. The results of our efforts in this direction have been most satisfactory.

¶ Both exteriors and floor plans of the 4 cash prize winners as well as plans receiving favorable mention by the judges may be seen. The uniform excellency of these house designs is at once apparent.

¶ This rather unique exhibit offers a splendid opportunity for anyone contemplating building to study the latest and most modern ideas in house construction and the advantage of building with Tile.

WANTS WEAPON LAW ENFORCED.

Make it Harder to Get Them, Prison Warden Urges.

Says Such Action will Soon Reduce Crime Record.

Strict Regulation Provided in Act Now in Force.

BY J. A. JOHNSTON,
Warden San Quentin Prison.

A law enacted by the Legislature of California and approved May 4, 1917, relates to and regulates the carrying, possession, sale or other disposition of firearms and other dangerous weapons. From my observation and study of the cause of crime I am of the opinion that such crimes as assaults with deadly weapons, attempt to kill, manslaughter and murder will be lessened if weapons are harder to get.

If this law is strictly enforced by marshals and police officials and faithfully carried out by dealers, and if dealers decline to sell weapons to persons who cannot show a license to carry, many lives will be saved and much crime prevented. Because I believe we should try to prevent crime I am sending copies of this law to peace officers and the press.

MUST GET PERMIT.

Firearms ought not to be in the possession of irresponsible persons.

No person should carry weapons of any kind unless absolutely necessary.

Chapter 145, Statutes of 1917, aims to regulate the sale, carrying, possession and disposition of firearms and other dangerous weapons capable of being concealed upon the person.

Every person desiring to carry weapons is required, under the provisions of this law, to secure license from the board of police commissioners, chief of police, city marshal, town marshal or other head of police department.

Police commissioners, chiefs, marshals and other police authorities are authorized to issue licenses when application is filed in writing, provided the applicant is of good moral character, and when satisfied that good cause exists for issuance of license.

Retail dealers, pawnbrokers and every person engaged in the business of selling, leasing or otherwise transferring pistols, revolvers or other firearms capable of being concealed upon the person are required to register sales of weapons in duplicate upon forms prepared by the State printer. The seller and purchaser are required to sign the register. It is the duty of the seller to turn the duplicate sheet of register over to police officials at the close of business every evening.

WEAPONS UNDER BAN.

The law makes it a misdemeanor to manufacture or lease, keep for sale, offer, give or otherwise dispose of to any person a blackjack, slungshot, sandclub, sandbag, metal knuckles, dirk or dagger. A previous conviction makes the misdemeanor into a felony. Every person who possesses any such weapon or carries a dirk or dagger comes under the same ruling.

Any person who carries in any city, city or county, town or municipal corporation a pistol, revolver or other firearm concealed on his person, without having a license to carry such firearm, is guilty of a misdemeanor or felony. The act also provides that such weapons or firearms shall be held nuisances and shall be seized and destroyed.

Any person who attempts to use or, with intent to use, carries any of the weapons enumerated is guilty of a felony under the act, and the carrying of such a weapon while committing or attempting to commit a felony or breach of the peace shall be presumptive evidence of intent to use the weapon under the meaning of the act.

SCHOOL FOR SERVICE MEN READY TO OPEN

FIVE HUNDRED REGISTERED FOR KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS CLASSES HERE.

The Knights of Columbus free night school for demobolized service men will throw open its doors on January 26 according to an announcement made today by Educational Director A. M. Reilly.

Registration passed the 500 mark yesterday and Mr. Reilly's instructions from department director, A. G. Bagley, were to announce the opening date when that number was reached.

The school is located at 409 South Hill street, but formal opening exercises, to which prominent public officials will be invited, will be held in the main auditorium of the Knights of Columbus Building. Bishop Cantwell will be asked to make the principal address.

Two new courses were added to the curriculum yesterday by Director Reilly. One will be a course in sign writing, poster display work and artistic design under the direction of Walter B. Currier, who conducted successful classes last year at the University of California summer school. The course will be made appealing to metal workers, interior decorators, goldsmiths, printers and lithographers who have to deal with artistic effects and designs.

Registrar P. F. Newell expects the new course to be one of the most popular of the entire fifteen to be given.

IMMEDIATE ACTION ON TREATY SOUGHT.

CHAMBER'S BOARD OF DIRECTORS SAYS ADOPTION WILL AID NATION'S BUSINESS.

A resolution supporting the early signing of the Peace Treaty and the covenant of the League of Nations and urging that the Chamber of Commerce of the United States take similar action, was passed yesterday by the board of directors of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce. Copies were sent to President Wilson and to Congress:

The text of the resolution is as follows.

"Resolved: That the United States Senate should without further delay ratify the Treaty of Peace, including the League of Nations, with only such reservations as will perfect the plan and help to carry out its purposes. We believe such action, promptly taken, will help to inspire confidence, allay discontent and stabilize business conditions throughout the world. Be it further

"Resolved, that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, with the request that it or a similar resolution be adopted by that body and forwarded to the United States Senate."

CLUB GETS LIBRARY.

Directors Establish Branch at Downtown Reading-room.

Because of the increasing demand for books and magazines at the Men's Club, Third and Main streets, the board of directors of the Public Library has created a branch there and appointed Schuyler C. Brewster as librarian. There are now 300 books in the branch and gifts of books and magazines for the club rooms are solicited.

Mr. Brewster said yesterday that the club is patrinized by all classes of men. There is a great demand for reading matter and the reading-room is generally crowded. Magazines devoted to politics and the sciences and arts are particularly popular, Mr. Brewster stated.

WIFE'S LETTER WINS DECREE FOR HUSBAND.

"MY DARLING SWEETHEART" NOTE SHE WRITES TO SOLDIER STARTS TROUBLE.

William C. Leonard won a divorce from May Emma Leonard in Judge Crail's court yesterday, a "My Darling Sweetheart" letter from the wife to Carl Huddleston, introduced in evidence, playing an important part. Mr. Leonard said he found the letter when he called at the hospital to see his wife. She seized one side of the letter and he the other and in the struggle it was torn.

He got scattered pieces, he said, and pasted them together. Letters from Mr. Huddleston to Mrs. Leonard while the former was in the army were also produced in court. Mrs. Leonard wrote in part:

"It did not make you jealous, did it, when I told you about the young man that I used to go out with once in a while who came to see me Saturday? But he did not come back, and I don't care if he never comes back. I did not let him kiss me when he came in or when he left me, so there is no need of your getting jealous."

Mr. Huddleston is alleged to have written Mrs. Leonard:

"How lonesome I have been for you. I love you more every day, so think how much that will count up if we stay away a year or more. Tell me that you love me in the next letter, even if you have to fib a little."

He also is alleged to have written:

"Oh, if I could only hold you in my arms today and press my lips to yours. I'd hold you until you loved me for keeps."

SAYS WOMAN WROTE SEVEN BAD CHECKS.

After testimony purporting to show that the handwriting on three checks signed S. G. Bell, the indorsements on them by Mildred Johnson, accused of passing fictitious checks, and four checks signed Viola Bell and given to a local store, are the same, the case was continued yesterday by Justice Hinshaw for additional testimony.

Miss Johnson says that the three checks she admits cashing were given by a man named Bell, and her attorney, S. S. Hahn, says that Viola Bell is not the defendant and that she did not sign the checks she cashed.

MONTEBELLO CRUDE

Reports from the drilling superintendent indicate that good progress is being made on Well No. 1.

NOW DOWN APPROXIMATELY 2900 FEET

Three sets of crews are at work 24 hours around—driving the drills steadily towards the levels where the adjacent wells—the nearest only 500 yards away—pierced the oil sands.

NO DELAYS

Are anticipated in completing this well. Moneys up to $100,000 are guaranteed by financially responsible officers of the company. No well with more perfect equipment or material ever has been drilled in this State. Economy and efficiency are assured under the supervision of Superintendent Dave Martin—the veteran driller recognized by every first-class oil man of California.

MONTEBELLO CRUDE FIRST CLASS WELL

Superintendent Martin is of the firm opinion backed by his reputation that Montebello Crude Well No. 1 will prove to be a first-class well. His opinion is based on the log of this well as compared with logs of adjacent wells as well as his many years experience and familiarity with this field.

$1.00 PER SHARE

Backed by financially responsible and thoroughly capable oil operators, we believe Montebello Crude offers an unusual opportunity for profit taking. May we urge you to come to a decision promptly?

The opportunity we believe is here—it is up to you to do the rest.

NEW COTTON MILL.

Ripley to Have Plant Important to Palo Verde Valley.

RIPLEY, Jan. 17.—The Palo Verde Valley is to have a cottonseed oil mill and feeding station. Final arrangements have been made by Southern oil mill men, headed by C. E. Power, for the erection of a cotton gin and oil mill at Ripley. The mill and accessories, including feeding sheds and pens covering ten acres, will involve an investment in excess of $100,000. The industry will employ considerable labor, and will be the means of bringing many thousands of dollars into the valley, which now goes elsewhere.

An important innovation is promised in connection with the feeding. A special mill is to be provided for the grinding of cotton stalks, now a waste product on the farm, to supply roughage for use with cottonseed meal or cake in the fattening of live-stock. It is claimed that experiments have proved that the value of cotton stalks for this use. The gin and mill will be ready for next season's crop.

"NOT FOR SALE."

Home Owner Adopts Unique Way of Stopping Inquiries.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ONTARIO, Jan. 17.—Growing weary of being pestered by real estate agents and would-be purchasers who sought to buy her home at 303 West H street, Ontario, Mrs. Susie R. Mills purchased space in a local newspaper and announced that her house was "not for sale." Mrs. Mills explained that not only was her place not for sale, but she was perfectly happy in it, that she wouldn't be dislodged from it either by "dollars or doughnuts," and that the family dog would attend to all prowlers.

The demand for houses in Ontario has been exceedingly heavy for several months, and reports show it to be growing rather than lessening. Houses for rent are not to be found, a fact that has compelled many newcomers, wishing to remain permanently, to buy a place to live in.

DAILY TRADE TALK.

Week in Review; Bank Situation Good; Beans will Soon Cost More.

BY CHAPIN HALL.

An unsettled stock market; bonds in good demand at bargain prices; real estate appreciation; extended building development; significant oversubscription of the big Belgian loan; record-breaking bank clearings; shortage of housing accommodations; continued influx of visitors; growing sentiment in favor of meeting traffic problem by opening new arteries; inauguration of Broadway lighting system; continued high tide of buying; increased cost of some commodities, including foodstuffs, partially offset by decline in butter and eggs; deposits increasing very fast; excellent credit situation; public favoring speculative issues giving promise of high interest rates on theory that high cost makes greater earning power imperative; foreign exchange situation very bad; Russian situation disquieting; local export trade growing; automobile deliveries weeks behind in spite of seasonal slack in most parts of the country; no labor troubles, and labor fully employed; merchants anticipating sharp increase in freight rates with return of roads to private ownership; business making ready for heavy income tax payments.

These are a few of the items which have contributed during the past week to the creation of a scrambled business condition and which makes it difficult to guess just what the immediate future holds in store. There are good features and bad features, and whether the good features counter-balance the bad features afford a never-failing debatable premise. Here are a few paragraph sermons from current financial and business reviews which may throw a little light on the subject, although it is only fair to say that so far as Los Angeles is concerned, the general feeling in practically every division of finance, industry and commerce is one of sustained optimism.

Moody's Investment Letter: The recent spectacular rise in the average price levels of commodities should shortly stop. Before late spring we should begin to see very clear evidences of a lower price level in many directions, accompanied by a more conservative attitude on the part of merchants; a more careful handling of inventories.

Coleman & Reitze: The world's coinage of silver money must be revised. The world needs some wizard or group of wizards who can supply $20,000,000 in silver to India and China; at least 200,000,000 ounces a year to the mints of the world; about $125,000,000 a year for ten years to validate part of the huge issues of paper money put out during the war; 60,000,000 ounces a year for movies and commercial industries. Only a fool would dare predict how high the price of silver will go.

Henry Clews: The business situation at the opening of the new year appears to be more than encouraging, and points to an active year's work if financial difficulties can be avoided.

Henry L. Doherty & Co.: Fixed income-bearing securities have suffered severely in market prices from the advance in the cost of living, and the consequent decreased purchasing power of the dollar. The investor who three years ago owned these fixed income-bearing securities, and received from a satisfactory income now finds that the amounts received in interest or in dividends will not purchase much more than one-half the volume of commodities they would purchase three years ago. The investment banker fully realizes that when there comes a definite trend toward lower commodity prices there will come a definite upward trend in the market prices of fixed income-bearing investment securities.

Petroleum Magazine: The whole industry (oil) is in a very strong position, well prepared for rapid development. Huge consolidations of producing and refining interests are taking place. Some of the strongest concerns in the country are engaged in the development of foreign oil fields. In due time the United States should be in a position to draw heavily on the rich fields of Colombia and other South American countries.

A. W. Coote: The outlook for 1920 is brighter than for any year since the start of the war. The market has not offered more apparent possibilities in the last few years, either to the careful investor who is looking for a combination of maximum safety and maximum yield, or to the speculator who endeavors to forestall upswings by buying when prices are low.

Alexander Hamilton Institute: The strongest possibility for continued high prices in 1920 lies in the creation of scarcity of commodities through exports on credit. Europe is still desirous of buying on credit, and if orders are forthcoming, efforts will doubtless be made to provide credit. However, it is likely that reconstruction work in Europe will be accomplished without any considerable rise in prices from the present level, and that production abroad will recover rapidly during 1920 so that an increasing supply of goods will cause a declining tendency in prices a year hence.

First National Bank of Chicago: The demand for bank credit has been steady and strong all through the year and discount rates have ruled high. Banks, therefore, have again had an opportunity to make large profits. Contraction and deflation of credits have not yet commenced and business failures with resulting losses to the banks have been few and unimportant. It will be the part of prudence and good banking for the banks having excess profits, after setting aside their excess profits taxes, to provide liberally for losses which though not discernable now are likely to occur in the process of contraction and deflation which must sooner or later take place.

National Bank of Commerce, New York: The return of normal competition in shipping and America's new prominence in world commerce make the operation of our war-built merchant fleet an important problem in our national policy. Despite our lack of experience in international shipping there is an evident determination to develop our maritime opportunities instead of depending on other nations as in the past. Such development is possible for this country only if our merchant fleet is privately owned and operated, and if the restrictions of our present maritime laws which cripple American shippers in competition with other nations are removed.

Bank Superintendent Here.

Charles F. Stern, State superintendent of banks, spent yesterday at the Listening Post as he calls his Los Angeles office, high up in the Hibernian Building. Mr. Stern finds many problems in the southern part of the State, which have little contact with those of the north, and it was for the purpose of establishing a closer touch with the financial interests of the Southland that he caused the local headquarters to be opened. Whatever difference of opinion may exist over the wisdom of Gov. Stephens' appointments they do not appear to extend into this department, and since he took over the job a year ago the superintendent has succeeded in developing a harmonious entity and establishing a confidential relationship with the bankers, which is reflected in the smooth conduct of his office. He visits Los Angeles twice a month and thereby saves tiresome journeys on the part of those who would consult him, and during his tenure he has been signally successful in ironing out some rough spots in the fabric. The storm which came up when his bond amortization plan was proposed subsided as suddenly when the operation thereof was explained. He says that the banks of the State generally and especially in the Los Angeles district are functioning 100 per cent.

Foreign Exchange.

Dealers in foreign exchange in Los Angeles report a considerable business in this particular field, and the rapidly-changing quotations are watched with unusual interest by many local investors. It is found impracticable to follow the vibrations of the New York market and transactions here are based upon a fixed set of prices which is established once each day, and which strikes an average in the up and down movement of the exchange bulb. In order to localize this market and give readers the benefit of home prices The Times has arranged with the foreign exchange department of the Farmers' and Merchants' National Bank to give daily publicity to the quotations upon which exchange business is being transacted in this city.

Home Savings Branch.

That was a significant story in The Times yesterday telling of the purchase, by the Home Savings Bank, of a site for a new branch at the corner of Seventh and Alvarado streets. Significant because of the absolute necessity the bank found itself under to secure an adquate home for its branch in that part of town; significant because of the fact that it was found impossible to rent or lease a desirable site, and significant again because the price paid, $900 a foot, is said to establish a new record for business property in that community center, which only a short time ago was strictly residential. The Home is not going into the real estate business, and the purchase was a matter of self protection. An attractive and thoroughly

LATEST NEWS OF FOOD PRICES.

The strong condition of the bean market indicates that prices are due for an advance, said F. E. Harris, head of the firm of F. E. Harris & Co., yesterday. Beans for a long time have been selling at the cost of production; demand has been dull, and prices have failed to advance in proportion to the increase for other commodities. Growers are now getting 1½ cents more for lima beans than they received six weeks ago, while baby limas are up 2 cents per pound. The growing demand in the Southern States for the blackeye variety has advanced prices 1½ cents per pound, with strong indications for a similar advance before the new crop comes in. Pink beans and large and small whites have gone up 1 cent per pound in the past six weeks.

So far the consumer has not been affected to any great extent in the advance of prices, for most of this increase is absorbed between the producer and the retailer. If the market continues to advance, however, as Mr. Harris predicts, the retail price of the poor man's food must inevitably bear some of the increase.

The Acid Test of Financial Strength

FEW people realize that in California there is a company which was able, because of its exceptional financial standing, to borrow over $6,000,000 from the public during the war, at an average cost of less than 6% including amortization of discount. Equally surprising is the fact that instead of being short term financing, which most companies had to resort to, this loan does not mature until 1942.

This is a record which we believe was unexcelled and probably unequalled by any company in the United States during the war. Very few governments did as well.

This was accomplished by the Pacific Gas & Electric Company. In 1907 this Company served 180,460 consumers and in 1919 over 519,400, or a growth of 240% in twelve years. The future growth of this Company is only limited by the future growth of California.

The management has been conservative. During the thirteen years ending December 31, 1918, the total net earnings were $47,945,850. Of this great sum $34,379,000 or over 70% was retained in the business, less than 30% being paid out in dividends.

John Moody, who is generally considered to be the greatest analyst of Investment Securities in America, rates its Preferred Stocks as a "high grade investment" whose "position is even more secure now than it was before the war."

Dividends have been paid continuously for over ten years.

If you are interested in securing a steady income of over 6½% on your money, free from all California personal property taxes and the Normal Federal Income Tax, write, call or telephone for information regarding Pacific Gas & Electric Company First Preferred Stock.

Where Romance Is—

In Northern Louisiana each hour sees a new discovery made; each day a new gusher; each week brings stories of more wealth. Shreveport, a city hard to match for activity, a few months ago, is living over again the days of the Standards and Leadvilles. It is an almost unbroken story of high-grade oil fields.

The Unity Oil News tells the story of Shreveport, its oil fields and its sudden growth. It's better reading than detective stories because it's more dramatic. It's REAL.

equipped banking building will be erected on the corner, and the balance of the property will probably be improved by other investors.

Stevens-Duryea.

The issue of Stevens Duryea preferred and common stock which is now being offered locally by the H. W. Dubiske Company is proving one of the year's best sellers and Local Manager C. M. Knox reports considerable difficulty in securing enough of the stock to supply the demand. He has just secured an additional allotment, which is rapidly going the way of the earlier blocks although the price of the common has advanced during the process. He said yesterday that it was doubtful that the allotment would last two weeks. The return of the Stevens-Duryea to the automobile field is an event of considerable interest to public and trade and the receipt of the first cars is expectantly awaited. It is said that the entire output for the year is already underwritten, and that there have been twenty-five applicants for the Los Angeles agency.

The Stock Market.

The local market continued to show signs of weakness during the apathetic trading, which marked the short session yesterday. Union Oil held its own at the level of the preceding day, $183, and Union of Delaware was still available at $34.50. Associated sold down to $115.50. Jade dropped back to 17¼ cents and Maxsot to $2.40. Republic Petroleum, which does not seem to be affected by the average trend, was traded in up to 37 3-4 cents with no stock offered at the close for less than 38 cents. Industrials were in good shape, but not very active. Los Angeles Investment touched par in the early trading, reacting to closing sales at 99 cents. Goodyear, preferred, was at par and a quarter and Southern California Edison strong at 90. Mines were rather weak with the exception of Gold Reef, which has developed new life during the week and has been in fair demand on an ascending scale, due, it is said, to favorable reports from the property. Eleven thousand shares changed hands yesterday at 13 1-8 and 13 1-4 cents. Tom Reed sold off to $1.71¼ a net loss of a point on a small volume of trading. While there were no transactions in United Eastern the closing bid was $3.98¼ at $4.05. Telluride sold at 17 1-2 cents. The bond market was quiet with little price change. President Pettingell, of the exchange, has again called attention to the importance of securing new listings. In 1919 fourteen were added. "The question of new listings is one of vital importance," Mr. Pettingell told the members, "for unless a respectable number of desirable listings are secured each year the progress of the exchange will lose its momentum."

Income Tax.

The surtax rate is 1 per cent. on the net income in excess of $5000 and not over $6000, and increases by steps of 1 per cent. for each $2000 of net income up to and including 48 per cent. on net income in excess of $98,000 and not over $100,000. From this point the rates run as follows. Fifty-two per cent. on net income over $100,000 and not over $150,000, 56 per cent. on net income over $150,000 and not over $200,000, 60 per cent. on net income over $200,000 and not over $300,000, 63 per cent. on net income over $300,000 and not over $500,000, 64 per cent. on net income over $500,000 and not over $1,000,000, and 65 per cent. on net income over $1,000,000.

Beatty Oil Announcement

Less than 12,000 shares of Beatty Oil Stock remains to be sold at 75 cents per share.

When this small amount is subscribed, stock remains entirely withdrawn from the market without further notice and will not be again offered until drilling operations now under way at Eagle Rock and in Ventura County will warrant a much higher price.

The Beatty Oil & Development Company is now drilling day and night on its 300 acre tract near Eagle Rock and is also making preparations to commence active drilling on its 1000-acre lease in Ventura County, (the home of high gravity oil).

Both wells were staked by William E. Stephens, and while we do not expect a well of the gusher type in Ventura such as at Eagle Rock, Mr. Stephens predicts a good producer on our Ventura lease. This company also owns a ten-acre lease in the Richfield district where there is some excitement at this time.

A monthly report will be mailed to those interested, keeping them fully posted as to developments on our different properties.

Why SHOULD You "Invest In My Leases"

WHAT ARE the considerations that should lead ANYONE to invest good money in an unproven OIL field? Is a person WISE or FOOLISH to do it?

IT ALL DEPENDS!

And FIRST of ALL it depends on WHO your ASSOCIATES are, and, SECOND, on WHERE your LEASES are located.

The Kind of Companies

In whose hands the destinies of GUADALUPE COUNTY, NEW MEXICO, rest are the KIND OF COMPANIES that you are JUSTIFIED in TYING UP WITH. These companies, STANDARD, UNION OIL of CALIFORNIA AND ASSOCIATES, CARTER, OHIO GYPSY, TOLTEC, COSDEN, EMPIRE, OHIO CITIES GAS, and many OTHERS, are not interested in SELLING STOCK. They are exploiting the SANTA ROSA DISTRICT to get OIL—and every day more reasons pile up for believing that OIL IS THERE.

And if oil is THERE, try to picture the FLOOD of WEALTH and PROSPERITY that it WILL BRING to my clients.

If the GEOLOGISTS are right—as I verily believe they ARE—every dollar you put up will INCREASE and INCREASE and INCREASE. The possible result is beyond computation.

I PROMISE NOTHING—
GUARANTEE NOTHING—
ONLY A SQUARE DEAL

A Legitimate run for your money—That's all!

So BUY A LEASE and BUY IT NOW. BUY it because it's WISE to join with GOOD COMPANIES and CAPABLE COMPANIES where the SIGNS of SUCCESS are SO GREAT. BUY it because you get a CLEAR and UNQUESTIONED TITLE GUARANTEED by the State of NEW MEXICO carrying with it the OIL and GAS rights direct from the STATE. Buy it because my leases are surrounded by the above named companies. SEND me your order for not less than TEN ACRES and not more than FORTY ACRES at $10.00 an ACRE. DO IT NOW, as the TIME IS SHORT.

PRODUCE DEMAND SLOW, BUT PRICES ARE FIRM.

CAULIFLOWER AND CABBAGE FOR EASTERN SHIPMENT AGAIN ADVANCE.

A very firm tone prevailed on the local produce market yesterday; prices for nearly all varieties of produce remained unchanged from the preceding day's quotations. Although trading was very dull throughout the session on the floor of the market, country receipts were small, and there was no tendency on the part of the farmers to lower their prices. Carlot arrivals were somewhat heavier yesterday, but wholesalers and shippers' quotations remained firm on all lines. Belleflour apples were a little higher, on account of the growing scarcity of supplies. Yesterday's quotations were from $2 to $2.15 for the four-tier boxes, an increase averaging 15 cents per box. Brussels sprouts showed a wider price range, owing to the fact that many of the offerings were of poorer quality. The low price yesterday was 14 cents per pound, a fall of 2 cents per pound from Friday's prices.

In the shipping market, both cabbage and cauliflower were firmer. Although few sales of cabbage were made in straight cars, prices ruled around $35 per ton. In mixed cars sales of cabbage were made as high as $90 per ton, a new high record for the season. Cauliflower for eastern shipment sold as high as $1.40 per crate in mixed cars, with prices for the ordinary run of the offerings holding steady around $1.25 per crate. Lettuce and celery remained firm at the quotations of Friday's market.

Potato prices held their own, both in the carlot and wholesale markets, despite the fact that arrivals during the past two days have been heavier than usual. Yesterday's receipts showed 22 cars arrived, with 14 cars still on track, and 5 diverted. Demand is reported to be dull at the present high level, but dealers assert that there will be no weakening of prices in the near future, and that there may be further advances both in the wholesale and carlot markets on account of the short supplies.

BIG VOLUME OF SALES ON GRAIN EXCHANGE.

In volume of sale, all previous records were smashed during yesterday's session on the Los Angeles Grain Exchange. Under the pressure of buying activity of outside interests, and with local firms in the market, the sales mounted rapidly until a total of 6500 tons was reached, the largest amount of grain transacted in one day since the establishment of the local exchange. Barley held the center of the stage, most of the sales were transacted in that cereal. Prices, however, made no sensational advances. Nearby deliveries were unchanged to 2c cents per ton higher, while in the future, January and February closed at an advance of 25 cents per ton. The close of the weekend sale being made at prices 25 cents per ton lower toward the close of the session. The first sales of the season were made in August barley at $2.90 at the opening of the session, and at $2.93½ at the close. Sales in all February barley were made at $2.71¼. May barley opened at $2.45, and closed down to $2.42½ at the close. WARNING

TURNER-BROOKS ROYALTY

Is Going — FAST

Based on production to date it should pay 5½% Monthly

"First Offer" Price for Limited Block $100 per Unit

WE RECOMMEND, STAND BEHIND, EARNESTLY URGE IT.

We unhesitatingly give it as our belief that it is the BEST oil investment today.

This recommendation is based upon intimate personal knowledge of conditions surrounding this investment, as well as upon intimate personal knowledge acquired from years of observation and experience in the "royalty investment field."

In a "Turner-Brooks" investment we believe the risk or chance of loss—is MINIMIZED TO THE LAST DEGREE, while the chance of phenomenal QUICK PROFITS and phenomenal increase in the MARKET VALUE of the Units has MAXIMUM POSSIBILITIES. The limit is staggering.

No better visual proof of the last paragraph could be offered than the accompanying "Night Letter" received Friday. Our "first offer" price for a limited block of these Units was based on "past production" and "past dividend" values. "Futures" were not included in the price.

Now comes the telegram and its "prophecy" for only the next thirty days. It estimates "present production" at about 6600 barrels daily. The telegram forecasts NINE MORE PRODUCING WELLS to be "brought in" within thirty days, with an estimated "daily production" then of 15,000 barrels, or nearly three times "present production."

Remember, too, that "past dividends" and "present prospective dividends" are based on old or present crude oil prices. The telegram "forecasts" "four dollar crude oil by June, or one dollar higher, per barrel.

A "Feast of Facts"

"Turner-Brooks" properties are in Ranger Field, Texas. They have produced, 1,027,892.82 bbls. from 15 wells in six months. Nine separate leases comprise 564¾ acres, sufficient for 225 wells.

Fifteen wells actually are "producing"; 36 more wells are drilling; nine should "come in" before 30 days, tremendously increasing production, dividends and market value of Units.

The royalty's interest in first six months' production was sufficient to average 11% "cash dividends" monthly on full par value, or 5½% monthly dividends on present investment.

The Fort Worth National Bank acts as trustee — no directors, no officers, no stock manipulations, no salaries and no usually large expenses. The trustee collects for the royalty's portion of oil produced and disburses the money monthly pro rata to each Unit. Entire cost of administration is an insignificant 1%.

"Made thorough investigation of your properties. Must say they are wonderful and showing is great. Have checked up Carpenter and find his report to be accurate, and in our judgment you have got THE OIL AND IN LARGE QUANTITIES. Better than we had ever hoped for."

or "Good Buy"
An oil lease with an absolutely CLEAR title, if you BUY IT NOW in GUADALUPE county, New Mexico, is one of the SAFEST and SUREST speculations in the world today. And when we offer YOU a lease SURROUNDED by such ACTIVE companies as the STANDARD, UNION of California, OHIO GYPSY, COSDEN, TOLTEC, TEXAS PENN and others, for only $10 an acre, your chances of success are MIGHTY GOOD.
My partner and myself are NOT oil men, but are permanently established in the manufacturing business in this city.
We were FORTUNATE in securing a lease on two sections (within a mile of the Santa Fe railroad) and are backing the judgment of many of the country's GREATEST geologists that one of the BIGGEST POOLS ever discovered underlies the Santa Rosa district. Part of our acreage we are selling and the balance we are going to HOLD.
If OIL is struck within a radius of TWENTY miles of our property, we will realize an IMMENSE PROFIT—if they don't we have had an honest run for our money.
ACTUAL DRILLING is going on NOW. The time for you to BUY ALL YOU CAN is before production sends values BEYOND your reach. We offer you a five-year commercial lease, backed by the STATE OF NEW MEXICO for $10 AN ACRE in TEN, TWENTY or FORTY-ACRE TRACTS.
Decide how much you can SPARE—then ACT. You may get another chance as good but you NEVER WILL GET A BETTER ONE. We cannot urge you too strongly to MAIL US YOUR REMITTANCE TODAY.

TEXAS OIL LEASES
Single 10-acre tract, costing $100, may make you a fortune. For $200.00 you can get two leases, each one near enough drilling operations of a good oil company to give a chance to bet $100.00 against $100,000 or more. Ten acres in Burkburnett recently sold for $1,100,000. They could have been bought for $100.00 not many months ago. We own and control several thousand acres of good oil and gas leases in Wise, Denton, Cooke, Val Verde, Edwards and other counties, Texas. We have the advice of expert geologists who tell us that the world's greatest oil fields are extending into Mexico, and confidently predict that 1,000,000 barrel wells will shortly be found under our properties. A few acres in the Burkburnett fields were sold for $10,000 an acre. Leases went begging. Recent Cushing pool gushers have made many acreage up $5,000 to $10,000 an acre and higher.
GET $10.00 AN ACRE
Consider this one of the highest class speculations in the big Permian Basin. Speculative—but if a GUSHER comes in—well—we are ready to serve for our own account. We have a thousand acres left. We have sold 18,000 acres to 1,000 Oil Company stockholders scattered all over the country.
10-ACRE TRACTS
$10 per acre. Title guaranteed. Don't think for a moment that this is a speculation that we are trying to put over on you. Our Vice President, Cash Otis Collins, is backed by Col. E. H. Harriman, Jay Gould and other capitalists who have put over half a million dollars in Texas development projects. Pittsburgh capitalists are spending one and one-half million dollars in leases and drilling operations being let by Mellon interests and others such as Gulf, Sun, Magnolia, Texas Co., Producers, Sperry, etc. Some of these are within 10 miles of our leases. Leases are going up $5,000 to $10,000 per acre within a short time. Don't delay. Write us today. Leases are being taken rapidly. Only 10 acres to a customer. Terms: $10 per acre cash. Balance shortly without interest.
TEXAS OIL MAP
Shows the exact location of our leases. You must get this map before you can appreciate the opportunity we are offering you. Many a $1 a share stock has become a dollar or two in a few months, because a gusher or two has come in. Many a $10 stock has become $100 because a gusher has come in. Don't delay. Write today for map and full information.

COTTON MARKET QUIET FOR OPENING HOURS.

LATER THERE WAS A SHARP UPTURN ON COVERING AND NEW PURCHASING.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]
NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The cotton market was quiet this morning with first prices 15 points higher to 11 points lower. Later the list had a sharp upturn of 80@35 points on covering and new buying. At the end of the first twenty minutes the undertone was still firm, with prices about 85 points net higher.
Realizing caused some irregularity during the middle of the morning but there was a moderate demand from the trade and continued covering which prevented anything more than slight reactions and prices later firmed up again on bullish spot advices including reports of Japanese buying. March sold at 36.40c and July at 35.15c, or about 35 to 40 points net higher on the more active months and the close was steady at a net advance of 12 to 45 points.

GRAIN PRICES ON CHICAGO EXCHANGE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]
CHICAGO, Jan. 17.—Fresh declines took place in the value of corn today largely as a result of selling based on opinions that a period of downward readjustment of prices was at hand. Opening quotations, which ranged from ¼ to ¾ cent lower, with May $1.32 to $1.32¼ and July $1.30¾ to $1.30¾ were followed by a moderate further setback.
After opening ¼ to ¾ cent down, including May at 81¾ to 81¼, oats continued to droop.
Provisions were weak owing to downturns in the value of hogs and grain.
Subsequently commission-house buying on resting orders absorbed the offerings and brought about a rally. Word of trade negotiations with Russia stirred much interest, but had no appreciable immediate effect on prices. The close was firm at ¼ cent net decline to 2 cent advance, with May $1.32¾ to $1.33 and July $1.31⅝.

A co-operative association has been formed to market crops raised at Carlsbad.

BUYS AT HARBOR.

Extensive improvements will probably follow the purchase by the Wallace Realty Company of Los Angeles of a building site with a frontage of 200 feet on Sixth street between Mesa street and Pacific avenue, San Pedro district, from Frank Stacy. The consideration reported is $28,600. Mr. Stacy gave $17,000 for the property a little more than two years ago.

The County Supervisors have accepted from Leon R. Conklin, realty broker, a road-deed for a new boulevard which will be built up Benedict canyon for two miles from the city limits at Beverly Hills. The intention is, according to Mr. Conklin, to maintain a grade of not more than 3 per cent. from the Beverly Hills hotel to Beverly Park.

50c PER SHARE; PAR VALUE, $1.00.
Advance subscriptions totaling a considerable portion of this offering have been received and in view of the fact that this lease is the nearest to the gusher wells of any company offering treasury stock, and is being developed on the southeast corner by the Richfield-Yorba well and that the stock is offered at 50c per share against prices of $1 to $2 per share of other companies, of the same and higher capitalization, we believe this stock will be oversubscribed in a few days.
This is a speculative offering and sold as such. We have eliminated risk as near as possible by obtaining the best lease nearest gusher production owned by any company offering treasury shares and surrounded by holdings of the largest oil companies in California.

We still hold firmly to our original belief that we have every bit as good a "drilling location" on the "Richfield-Placentia" ridge as the "Chapman Gusher" or any succeeding gusher possessed when it first started to drill. All the "gushers" are on this "ridge."
With "actual drilling" drawing nearer every day, we must emphasize with frank positiveness that our present unsold portion of $1 par stock will not—cannot—remain unsold, or at that price, for any indefinite period.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 17. — Short covering and moderate buying for the long account resulted in a number of material gains at the lively opening of today's stock market. The issues that featured yesterday's sharp reversal, notably General Motors and high-priced oils, were foremost in the rally at advances of 1 to 3½ points. Tobaccos and sugars also rose briskly. There was little inquiry for rails, but changes in that division were mainly upward.

Further attempts on the part of professional traders to depress prices during today's brief stock-market session met with little success. A vigorous rally attended the opening dealings, but gains were canceled when heavy selling caused reversals of 3 to 10 points in such stocks as General Motors, Crucible Steel, Mexican Petroleum, Texas Company, American Woolen and United States Rubber. Extensive supporting orders came in at the lower levels, the rally in a number of instances effecting full recoveries. The market became dull on the rebound, but gains predominated at the firm close. Sales approximated 450,000 shares.

The actual condition of clearing-house banks and trust companies for the week shows that they hold $34,227,810 reserve in excess of legal requirements. This is an increase of $37,140,490 from last week.

Mercantile paper unchanged. Sterling demand, $3.68¾; cables, $3.69½.

Bar silver, $1.29½; Mexican dollars, 99¼ cents.

LONDON, Jan. 17. — Bar silver, 77½d per ounce. Money, 3½ per cent.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF WALL STREET.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—An aggressive and very active bear faction was in possession of the stock market this week. The efforts of that element were supplemented by an erratic money market, another break in foreign exchange and the inherent weakness of low grade oils and specialties.

Demand loan rates eased in marked degree, but time money was scarce almost to the vanishing point and the attitude of the Federal Reserve Bank bespoke further measures to restrict credits for nonessentials.

The sharp break in secondary oils and some of the miscellaneous specialties, which later extended to high-priced issues, particularly petroleum and motors, was accelerated by the doubtful status of some of those properties.

Standard steel and equipment shares were steady most of the time, as a result of favorable trade prospects and the better trade outlook. Coppers also improved with other base metals, for which an increased demand and higher price schedules were reported.

Rails yielded some of their long sustained lethargy, only occasionally taking part in the daily movement and making no perceptible response to the trend of Congressional legislation, while textile, leather and paper issues were swayed by the course of individual specialties.

Interesting developments in the international financial situation included an oversubscription to the $25,000,000 Belgian note loan issue by a powerful banking syndicate and an offering of Italian government bonds.

CITRUS REVIEW FOR WEEK.

The damage done to California navels by cold weather while in transit to eastern markets is having some effect on the consuming demand and has resulted in low average prices on the injured fruit. Sound stock that has escaped cold damage, however, is selling at satisfactory prices and there is nothing in the situation that warrants pessimistic views on the part of shippers and packers.

Four dollars and thirty-five cents per hundred pounds is the price reported paid for a crop of navels in the Highland district this week. The crop from several other large groves in the same district sold for 4 cents per pound.

Florida oranges are now moving in heavy volume. Sales in New York City the past week totaled 28,000 boxes as against 14,000 boxes for the corresponding week last year. Philadelphia sold over 100 carloads of Florida oranges the past week. All markets are liberally supplied. The fruit is averaging from $2.90 to $4.25 per box and comes into direct competition with the lower grades of California navels. Owing to the late arrival of cool weather, Florida fruit matured later this season and it is not up to the quality of last season's crop. It is estimated that fully 60 per cent. of the citrus crop of Central Florida is still on the trees.

Porto Rican oranges are arriving in liberal quantities. The average price in New York the past week was around $2.10 per box as against $3.78 for the corresponding week last season.

F.o.b. California quotations, usual terms, are $4.25@4.50 for desirable sizes, $4 for cars running 40 per cent. 126s and larger.

Cash prices on navels, prompt shipment are as follows: Monrovia, $2.75; Covina, $3.65; Riverside, $3.85; Redlands, $4 and up, some choice in bins discounted 25 cents per box, standard sizes or smaller.

The general situation is strong with every indication for higher prices.

Light shipments have caused a reaction in the market on California lemons. In addition to this, the trade is now cleaned up on high-priced stock and is in the market for new supplies.

F.o.b. California quotations, usual terms, $3.50 for good fruit.

Cash prices, prompt shipment are as follows: Torbs, Linda fancy, $3.15; choice, $2.90, mostly 360s; Corona, mostly 300s and smaller, fancy orchard run, $3; choice, $2.75.

According to latest advices there are 35,500 boxes foreign lemons available for sale within the next thirty days.

SALARIES LOW.

$5,000,000 Endowment to Increase Pay of Cornell Professors.

The campaign to add $5,000,000 to Cornell's endowment for the purpose of raising the scale of salaries of the university's instructing staff has brought to light the fact that in twenty years the average salaries of Cornell professors and assistant professors increased about $50 and those of instructors about $100.

At the end of that time the rapid rise in prices made it evident that such a scale would not permit the members of the faculty to provide a proper living for themselves and their families. Accordingly the salaries were increased on the average $400 in the case of professors and slightly more than $100 for instructors to take effect October 1, 1919. This action on the part of the university's trustees made necessary a raise of $50 in tuition fees in the various colleges. This now stands at $200.

This meager increase does not offer even temporary relief and still leaves the scale of salaries at Cornell well below that of other large universities. The additional endowment of $5,000,000 will provide for 100 professors with minimum salaries of $4500, seventy assistant professors with minimum salaries of $3000 and 100 instructors with minimum salaries of $1200. At present professors are paid $3678, assistant professors $2151, and instructors $1161.—[Boston Transcript.

THAT AND NOTHING MORE.

They jazzed, they one-hopped, they two-whirled, they—well, they did just what everybody's doing now.

After the seventh dance with his charmer the young fellow stopped suddenly and glanced suspiciously round.

"It's funny, Mabel," he said. "See the glum-looking chap over there. He's been following us about all the time. Who is he and what's he after?"

"Who — that miserable, half-starved fellow in the spotted red tie?" remarked Mabel, casually. "Don't worry about him; he's only the fellow who paid for me to come in."—[London Answers.

RAILROADS OF EUROPE FARCE.

Break Down as Means of Reliable Transportation.

Auto Trucks and Inland Navigation Get Business.

Government Ownership Stifles Healthy Competition

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Dec. 15.—(By mail.) In Europe one feels strongly that the railroad as a means of transportation has reached its apex, and is on the downgrade.

Such a statement will seem wild to people who have not been out of America, where the railroad is developed to an extraordinary efficiency under free railway laws and active competition, where coastwise traffic has been stunted by the monopoly given under our navigation laws, where river commerce has been choked by the combination of Congressional pork and the inefficiency of War Department management, where paved highways are only just coming into existence and where aviation lags far behind the most backward countries of Europe.

FAILED IN WAR.

The first weakness of railway transportation was shown in the war when the French railways utterly failed to rise to the occasion. The French General Staff had developed the technique of army transportation by railroad as far as any governmental body can develop anything. The French government railroads with their government red tape and civil service employees could not begin to compete with the German railway management, even though the Germans operated at the disadvantage of being upon French soil and over many destroyed bridges

It was the auto truck, turned out with astonishing rapidity by private enterprise, that first restored the equilibrium of transportation and, afterwards, gave to the Allied armies that advantage of which Ludendorff so bitterly complained. Whether due to the inertia of government control or to economic reasons, the Germans did not produce auto trucks in sufficient numbers, and that was one of the contributing causes to their military defeat.

FRENCH ROADS EXCEL.

Of course, the auto trucks would have been helpless without the wonderful French roads, which were built before railroads were known. These roads were laid out with an engineering skill unknown outside of continental Europe. They are as straight as railroads, graded like railroads, and, as they approach centers of circulation, they are wider and more numerous, while market places take the place of railroad yards. The congestion we find on the few narrow paved roads entering Chicago, say, does not exist in the suburbs of Paris, where the country roads widen to fifty, 100 and 150 feet as they approach the city. The French railroads have also had to compete against a capable inland waterway system. Here again, the French engineering on water has been as superior to that of American railroad engineering as American railroad engineering has been superior to the French. A century ago the French perceived what our army engineers still fail to see, that river improvements instituted for one purpose can, with a little ingenuity, be arranged to suit several, in France the drainage of swamps, the embankment against floods, the protection against erosion and navigation are, in the French phrase, all seen together, and the developments of water power, so hateful to our army engineers, are included in the same general plan.

Thus it is that, with a minimum of expense chargeable against navigation, boats of a uniform type can travel from Marseilles to Paris, to Antwerp, to Rotterdam, to Berlin, and share the advantages which belong to our freight cars in being able to pick up a cargo from every point of discharge for some other point, and are not compelled to return by the route over which they came. They are also able to follow the seasons like our freight cars, to explore Northern Europe in the warmth of the summer and to move south of the ice when the autumn winds begin to blow.

Inland navigation in France has an advantage over railroad transportation, in that the former is largely conducted by private enterprise, while the latter is under government control. French canal boats are generally operated by their owners, who live on board with their families, negotiate for their freights through shipping agencies, and travel by tug or horse power, as the case may be. The accommodations are comfortable, the work not hard, and no life can be pleasanter than one of leisurely travel through the country with stops in all the principal cities

SHORT HAULS BY TRUCK BEST.

Certainly in France, all short hauls, say under fifty miles, move more rapidly and economically by auto truck than by rail, and all bulk commodities, such as grain, coal, lumber, move more economically by water. This leaves to the railroads express mail service and package freight over long distances, excepting in regions where water transportation cannot advantageously be used.

In Europe, of course, passenger transportation has occupied a comparatively more important position as compared with freight than in our own country, but now it is fast losing its hold on passenger transportation. The individual automobile is much more luxurious and, for daylight runs on these beautiful straight highways, more rapid than the train. Its use has been limited by cost. But now the long distance auto bus is coming into use, and we see advertised on all hands "Bus trips to the Riviera."

CULT CASES DELAYED.

Charges Against Leaders now Set for February Hearing.

Without the introduction of the depositions of five children, who figure as witnesses in the charges against Otoman Zar Adusht Hanish, head of the Mazdaznan cult of sun worshipers, the hearing of Gilman Beeler, local head of the cult, and Arthur F. Gault, president of the organization, was continued yesterday by Justice Hinshaw.

The continuance, until February 17, was taken because of a crowded court calendar. Gault and Beeler are accused of preparing false evidence in the cases against Hanish.

BRITISH STILL HAVE WAR BANS

Working Under Many Sumptuary Restrictions.

Consumption of Liquor is Held Down Rigidly.

Arrival of Australian Meat Gives Relief.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Dec. 24.—The end of one year of peace finds the United Kingdom still working under many of the war-time restrictions affecting ordinary living conditions, although large numbers of the orders have been rescinded and others have been modified.

So far as food is concerned, only sugar and butter are now rationed. The regulations regarding the amount of meat which might be purchased were removed only a few days ago, about one year after the close of the war. The consumption of liquor, however, is being held down rigidly under the old rules. Necessities still rationed, which vitally concern the home, include coal, gas and electricity. The shortage of fuel has been causing considerable hardship both to the individual and to industry.

CONTINUE MAXIMUM PRICES.

The Ministry of Food has found it advisable to continue the maximum prices, both wholesale and retail, which it fixed for a considerable number of necessities.

Apart from the matter of food and fuel, the Board of Trade is maintaining control of the exportation and importation of a long list of articles. The ban has been removed from some goods, but this has been mainly in the case of things importation of which had been forbidden and which the country found itself short of.

Removal of restrictions on most of the food necessities has not solved the living problem of the masses, however. There is still a great shortage of many things, and, moreover, prices, which went down last summer, have now mounted to about where they were at the signing of the armistice

CAUSES OF INCREASE.

The increase is attributed partly to the world scarcity of necessities, partly to the augmented demand from the recently belligerent countries, and partly to inflated currency and adverse foreign exchanges. The last named have had a pronounced influence on prices and it is the belief of economic experts that food cannot become much cheaper until these are adjusted, even though there is an increase in production.

The butter ration is placed at one and one-half ounces for each person per week. This refers to the imported product only, there being no restriction on the use of home-made butter. As a matter of fact, virtually no butter is being made in the United Kingdom these days, so that the consumer has to depend upon margarine and foreign butter.

SUGAR RATION DECREASED

The reason there is so little home-produced butter on the market is that the retail price, approximately 60 cents a pound, bears no relation to the actual cost of butter to the farmer. This month farmers can sell milk at 64 cents a gallon, and it takes two and one-half gallons of milk to produce a pound of butter. If English butter were selling at its true economic value it would be about $1.24 per pound.

Until recently the sugar ration was twelve ounces for each person per week, but, owing to the shortage, this allowance has been decreased to eight ounces, and is expected to remain at that mark for many months. The amount allowed to the confectionery and sweets trades has been reduced by 25 per cent. and a further reduction is expected with the new year.

MORE MEAT ON SALE.

Butchers' meat was rationed until a few days ago, each person being allowed 40 cents' worth per week. In consequence of the receipt recently of a large supply of mutton and lamb from Australia and New Zealand, it was found possible to remove all rationing restrictions, and the Food Ministry has expressed the hope that people will relieve the food situation by eating more meat, which is welcome advice for England.

Despite the small ration, only about 50 per cent. of the meat allowance was being demanded by ticket holders each week. This was due either to a change of habits since the beginning of the war or to the high cost. Whenever a butcher had a balance of meat left over at the week-end he was permitted to sell it to any one of his customers, irrespective of whether they had already had their ration or not. In this way some people were able to exceed the amount provided for by their permits

RESTRICTIONS ON BEER.

The sale of beer and spirits is still restricted in quantity, and the strength of both beer and whisky is much below the pre-war average. As a result, it is said, there has been an increase in sobriety. Whisky is at present about 30 per cent. under proof. Alcoholic drinks can only be purchased between noon and 2:30 p.m., and between 6 and 10 o'clock at night.

The Food Ministry still fixes wholesale prices for a number of other commodities and the Ministry is the actual purchaser and distributor of cheese, bacon, ham, lard, dried fruits, bread, butter, cocoa, powder, condensed milk and canned fish. The fixing of the maximum price, it must be noted, does not prevent the sale of goods for a sum below that amount, and in many cases foodstuffs are being vended much below the limit fixed by law.

PROFIT FOR MINISTRY.

The Ministry is believed to be the largest in the world. Its annual expenditure is about $1,000,000,000. The object of the department is not to make a profit, but in transactions of this magnitude it is impossible to make both sides of the account balance.

The actual figures are not yet available, but it is expected that the profit this year will not exceed $3,500,000. Last year there was a profit of about $35,000,000, the whole of which was expended during the summer in supplying certain articles of food below their cost price. Thus the profit does not enrich the treasury, but goes entirely for the benefit of the consumer.

The maximum coal ration was and still is fixed at five tons for the individual consumer for the year beginning July 1, 1919. Gas and electricity are restricted, accordingly. Business also is under restrictions. It is provided that the Board of Trade may issue special permits for the use of coal, gas or electricity beyond the ration, if it is deemed an absolute necessity.

OWNERS GET JEWELS HELD PENDING SUIT.

BOTH PARTIES REFUSED DECREE RULING CHARGES ARE NOT PROVEN.

Jewelry valued at about $20,000, which has been under lock and key in the safe of the County Clerk during the divorce suit of Bessie Hale against James G. Hale, was turned over to the attorneys in the case by Cashier William Ward yesterday.

The lawyers, with two experts, E. B. Dukeman and John Luckenbach, carried the rings and bracelets to the office of County Clerk Lampton where it was appraised by the experts. It was then turned over to Willard L. Goodwin, as receiver, for further disposition.

The trial of the divorce suit was sensational, embracing charges on the part of the wife from assaults upon her by her husband, to giving her clothing and furs to another woman. Judge Wood, who denied Mrs. Hale a decree, did not find her allegations true as to the clothing and furs, or Mr. Hale's alleged misconduct with Jannette Griffith and other women. The Hales were married in 1896 and separated in April, 1917.

COUNTY SUES CLINE.

After Sheriff in Regard to Money for Federal Prisoners.

A suit to recover fees aggregating $8141.82 for feeding Federal prisoners, known as immigration prisoners, was filed by the county through Deputy County Counsel Valles against Sheriff Cline yesterday. It is alleged in the complaint that the Sheriff, who receives 35 cents a day for these prisoners, failed to file with the County Treasurer a detailed statement or any statement of the moneys received by him. The petition asks for a writ of mandate to compel him to pay the money into the county treasury.

GIVEN DECREE.

Testimony showing that W. F. Hunter had not visited his wife, Mrs. Lulu Hunter, for eleven months, that he had not contributed to her support during that time and was once seen to strike her resulted in the wife being granted a divorce yesterday by Judge Willis on her cross-complaint. Mrs. Hunter was also awarded custody of a minor child and awarded $25 a month for alimony for her support and $15 a month for the child during minority. The husband instituted the suit.

ANNOUNCEMENT

We wish to announce to the public and to our many customers, that we are moving our offices from 826-27 Investment Building, and Suite 300 Investment Building, where we have been located, to the ground floor, 439½ South Hill Street.

From now on our time will be entirely devoted to oil development, production, and leases that the discriminating public will acknowledge as being of the highest standard.

In the past, we sold leases in the North Burkburnett Field of Texas, for $50.00 an acre, which have since been sold for $10,000.00 per acre. We sold leases to parties here who can sell out now, three for one. The names of these parties can be furnished upon request. It merely proves to you that we handle only first-class leases.

We are now developing in Borden County, Texas, where we are going to drill two wells, and we are offering you leases at from $10.00 to $40.00 per acre, that are just as good as any we have ever offered any place, at any price.

WE ARE DRILLING! This makes your property valuable. The other acreage that is selling today for thousands per acre was worthless until development started, when prices began to go up automatically.

We urge you to buy leases now near this development. Buy where big production is found. Don't you know that one well in Texas has produced more oil in a day than the States of New Mexico, Arizona, Nevada, Montana, Idaho and Oregon have produced in the same length of time?

We are staying with Texas for the reason that it has made more men rich in a short time on small capital than any other State has, from the oil industry. All indications show that there are still more oil pools in Texas than have ever been found. Therefore, why go to another State where the possibilities are not as great?

We guarantee clear title. We are drilling and own our own rigs. This guarantees you development. Come to our office; look at our maps and geological reports. We are drilling near the Colorado River and Bull Creek, the coming Bull Bayou of Texas. We ask you to buy acreage NOW at the present low prices. We know Texas and the oil formation, having operated there for two years.

Call or write for full information.

BURK-KIRBY OIL COMPANY
BURKBURNETT "A DIVIDEND PAYER OF TEXAS" DESCO

INVESTIGATE AND INVEST In a Company That Does Not Dream BUT ACTS

The Burk-Kirby Oil Company is a dividend producer. It is a paying proposition, a money maker and is earning money for its stockholders right now. Profits are actual—not something that may come.

All Our Eggs are Not in One Basket

Operating in the two wonder fields of Texas—Burkburnett and Desdemona, we have 16 valuable tracts in 16 different leases. Besides we own one-thirtieth interest in the Western Star Oil Company which has two wells now producing. Their No. 1 well is producing 4000 barrels of oil daily, their No. 2 well, [illegible] of oil daily—THIS IS REAL PRODUCTION.

The Burk-Kirby Oil Company will declare another dividend February 15, 1920. They also paid a four per cent. (4%) dividend on January 14, 1920.

If you have the foresight and the judgment to fill out the subscription blank and mail it with your check it will be one of the most profitable acts of your life. Opportunity knocks insistently, but not indefinitely. Delay means loss. How many shares shall I reserve for you?

BUNGALOW LOTS

IN

McNAIR PLACE.

McNair Place extends from Gardner to Crescent ave., having half a mile frontage on Santa Monica blvd. Lots also face on sackwell-known streets as Crescent, Orange Grove, Friend, Genesee, Fulton, Stanley, Curzon, Pacific and Gardner.

The car line runs on Santa Monica boulevard. McNair place is the terminus of the car line to the city. From McNair place cars also run to Hollywood, Beverly Hills and the ocean.

A visit to the tract will convince you that the lots offered are exceptionally low in price. Because of the low price, the wonderful view of the mountains, the nearness to the car and to both grammar and high school, many builders find it advantageous to build in this tract exclusively.

Many fine bungalows are now under construction and many more are to start immediately. Come out and see them.

$1000 PER ACRE.

This is what a Carlsbad rancher has taken from one crop of winter peas this season. Ranch of 2500 an acre from one crop requiring 6 months from time of planting to final marketing returns are plentiful at Carlsbad.

CARLSBAD PEAS NEVER FREEZE.

The price of this rich, irrigated land for a short time is $400 an acre, which is less than some of the ranch land being made into subdivisions. Each acre will be advanced in price very shortly.

Terms are one-fourth cash, balance in three equal yearly payments with interest at 6 per cent.

One share of stock in the Oceanside Mutual Water Company goes with each acre. The water company delivering water both for irrigating and domestic purposes under pressure at cost.

OIL PROPERTY—
For Sale, Exchange, Lease, Wanted.

FOR SALE—

The world's greatest geologists have given it as their opinion that there is oil in New Mexico. All of the big companies, and scores of the smaller ones, are now drilling for it. Hundreds of others are getting ready to as soon as they can gather the equipment. Acreage is still comparatively cheap, and we cheap as it was 6 months ago, or a month ago, and the price will jump the minute the news is flashed that a producer has been brought in.

I have an oil lease from the State of New Mexico, on a large tract of land checkerboarded in two counties, in both of which development is going forward on a large scale, and the first well that is brought in will make this land worth $500 000. The entire tract can be had RIGHT NOW for $25,000.

If you want to get into the development or promotion end of the oil game, here is a golden opportunity, as the price will never again be as cheap as it is today.

Action strictly confidential. Address A. box 2350, TIMES BRANCH OFFICE.

FOR SALE—NEW MEXICO.
TAKE THIS TIP.

We urge you to make your selection at once if you are interesting in the Eddy-Kemp, ROOSEVELT, DEBACA or QUAY counties. We question if you will be able to purchase land at the end of Feb. at present prices. We can sell and deliver to you leases at $2.50 per acre at present time and mighty close to drilling wells. We will mail you a copy of the lease laws and geological reports together with a map showing you our holdings, also drilling wells and those about to begin, upon request.

ORANGE, LEMON AND WALNUT GROVES—For Sale and Exchange.

For Sale.

FOR SALE—
ORANGE GROVE INVESTMENTS.

Now that the danger to oranges from frost is practically over, frequent cash sales of orchards are being consummated here. I sold this week to a long-time resident of Pomona, one who is thoroughly posted on citrus fruit conditions, an orange grove at a cash consideration of $50,000—fifty thousand dollars, and, a short time previous also sold to other parties, orange groves aggregating fifty acres. Have large listings of orange and lemon groves, situated in the following well-known, proven citrus-growing localities, namely, Claremont, San Dimas, Charter Oak, La Verne, Pomona, Ontario, Upland, Alta Loma and Cucamonga. The following citrus groves I consider EXCELLENT BUYS are well located, have excellent water rights, are in good producing condition, and, in general, the citrus grow on the trees are larger than many of the citrus fruit sections in Southern California. If you expect the crop of fruit included at the rock bottom orange grove prices here quoted, better get busy right away. Orange picking has already commenced, oranges are now bringing high prices, and the present indications are that still higher prices for oranges will prevail later in the season. PRESPECTIVE ORANGE GROVE BUYERS, CASH PURCHASERS, if you're interested in any of the orange groves advertised, better either call on me soon at my office, or phone me an early appointment to look them over.

BUSINESS INVESTMENTS—All Kinds.

REAL GOOD BUSINESS OPENINGS ARE scarce. You might not think so from the large number of different propositions which you will see advertised in these columns, but let us assure you that we know what we are talking about when we say that possibly eight out of ten are not even worth your time to investigate. We do not fill a column with the FINEST buys in the city, but submit only such places as we believe are worthy of your earnest investigation. Whatever success we have attained in the last eight years of our business in Los Angeles is due to the manner in which we have conducted it. There is one thing certain, that when you want to get located in business, it will pay you to come and have a talk with us. If you have the time and are interested enough, we would like to give you a long list of the people we have helped to get started off on the right foot in California.

COLLIER ESTATE IS BIG SURPRISE.

Publisher's Residuary Only Fraction of Anticipation.

Schedule Shows Insolvency Amounting to $70,000.

Widow's Share is Cut Down to a Meager $2194.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—A surprising condition with regard to the estate of Robert J. Collier, senior member of P. F. Collier & Son, publishers of Collier's Weekly, who died November 8, 1918, is shown in the transfer tax appraisal filed in the Surrogate's Court. Instead of leaving a residuary estate of $5,000,000, as was believed at the time his will was filed, Mr. Collier's residue was appraised at only $2194.

Mr. Collier left a gross estate of $1,611,185, while the net estate was listed at $202,194.

This great difference is accounted for by debts of $1,339,959 left by the publisher, which was the principal item of reduction from the gross valuation. Tax, counsel fees and administration expenses make up other reductions.

Representatives of the estate, in filing their schedules in the State Controller's office, contended that Mr. Collier died insolvent to the extent of $70,000.

WIDOW GETS $2194.

Based on this official report, the share of Mrs. Sarah Steward, widow, is only $2194. In his will Mr. Collier left his residuary estate to his friends, Payne Whitney, Finley Peter Dunne and Francis P. Garvan, who had been trustees of the property since 1914. These legatees renounced the bequest.

It was said at the time, in explanation of Mr. Collier's apparent failure to make liberal provision for his wife, that in his lifetime he had given her his country place, Wickatonk, in New Jersey, and her father, James J. Van Alen, also had well provided for her.

While the $2,500,000 par value of securities held by Mr. Collier in P. F. Collier & Son were known as bonds they really were only shares of stock as the interest of 7 per cent was only to be paid out of the surplus earnings and nothing was ever paid except part of the interest in 1912, the corporation's first year. Mr. Collier had his firm incorporated following the death of his father. He took the entire bond issue, 5200 shares of preferred stock and 15,000 shares of common stock. The stockholdings of Mr. Collier were held by Appraiser Lyon as of no value. Appraiser Lyon reported the assets of the corporation valued at $2,991,365 from which estimate he fixed the value of Mr. Collier's bonds at $1,609,296. Robert Collier owed the corporation $257,965. Liabilities were placed at $1,754,992. The value of the good will was fixed at $14,957.

TELLS OF INFLATION.

The testimony of Fred Lewis, secretary of the corporation, is of interest. The report of Appraiser Lyon says that the book valuation of the assets was $6,926,061, which included $2,101,798 as good will.

"The item of good will," Mr. Lewis testified, "was originally placed on the books as a method to provide for an income for the former proprietor of the business and represents merely an inflation. It should never have been placed on the books."

Mr. Collier had been insured for $110,000, but made loans on his policies, which reduced the amount payable to $85,203. He had in cash $171; his clothing was appraised at $500 and there was due him as salary $6673.

START CAMPAIGN FOR BOND ISSUE.

FULLERTON PLANS ENLARGED SCHOOL FACILITIES; TWO RESIDENTS DIE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

FULLERTON, Jan. 17. — At a meeting of the grammar school trustees which was attended by representatives of the Ebell Club, Woman's Club, Board of Trade and other public organizations, it was decided to launch a school bond issue for $200,000 for the building of a new grammar school on a nine-acre tract on the west side of the city and to wreck the present grammar school on the east side of the city and construct a modern school on the site, both buildings to contain ten or twelve rooms each.

The nine-acre tract can be purchased for $36,000. There are at present 700 pupils in the grammar school where there are only facilities for 500. On account of the great and continued growth of the city the past two years new grammar schools are an absolute necessity. County Superintendent of Schools Mitchell has been notified to prepare the necessary legal papers for the vote on the bonds, it being desirous to have the buildings ready for occupancy by the beginning of the next school term.

WAS OIL WORKER.

The funeral of Theodore Enoch, who had been continuously in the employ of the Union Oil Company for the last nineteen years, and who died Thursday night, was held here this morning at 10 o'clock, in charge of the Elks' Lodge of Santa Ana, of which he was a member. He was 65 years of age and leaves four married daughters and two sons.

LONG TIME RESIDENT.

Mrs. Mary La Porte, for twenty-seven years a resident of Fullerton, died today after two weeks' illness, aged 65 years. She leaves a husband, one daughter and son residing here and one son in South America.

LOSES BOTH APPEAL AND POCKET MONEY.

In the appeal of Anna Kelly and R. L. Bocock from an order denying the application of the latter for letters of administration on the estate of Jasper Kelly, deceased, the State Supreme Court yesterday not only affirmed the judgment of the lower court, naming David Beeson for the place, but assessed a fine of $100 for delay in perfecting the appeal. This must, under the order of the court, be paid to Beeson. It was held that there was no merit in the appeal.

Passing of Pioneer in Motor Car Industry.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DETROIT (Mich.) Jan. 17.—Although the sudden death in New York of John Dodge was keenly felt in business circles in Detroit and particularly in the concern of Dodge Bros., the business of making the Dodge car will go on as during the lifetime of Mr. Dodge. It was announced by business associates and intimate friends of Mr. Dodge.

The career of John F. Dodge was one of the most striking pages in the history of modern industry, the story of his rise and that of his brother from a mechanic's helper in a little Michigan city to the front rank of the giants of American industry is one displaying the vision and virile ambition of the man.

LINKED TOGETHER.

His rise in the industrial world is linked with that of his brother and Henry Ford. It was with Ford that he made his first start toward fortune and when he severed his connection with the Ford company last summer he was immensely wealthy. His career and that of his brother have run side by side throughout their entire lives. They have never been separated in any undertaking.

John Dodge was born in Niles, Mich., fifty-four years ago. His father was a machinist and ironworker in that place. It was under the paternal tutelage that the Dodges were first introduced to the mechanics' craft, after they had finished their course in the public schools. It was shortly after this that the two brothers made in their father's shop the first bicycle seen in Niles.

After they had served out their apprenticeship, the two Dodge boys traveled about the State, working as mechanists in several Michigan cities. They finally came to rest in Detroit, Ont., where they were engaged in the manufacture of typewriting machines, afterwards making bicycles. At that time bicycles were at the crest of their popularity and the two brothers moved their plant from Canada to Detroit to take advantage of the bigger opportunities on the American side.

MACHINE SHOP.

They began a machine shop of small scale on Monroe avenue, Mich., and many times in payment of a debt for work done for them in their start. The internal combustion engine was just beginning to occupy the minds of engineers and mechanics. The Dodges, alert and with vision enough to see the possibilities of this form of power, began a study of the subject. About this time their fortunes became entangled with that of the man who was destined to raise them to fame, Henry Ford.

Mr. Ford was working on the development of an internal combustion motor. He came into the Dodge shop to have some machine work done. The story of his rise and that of his brother from a mechanic's helper in this Michigan city to the front rank of the giants of American industry is one displaying the vision and the ambition of the man.

LINKED TOGETHER.

In the industrial world is linked with that of his brother and partner Horace E. It was with Ford that he made his first start toward fortune and when he severed his connection with the Ford company last year he was immensely wealthy. The career of his brother was one side by side throughout their active lives. They have never been separated in any undertaking.

John Dodge was born in Niles, Mich., fifty-four years ago. His father was a machinist and ironworker in that place. It was under the most intimate that the Dodge brothers were first introduced to the world of craft, after they had finished their course in the public schools of their native city. When they had served out their apprenticeship, the two Dodge boys went west the Rhine, working as mechanics in several Michigan cities, and finally came to rest in Detroit, where they were engaged in the manufacture of typewriters, afterwards making bicycles. At that time bicycles were the craze of their popularity and the two brothers moved their plant from Canada to Detroit to take advantage of the bigger opportunities on the American side.

MACHINE SHOP.

They established a machine shop on a small scale on Monroe avenue, Manufacturing on payment of a debt which they owed a start. The internal combustion engine was just beginning to occupy the minds of engineers and mechanics. The Dodges, quick and with vision enough to see the possibilities of this form of power began a study of the subject. From this time their fortunes became associated with that of the man who was destined to raise them to fame—Henry Ford.

Ford was working on the development of an internal combustion engine. He came into the Dodge shop to have some machine work done. During his visits there the principal topic of conversation was the gasoline engine, in which all the men were vitally interested. Ford was trying to organize a company to manufacture motor cars. His progress was slow, but he finally succeeded in interesting the Dodges in the project. In 1902 each took $5500 worth of stock, to be paid for from the profits on 650 chassies they had contracted to manufacture for Mr. Ford.

CORNER-STONE.

Thus was laid the corner-stone to the Dodge fortune. The rapid development of the automobile field in Detroit made them rich men. Much credit for this very development, however, must be given to the Dodges themselves. They undertook in their machine shop the manufacture of automobile parts for large contracts.

They became overwhelmed with

TOMMY MILTON SIGNS A SLIP.

Will Drive Speedy Duesenberg in Initial Classic.

Los Angeles Speedway Rapidly Nearing Completion.

Fastest Field Ever Seen Here is Present Prediction.

Southern California motor fans will hail with keenest interest the announcement made yesterday by Manager A. M. Young of the Los Angeles Speedway Association of the entry for the first race on the new track of Tommy Milton at the wheel of one of the new eight-cylinder Duesenbergs.

It is doubtful if the entry of any other American driver and car could have aroused greater enthusiasm, for both Milton's record for 1919 and the speed marks which he set in November on Sheepshead Bay with the new eight-cylinder Duesenberg, which he will drive here, mark the car and driver as a combination of sizzling speed. And not content with the Sheepshead Bay records, which he will drive here, mark the a substantial margin, Milton is today at Daytona Beach, Florida, with the same car which he will drive here, making preparations to attempt to annex the straightaway records set last season by Ralph de Palma.

RECORD BREAKER.

Though the car which Milton will drive has a piston displacement of less than one-third that of the giant Packard with which De Palma set his marks of more than 149 miles an hour, there are many who credit Milton with a good chance to better the present record with the Duesenberg. The matter of wind-resistance is one of the determining factors in all high-speed work. The eight cylinders of the new Duesenberg are set in line, and not in the usual V-type fashion. As a consequence, the construction of the car permits the reduction of wind surface to the very minimum.

At any rate, the showing made by Milton at Florida will be watched with added interest here, for Milton will ship his car direct to Los Angeles by express as soon as he has completed his trials there. The wire from Greer stated that the Florida trials would be held some time the latter part of this month.

Milton's marks on Sheepshead with the new racing creation were as high as 118 miles an hour for the ten-mile distance, and at 250 miles, the distance of the initial contest on the Los Angeles Speedway, his Duesenberg averaged better than 111 miles an hour, evidence enough that the car and driver would have to be seriously reckoned with against any field in the world. In the contests of 1919, Milton's skill and generalship won him a high place among the drivers of the year. Two major victories, one at Uniontown last May, and one at Elgin in the big road-race, stamped him as a real big-league performer. He would have repeated his Uniontown victory on Labor Day had not his Duesenberg caught fire when he held a safe lead over the field and had only three more laps to go.

EXCEPTIONAL CLASS.

Milton's entry is by no means the only fast eastern car which will be seen in action on the new speedway on February 21st, but, pending the actual arrival of the signed en-

LOOK TO AMERICA FOR TIRE SUPPLY.

"American industry will be forced to extend itself to the utmost during the next few years to supply its foreign trade, if the present export demand for automobile tires may be taken as an indication," General Sales Manager H. A. Githens of the Federal Rubber Company of Cudahy, Wis., said today at the New York Automobile Show.

"In the readjustment in Europe, industries there are finding themselves unable to meet the insistent demand, especially for tires. In other words, the public across the water has readjusted itself faster than its industry. Again, as in the war, Europe must look to America."

TONS OF METAL IN AUTO CLUB SIGNS.

SEVENTY THOUSAND SQUARE MILES POSTED AS AID TO MOTORISTS.

There are ninety-nine tons of metal auto guide signs on the highways of Southern California covering an area of 70,399 square miles, according to a report just issued by the Automobile Club of Southern California for the year of 1919.

For the purpose of guiding resident and visiting motorists over the most remarkable road system in the world, this organization has erected a total of 66,133 enamelled-metal signs, each weighing three pounds.

ALL OVER SOUTH.

If all the posts on which these signs stand were laid end to end, they would reach from Los Angeles to Santa Barbara, a distance of ninety-nine miles, as the report of the club's sign-posting department shows that it has placed over 48,000 posts each twelve feet in height.

There were 8929 new signs erected on the roads of the southern part of the State alone in 1919, as no transcontinental work was undertaken by the organization during the year other than to make preparations for an unusual 1920 road-marking programme, which is outlined below. During the year just passed, the club set 4220 new posts.

In the desert regions these posts are of metal because automobile parties thoughtlessly cut down wooden posts for fire wood. The metal posts on the desert are anchored to the sand with heavy redwood blocks.

IN THE DESERT.

Of the total number of guide signs erected by the Auto Club, 6219 have been placed in the desert or waste areas of this and adjacent States. These signs show the location of water holes in which the water is analyzed by club specialists and the information as to its availability is carried on the nearest sign.

Signs have been erected advising motorists when crossing the desert to telegraph to some garage ahead that they are starting on the trip and if not heard from within a certain time for that garage to send out searching parties. This feature alone, in warning, has saved many lives, report club officials.

THE ONLY ONE.

The Southern California organization is the only service club in the world to operate four trucks every day in the year for the purpose of placing new signs and renewing old ones, in connection with two inspection cars. No signs are ever allowed to become weather-beaten. They are at once replaced, and the time-worn sign is returned to headquarters. No attempt is made to repaint signs in the "field."

During 1919 the sign-posting trucks covered 65,904 miles of road in the performance of their duty. More than 38,000 miles were covered in taking notes for signs to be erected in 1920 and subsequently.

PREDICTIONS.

Here is what the Auto Club is going to do in 1920: It will resign the famous National Old Trails transcontinental highway from Kansas City west to the southern part of the State, a distance of 2000 miles.

It will also resignpost the Lincoln highway and the Midland trail from Omaha, Neb., to Southern California and also from Ely, Nev., south.

From now on, all signs erected by the club will carry mileage directions. No motorist traveling the roads of Southern California need ever be in doubt as to where he is, or how far it is to where he is going.

AERIAL COMBAT AT ASCOT.

Three Battle Planes to Go Through Regular "Eddie Rickenbacker" Stuff.

In its long history of thrill-producing Ascot has recorded many unusual performances. But probably the most interesting of all will be the reproduction this afternoon of an aerial battle, with three—possibly four—planes engaged in the "combat." Every effort has been made to inject all the realities of war into the spectacle, and while the machine guns will be firing blanks, the danger of collisions or tumbling will be very great, as the pilots are dashing at each other with only a very few feet of margin to spare.

REGULAR BATTLE.

The planes will be piloted by Lieuts. Remlin, Littlejohn and Hoyte. They have been preparing the "battle" for weeks. Originally there were four planes, but in a particularly exciting practice the "fighters" swept too near the earth and Lieut. Clark wrecked his machine when hitting some electric power wires.

In addition to the pilots, each plane will carry observers, who will operate the guns and fill the air with bursting bombs. This, in itself, will not be the most comfortable job.

The climax will come when the "American" shoots down one "enemy" and then the other. It will be fine enough for the victorious

AMERICAN CARS IN ENGLAND.

BY CAPT. GEORGE R. HILL.

Before the war a number of American manufacturers of cheap and medium-priced cars had already a well-established sale for their product in England. American quantity production made it possible for the Yankee builder to deliver a car that the British manufacturer could not hope to duplicate at anywhere near the price.

The result was that those in the market for cheap cars began to take kindly to the American article, and have been buying in increased numbers ever since, until, at the present time, practically every manufacturer of consequence is represented and patronized in a way that is causing the British industry no little concern for the future.

BUYING HEAVILY.

It is not that the manufacturers over there are lacking orders right now, for they are not. The English public are buying all they can make and many are sold up for a full year ahead. The thing that is bothering the British firms is the realization of the fact that they cannot meet the American prices, and when the present conditions are relieved they are going to gradually lose their following, a large portion of which has always been due to patriotism,

WON'T EVEN SLIP ON CAKE OF ICE.

NON-SKID TIRE DELIVERS THE GOODS IN A DEMONSTRATION OF SEVEREST SORT.

"What's in a name?"

There may be a lot of things but Mr. Walter Ralphs, of the Ralphs Grocery Company, was quite desirous of knowing "what was in" the name Stronghold as applied to motor tires when he contemplated taking on the distribution of the line.

Bruce Cunningham, representing the Rubber Products Company, makers of Stronghold tires said the name of the product means just what might be inferred from it. Mr. Ralphs said he would like to have a proof.

"What's the smoothest thing you can think of?" asked Cunningham.

"Ice," said Mr. Ralphs.

"All right, bring on a piece of ice and we'll show you what it means to say a tire is a real non-skid," Cunningham proffered.

From the ice box of the Ralphs' Vermont street store was taken a huge cake of ice and then followed one of the severest tests of its non-skid qualities that it is probable a tire ever was subjected to in Southern California.

Mr. Ralphs held the Stronghold casing on the ice and twisted and shoved it about for several minutes. Evidently he was satisfied as he told Cunningham that a tire that would cling to ice as the Stronghold did certainly would stick to slippery pavements and to increase his order for non-skid casings.

Downtrodden Indiana Farmer.

Some Maryland citizens seem to be surprised that Indiana farmers went down there to a convention in automobiles, which news will probably cause the families of such farmers to look into the garage to see which car pa took.—[Indianapolis Sun.

How's This for a Test for a Tire?

Walter Ralphs wanted to be certain that a Stronghold non-skid tire wouldn't slip on anything, so he decided to test one of the casings on a cake of ice. The results were apparently satisfactory, for Mr. Ralphs increased his order on this special tire.

try blanks, Manager Young is withholding the names of the other entries for the present. He makes the unqualified statement, however, that between the cars already in Los Angeles, and those on the way to the city by express or freight, that the opening race on the Los Angeles Speedway will see an entry field of a class never before gathered for a Los Angeles event.

Construction work has proceeded so far that Manager Young was able to make the definite announcement last week that February 1 will see the final completion of track and giant grand stands that will hold 30,000 spectators. The present construction schedule will achieve that result, and, if necessary, work could be hastened beyond that point. The finishing of the track by February 1 will give ample time for practice, however.

SAFETY ZONE.

The task of building the forty-foot safety zone at the inner edge of the track, and the surfacing of the wide parking space for cars in the infield with rock and oil was completed last night. Three big road rollers have been giving an exhibition of two-mile-an-hour speed around the inside of the track for days, and the substantial coating of crushed rock and oil has provided for the safety zone a surface comparable to that of many speed tracks.

The width of the safety zone is double that called for by the speedway regulations. At its inner edge is the heavy guard rail that is designed to stop any car that through misfortune of any sort may leave the fifty-foot board track. Behind the substantial guard rail is to be a heavy wire fence for the further protection of the thousands of cars which will be parked around the infield. The surface of crushed rock and oil that has likewise been provided for the parking space insures that no matter what the weather prior to the race, cars can reach any point in the infield without the slightest difficulty.

Nine of the ten concrete tunnels that will provide entrance to the infield for cars and pedestrians have been completed, and work on the remaining one is well under way. Six of the tunnels are for machines, and this number insures that the infield can be reached with a minimum of delay.

KEATON NONSKIDS BETTER THAN CHAINS.

Soft, sticky clay is supposed by many automobile drivers to be proof against any nonskid device made and it is safe to say much truth is attached to their opinion. Certainly it is a trying situation to run on to a poor stretch of road, with a wet, clay base and find that your car has turned into a tread mill with the added characteristics of a spinning wheel.

F. C. Watson, a bond broker, well known in Southern California, had a nonskid demonstration on a sticky clay road some time ago that made a lasting impression on his mind. In relating his experience to Alan T. Tarbell, manager for the local branch of the Keaton Tire and Rubber Company, he said, in part: "I certainly can recommend Keaton nonskids for efficiency after a trial which I gave them a few weks ago in sticky clay. They held better than chains."

BEGINS HIS CAREER IN MACHINE WORKS.

MOTOR CAR LEADER'S STRUGGLES AGAINST POVERTY AND FAILURE TOLD.

The career of John F. Dodge, who died from influenza last Wednesday in New York City, paralleled in many ways that of a majority of Michigan's leading automobile makers. It began in a small machine shop, included many struggles against poverty and failure and its close found him one of the motor kings of the world with a fortune estimated at upwards of $50,000,000.

Dodge was born in Niles, Mich., fifty-four years ago. He served an apprenticeship in his father's machine shop and in 1886 moved to Detroit to follow his trade. Shortly afterward he was joined by his brother, Horace E. Dodge, and for years the brothers worked together as wage-earning machinists. Their first business venture was in 1901, when they opened a shop of their own; employing twelve persons. They built parts for automobile concerns just starting in business.

In 1913 the brothers announced their intention of entering the automobile business on their own account. The enterprise was successful from the beginning and under the impetus of the war it grew until today the Dodge interests employ approximately 8000 persons.

One of the Dodge brothers' efforts after the United States entered the war was a $10,000,000 ordnance plant, which, despite the skepticism of military experts, produced the delicate recoil mechanism of the French 155-millimeter guns.

John Dodge rarely figured in the social life of Detroit. He was regarded as one of the city's most democratic millionaires. He is survived by his widow, a daughter and two sons.

TRANSPORTATION IS NOW A COMMODITY.

SOLD AT STANDARD PRICE, LIKE ANY ARTICLE PURCHASED FROM ANY FIRM.

Did you ever stop to consider that transportation was a commodity and sold in the same way that any article of food, apparel, etc., etc., is sold?

To a great many people the idea of transportation is associated with the conception of a vast organization of business which arbitrarily sets the amount they will charge for moving them from one place to another in varying degress in the aspect of service. This impression has been largely brought about by the attitude adopted by a number of the early promoters of transportation in this country, who, after they had obtained all the concessions they required to build up their interests, adopted a very aggressive attitude in exploiting everything in sight. There was no "fifty-fifty" spirit in big business then, as there has come to be today.

"Yes, transportation is a commodity which is sold over the counter, the same as anything else, and, like all other things, it must represent a fair deal on the part of the seller. That is what the motor stages stand for today and it is the only principle upon which any modern business can succeed. The day of "grab" has died a natural death.

work. Enlarging of the plant did not take care of the rapidly-increasing business and it was finally decided to build a new factory and a large modern shop was erected in Hamtramck, which became one of the largest part manufacturing concerns in America.

In 1914, the brothers announced their intention to plunge into automobile making. A huge addition was built to the Hamtramck plant and the manufacture of motor cars begun on a large scale. The Dodges, through their connection with the Ford company, were well known in the motor world and their addition to the ranks was welcomed.

BIG FACTOR.

The Dodge car became one of the big factors in the automobile game. The new concern was flooded with orders. Twenty-five thousand dealers in all parts of the world strove for agencies. When the plant first started there were twenty acres of floor space. Today there are ninety. More than 425,000 automobiles have been produced.

Differences of opinion in the Ford plant caused the withdrawal of the Dodges from active participation in the workings of the Highland Park company. In 1918 the famous fight between the Dodges and Mr. Ford over the question of passed dividends was carried through the courts into the Legislature and was finally decided in favor of the brothers.

During the war the Dodge plant produced army automobiles, gun carriages and munitions in huge amounts. Last summer, Henry Ford bought out the holdings of the brothers at a figure reputed to be $12,500,000 each. The original investment eighteen years before had been $5000.

MODEL FARM.

The Dodge farm at Rochester, Mich., is a model. He had a home on Boston boulevard, but about a year ago decided on a new one. Architects and builders from all over the world were called in and designs for a private residence finer than any in existence were prepared. The original plans were for a house and grounds costing $3,000,000. Subsequent developments indicated that the place would cost nearer $4,000,000. It was to be the last word in interior and exterior decorating and landscape gardening.

CHEAP OIL SURE TO SHORTEN MOTOR LIFE.

Just as in financial circles investments are made without being protected, investments are made in automobiles and not protected, according to N. M. Day, sales manager of the Panama Lubricants Company, distributors for Pennzoils. Many buy automobiles, and then allow their investment to dwindle because of lack of protection to the motor.

When they buy poor and cheap oil for the motor, according to Mr. Day, they are jeopardizing their original investment for the saving of two or three cents. The cheap oils appear to work for a short time, but their life in the crank case is short. When efficient work is demanded of them, they break down, with consequent great injury to the motor. A good oil, rather than a cheap oil, according to Mr. Day, is an investment in itself, as well as a protection of the investment made in the motor car.

KILLING RABBITS WITH EXHAUST GAS.

MOTOR CAR COMES IN HANDY FOR EXTERMINATING PEST IN AUSTRALIA.

Killing rabbits with the fumes from the exhaust of a motor car is the latest use found for a machine, according to word received from Australia, where the country is overrun with the furred pests.

REGULAR PLAGUE.

Early in the nineteenth century the pioneers of Australia, confronted by the problem of obtaining fresh meat at low prices, began to breed rabbits for table purposes. The experiment proved a success from the very start, but it was not many years before the blessing of plentiful rabbits began to take the aspect of a plague of the most serious character.

The customary method of extermination is by digging out the burrows, but Walter Hawker, a rancher of Anama Station, Clare, has devised a means which enables him to kill rabbits quicker and more cheaply than by using a pick and shovel. He used a Dodge Bros.' motor car.

His method is described in a letter which he wrote to the Cheney Motor Company, Dodge Bros.' dealers in Adelaide:

"You will be interested to know a new use for the Dodge Bros.' car. I am fumigating rabbits with it. I remove the silencer and fit on a piece of 1¼-inch pipe with a reducing socket and a water pipe union, get thirty feet of 1-inch bore hose, go to a burrow the upwind side, face the car to the wind, put the hose into the burrow [illegible] up-wind hole, and [illegible] with dirt. As the smoke [illegible] of the other holes, [illegible] packed. If a large [illegible] car for five minutes, [illegible] rabbit will be killed.

"The exhaust fumes are [illegible] carbon monoxide, which [illegible] certain compound with the [illegible] the rabbit and poisons it. I [illegible] the Dodge Bros.' car for [illegible] for a consumption of [illegible] of petrol, and finished [illegible] large burrows. This would [illegible] taken seven men eight days [illegible] out. I reckon that I [illegible] saved £20, at least, as the [illegible] gers and one cook at £3 [illegible] week, one boss at £4 a week, [illegible] feed for nine men at 17 shillings [illegible] week comes to £31 [illegible] week. Deduct the cost of [illegible] oil, wear and tear, and two [illegible] fumigats, you will put on [illegible] ing of £10, and the rabbits are [illegible] so much quicker."

THE Circulation of the Times is Growing Faster Than Ever.

A King and a Bunch of Water Queens.

A. W. Young, Southern California manager of the Pacific Motors Corporation, completely surrounded by a bewildering gang of bathing-girl experts. The machine hidden under this stack of class is one of the new Road Kings.

TURNING AUTOMOBILE INTO A SPEED BOAT.

SUNSHINE BEAUTIES GET PRACTICE OCTOPLANING WITH A MOTOR CAR.

Anglers, hunters, golfers, and, in fact, all who find enjoyment in outdoor recreations which have attained a greater degree of popularity in Southern California than anywhere else are ready to admit without the slightest argument that motor cars have contributed more than any other factor towards the development of these pleasures.

Now comes the "octoplanests," of whom there is a rapidly growing colony in Los Angeles, every member of which acclaims octoplaning as the one and only sport, who find automobiles indispensable.

FAVORED LOCALITY.

Balboa is the favored locality just now with the devotees of octoplaning and a trip there calls for a motor car of comfort and speed.

The most recent of these parties was one arranged the past week by Vance Vieth, swimming instructor of the Los Angeles Athletic Club. Accompanied by four of the most expert girl swimmers of the country and a bevy of Fox Sunshine girl swimmers the trip to Balboa was made in a King eight, the entirely new 1920 touring model just received by the distributors, the Pacific Motors Corporation.

With A. W. Young, Southern California manager of the Pacific Motorh Corporation, at the wheel the party made a fast trip which, though it included a run through Santa Ana, was made in seventy-five minutes.

IMITATION.

Arrived at Balboa the King eight was used to help initiate the motion picture beauties in the art of standing on the board used for octoplaning. The board, which, in action in the water, skims along behind a speed boat with the rider standing erect and maintaining a balance with the aid of a short rope, was flipped about over the sand until the beginners had practiced long enough to gain enough confidence to try octoplaning in the water.

"I'll do the best I can to make the King imitate a speed boat of the deep-sea variety, though it has already demonstrated that it is a speedy 'boat' in the sense that motorists refer to cars nowadays," Young told Vance Vieth when the latter suggested that the new model car be used in practice on the sand stretches.

PRETTY SOFT.

Later Young watched from his seat in the car, which he had drawn up alongside, the water, the maneuvers, of the girls while managing their octoplanes in the wake of the racing water craft.

Dorothy Burns, national backstroke woman champion; Aileen Allen, national diving woman champion; Thelma Finn, Pacific Coast 220-yard woman champion, and Dorothy Norton, L.A.A.C., plunge for distance woman champion—all adepts at octoplaning—assisted Vance Vieth in instructing the Fox Sunshine girls. The girls spent almost the entire afternoon at the sport.

THIRD LARGE PLANT ALMOST COMPLETED

The third large plant of the Nordyke & Marmon Company of Indianapolis, the erection of which was begun in July, is now almost completed. The largest units of the new plant consist of a final assembly plant 800 feet long, a five-story body plant, 600 feet long, and a two-story woodworking plant and a new power plant. The final assembly building is complete and already occupied.

With the completion of this plant and the standardization of the machinery and operation, this second addition since 1918 will enable the plant to produce and build gradually more than 7000 high-grade motor cars.

RETURNS FROM FACTORY.

J. E. Brown, Southern California manager for Don Lee, returned yesterday from the New York show and a trip to the Cadillac factory in Detroit. The most important information brought back is the first news regarding the new factory which, the Cadillac officials claim, will be the finest automobile factory in the world.

UNDER CONSTRUCTION.

This plant is now well under construction and will be fully completed during the present year. The gigantic factory covers over forty acres of ground, and will contain over 2,000,000 square feet of floor space. To appreciate such a floor space, consider that 700,000 people could stand in it without crowding.

Of the eight buildings comprising the factory, the largest is the so-called "manufacturing building," 800 feet long and 600 feet wide, with a total floor space of 970,000 square feet, as at present being built, or 1,750,000 square feet when it is carried to its ultimate height of six stories. The courts between the wings will be covered with glass roofs at the height of the first-floor ceiling. This will give an unbroken area (columns excepted) on the first floor 800 feet long and 600 feet wide, or 480,000 square feet.

In this building at one end will be received countless odd-shaped pieces of iron, steel, brass and aluminum, and out of the other end will come the Cadillac chassis under its own power, hundreds of thousands of operations having been performed on the various parts during the process

One of the most interesting operations will be the engine test. Each Cadillac engine as finished is run at various loads for hours to insure its perfect operation. So that the power developed will not be wasted, each engine, when tested, is connected to an electric generator and the electric power generated is fed back into the system supplying electricity to the balance of the plant.

HEAT TREAT.

Conveniently located near the manufacturing building is the heat-treat building, 500 feet long and 80 feet wide. In this building magic is performed which is entirely beyond the ken of the layman. Steel pins, shafts and dozens of other parts are placed in furnaces, of which there are several kinds, and heated to some scientifically determined temperatures. After the lapse of some scientifically-determined time, they are quenched in some scientifically-determined liquid kept at some scientifically-determined temperature. The result is a piece of just the hardware required to withstand the particular service of that part.

In this building will be a bewildering array of instruments for the recording and maintenance of the precise conditions required for this scientific process. As in the rest of the factory, the equipment in this building is to be "the last word."

The assembly building will be the second largest building in the plant, 800 feet long and 360 feet wide, with a total floor area of 620,000 square feet. As in the manufacturing building, the court will be covered with a glass roof, giving an unbroken area on the ground floor of 188,000 square feet.

COMMENT ON CAR CLASS.

One thing that impresses motorists from the East almost as much as do the fine boulevards of Southern California is the appearance of the majority of motor cars. In no other place in the country is the percentage of fine-appearing automobiles as high as it is here. This fact has been remarked upon repeatedly and it is almost an invariable practice for the winter tourist here to have his car repainted. Los Angeles is the acknowledged motor style center and everybody desires to be in style while here.

This circumstance was demonstrated recently when Henry Grobmeier drove up to the local branch of Apperson Brothers' Auto Co. He had only the day before completed a run from his home in Harlan, Iowa. When he left home his new Apperson touring car was resplendent in a beautiful maroon color and highly polished varnish. Upon arriving here after battling mud and rain for almost 3000 miles, it was difficult for one to determine what the original color had been.

Mr. Grobmeier had driven across Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico and Arizona before entering California. He had been in snowstorms and the roads were hub-deep in mud so that he drove for hours at a time in second gear. Repeatedly he had used his car to tow out those of other tourists that had become mired. He said that before he got here it seemed to him everybody east of the Rockies that had an automobile was on the way to Los Angeles.

KEEPING CARS IN REPAIR.

An extensive transportation organization must of necessity have many ramifications in carrying out the functions of a public carrier. Anyone of these links in the chain of service is, apart from its vital place in the system, the equal of many large independent commercial undertakings of its nature.

The White Bus Line's shops and garage, situated on Market street, Los Angeles, represent a part of that line's comprehensive organization, being a very important unit in the upkeep to a high standard of efficiency of the fleet of White cars forming the rolling stock of the White line.

This modern, five-story, fireproof building, recently completed, covers 100,000 square feet and is equipped from top to bottom with the latest and best machinery and devices that ingenuity can produce. The entire scheme has been scientifically planned and developed and highly skilled mechanics carry out each operation.

Every description of repair work is carried out from a top overhaul to the entire stripping of the car and its rebuilding. In addition to this everything in complete body building is covered in the plant.

STARS PREDICT FUTURE.

That he has obtained a find in "Bob" Clark, formerly branch manager for the Willys-Overland Company at Hollywood, is the belief of W. D. Wright of the Wright Motor Car Company, Southern California distributors for Roamer cars. Mr. Clark has just been made sales manager of the Wright company, following his resignation from his former position.

Mr. Wright does not claim to believe in astrology, but it is the stars that predicted Clark's success with the Roamer car. When Mr. Wright asked one of the screen's brightest luminaries to suggest a method to get the Roamer before the discriminating screen stars Bob Clark was suggested.

The stars predicted right, according to Mr. Wright, after inspecting a few of the December sales of his latest acquisition.

Unusual Motor Truck Display.

Here is a five-and-one-half-ton Mack truck with all moving parts exposed to broad daylight. In order to show what makes the wheels go round the coverings of the various cases have been removed. Walter Stoner calls this a truck clinic as anyone may see the operation and the big Mack is the patient.

WHEELS GO 'ROUND IN TRUCK DISPLAY.

FIVE-TON MACK GIVES DEMONSTRATION WITH WORKING PARTS EXPOSED.

"What makes the wheels go 'round?" asked Johnny as he held his new Christmas watch to his ear and listened to the tick-tick. And then, not receiving a sufficiently illuminating answer he proceeded to use the screw-driver to increase his knowledge of mechanics with disastrous results to the watch.

EASY TO LEARN.

Had Johnny been interested in motor trucks and desired to know "what makes the wheels go 'round," he could have learned all there is to know about it had his daddy taken him to the store of the Mack-International Motor Truck Corporation, on South Olive street, and shown him the five and one-half-ton Mack truck chassis that is on display there.

The huge chassis has been turned over on its side. All the coverings to the various cases that ordinarily conceal the mechanical units of the truck have been removed. The chassis is being operated by an electric motor and every moving part functions exactly as it would were the truck in actual operation on the street in normal position. It is possible to make a thorough inspection of every part, beginning with the timing gears at the front and ending with the differential. This latter feature is proving one of the most interesting of many, as one can get a thorough understanding of why a motor vehicle does not turn over when rounding a corner. One of the big wheels on the Mack is revolving slowly while the other is stationary on the floor.

The display is in charge of F. C. Rulon, of the sales department and he has to answer several hundred questions daily. Passenger-car drivers who have been attracted to the display by seeing it through the window as they pass are showing unusual interest. Many of them have parked their cars to enable a more careful scrutiny. All unite in declaring the exhibit is probably the most educational and instructive ever made in Los Angeles.

L. P. CLARK HEADS SALES ORGANIZATION.

CAMPAIGN STARTED TO ESTABLISH DEALERS THROUGHOUT UNITED STATES.

Lymon P. Clark, formerly with the Lord Motor Car Company, has taken charge of the sales organization of the Master Carburetor Company. Mr. Clark has been with the Lord Motor Car Company for the past eight years as sales manager, coming from Pittsburgh to take that position.

The Master Carburetor Company are putting on a national selling campaign to establish agents and dealers all over the United States. For the past three years their output has been almost entirely contracted for. They have just completed a new plant at Thirtieth and Main streets, with about 30,000 square feet of floor space, and is the largest carburetor plant west of Chicago.

Master carburetors are shipped all over the world. Agencies have been established in nearly all of the foreign countries. The high-priced gasoline has brought a big demand for the Master carburetor. Prices of gasoline in foreign countries range from 75 cents to $2.50 per gallon, and with the Master carburetor one-third more mileage can be obtained, which is the reason for the tremendous foreign demand made on the Master Carburetor Company for their product.

SWEEPING REFORM IN MOTOR BUYING.

"Everywhere throughout the land there is a sweeping reform in motor car buying," says John D. Mansfield, general sales manager of the Dort Motor Car Company. "There was a time when purchasers were wont to take for granted every word that salesmen told them about a car. Nowadays, it is different. Most users are motor wise and they carefully look into a car's mechanical features before buying. They know the most approved type of engineering practice.

"Our dealers tell us it is surprising the number of prospects that come to them, and when they get into a technical explanation regarding some feature, the prospective buyer usually says, 'Yes, we know this feature is right, and we would like to know something about the rear axle, etc.' Today it is a hard thing for a motor car salesman to sell a prospect on something he knows nothing about."

REINFORCING SEAT COVERS.

The seat covers used in motor cars generally wear first at the seams. In order to prevent this it is a good plan to reinforce the seams by sewing over them a strip of imitation leather about an inch wide. The strips are sewed to the cover cloth on each side of the seam. This reinforcement also prevents dust from accumulating in the seams and thereby adds to the cleanliness of the cover.

GREASE GUN REPAIR.

Sometimes the threads on the cap of a grease gun become so worn that the gun jumps the threads. In these conditions take out the plunger and unscrew the cap. Next solder a nut of the same size and thread as the screw on the inside of the cap. This will obviate the former trouble, as the new threads will hold the cap firmly in place.

Right on the Top of the Wave.
The new Davis Six, the first models of which arrived in Los Angeles only a few days ago. The car combines an exceptionally sturdy chassis with all the refinements of the up-to-the-minute motor car.

ONE MACHINE OPERATING HERE AFTER TEN YEARS CONTINUOUS SERVICE.

While Chicago is entertaining thousands of motorists with demonstrations of wonderful cars at the automobile show, the Davis car is making a big hit, according to information received by A. E. Negus, Southern California distributor for the car. At the same time, the same car is creating a sensation with local motorists with its introduction last week on the local markets.

The Davis six, although known on the eastern markets, due to limitations in production at the factory, was not introduced on the Pacific Coast until this year. Quite a number of the cars, however, were brought to California by tourists and remained here. One of them, manufactured more than ten years ago, is still operating in Los Angeles.

The Davis is built with the new 7-R type Continental red seal motor, the latest six-cylinder motor produced by the Continental factory. It is equipped with the famous Timken bearings, Rockwell-Mayo type radiator, Warner transmission and Delco lighting and starting system.

E. A. MAGINNIS AT THE HELM.

Returning to work with old associates in the automobile distribution business in this city, E. A. Maginnis has taken over the management of Seager-Clark & Co., distributors of the Jordan six.

For six years he was local manager of the Oldsmobile Company of California, and retired from it in 1917, when it changed its name to S. F. Seager & Co., now Seager-Clark & Co., and took over the local Jordan agency.

Mr. Maginnis is not only manager, but also a member of the firm with which he is affiliated. He is preparing an active campaign for promoting the sale of the Jordan six in this territory.

GIANT TRUCK BEATS ITS OWN FAST TIME.

MAKES ANOTHER LOS ANGELES-SAN FRANCISCO ROUND TRIP WITH CAPACITY LOAD

A few days ago a big four-ton Fageol truck made a record-breaking round trip from San Francisco to Los Angeles and back to Oakland, after which it was driven up Fillmore-street Hill in San Francisco to prove that it was equipped with a stock gear ratio. Then a change of driver was made and it was reloaded for a second 1000-mile run to Los Angeles and back.

On this second trip the Fageol made even better time than before, chopping off one hour and twenty minutes from its former time of seventeen hours and fifty-nine minutes elapsed time between Los Angeles and Oakland. The second trip was made in sixteen hours and thirty-nine minutes elapsed time. This time is more remarkable when one realizes that it included stops for meals, gas, oil, etc. The big truck actually averaged over twenty-five miles per hour and took only one hour and five minutes longer than the fastest railroad service, the Owl Flyer.

POST-WAR MODEL.

This wonderful time was made by a Post-War Model 4-ton Fageol truck equipped with the Fageol patented compound gearset which gives a higher high and a lower low than that of other trucks, thus enabling fast time on the good roads without racing the motor and easy pulling on steep grades and bad roads. This compound gearset also helps to save fuel as on the first trip, although making fast time, the truck averaged eight and four-tenths miles per gallon of gasoline and 128 miles per gallon of oil.

DRIVERS LOSE ROAD.

On the second trip down from San Francisco to Los Angeles the truck was over an hour ahead of its former time when the drivers lost the road in the dark and got on to the old unused San Marcos Pass with its hundred of hairpin turns and creek crossings and stretches of 30 per cent. grade with the road not wide enough for one machine to pass another. Anyone who has driven over the Old San Marcos Pass will think it hardly possible that a sixteen-foot truck could be driven on it in the middle of the night. The time was officially checked on the second trip by the Western Union.

POSITIVE SYSTEM OF LUBRICATION.

HEAVY USE IN ALL SORTS OF WEATHER DEMANDS BEST OILING FACILITIES.

Drivers of cars on the many motor stage lines of Southern California have been quick to appreciate the advantages of a positive system of chassis lubrication, according to an official of the Alemite Lubricator Company of California. The matter of keeping the chassis of a car in good condition when it must cover 5000 or 6000 miles per month in all sorts of weather and road conditions is by no means an easy one.

"The motor stage men have many of them installed the Alemite lubricating system on their stage cars," declared the Alemite official. "Because of the gar greater usage that the stage car gets, it is of course more quickly noticeable when chassis lubrication is insufficient. Nevertheless, it is just as important for the average owner of a motor car to keep the chassis of his car efficiently lubricated. Eventually it will show the effects of wear due to lack of grease in the bearings."

AERIAL COMBAT AT ASCOT PARK.

Yankee, but the two "enemies" who are supposed to fall to their death, will have some lively work before them to prevent doing this very thing. They will allow their machines to drop out of control to within 200 feet of the ground, when they attempt to straighten up. They are all hoping for the best.

It is because of this hazard that Chairman George R. Bentel has thrown open the paved speedway as a parking amphitheater for the autos. The infield will be kept wholly clear, as all the possible room will be needed for the aviators in their tumbling about.

MORE OF IT.

And just as though the aerial combat did not offer enough dangers, B. H. De Lay, of De Lay Field, who is in charge of the aerial programme, will introduce some low stunting. A plane will loop and do the spectacular maneuvers within 200 feet of the ground. This is extremely dangerous, because there is not a chance for the pilot to save himself if anything goes wrong.

The "combat" will begin when the two "enemy" ships are sighted by the aviator at "Fort Ascot." The 'American" will rise immediately to give battle. There will follow the melee in the air at an elevation of about 1000 feet, while ground guns are blazing away to add to the din of the battle. Of course, the real combats were fought at a much higher altitude than this, but this "fight" has been brought close to the ground so the spectators might eye every move. It adds danger to the pilots to go through their lightning-like maneuvers at this comparative short distance from the ground, but long practice has enabled them to put all the kick into the spectacle, even if it is only a close drop to a terrific bump.

WEEKS OF PRACTICE.

"We have heard many stories about aerial combats," said Chairman George R. Bentel, of the Ascot Speedway, "and it was our intention long ago to reproduce such a 'battle' here. But there was so much danger involved if the spectacle was done right, that some of the aviators hesitated about trying it. B. H. De Lay, however, said he thought it could be done. There were weeks of study, and then came the actual practice at the De Lay Field. There was a lot of work involved, but the aviators were repaid by seeing out of the evolutions a highly sensational 'battle' develop.

"We are bringing Ascot to a close with a diversified programme. First there was the big automobile race of Thanksgiving. This was followed by the fastest and most spectacular motorcycle races ever held. Now comes the aerial feature as the climax. And we are not forgetting the horse programme either, having arranged six feature events for the afternoon."

Officials of the street car company said last night that there would be a repetition of the special service to Ascot. The Eleventh street cars will run direct to the park via San Pedro and South Park. There also will be special service on Main and Moneta from Templa.

ALL THE DOPE.

What—Reproduction of west front aerial battle, ending in two planes "crashing" in flames and smoke from an altitude of 1000 feet.

Where—Ascot, Slauson, Central and South Park avenues. Main auto gate at Slauson and South Park. Main entrance to stands at Sixty-first street.

When—This afternoon, between the running of the third and fourth feature horse races.

Who—Lieuts. Remlin, Hoyte and Littlejohn will be the pilots. Each plane also will carry observer, who will operate machine guns and hurl grenades.

How to get there — Special car service will be given on the Main-street and Moneta-avenue lines, as well as the Eleventh street, which will operate through service via San Pedro and South Park. Autos travel any north and south street to Slauson, then east to South Park.

Twenty-Two Years of Oldsmobile Experience—

THERE is very definite value to Oldsmobile buyers in the twenty-two years of manufacture behind the car. You will admit the importance of the manufacturing processes developed by Oldsmobile, of the accumulated skill and experience in the mechanical arts by which the car is produced.

Equally important, there is the public confidence in the Oldsmobile name, the firm prestige built up by twenty-two years of keeping faith with motordom.

Both of these factors you cannot fully appreciate until after you become an Oldsmobile owner.

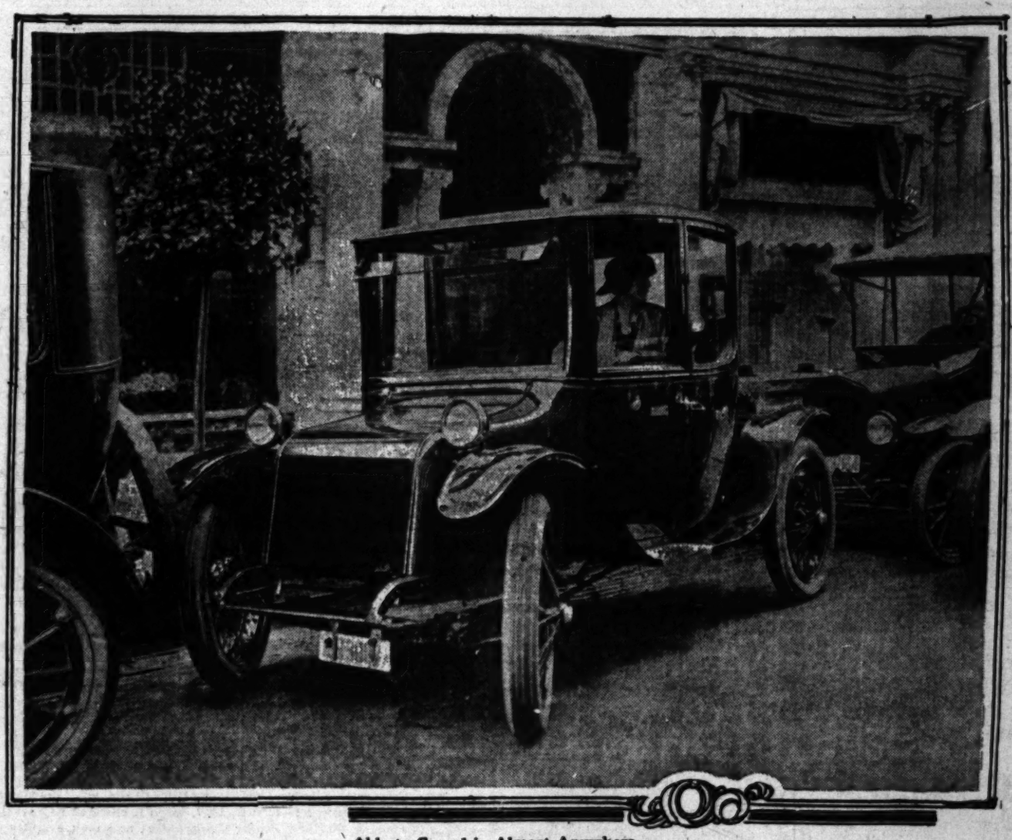
THE SMARTEST CAR OF 1920



Able to Crowd in Almost Anywhere.

One of the new Milburn electrics, which, due to its short wheelbase and sharp turning radius, is able to park in downtown traffic where the ordinary car would be absolutely out of luck. The ease with which these cars are handled in the congested districts is making them unusually popular.

ABLE TO PARK IN SMALLEST SPACE.

CAR WITH SHORT WHEEL BASE HAS SOME ADVANTAGES OVER LONGER ONES.

"How vitally the question of parking in the downtown district affects the usefulness of a motor car was well illustrated in the storm of protest that was aroused over the proposed 'no-parking' ordinance," declares J. W. Gaffney of the Gaffney Motor Sales Company, distributors for the Milburn and the Raulang electrics and the Owen Magnetic. "For the city user of a motor car, the matter of finding parking space on downtown trips is getting to be a serious problem.

"During the past few weeks we have sold a number of electric cars to purchasers who have told us that their chief reasons for the purchase of an electric was because of the ease with which they can be handled in the downtown traffic and the fact that an electric can be parked in a space that will not permit nine gasoline cars out of ten.

"The short wheel base of the electric, and the consequent short turning radius they possess, makes it an easy matter to maneuver one of them into a place that would accommodate nothing else. The complete flexibility of the electric's power lessens the possibility of crumpling a fender, too.

"Most women drivers dread the job of parking a car in the downtown districts, and I have seen plenty of male drivers who were far from expert at it. It is no exaggeration to say that women who drive electrics find this a decided point in their favor, and appreciate this quality not a little in their downtown excursions."

PISTON RING GETS ON JOB AT ONCE.

There has long been a demand from garages and repair shops for a piston ring having the quick-seating feature of a narrow ring, combined with the wall pressure tension of a wide ring.

These advantages are combined in the new Burd quick-seating piston ring, which "gets to work" immediately upon installation.

The Burd quick-seating ring is of the step-joint type, the outer surface which comes in contact with the cylinder wall having raised edges, which wear down quickly, seating perfectly with a glass-like surface in harmony with the cylinder wall, in about 45 minutes. A channel .002 of an inch in depth is in the center of the face, and carries an oil film that prevents cylinder wear during the seating process.

AMERICAN CARS IN ENGLAND.

national pride and a consequent prejudice against a foreign-made article.

The truth of the matter is that the British makers have been trading on these first two admirable British qualities for a long time, but the car shortage now has brought the situation to a point where the American product must help meet the demand, and our relative values for price are making an appeal to the buying public that is bound to be stronger as time goes on.

NOT WORRYING.

A few of the British firms are apparently not worrying about future business, and at the very time when they should be doing all in their power to foster home industry they are adopting the short-sighted policy of the "bird in the hand" by boosting their prices, and even putting them into effect in all cases of cars not delivered to customers.

The way this works out, a buyer who has had his order accepted by an authorized representative of the concern at a definite price, and his deposit posted, after waiting many months, gets a notice to the effect that the price has been raised $400, and that he must agree to pay this increased price or have his deposit returned to him immediately.

A procedure of this kind naturally does not appeal to the buyer if he cannot afford the increase, and especially when he considers that the manufacturer has had the use of his thousand-dollar deposit for perhaps eight or ten months. To us it appears that only a very patient and long-suffering clientele would put up with such business methods on the part of a motor-car concern, and it will not take many samples of this sort of policy to weaken the following of the firms concerned to a considerable extent.

AMERICAN VALUES.

Until the American cars came into the field there was practically nothing that the Englishman could buy in the way of a comfortable five-passenger car for less than $1600 to $1800, and even at this price the engines were tiny and greatly underpowered for their work. Now, with American competition looming stronger every day, especially in this class, the British manufacturers still turn out the same kind of a car, with the same little engine, and offer them purely on the strength of quality and finish, relying on the public's national pride to buy the home-made article.

The British motor salesman has as his chief argument the cheapness of American construction, the lack of attention to details, and the poor finish of the American cheap car, and yet, for the price of a Dodge he can offer nothing but a diminutive two-seater, with a 9 h.p. engine. How anyone with a family is going to make a car of this kind suit his needs, even if it is well built and nicely furnished, is a question that is being answered by the ever-increasing sales of American cars.

THE ONLY ONE.

For the price of a Ford—now about £250 in England—the only thing of British manufacture that can be had is a cyclecar, well built, of course, but powered with a motorcycle engine and having a carrying capacity of one passenger and a small dog. The American cheap car is absolutely the only one available for the Englishman of limited means, who wants carrying capacity and real power, it offers him and his family the first opportunity of enjoying the pleasures of motoring denied him by his own manufacturers, who persist in building what they think he ought to have, rather than what they should know he wants. In the face of this condition, the salesroom talk of the British dealer on "quality and finish" is beginning to sound a little weak, and unless the British builder changes his policy—which seems unlikely—he is going to see our product usurp the field before he is very much older.

Ford has started his English factory; British-built Fords, minus the objectionable "made in the U.S.A." stamp, will take considerable of the bad taste out of the British mouths. Will they build many of them—will they sell? The answer to both questions is a loud "yes," and others are going to follow Ford's example.

Vain and idle boasts are bad, but to say that American industry and enterprise in the near future will supply the cheap and medium-priced motor cars for the world is not boasting; it is a plain fact, and all but those who make a practice of hiding their heads in the sand can see it.

CONTRACTING BRAKES BEST FOR ALL USES

ARE EASIER TO ADJUST AND GIVE LESS TROUBLE IN LONG RUN.

Though it is the single device on a car upon which his safety depends more than any other, the average man who buys a car never stops to study the braking system as long as the car stops when he presses on the foot-brake, or pulls on the emergency lever. The man who is trying out a new machine is apt to never give the brakes a second thought. Yet, according to Hubert Woodill, manager of the Western Motors Company, Kissel distributors, the braking system of the car is well worth the consideration of the prospective buyer.

COMMON FORM.

"The most common form of braking system is an external contracting brake and an internal expanding brake, both operating on the rear wheels," said Mr. Woodill last week. "The braking system that is an exclusive and patented feature of the Kissel consists of two external contracting bands, operating on a brake drum of unusual width.

"If you have ever tried to adjust an internal expanding brake, you will know from experience that it is not an easy matter to get all four of them adjusted to operate perfectly evenly. To line them is also considerably more expensive matter than it is to line an external brake. You will probably save the average owner from $10 to $15 a year to properly care for his brakes than it does the user of the other type of brake.

ANOTHER TYPE.

"Another type of brake operates on a drum on the drive shaft, owing to the fact that the drive shaft revolves at a speed from three times a half to four and a half times faster than does a rear wheel, the friction is excessive on the brake drum brake, however. When you apply a brake of this type at twenty miles an hour it is the equivalent of applying a rear wheel brake at eighty miles an hour as far as the relative friction is concerned."

You Can Always Tell a Chalmers By Its Uninterrupted Ease of Action

Quality First

WHETHER you have ever driven a present day Chalmers or not there is one thing about it you cannot help but observe: its uninterrupted ease of action.

Drive alongside of one in traffic or follow one in a country road and you will note a silence, a smoothness, an ease, an effortless action that will command your attention.

This high efficiency in a Chalmers is due to a lack of vibration.

The crank shaft, piston, and connecting rods are balanced, both in motion and static, to the fraction of an ounce.

To make doubly sure Hot Spot vaporizes the raw gasoline into a "cloud" and Ram's-horn furnishes each cylinder with an equal and even "charge."

The result is there are no uneven explosions.

This evenness makes for high efficiency in the Chalmers engine and provides an action that gives a new comfort, a new satisfaction, a new sense of security in a motor car.

Also it means not only better performance but more regular performance, as vibration is the source of most trouble.

Borrow a friend's Chalmers for a few miles, and you, too, will say it is one of the few great cars of the world.

CONTRACTING BRAKES BEST FOR ALL USES.

ARE EASIER TO ADJUST AND GIVE LESS TROUBLE IN LONG RUN.

Though it is the single feature of a car upon which his safety depends more than any other, the average man who buys a car never thinks to study the braking system. As long as the car stops when he presses on the foot-brake, or pulls on the emergency lever, the motorist who is trying out a new machine is apt to never give the brakes a second thought. Yet, according to Gilbert Woodill, manager of the Western Motors Company, Kissel distributors, the braking system of your car is well worth the careful consideration of the prospective buyer.

COMMON FORM.

"The most common form of braking system is an external contracting brake and an internal expanding brake, both operating on drums on the rear wheels," said Woodill last week. "The braking system that is an exclusive and patented feature of the Kissel, however, consists of two external contracting bands, operating on a brake drum of unusual width.

"If you have ever tried to adjust an internal expanding brake, you will know from experience that it is not an easy matter to get it so of them adjusted to operate smoothly evenly. To line them is also a decidedly more expensive matter than it is to line an external brake. It will probably cost the average Kissel owner from $10 to $25 less per year to properly care for his brakes than it does the user of the ordinary type of brake.

ANOTHER TYPE.

"Another type of brake operates on a drum on the drive shaft. Owing to the fact that the drive shaft revolves at a speed from three and a half to four and a half times faster than does a rear wheel, the friction is excessive on this type of brake, however. When you apply a brake of this type at twenty miles an hour it is the equivalent of applying a rear wheel brake at eighty miles an hour as far as the resultant friction is concerned."

"Bob" Weaver,
...him over the Jordan line for Hollywood, Glendale, Tropico and Eagle Rock.

BOB WEAVER IN GAME FOR FAIR.

Takes Jordan Agency for Hollywood Territory.

Is Prepared to Make Immediate Deliveries on Cars.

Bob Well Known in Southern Athletic Circles.

Robert S. Weaver, popularly known as "Bob," has taken over the Jordan car agency in Hollywood, Glendale, Tropico and Eagle Rock, having organized for that purpose the firm of Robert S. Weaver & Co., located 6624 Hollywood boulevard where beautiful show rooms and garage have been established.

WELL QUALIFIED.

That Mr. Weaver is well qualified to handle the Jordan car is made evident from the fact that he was vice-president and general manager for Seager-Clark & Co., Jordan distributors, for the last three years, and thus is well acquainted with the car, as well as with the buying public. It was Mr. Weaver's desire to engage in business for himself that caused him to take over the Hollywood agency for the Jordan. He explained to-day that he is prepared to make immediate delivery on cars ordered from him.

Mr. Weaver is one of the best-known men in athletic circles in Southern California and this is considered by his friends to be one of the many factors that assure his success in his new undertaking. Mr. Weaver's activity in amateur athletics has won for him the name of "Daddy of Amateur Athletics." He is president of the Southern Pacific branch of the Amateur Athletic Union, a position he has held for six years. He is also vice-president of the National Amateur Athletic Union, and is chairman of the athletic committee of the Los Angeles Athletic Club.

COLUMBIA MOTORS TO DOUBLE PRODUCTION.

J. C. Bayerline, president of the Columbia Motors Company, manufacturers of the Columbia six, announces that the company has just made arrangements which will practically double their manufacturing facilities immediately.

Plans for a new factory, which were announced some time ago, naturally were held up on account of the present building and fuel situation.

The remarkable increase in the company's business made it imperative that increased facilities be secured at once.

Accordingly, the plants formerly occupied by the B. F. Everitt Company have been acquired.

CONSTANT SERVICE TEST.

A motor truck that has been in constant service running 24 hours a day, every day in the week, and every week for eighteen months on the same tires, with the engine never stopped long enough to get cold in all that time, must be conceded generally to have given something of a demonstration of durable utility performance. That, in any event, is the opinion of H. S. Cook, regarding one of his Moreland trucks which has done just that. Mr. Cook handles mail for the Los Angeles postoffice department under the A. P. Cross contract.

HANDLING MAIL.

The work of this truck has all been in the handling of the United States mail under the most trying of conditions. In this mail service the truck is constantly being started and stopped and started again as it wends its way through the congested city streets in the work of picking up and delivering mail. It is almost constantly loaded far above capacity particularly during the times when the great magazines are sending out their solid editions to their subscribers.

High speed is also necessary in handling United States mail, which admits of no delay.

This truck is one of a two and a half-ton capacity rating, purchased from the Moreland Motor Truck Company, nineteen months ago and for the past eighteen months has been in continuous twenty-four-hours-a-day service as stated.

"Time after time that truck has carried loads of 12,000 pounds while it almost never carries less than 8000 pounds or four tons," says Mr. Cook. "The engine has, in all that time of continuous work, never been stopped long enough to get cold. It runs as smoothly and under one of its heavy loads will slip up the street at thirty-five miles an hour as prettily and handles as easily as a high-grade touring car. I never saw anything like it."

CAREFUL DISTRIBUTION.

According to some of the most prominent motor car distributors of Southern California there is nothing to warrant in fact the assertion that has been made by a national publication to the effect that the motor car business has reached its peak. Instead, these dealers declare that at this time there is nothing that would indicate such a condition, and they estimate the peak of the industry is far removed, and some there are who doubt that it ever will be reached.

One of the distributors least concerned about the motor car saturation point being reached is the W. P. Herbert Company. This organization is going right ahead completing its wholesale organization and it is the intention of Don Smith, the general manager, to make the distribution and representation of Chandler cars as widespread as possible. Mr. Smith has been lining up sub-dealers in all of the principal points of the territory. There have been many voluntary applicants for the Chandler line, but it is Mr. Smith's policy to select only the best dealers in their respective localities.

Those now representing the line are: Marshall & Clampett, Pasadena and Alhambra; Germond Motor Car Company, Hollywood; Charles L. Davis, Anaheim and Santa Ana; L. D. Preagh, Bakersfield and Taft; H. F. O'Byrne, El Centro; Bartlett & French, Glendale; L. Harris & Co., Lancaster; Darling & Comfort, Long Beach; Stanley Robinson, Monrovia; W. O. Williams, Oxnard; McComas & Goodwin, Pomona; Chandler-Cleveland Sales and Service, Riverside; J. F. McIntyre, San Bernardino; Groch & Fleming, San Diego; C. A. Maino, San Luis Obispo and Santa Maria; Jones-Wills Garage, San Pedro; Black Motor Car Co., Santa Barbara; Minor & Wilson, Santa Monica; C. C. Needham, Ventura; A. R. Hixon, Whittier.

STRENUOUS MOVIE STUFF.

How three Peerless eights overcame what Los natives of Mendocino county in the vicinity of Fort Bragg declared to be insurmountable obstacles has been related to Stanley W. Smith, of Smith Brothers, Peerless distributors, by D. J. Clements, moving picture director, who recently returned to Los Angeles from the big redwood country where he and his company were on location some time. The work was performed by three cars, in the opinion of members of the company, establishes a record that will be hard for others to emulate.

COULDN'T GET CARS.

With twenty-one in the party, the three Peerless seven-passenger cars left Los Angeles November 15, bound for the vicinity of Fort Bragg. It had been planned to secure a couple of cars at Fort Bragg to facilitate the transportation of the company and property to and from a lumber camp about twelve miles inland. Upon arrival there, it was found that with the coming of the rains and the first snows that the few cars there were put up for the winter, as the roads are considered impassable for cars or trucks. Supplies for the lumber camp are transported during this season over a logging truck. Learning over this it was out of the question to try and make the camp even with horses and wagons as bad were the roads. Clements was game and his company and something had to be done, decided to tackle the roads with the three Peerless cars.

CAPACITY LOADS.

With these cars loaded to capacity and carrying extra supplies for twelve or fourteen days, a record trip of approximately twenty-five miles was made, according to members of the company, the condition of the roads could not have been worse. For almost every yard of the distance it was a terrible grind. Packed in so that it was impossible to shift a cramped to the limit, according to one, those of the company had a taste of what it was to film outdoor stuff under difficulties. It was the actual test of the Peerless power and construction and one that Peerless engineers have reason to be proud of, in the opinion of Stanley W. Smith.

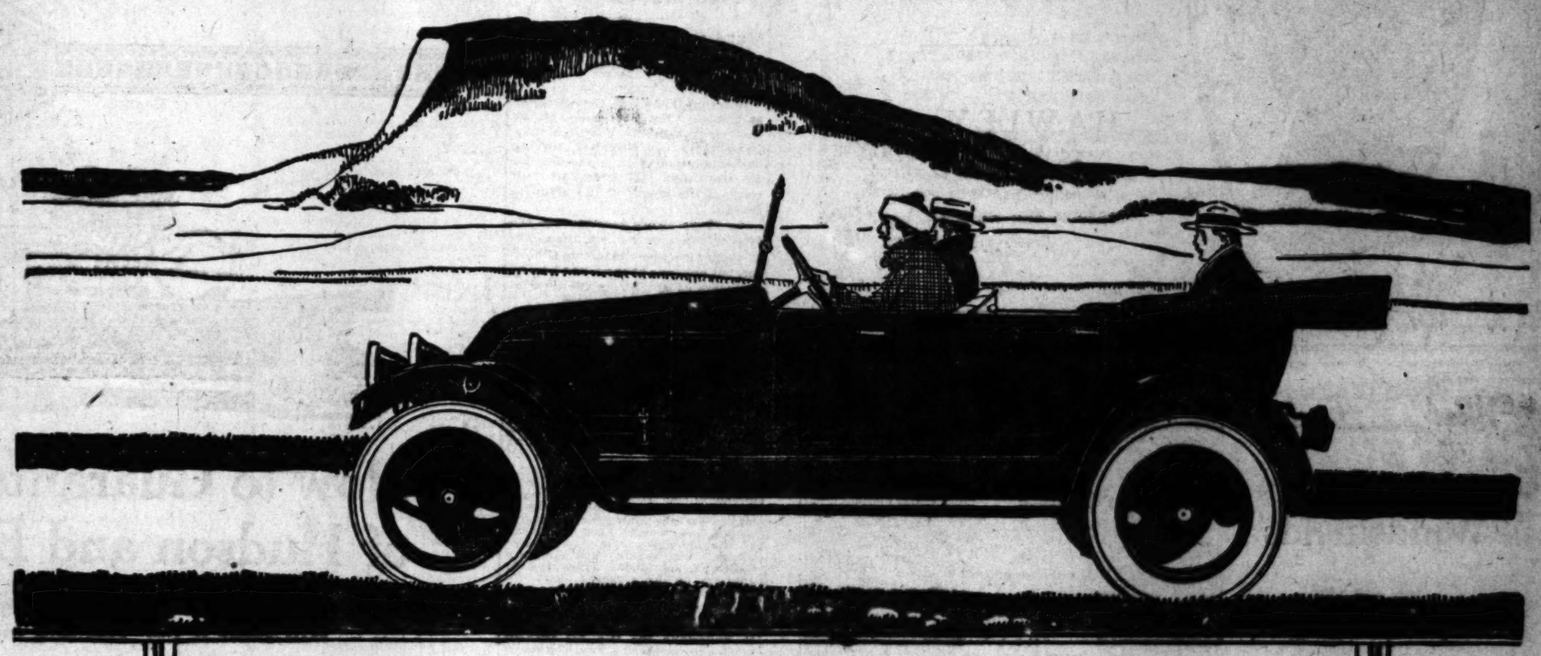
FRANKLIN TOURING CAR



The Greatest Road Car in America

New York to Boston and return (458.8 miles) in 12 hours, 5 minutes—
Indianapolis to Syracuse and beyond (832.6 miles) in 22½ hours—
Cincinnati to Cleveland and return (553 miles) in 15 hours, 45 minutes—
Boston to Syracuse and return (693 miles) in 24 hours, 20 minutes, with a woman driving—
New York to Montreal (398 miles) in 9 hours, 59 minutes—
Waterloo, Iowa, non-stop, dirt road record (865.4 miles) in 24 hours.

THE demonstrations of the roadability of the Franklin Car that have taken place all over the country are intended merely to call attention to this Franklin advantage—not to prove it. Its daily performance in the hands of its owners is doing that.

Yet the consistency with which Franklin Cars are making and breaking road records from point to point is significant to most motorists, for the cars used are stock models and differ in no way from the average Franklin.

Why Franklin Averages Fast Time

The above performances are feats only made possible by Franklin principles of light weight, flexibility, and correct balance. They make riding comfortable and handling easy and safe under all conditions. Rough stretches and sharp turns therefore do not slow the Franklin up as they do other cars.

And with heavy, rigid weight eliminated, delays due to tire accidents are almost unknown. These six runs mentioned produced only one puncture and no blowouts. In daily use the average is better: three punctures in the life of a complete set of tires—12,500 miles.

No Cooling Trouble Delays

Important in the making of these records is Franklin direct air cooling (no water to boil or freeze). Leaky radiators and over-heating never halt the Franklin.

Particularly of late, motorists are hearing much about light weight without seeing its results demonstrated. We shall be glad to show you, on the scales and on the road, what genuine light weight is and what it does.

Lying German Pictures.

Among the post cards widely circulated in Germany and Belgium in 1914 to justify the killing of Belgian civilians there was one that purported to show Belgians not in uniform firing on approaching German soldiers from the windows of Louvain University. Aside from the improbability that any one took a photograph of such an affair, it is interesting to know that there are no windows on the side of the university that appears in the picture, but the card did its lying work.—Youth's Companion.

Into a Country Where Roads Are Unknown.
A Maxwell equipped with Horseshoe tires was driven up to Gibraltar Dam recently. The last part of the trip was made in a dry river bed over rocks and boulders and through a country that had never seen a road. The going was rough enough to cut a tire to shreds, but the Horseshoes stood the gaff and were little the worse for wear at the end of the jaunt.

FIRST CAR TO REACH BIG GIBRALTAR DAM.

STREAM BED FURNISHES BAD GOING FOR THE MACHINE AND TIRES.

Everyone knows of the Gibraltar or Europe, but how many realize that right here in Southern California there is a Gibraltar serving humanity, though in a more humble way, than the great rock bulwark at the mouth of the Mediterranean.

As Uncle Sam's marines are the true travelers of the sea, thousands of them have seen the foreign Gibralter, but only one of them had been so fortunate as to visit the Gibraltar of Southern California. This lucky marine is Sergt. Harvey A. Kern, who was delegated to make the investigation by Maj. J. C. Fagan, in charge of the recruiting station of the marines in Los Angeles, and last week with the already well-known land cruiser of the Marine Corps—"the Maxwell Marine"—equipped with Horseshoe tires, made a trip of inspection to the great Gibraltar Dam just finished by the waterworks department of Santa Barbara.

THE FIRST ONE.

"No automobile has ever been driven to the Gibraltar Dam," said Sergt. Kern, "and when I was in Santa Barbara New Year's Day I determined to show that the slogan of the marines, "We go everywhere," was as true in Southern California as in the more remote quarters of the globe.

"They said it couldn't be done because there was no road, but there was a sufficient amount of daring in the idea to stimulate me to undertake the trip for without more ado we started over the fierce grades of San Marcos Pass, across the Santa Ynez Mountains and up the canyon in the rocky bed of the stream channel, where no automobile had ever been before."

Describing the trip, one of the newspaper men who accompanied Sergt. Kern said: "There are few, if any, men or cars or tires with sufficient endurance and stamina to survive the punishment of that drive through the Santa Ynez gorge. The reward of the accomplishment was only the satisfaction of conquering such tremendous obstacles, but it was evidently sufficient for Sergt. Kern, who seemed to glory in the achievement.

TRIBUTE TO TIRES.

"Tribute should be paid to the Horseshoe tires on the Maxwell Marine, for if ever rubber and fabric were subjected to tremendous strain it was on this motor jaunt into the wild country of the Gibraltar Dam. According to the Pacific Rubber Company, distributors of Horseshoe tires for California, they are constantly receiving just such favorable reports of long service performance of the "good luck" tires they sell.

NEW AJAX PLANT AT SANDUSKY, OHIO.

PRESIDENT ANNOUNCES PLANS TO ERECT BIG FACTORY ON SHORE OF LAKE ERIE.

Horace DeLisser, president of Ajax Rubber Company, Inc., today announced the consummation of negotiations whereby a new Ajax factory is to be erected in Sandusky, O. Ninety acres of property have been secured by the company. The erection of the new plant will begin at once and by the latter part of 1920, tire production will be well under way. At that time, too, existing Ajax plants will have reached a production peak never before attained in the company's history.

The announcement of the decision to build in Sandusky means a third big factory for Ajax, the others being in Trenton, N. J., and in Racine, Wis. This expansion is in line with the tremendous expansion which the last few years have brought to the Ajax Rubber Company. It means, too, a geographical distribution of Ajax plants which will prove invaluable to Ajax dealers and to users of Ajax tires.

A housing plan for employees is being developed along with other welfare activities. Between 1000 and 1500 homes for Ajax workmen will be erected in Sandusky. Details for this housing plan which will be along similar lines of the housing project already under way at Racine, are now being worked out by the Ajax industrial welfare department.

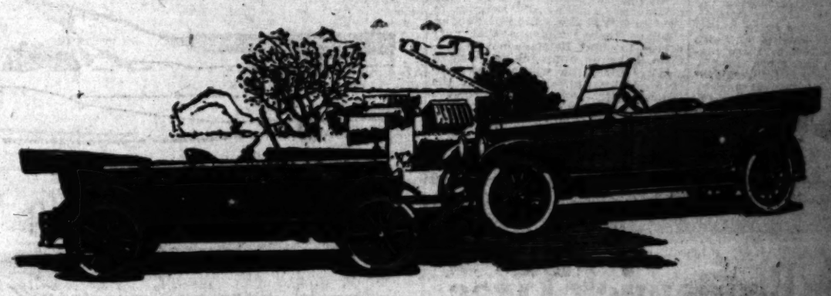
ESSEX MOTOR CARS



How to Guarantee Spring Delivery of Hudson and Essex Open Models

No Large Money Outlay Required. Make Your Choice Now. We Will Store It For You and Insure You Against Disappointment

In the light of the year just closed, it is not conjecture to assert that a shortage of Hudson and Essex cars is sure to recur this Spring.

More than 22,000 Essex cars were sold in the past twelve months. The factory capacity was increased time after time. Beginning with a daily production of 30 cars, it reached 125 cars daily.

Yet we were never able to overtake advance orders.

A similar condition was true with respect to Hudson.

You remember how scores waited in vain for delivery. Perhaps you were among those disappointed.

Practically our entire quota of both Hudson and Essex cars were sold weeks ahead. Few were able to get delivery who had not placed their orders ahead.

Settle the Delivery Worry Now

This year we have arranged a special plan to guarantee you delivery, during the acute spring rush of orders.

It will require no large outlay of money.

You can place your order now. We will have your car ready for you on the day

Thus you dispose of all concern about getting your Hudson or Essex when you want it. It will be a source of satisfaction to know you are insured against having to accept some less wanted car, when the season for open types crowds the market with more buyers than we can supply.

If your preference is for a light car what choice equals the Essex?

It represents a new, unexpected value. It brings to the light car field such quality and fine performance as was hitherto found only among large costly cars.

Note the Quality of the Essex

If speed is your requirement see if the Essex does not meet it. Where luxury and finish are demanded compare the Essex with any car.

It is needless to speak of the Hudson. All know what it has done. Its records, which prove supremacy throughout the range of performance, are confirmed by the satisfaction that more than 80,000 owners know in their Super-Sixes.

The supply of Hudsons and of Essex has never been sufficient for the demand.

You can only insure yourself against disappointment in getting either of these popular cars, by placing your order under the convenient plan we have set forth

ROAD BUILDING FALLING BEHIND

Not Keeping Pace with New Rolling Stock.

Need of Federal Highway Commission Acute.

Act Before Congress of Wide Importance.

WASHINGTON (D. C.) Jan. 15. Modern highway construction is not keeping pace with the demand for modern highway rolling stock. Motor-driven vehicles are being produced in numbers far beyond the mileage of types of roadbed necessary to provide economic operation. And yet, great as the productive rate of new vehicles may be, it is far below current requirements.

These facts bearing upon the nation's highway transportation problems are being emphasized in highway development circles as additional reasons for expanding the activities of the Federal government in highway construction. The measure known as the Townsend bill has been redrawn and reintroduced in Congress. Henceforth it is to be known as the National Highway act. It now embodies all of the features desired by all sections of the country, and in its present form will be pressed to definite action as early and consistently as legislative conditions will warrant.

ROAD BUILDING FALLING BEHIND

Keeping Pace with New Rolling Stock.

Need of Federal Highway Commission Acute.

Bill Before Congress of Wide Importance.

WASHINGTON (D. C.) Jan. 15. Modern highway construction is keeping pace with the demand for modern highway rolling stock. Motor-driven vehicles are being produced in numbers far beyond the millions of types of roadbed necessary to provide economic operation. And yet, great as the production rate of new vehicles may be, it is far below current requirements.

Facts bearing upon the national highway transportation problem are being emphasized in highway department circles as additional reasons for expanding the activities of the Federal government in road construction. The measure known as the Townsend bill has been withdrawn and reintroduced in Congress. Henceforth it is to be known as the National Highway bill. It now embodies all of the principles declared by all sections of the country, and in its present form is expected to provide definite action as early and consistently as legislative conditions will warrant.

Its main objects—the construction of a national highway system and the creation of a Federal highway commission—are sought in the national highway act. It proposes that the commission shall establish, construct, maintain, improve and regulate a national system of highways composed of connecting interstate roads which shall, by the most practicable routes and with due consideration for the principal centers of agricultural and industrial production, afford ingress into and egress from each State.

Such national system may include highways to and from important water ports, and highways connecting at the border with the main highways in countries adjoining the United States, but shall not include any highway in a municipality having a population, as shown by the latest available Federal census, of 5000 or more.

The proposed act also provides that the commission may make all necessary surveys and maps in connection with the establishment, construction, maintenance, improvement, or regulation of the national system of highways, and may construct, maintain, improve and regulate any highway which is a part of the national system, or, in its discretion, may contract with any State highway department for such surveys or maps, or for the construction, maintenance, or improvement of any such highway in such State. Any such contract with a State highway department shall be based upon and shall include plans, specifications and estimates prepared by the commission, and the commission shall supervise and enforce the performance of such contracts.

It is also proposed that the portion of the national highway system in each State shall equal 1 per cent. of the total highway mileage used as such in the State as ascertained by the commission. In every State where such 1 per cent. will not suffice to enable the national highway system to afford at least two highways connecting with national highways in adjoining States, the commission shall increase the mileage of the national system sufficiently to provide two such highways. This provision has been included to avoid any semblance of partiality to any particular State.

Overflowing Into the Street.

Such large stocks of tires have been received by the Rubber City Clearinghouse recently that the greatest difficulty has been found in cramming the casings into the salesrooms. The tires above are factory blemished Republics, a large shipment of which was received by the company during the past week.

TIRES STACKED ALL OVER THE SALESROOM.

HUGE PURCHASES AT REDUCED PRICES MAKE POSSIBLE UNUSUAL SALE.

One of the largest tire stocks in the West is being offered at a huge sale that was started last Saturday. In fact they have so many tires that it is almost impossible to move about in the store of the Rubber City Clearing-house Company. The walls are literally lined with tires, and every available foot of floor space is packed with them.

Tires are being bought in such huge quantities that they are able to purchase them at exceptionally low prices and the public is getting the benefit of their fortunate purchase.

This tire house carries a more varied line of tires than most rubber companies. The stock consists of many lines of well-known "firsts" and factory blemished tires. Mr. R. O. Jackson, the owner has established a very definite plan in regard to sales policy, and he absolutely guarantees the user of his tires satisfaction. Every tire that is sold by this firm carries an absolute guarantee of satisfactory service which Mr. Jackson backs to the limit.

By adhering strictly to this policy the Rubber City Clearing House Company has been able to establish stores at San Bernardino and Pasadena, as well as in Los Angeles. These stores are all located in select districts in each town, so that every user of their tires can always find one of these stores conveniently located.

STORAGE BATTERIES ROUGH ON CLOTHES.

PAYS IN LONG RUN TO GET AN EXPERT TO DO THE HEAVY WORK.

How many motorists have ever considered a storage battery from the standpoint of wear and tear on clothing? Not nearly as many as should, according to the view held by C. H. Kay of Kay and Burbank Company, who is seeking to ascertain why some car owners persist in attempting to "service" their own batteries catalogued a number of reasons aside from the generally recognized ones why they should delegate the job to battery experts.

It is the easiest thing in the world to ruin a suit of clothes unless a person is thoroughly familiar with how to handle a battery, Mr. Kay points out.

"I do not know how many persons have ever stopped to reason why most of our battery repair men wear aprons," he remarked, adding, "but if they would inquire they would quickly learn that it is to afford their working clothes protection against acid.

"When a man tinkers with the battery in his car, unless he understands just how to handle the battery he is very apt to get a drop or two on his clothes from the hydrometer he makes his tests with. It is often the case that what a car owner might save in looking after his own battery is more than offset many times by the damage done to his clothing."

USED-CAR SALES TO SHOW BIG INCREASE.

DEALERS PREPARING FOR RECORD SEASON IN QUICK DELIVERY.

Motor car sales, which are looked for in greatly increased volume following the conclusion of the national automobile shows, are certain to be reflected in a corresponding degree in the sale of used cars, and in consequence members of the Used Car Dealers' Association are now shaping plans to handle the increased business on a basis that will prove profitable to dealers and purchasers alike.

An interchange of views on the subject has been arranged as a special order of business at the forthcoming monthly dinner of the Used Car Dealers' Association, at Union League Club on January 22, according to the announcement of the association's secretary, F. V. Calvert.

"As the result of methods adopted by the Used Car Dealers' Association through the months past in which the shortage of new cars has been felt most keenly, the market here has been stabilized and a fixed value has been arrived at for cars of all makes, according to the condition in which they are when they are traded in or sold," Secretary Calvert said in discussing the effect on the market here of the probable arrival of new cars in greater numbers than for some time.

WOULD DRIVE STOLEN MACHINE BACK EAST.

IDEA OF LONG WINTER JAUNT HOLDS NO FEARS FOR THIS PAIR.

Los Angeles papers recently carried the story of the New Jersey thief who stole a Liberty town car in that State and drove it to Los Angeles, and who upon arriving here was so enthusiastic that he had to unwisely boast to C. W. McKelvey, local Liberty distributor, concerning the remarkable performance of the car. McKelvey succeeded in engaging the Liberty enthusiast in conversation while he had the number of the car looked up and compared with the list of stolen cars sent broadcast by the factory, and as a result, the cross-country motorist returned to New Jersey via rail, in company with an officer from that State.

A sequel to the story came a few days later, when a special delivery letter from Santa Barbara arrived, containing an offer from two eastern youths who were wintering there to drive the car back to New Jersey. They furnished good references, and were anxious to have the job of piloting the stolen car back to the Atlantic. They declared that they were both good drivers, and would take turns, one riding in state in the glass-inclosed tonneau while the other braved the doubtful delights of midwinter cross-country driving.

"Unfortunately, the owner of the car had decided to have the car shipped back," said McKelvey last week. "The car was virtually new when it was stolen, and was finely finished. Though the thief drove across in December, yet he had the luck to encounter excellent weather and the finish of the car showed scarcely any signs of the rough trip it had been through. The owner feared, however, that the lateness of the season made the chances of storms and blizzards too great, and that it would probably be cheaper, all things considered, to ship the car through by freight, which we accordingly did. The offer to drive the car back, however, just shows that the idea of a cross-continent tour in a Liberty town car has a good deal of appeal at any time in the year."

HEALTHY DEMAND FOR GREEN SEAL BATTERY.

CELL IS SUBJECTED TO YEARS OF SEVERE TESTS IN SPECIAL LABORATORIES.

F. Prien, well-known local motorist and considered one of the best-posted authorities on subjects pertaining to the automobile world, is one of the most recent purchasers of a Prest-O-Lite Green Seal battery. He has already become an ardent devotee of this new development in the battery field.

That Mr. Prien is but one of the many local motorists who has adapted the Prest-O-Lite Green Seal battery is substantiated by the fact that R. T. Mesker, general manager for the General Service Company, local representatives of the Prest-O-Lite Company, reports a healthy demand for them in spite of the fact that they were introduced locally but a short time ago.

The sound, logical theory upon which this new type of storage battery is made, has worked out in practice to the complete satisfaction of the Prest-O-Lite Company, who subjected it to the most severe tests for years prior to placing it on the market, and by all of those who have used them in their cars.

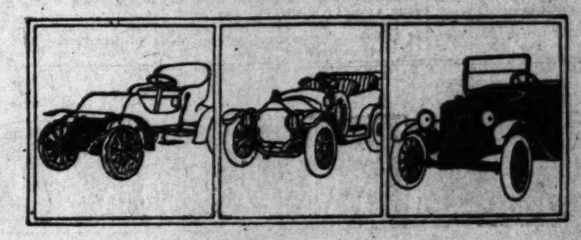
GENUINE TEST FOR COOLING SYSTEM.

A motor car performance that has attracted unusual interest in the northern part of the State was the achievement of a Cleveland Six touring car in climbing the Mt. Hamilton grade with the fan belt removed and the water pump rendered inoperative. So far as there is any known record the Cleveland is the only car that has accomplished this feat, which was undertaken as a demonstration of the car's cooling facilities.

According to information received by the W. P. Herbert Company, Cleveland distributors for Southern California, the performance has been hailed throughout the northern and central parts of the State as one of the most unique and at the same time practical automobile demonstrations ever staged. The test is regarded as one of the severest to which a car could be put for the reason that ordinarily a car on which either the water pump or fan has ceased to operate usually means disaster.

It is claimed that what this car did can be repeated by any Cleveland. In support of this contention, it is explained that the car used in the test was in no manner especially prepared for the undertaking.

Overland



First, Solid Tires;
Then, Pneumatic Tires;
Now Triplex Springs

THE NEW OVERLAND 4 has the most remarkable riding qualities ever found in a light car.

The discomfort to passengers and the injury to car, due to side-swaying, twisting and bouncing are greatly reduced.

The diagonal attachment of the three-point suspension Triplex Springs at the ends of a 130-inch Springbase gives to Overland 4 with 100-inch wheelbase the road steadiness of a long, heavy car.

These springs protect the mechanism of the car, making a great saving in upkeep expense.

Light weight means less gasoline and oil consumption and longer tire mileage. You must ride in Overland 4 to appreciate its comfort.

Overland 4's equipment, of highest quality, is complete, including Auto-Lite Starting and Lighting.

READY FOR BUSIEST YEAR.

"Prepare for the busiest year in your automobile career."

This is the word telegraphed back from Cleveland by Frank C. Renstrom, president of the company bearing his name, to Earl V. Abbott, Los Angeles manager of the concern.

IN THE EAST.

The line quoted is but a part of the message, a lengthy night letter, outlining conditions found in the motor industry in the East. A good part of it is held as confidential by Manager Abbott, who after reading it agreed with the head of the firm that the busiest of busy seasons confronts the concern.

"Grant Sixes, manufactured in Cleveland and for which the Renstrom company is the distributor, will be shipped to the Coast in quantities which we hope will somewhat approximate the demand created for them since these entirely new models were first shown," Manager Abbott commented.

"Mr. Renstrom's trip east, which had for one of its objects an attendance at the Chicago and New York automobile shows, was decided on, primarily, to enable him to visit the factories of the Grant Motor Car Corporation, the Briscoe Motor Car Corporation, and the Atterbury Motor Car Company and the factory at Minneapolis of the Twin City tractor."

TRAILING BUSSES IS TOUGH ON BATTERIES.

"Many a motorist's battery trouble can be traced to that common practice—'trailing an auto bus,'" said J. E. Collins, the live wire at the head of the sales department of the Hobbs Storage Battery Company. "Auto busses must move on schedule and it is often necessary for them to keep up a speed of thirty-five miles an hour at a stretch of forty or fifty miles. The motorist busses merrily along behind the bus and if the day is warm, his battery is very apt to become overheated. To prevent overcharging of battery lights should be turned on and fresh, distilled water should be added. Chemically pure water can be obtained at any Hobbs service station."

Another New Job on the Row.

An American Six, built by a firm that has had years of experience in motor-car building, and the first of a new series of models being turned out this year. Mr. E. J. Carpenter has taken the distributing rights for this territory.

NEW AMERICAN SIX SHOWN ON THE ROW.

INCREASED PRODUCTION AIDS DELIVERY ON PACIFIC COAST.

The fact that the American Motor Corporation of Plainfield, N. J., the manufacturers of the old American "understung," are the manufacturers of the new American six, introduced in Los Angeles only last week by the Carpenter Motor Car Company of 1215 South Flower street, has brought hundreds of interested motorists to the temporary headquarters for the car.

Although the old American four obtained wide distribution on the Pacific Coast, the six-cylinder product of the same company had received but little distribution outside of the cities on the Atlantic seaboard until this year, when production increased at the factory enough to supply the western demands. The old car attained such prominence, however, that motorists have been eager to see the six-cylinder car produced by the same engineers who built the old American.

The car was shown for the first time last week by E. J. Carpenter and J. N. Carpenter, heads of the new Carpenter Motor Car Company, Southern California distributors for the American six. They will also show the car in Arizona and Nevada, where they have obtained distribution rights.

EIGHT THOUSAND NEW MODEL TRUCKS SOLD.

THE MANUFACTURERS BELIEVE THEY HAVE SET A RECORD FOR THIS TYPE VEHICLE.

One of the features of the national automobile shows of a year ago was the presentation for the first time of a commercial vehicle manufactured by the Oldsmobile company. In the first twelve months of its manufacture, according to advices received last week by J. W. Leavitt & Co., Oldsmobile distributors for California, no less than 8000 of the new trucks were built, sold and delivered, establishing what is believed to be a new sales record for a vehicle of this type.

"There is admittedly a great deal of difference in the marketing of passenger cars and trucks," said L. V. Starr, manager of the Leavitt organization, last week, in discussing the sales record set by the truck. "The entire Oldsmobile retail organization was without experience in the sale of commercial vehicles. The fact that it was able to sell 8000 trucks in the first year in the face of keen competition is good evidence that the Oldsmobile retailers were not slow to learn truck merchandising methods, and that they had a product of unusual value to present to the commercial world.

"Undoubtedly the prestige of twenty-two years of successful manufacturing behind the Oldsmobile organization had not a little to do with the reception accorded the new truck. In California, for example, the Leavitt organization disposed of far more than their original allotment of trucks. But trucks are sold on a dollars and cents basis, to shrewd buyers who are able to appraise very closely the worth of a truck before they buy. The mechanical features of the Oldsmobile truck and its price in comparison to other trucks of its class had to be satisfactory before such a sales record as was established in its first year would have been possible."

SOLID-TIRED TRUCKS MUST AVOID SPEED.

STRAIN ON MACHINE IS TERRIFIC WHEN HEAVY DUTY VEHICLES ARE RUSHED.

Motor truck designers have preached for years on the evil effects of attempting high speeds with solid-tired trucks. A very common incident will convince anyone of the truth of their statements, according to Freeman A. McKenzie, distributor for the Commerce truck for Southern California.

"Next time you see a solid-tired truck being driven at high speed on an asphalt pavement, just notice the distinct vibration that you can feel through the pavement clear to the sidewalk," said McKenzie last week. "The very fact that the truck sets up such a vibration in the solid pavement gives the most convincing evidence of the destructive vibration that must at the same time be imposed on every part of the truck itself.

"If you will notice, however, the next time you see a big truck with pneumatic tires carrying a load at high speed on asphalt, you will not feel any such vibration as that set up by the solid-tired truck. That is because the cushion of air in the huge pneumatics absorbs the shocks imposed by the tiny unevennesses of the pavement."

HATCH UP POOL FOR BEST PERFORMANCE.

AT END OF RUN ALL AGREE THAT ONE PARTICULAR CAR HAD THE DISTINCT EDGE.

Four cars, each one filled, made up a party over the Ridge Route last week. All of the cars were of different makes so the rivalry among the owners was keen and the friendly banter about each other's car reached a boiling point when someone suggested that a pool be made up to be awarded the owner of the car that gave the most consistent service on the entire trip there and back.

One of the cars was a Victory model Moon just out of the salesroom and hardly properly worked in.

At the end of the trip three of the car owners unhesitatingly voted the Moon owner the prize while the fourth owner was undecided between two of the cars, one of which was the Moon.

Naturally, the Moon owner was elated, especially so since two of the rival cars were much higher in price.

The Victory Moon used less gasoline, was quicker in the get-away and climbed the hills easier than any of its rivals.

And in the straightaway, when sure the motorcycle officer was busy elsewhere, the Moon held its own in the sprints.

When informed of this contest, the only remark made by Mr. Breeden, local Moon distributor, was:

"Doesn't surprise me much for I know that the Moon parts are exactly the same as are used only on cars that average twice their cost."

"I understand that Wilkins boasts of his long descent."

"No, rather of the fact that he landed on his feet."—[Boston Transcript.

Unusual Convenience and Comfort for Women who Drive

To women who drive, the Holmes Improved Air-Cooled car offers the convenience of easy control, the comfort of unusual riding ease and the luxury of properly allied seating compartments in a car of distinctive and quality appearance.

Every feature has been worked out to a degree which minimizes all anxiety even in crowded traffic. The electric starting system starts the motor as soon as the switch is turned on and keeps it from stalling where other motors would stop. The service brake multiplies the braking effort and prevents skidding when the brakes are applied suddenly. Gear shifting is reduced to a minimum by the wide speed range on high gear.

Added to this is the dependability of the improved Air-Cooled motor, the highest efficiency from the fuel giving a gasoline consumption of 18-20 miles to the gallon, and the fact that tire mileage averages 10,000 miles to the set. Choice of Holmes cars in the enclosed models includes a wide variety of upholstering to suit individual tastes.

THIS smart closed car is happily designed for the owner who drives. Intimately comfortable for five persons—snug, one might say, but without the slightest suggestion of crowding. The wide windows give all the vision of an open car.

The day of the top-heavy closed car is definitely past. The Jordan Silhouette Brougham has an all-aluminum body. It is light and conspicuous for its absence of rattle. The car is easily handled, with an abundance of fluent power.

The interior is most inviting, with upholstery of finest imported weaves in shades to match the body colors.

In lines the body is grace itself. The shape of the doors, the spacing of windows, the curve of fender and the height of hood all contribute to an effect that is fashionably modern.

...TION DEPOT.

...ation of all terminals ...depot and in many in-...actual operation upon ...ransportation rates pro-...interurban transport ...a system of trans-...for mobility and abil-...expand or contract ...demands has outclassed any other. In Los Angeles alone we now have a terminal on Fifth and Los Angeles streets, with a spacious waiting-room and all the accessories found in the best steam or electric railroad terminal in any modern city, into and from which motor cars arrive and depart from and to all parts of the State of California. At present there are over 500 cars a day leaving this terminal for San Francisco and all intermediate points north, both on the coast and valley lines, to Riverside and San Bernardino territory in the east and to San Diego in the south, handling about 10,000 passengers a day, an average which is steadily increasing as the public realizes the superiority of the service.

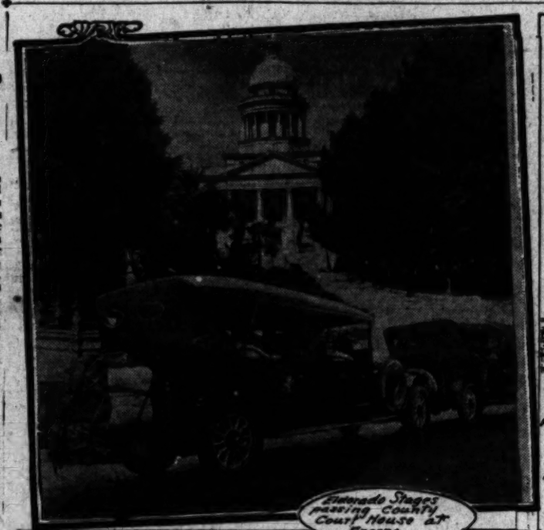
No better means of seeing the whole State of California could be devised than that of the motor stage lines, covering, as they now do, practically all routes and taking in all scenic attractions, in which respect the possibilities of this form of transportation are virtually unlimited because of the fact that it is not necessary for the motor stage to hunt grades to facilitate getting its equipment over the country, which, in a great many cases means getting away from the better scenic features. Then, in the matter of connections at all points along his route, the tourist is able to make much more frequent connecting transport than by any other means. This is because of the vastly economical operation of the motor unit compared with other forms of transportation, which, of necessity, must adjust their schedules to suit the bulk of the people traveling at a given time. In other words, the traveler can practically always connect with a motor stage just when his convenience is suited. This mobility of the motor car makes it practicable to accommodate all varying requirements of traffic at a moment's notice.

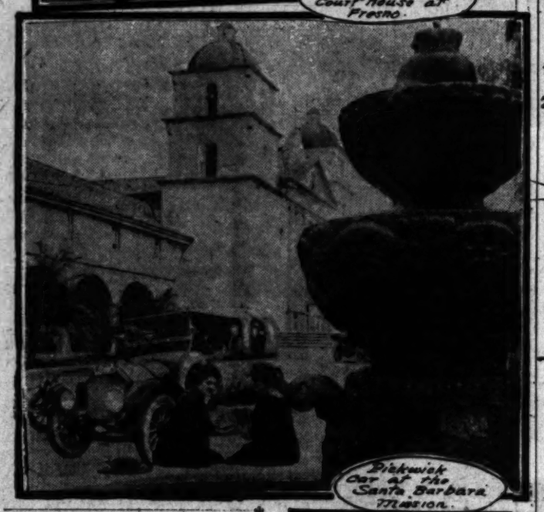
Today we find that cities have been brought closer together through the influence of this transport field. There is a greater flow of individual traffic between these cities and a greater mingling of associations of one city and another than has been accomplished by any other form of travel. It is difficult to estimate the value of this phase of the influence of the commercial motor car upon the life of the country when one considers that the prime factor of the high development of modern civilization is the rapidity of transit in one form or another.

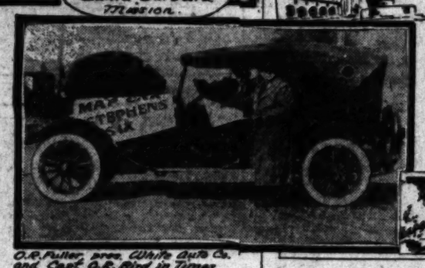
As illustrating the growth of the motor stages, today the investment in Los Angeles alone is over $2,000,000 and with the increasing demand for service, the year 1920 will probably show it doubled or trebled. Money is now flowing into the business, which shows that it is being recognized by the financial interests of the country who are the most conservative and even make a new project prove itself beyond a reasonable doubt before many can be induced to take it up. I look for the future to show stocks and bonds of the motor carriers, both freight and passenger, to be more freely handled in the market than the stocks and bonds of the other carriers, for, developing as they did after regulation of public utilities had been installed in the various States, they will never have the opportunity to issue $100 worth of stock for $1 worth of security that was open in the early days of the development of transportation.

The money invested in the motor-carrier business must be real money and invested in real capital account and the question should never arise as to the "water" or inflated capitalization. The motor carriers can pay dividends and give service upon the investment required when properly handled.

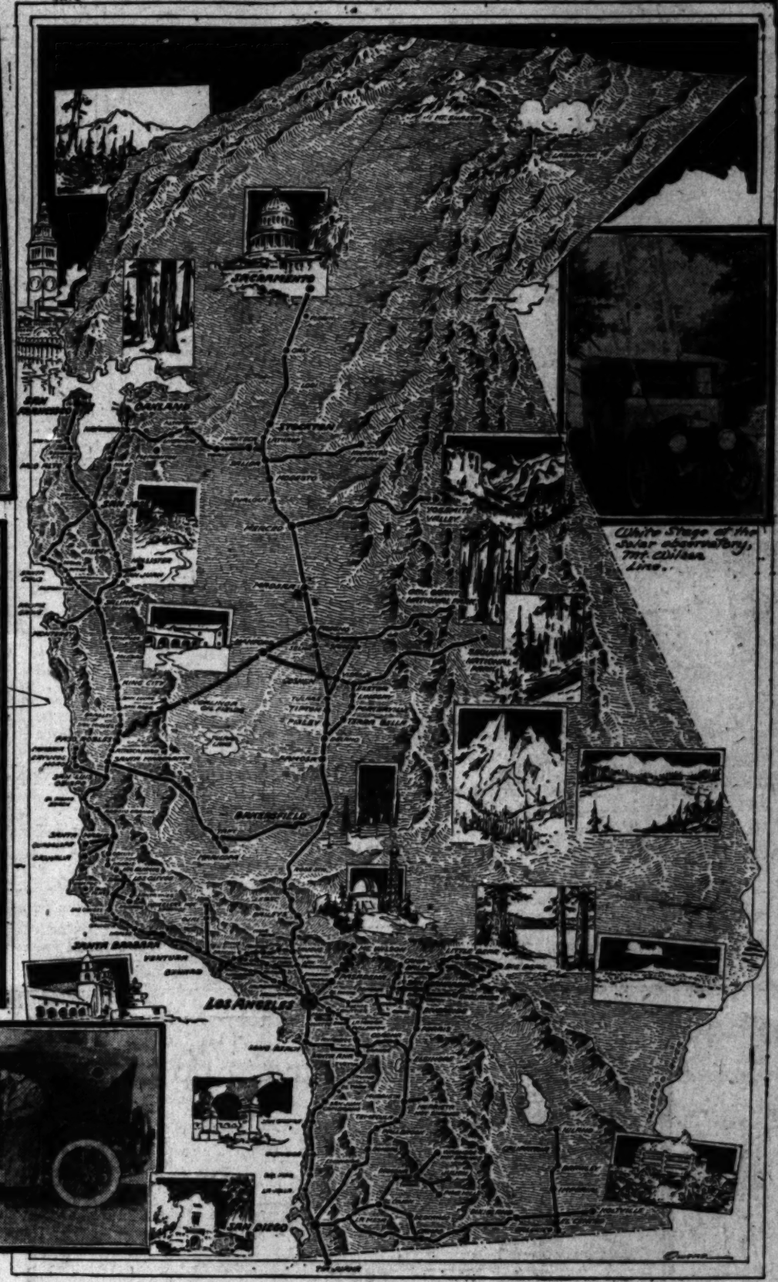
The motor stage is now intrenched and must be classed as one of the permanent methods of transportation. It has demonstrated the fact that it can be operated economically; that the traveling public can be served as well and in many instances better than they can be served by any other means, and for the same and in many instances less cost with a smaller percentage of accidents.







O. R. Fuller, pres. White Auto Co. and Capt. O.R. Bird, in Times mail car.



The Territory Now Covered by California Motor Stages.

A hypsographic view of the State showing the various routes of motor transportation lines now in operation. While the growth of the stage business has been tremendous in the last few years, operators predict that all previous records will be shattered during the coming months. Hundreds of thousands of persons are traveling by stage over all parts of California at the present time.

DIFFERENT TYPE CARS USED IN STAGE WORK.

LONG AND SHORT DISTANCE HAULS REQUIRE VARIOUS MODEL MACHINES.

This is an age of rapid transition in all lines of development and one of the greatest fields in which development has taken place is that of automotive travel. Ten years ago cities, towns and farming districts, which were not on fixed lines of travel were extremely isolated and progress was latent and backward. One big reason lying in the fact that these fixed lines of transportation generally either had to have large amounts of land attached to any new construction project or the business had to be already worked up and ready to burst into full bloom, in other words embryonic possibilities regarding settlement and development did not attract big interests. There was too much already at hand.

At this time, the motor car really became a definite and fixed factor in transportation, and also, its manufacture was undertaken on a large scale. At once the hitherto unexploited regions came into the limelight of public attention, with the result that it was at once noticed that no longer need these untouched districts lie idle.

Treading hard on the heels of the motor car came the truck or freight carrier, and the necessary features were at hand for the solution of the problem. During the next five years came the period of experimentation and organization, and after that order appeared out of the existing chaos. Automotive travel, both in the passenger and freight service, was found to be more elastic and better adapted to exploiting new projects, and further, it created an unlooked-for independence, due to direct communication and curtailing of expense in upkeep and overhead. Also, there is just enough of the pleasure element in the travel by motor stage to keep a keen and lasting interest alive among those who use this means of transportation.

The growth of the White Bus Line is an example of progress attained in this field of transportation. Under the able direction of its general manager, W. H. Powell, that line has nearly doubled its mileage and carrying capacity during the past year.

In 1918 the Whites carried 713,745. In 1919 this same line increased to a total of 1,193,948 passengers. The total mileage covered in 1918 was 1,625,116, and in 1919 it ran to 2,114,390, making a gain of 489,280 over the record of the previous year. In making this mile-

Stage Lines Running to Parts of State not Touched by Rail.

BY O. R. FULLER,
President White Auto Company.

The tremendous development of the "Travel by Motor Stage" movement in Southern California during the past five years has made the motor bus a fixed and growing factor in the twentieth century transportation. The operations in this portion of the State started about seven years ago, where the old Ford stage began operating in Orange county. It was practically successful from the first. Two years later stages were running out of Los Angeles to areas and places untounched by rail transportation. The result was at once successful and the rapid development of outlying sections, so marked that a great impetus was at once felt in this new field of travel.

ANOTHER FACTOR.

Another phase of motor stage progress may be traced to the great production of touring cars and trucks in the United States during the past five years. This may be hard to realize at first, but when one stops to consider the fact that just as soon as motor cars began to be manufactured in a large volume, hitherto unexploited country came to the fore at once, both commercially and from the pleasure viewpoint; cities came into being and new tracts were opened to the farmer. Also in this connection it might be stated that the "Ship by Truck" campaign grew into being through the necessity for moving products from points untouched by rail to the open market. Out of this same necessity has grown another great factor in twentieth century transportation in the commercial freight field, the freight-carrying vehicle has made its lasting mark.

The motor stage first functioned because it provided the only means of communication, then its latent possibilities began to be noticed and felt. Before the conception of the motor stage, transportation had been one of the most independent factors in commercial life. The motor stage, together with the motor car, placed its entering wedge by freeing the traveling public and practically throwing the whole country wide open.

For example, there is the Yosemite, Big Trees, Big and Little Bear valleys, Nevada and Southern Utah. In the latter case the recent boom may be directly traced to automobile exploitation in the Zion Canyon regions and other sections of Southern Utah, and I might add that this country has a most wonderful future in store. Its great mineral and agricultural wealth has only been touched on the surface thus far.

KERN RIVER.

Also there are the oil fields on the Kern River in the Taft and McKittrick districts, which have been given fast and direct connections with Los Angeles and San Francisco, through the medium of the motor stage.

But to return to the period of constructional development. With the permanent establishment of motor stage lines running out of Los Angeles for those who are unable to reach their homes or places of business by rail came, as a natural result, the question of schedules and rates. In the early days the motor stages were not confined to any given route, nor did they run upon any set schedule, starting when they had a load and returning under the same conditions. This, of course, was quite unsatisfactory to some elements of the traveling public and the first steps toward rectification along these lines came about four years ago, when stated routes were laid out for stage travel by the companies operating these lines. As soon as this was done it was evident that a certain amount of intermediate travel could be obtained. This in turn naturally led to the fixing of a definite time schedule, until now the motor stages operating out of the Union depot, Los Angeles, run upon as absolute a schedule as can be found in any field of transportation.

REAL SUCCESS.

It was this last feature that crowned the motor stage undertaking as a success. It was at this time that it became necessary to formulate combined schedules, regular rates, and, in short, to let system have its sway. The result of this development and work is shown by the growth and territory covered at

KEEPING EQUIPMENT IN RUNNING SHAPE.

PARTICULAR CARE EXERCISED IN INSPECTING AND OVERHAULING CARS.

A highly-important side of any business is the constant keeping of its equipment in the best possible order so as to minimize the entry in the depreciation account. Property of any kind represents investment, and if it is not kept in good order means an actual loss. This is particularly true of machinery of any kind, which is subject to constant wear and tear.

It can be readily understood that in the operation of motor cars in the Motor Stage service this maintenance of equipment is one of the first essentials of successful operation and must be very thoroughly and regularly carried out. For this purpose, therefore, the Service Station at the Union Stage Depot, 5th. and Los Angeles st., is equipped with a corps of experts and every possible mechanical device necessary to keep the cars up to the highest possible standard. Every car, upon completing any trip is closely inspected and tested and, if required, adjustments are made so as to put it in perfect mechanical condition. The effectiveness of this maintenance is well illustrated by the fact that in over 9000 separate trips per month not more than four machines showed any indication of failure on the road.

In addition to this detail inspection and test at the end of each trip, at regularly timed intervals the entire car is dismantled, all worn parts replaced and the whole tuned-up in every way.

Althogether a corps of 200 employees are required to take care of the requirements of the interurban bus business with several hundred more working on the Stage Lines.

RELIABILITY MOTOR TRUCK RUN SOON.

Interest of the manufacturers of motor trucks in America has been aroused in the first national motor-truck reliability contest sanctioned by the American Automobile Association and to be run with Omaha as the starting and finishing points. Definite date for the contest will be set within a short time. The start will be late in June—that is known. Trophies will be offered for each division of the contest, and the grand trophy will be the offering of the Omaha Bee, underwriter of the event.

MOTOR STAGE UNION DEPOT.

Three Hundred Thousand Go Through a Month.

Rapid Growth of Motor Bus Transportation.

Hundreds of Motors Leave its Doors Each Day.

BY W. H. POWELL,
President Union Stage Depot, Inc.

Three years ago, when the modern motor stage began coming into its own as a great factor in the problem of transportation, had anyone dreamed of a big union depot with 500 cars running in and out every day and handling more than 300,000 people monthly, he would have been termed a patron of romance. But this dream hab come to pass as a reality, and now the problem resolves itself into the question of how much larger will it grow.

SMALL BEGINNING.

Like most great projects the union depot and the motor stage lines had a small beginning, dating back to the time when any man might own and operate a stage. Gradually out of chaos came regulations requiring definite schedules and licenses. During this period the actual loading was done "off the street."

In 1917 travel by stage suddenly gave evidence of a decided progressive thrust. The White Bus Line was then doing business at the old stand, at 109 East Seventh street. Traffic increased to such an extent that new housing accommodations were absolutely essential. At this time, Mr. O. R. Fuller, president of the White Bus Line, and myself began thinking of a union depot. In order to obtain an expression of opinion we called a meeting of the directors of the larger companies, and laid before them the new plan of a consolidated depot, but the time was not ripe, and the idea was opposed, so was dropped for the time being.

NOT YET TIME.

The spring of the next year, 1919, owing to a steady increase of traffic, the White Bus Line moved to a new depot, at 516-518 South Los Angeles street, and began loading passengers under cover. The benefits resulting in increased business became evident at once. In the fall of the same year the union depot plan was again broached, and, with the success of the White Bus Line station as a criterion, we were able to interest the Pickwick, Northern, Oelerich Eortern and the United Stages in the consolidated depot proposition. In February, 1919, I organized the Union Stage Depot, Inc., securing a lease from Mr. C. F. Chapman for property located at Fifth and Los Angeles streets, Mr. Chapman recognizing the possibilities. Becoming interested, and the result being the erection of the depot, designed by Mr. E. C. Thorne, architect, and built by Mr. J. C. Crover, contractor. Shortly after this the Eldorado Line, running to Bakersfield, Fresno and Oakland, was taken over by Mr. Fuller, and its traffic brought into the depot, the Mt. Wilson and Murrieta lines were soon added, and only a short time ago the Orange Belt Line was consolidated with the White Bus Line.

Out In The Open Country

Where the going is rough, over rocks, sand, in the mud and on the mountain grades!

THAT'S THE PLACE TO TEST TIRE MERIT!!!

Over every form of rugged road the MILLER tire has proven its worth. The experience of one traveling salesman may be of advantage to those who are interested in getting mileage.

This man sells tractors and he has to go out into the open country. In fact, seventy-five per cent. of his mileage is made over rough going. He says his MILLERS have given him unlimited service, in the desert, mountains, fording streams and working in plowed ground. With all this he has now rolled up an average score of 17,000 miles per tire.

Again there is the evidence of enduring Miller service in the case of the Whites, operating on the White Bus Line. These large interurban carriers make between eight and nine thousand miles per month. These tires are giving more than twelve and fifteen thousand miles under the most trying conditions.

Millers are made by men who KNOW and who are held personally responsible for the performance of each product of their handiwork. In truth the old Biblical saying of "By their works ye shall know them," may well be applied to this 20th century product.

Leading automobile engineers have worked out the accompanying chart. It shows how quickly an automobile, going at various speeds, should be able to stop, providing the brake mechanism is efficient, and road conditions average.

Smashed to splinters
Yet the car was going only 15 miles an hour

MOST people think of a reckless driver as one who goes streaking along country roads at 50 miles an hour, or shooting through city streets faster than the law allows.

Yet official records show that 70% of all automobile accidents occur when the car is going 15 miles an hour or less.

Safety, for yourself and your car, is not a matter of how fast you are going, but how quickly you can stop.

Few motorists know how quickly they should be able to stop their car. It is so easy to assume the brakes are right—until an emergency shows they are all wrong.

How to avoid accidents

A simple inspection of your brakes at frequent intervals will make them a source of protection instead of danger.

Perhaps a tightening of the brake rods, or an adjustment of the equalizer is all that is needed. The garage man will know if relining is necessary.

Why Thermoid Brake Lining is safest and wears longest

In each square inch of Thermoid Brake Lining there is 40% more material than in ordinary brake lining. This additional body gives a closer texture which is made tight and compact by hydraulic compression under 2,000 lbs. pressure. In addition to this, Thermoid is Grapnalised, an exclusive process in manufacture which enables it to resist moisture, oil and gasoline.

Have your brakes inspected today. Remember that every foot of Thermoid is backed by Our Guarantee: Thermoid will make good—or WE WILL.

PICKWICK LINES COVERING STATE

San Diego-San Francisco Runs Now Being Made.

Hope to Establish Line to the Canadian Border.

Thousands Carried Per Month Between Points.

In 1911 there was an old-fashioned motor stage line wheezing its way back and forth between San Diego and the Imperial Valley. It was known as the Imperial Valley, San Diego Motor Transportation Company. At this time this was practically the only connecting link between the valley and the seaboard, except by rail over a much longer route, and it became extremely popular shortly after it was organized.

The line had its headquarters in the Pickwick Theater Building in San Diego, where tickets were sold and freight carried. As the traffic began increasing the line was known to the public as the Pickwick stages. After a period of two years the travel had increased to such an extent that it became necessary to purchase new equipment and reorganize the company. When this was done the name Pickwick was adopted, so it can be said that the public named this system that now extends from the Imperial Valley to San Diego, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

It is also interesting to note that the Pickwick lines, northern and southern operating in affiliation, form the longest stage service known in the world today, as the total mileage covered is 1358.

NEW SCHEDULES.

After the aforementioned reorganization, it was found that the Imperial Valley people demanded service to Los Angeles, it being cheaper and more direct than making several changes. This was the reason for adding the San Diego-Los Angeles run to the Imperial line. After the establishment of this schedule it was discovered that it was something for the popular demand and the cars running between the abovementioned cities soon became crowded with tourists and sightseers. Under the able management of A. L. Hayes, president and general manager of the line, the business grew to such an extent that was decided to experiment with a connecting link between Los Angeles and San Francisco. Charles F. Wren, as president and general manager of the Pickwick northern division, put on the campaign and it met with instant success.

In fact, now, Mr. Wren states, he is carrying capacity loads at all times and what is more surprising gets about half of his traffic from the Canadians wintering in California. Also, the line receives a heavy play from the people visiting in California who come from the Northwestern States.

Because of this at the present moment the Pickwick company has an application before the State commission to open up a line running between Portland, Or., and San Francisco and, according to Mr. Wren, it is safe to say that in two years the Pickwick stages that run out of the union depot in Los Angeles will form a motor chain connecting the Canadian line on the north with the Mexican border on the south and will be covering more than 3000 miles of road.

The line is equipped with Pierce-Arrows and Packards, the former cars operating on the northern run to a large extent and the latter on the southern route. The southern line carries between 15,000 and 20,000 passengers per month, while the northern schedule runs between 12,000 and 15,000 per month.

A Triumph.

"Was the Grabcoin reception a success?"

"I judge so," replied Mr. Dubwaite.

"Yes?"

"Mrs. Grabcoin's Paris gown was such a marvel that quite a number of the ladies present left earlier than they intended, and I understand they were very disagreeable to their husbands on the way home."—Birmingham-Age Herald.

OPENS UP LAND ALL OVER STATE.

this time. It is not generally known that the stages operating out of the Union depot cover 2100 miles of California boulevards, nor is it generally known that the traveler may purchase a ticket in San Francisco and ride, either by the inland or the Coast route from that city to San Diego, but it can be done and is being done every day.

It also may be of interest to know that since the motor stages have been put on regular time schedules it is becoming a common practice, among the residents of this portion of the country, to take the Sunday outings via stage. All through the tourist season hundreds of parties are carried over the lines operating from this center throughout California, and they all report that they have obtained a better knowledge and understanding of California by this method of travel, than through any other effort.

ANOTHER FEATURE.

Still another feature in the recital of the development of this field has to do with the conception, building and maintenance of good roads. Of course, the establishment of good roads to a great extent may be laid directly at the door of the pleasure automobile, secondly to the commercial vehicle, nevertheless it must be remembered that more people travel by motor stage today who are not car owners than there are people travelling over the highways who own their own vehicles. In conclusion this means that the average citizen not in the motor-owning category is made a booster for good roads.

For instance, we will suppose a good roads bond campaign is being inaugurated in Southern California; it is only reasonable to believe that every man who owns an automobile and uses the same over the roads in this portion of the country, would naturally vote for the acceptance of these bonds, but is it not also an important factor to interest 325,000 additional people in the same project, who do not own automobiles, and ally them closely with those who are interested in formulating plans for the betterment of the highways? I am confident in the belief that in another year Los Angeles will boast of a new depot, which will handle more than 500,000 passengers every twelve months and to interest these people in the project of increasing our good road mileage and the maintenance of same is a feature which cannot be overlooked.

age the fifty-nine White busses burned 260,000 gallons of gasoline and 26,000 gallons of oil, at a fuel cost of $40,751 for fuel and oil alone.

In the long hauls a different type of car is used, as in the case of the Pickwick stages, northern and southern divisions.

On the northern division a fleet of thirty-three Packards and Pierce-Arrow touring cars is used. They have been remodeled so that from twelve to fifteen passengers can be carried. The cars make daily runs between Los Angeles and San Francisco, via the coast route, making splendid time. The actual running time is slightly under that of any other means of transportation, but in order to break the fatigue of the journey a stop is made midway for the night, thus giving the stage passenger a chance to see all the country by daylight.

On the southern run of the Pickwick lines, Packards are used, covering both routes to San Diego from Los Angeles. A really interesting trip is offered here, in that for a saving of $1 the tourist can go south by the coast to San Diego, a distance of 136 miles, and return inland over the mountains to Los Angeles, a distance of 114 miles.

WHITE BUS LINE IN FOREGROUND.

Machines Make Quick Time on County Runs.

Los Angeles-Santa Ana Route of Scenic Interest.

Connecting Links Join All Local Centers.

In tracing the development of the motor stage in Southern California the White Bus Line comes to the foreground as a pioneer in the field of organizing this business.

The history of the line dates back to the year 1916, when, in October of that year, the White Bus Line became an incorporated institution and took over what was then known as the P. E. Line.

OPERATING RIGHTS.

In October, 1917, the White Bus Line purchased operating rights and equipment from the Clark Line, running between Los Angeles, Pomona, Chino and [illegible], and immediately replaced the mixed equipment which had been operating by White cars being installed throughout.

Another link in the White chain of service was established when, in December, 1919, the Orange Belt Line was included in the system, adding thirty-one more cars, which will all been replaced by White equipment as rapidly as the modern body building plant, located at Market street, Los Angeles, which is part of the extensive operations of the line, can produce these bodies.

STABILITY.

A proof of the stability of the White product is found in the fact that in the strenuous service of motor stage transport, where cars must be fit for the road a maximum of the time, the White has demonstrated itself to such an extent that where there were three Whites in 1916 there are today thirty-five in operation and these are all of the latest type, pneumatic cord tires and carrying twenty-two passengers each. In these busses every feature of the master body builder's skill has been incorporated.

FILLED WITH INTEREST.

Traveling over the White line between Los Angeles and Santa Ana the whole trip is one filled with interest. After leaving the Union Stage Depot at Fifth and Los Angeles streets, Monterey Park is soon reached, which was formerly known as Montebello, where great new oil fields developed in the past two years, are to be seen in striking contrast to the surrounding elements of agriculture, and horticulture, for on all sides there is a wealth of flowers and fruits.

Through the fields of oranges and amid the walnut groves the route then takes us to Whittier, which is entered on Philadelphia street, and continues through to the highway again and on to East Whittier, shortly after passing which the Leffingwell orange grove is seen, which is one of the largest in the State and owns its own packing-house and equipment of all descriptions. La Habra is the next point called. It is noted for its early citrus fruit. Thence the line leads into Brea, where the surrounding oil territory has been widely developed in the last few years.

FULLERTON.

Fullerton comes next in the itinerary and in the district thereabout are to be found some of the biggest citrus and nut growing enterprises in California, as well as great oil interests. From Fullerton the stage travels to Anaheim where another thriving industry makes its appearance in the form of beet sugar making and in the adjacent portions of this country beets are cultivated in vast quantities. Reaching Santa Ana after a stop is made at Orange en route the remaining interesting country is touched revealing the prolific growth of fruits, nuts and beets as far as the eye can reach.

Should the traveler be destined to San Bernardino his way lies through a myriad of varied scenery almost baffling description.

At Pomona connections may be made for Chino, six miles east, with its sugar factory and canning plant, where beets are transformed into sugar crystals and the citrus fruit preserved for later distribution into all parts of the country.

From Pomona the way is made mildst the beautiful stretches of lemon and orange orchards to Ontario with its Hot Point electric factory and large canneries and packing plants, equipped with all modern devices for handling fruits of all kinds.

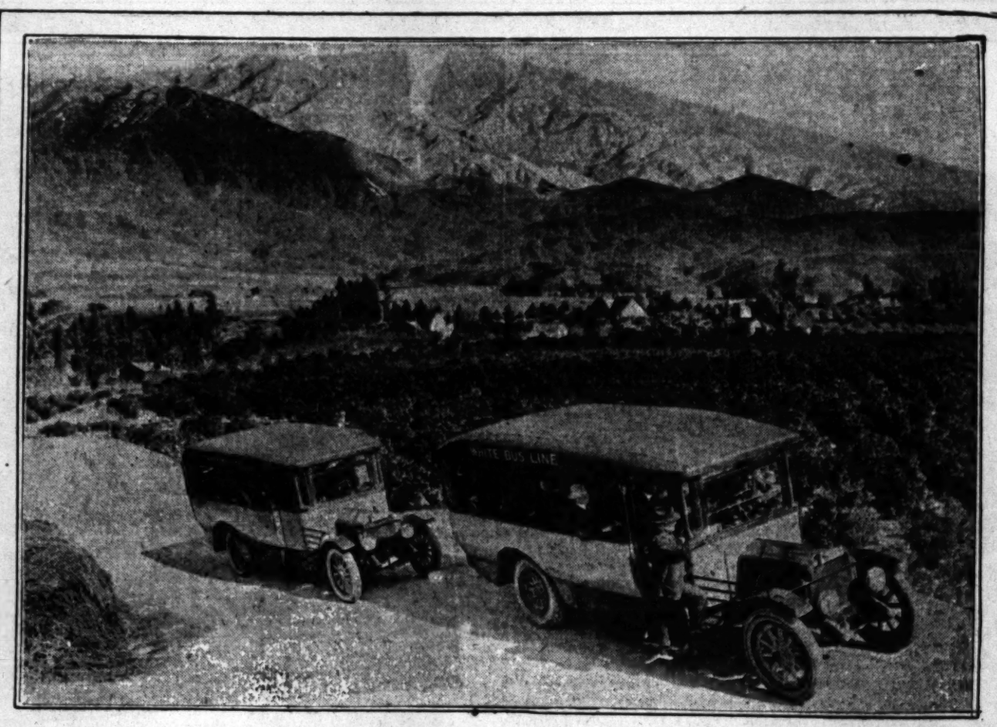
BRANCHING OUT.

From Ontario one line branches through Guasti, which up to the time John Barleycorn ceased to exist had the record for the largest distillation of wines in the United States, there being located there one vineyard of 4000 acres, the largest in the world. From here it goes north to Cucamonga. Another line also traverses the country north to Upland, also noted for its citrus production and packing-houses.

The two lines connect at Cucamonga and continue on to San Bernardino, passing on the way through Etiwanda, Fontana and Rialto, in the heart of a magnificent growth of grapes, oranges and lemons on all sides. San Bernardino is a thriving community of about 50,000 inhabitants and its industries include large packing-houses, railroad shops and other commercial activities.

Yet again another line is operated from Ontario through Wineville into Riverside, the home of the navel orange, where the first tree of this description is still thriving vigorously.

The wonderful mountain trip can be made from San Bernardino by connecting for any point on the rim of the world or Big Bear Valley.



Points Touched by the Motor Stages.

MOTOR STAGE UNION DEPOT.

then bringing all the principal lines in operation into the union depot.

UNDER CONSTRUCTION.

The new depot was put under construction at once, and on September 23, 1919, was formally opened to the public. The project was met with instant success, proven by the increased travel which almost at once passed the 300,000 mark per month.

In a few words I can show what the erection of this depot has meant to the public. In the first place, its operation has cut the general overhead nearly 50 per cent., besides making possible definite and absolute schedule service and concentrating the maintenance department. This lowering of the operating expense is alone responsible for the establishment of the low rates now existing. Last fall we did not raise nor will we this spring; in short, it's the old story of efficient consolidation bringing about the greatest benefits to all concerned.

To the 312,000 people who use this station monthly, a detailed description will not be necessary, but for the other 312,000 people in Los Angeles, who do not use our depot regularly, a few words may not come amiss.

The entire plant occupies 13,200 square feet, and now an additional space of 4500 square feet is to be added, making a total of 17,700 under the new plan.

IN THE STATION.

The cars enter the station from Maple avenue, and are unloaded, then pull ahead to the loading floor, where fourteen stages can be accommodated at once. The passenger comes into the depot on Fifth street, where he finds a completely-appointed waiting room, furnished with writing desks and rocking chairs on the mezzanine floor. In addition to all the other features may be found a barber shop, drug store, cigar, confectionery and news stand, checkroom, rest rooms and restaurant.

To the man whose business takes him into the surrounding country, no matter where it be, and to whom time is money, the motor stage affords a service carefully studied to meet his exacting requirements, offering him the maximum of comfortable travel with the minimum of expense and exertion; connections can be made into every imaginable territory with a frequence which he cannot find by any other means of commercial transport.

It is a fact that the motors are running day and night, and it is also a truth that the union depot has never been closed from the day it opened. There is a constant stream of traffic passing through its doors going to and coming from every part of the State. From the time the traveler enters the waiting room of the depot to the time he reaches his destination his needs are studied and taken care of [illegible] detail. The modern [illegible] service is expressed in every [illegible] action, and it is this [illegible] spirit to which is attributed [illegible] appreciation by the [illegible] out in the [illegible] traffic.

PROOF OF PUDDING.

"The proof of the pudding is the eating," and as demonstrated by the growth of the business [illegible] be cited that the White [illegible] two years ago carried 30,000 people per month, and today [illegible] increased tenfold, to [illegible] thirty days. It is, in fact, a conservative estimate to state that five years time more than [illegible] present accommodations will be necessary to take care of the increase in traffic, for its many advantageous [illegible] gives the motor stage a [illegible] of adaptability in serving [illegible] every possible form of [illegible] mand in the direction of [illegible] tation.

AN ASSET TO THE PUBLIC.

BY B. H. DYAS.

Worry, worry, always will we have something to worry and stew over.

Now the stylish thing to worry over is the high cost of living, but I can remember, and so can everyone else, when our chief worry was the jitney-bus problem.

This rattle-trap means of transportation was founded on nothing but rattles—put on rattle-brained driver in a rattle-trap car and you had the "jitney" that profaned our streets and highways some years ago. But, like everything else, with all its hideous faults it had its virtue.

Out of the fly-by-night jitney-bus idea has grown a fine, substantial institution that is a very valuable asset to the public, and that is the interurban system of bus lines.

Truly this is an institution that California may be proud of and, in view of the fact that this organization has grown to such proportions in three short years, it is nothing short of remarkable.

Our No. 3450 Insulator is 2¼ times stronger than the best previous insulator. Ask your dealer for a set specially designed for your car.

Blind.

A New York lawyer had a rich client who was noted for her very haughty manner. One day while out in her automobile she ran over a poor old woman, and was arrested.

"Oh, Mr. B., do you think you will be able to get me out of this?" she said to her lawyer.

"Undoubtedly," he replied, with a twinkle in his eye. "I'll prove conclusively to the court that you've never been able to see anyone worth less than $100,000."—[Boston Transcript.

INFORMATION MAN HAS TOUGH JOB.

If the late Bill Nye had ever worked at an information desk in the Union Stage depot, it's a cinch that even great humorist that he was, he would have been pawing the air and making signs. It's a great life behind that sign in the depot. The world is filled with the unconscious humorists and it is an admitted fact that the biggest laughs are those which come from those totally innocent of fun intent.

Remembering that this is a new era in passenger travel and that the general public is not fully schooled on all the twists and turns of "Ride by Motor Stage," it is only natural that at times an overwhelming flood of questions pour over the information desk, covering every subject from the prune market to rheumatism.

A very nice lady bustled in recently and after waiting until there was a short lull in the question traffic, very confidentially asked the info man if the driver on No. 9 Pickwick Southern were married. Of course, it would have been interesting to know what was going on back of her hair net, but that must be left to surmise, as Frank Stockton was wont to say when he wrote about the lady and the tiger.

After that a tall, spare gentleman from Nebraska came to anchor by the desk and depositing his carpet bag on the floor, shifted the "fine cut" and wanted to know if the company ran stages to Catalina Island as he allowed "he'd like to catch himself some of them big fish over there."

* * *

A very comfortable, rather elderly lady dropped in to inquire, "If I take the stage to Murrieta, will it cure my rheumatism? I've tried about everything else I can think of and can't get any results."

* * *

Some newly-wed Swestie phones, all in a fluster, saying she had forgotten to get the eggs for her darling's breakfast, and would the Info Man please have one of the drivers on the White Bus Line stop on his way back from Riverside, and buy her two dozen eggs, further that she would come in for them herself—service de luxe, yea, bo!

* * *

Last week a girlish, young thing with a diffident manner, asked "What time does the 9 o'clock stage leave for San Diego?" Eight sixty and nine," she was answered, and was perfectly satisfied. One must never explain. Always tell the truth but give 'em an answer.

* * *

A worried looking gent breezed in, elbowed his way to the front rank and wanted to know about his wife. "I've just sent my wife to Santa Barbara on a round trip ticket, how soon will she be back?" There is a wide field of conjecture here, maybe he was lonesome, maybe he wanted to step out.

* * *

"Say, friend," asked a wide gent, looking like Nevada, "If I go to this Tia Juana by stage will there be a hoss race there?"

EDUCATING PUBLIC IN CARE OF CASINGS.

Most automobile tires are ruined either by abuse, negligence or ignorance, so manufacturers are spending much time and money to educate motorists to the care of tires. Under-inflated, sudden braking, and striking against curbs reduce mileage as well as the unavoidable conditions of rough and rutty roads. To educate customers how to get maximum service from tires, manufacturers are conducting extensive advertising campaigns and publishing booklets calling attention to facts of which the average motorist is ignorant. Foremost among these industrial concerns is the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Akron, which is distributing through its dealers and service stations timely conservation bulletins that contain facts pertinent to greater mileage.

PERPLEXING NEWS.

The news from Harvard that the moon is inhabited brings us up with a start. We have been hearing about the folks on Mars for years, but here are some people living on our moon, the same moon we have posted all over with "No Trespassing" signs, holding it restricted, you might say, against the day when we get ready to cut it up into town lots and sell it off ourselves. Now we hear that a party of colonists has already moved in and nobody knows how long they have been there, paying no rent nor sending in any ice cream. And what makes it worse is that we have no way of knowing how much back rent is due us, and no way of collecting it when we find out.—[Kansas City Star.

RIDE BY STAGE—NEW SLOGAN.

BY E. S. FIRESTONE.

Los Angeles realizes the immense possibilities of ride by stage.

This is evidenced by the enormous traffic now handled by stages and busses throughout Southern California.

This is further evidenced by the necessity of building a union stage depot where busses and stages may be boarded for all points in Southern California.

Gasoline is fast becoming the common method of propulsion for business as well as pleasure. "Ride by Stage" is the slogan of a new method of transportation.

WHITE TRUCKS
Have Given the World Faith By Performance

If the installation of White Truck Fleets in Commercial Service were expressed in Terms of Money, they would Furnish Impressive evidence Of the Faith that large truck users Have in the White Product.

Because by their works they are Known as the World standard, and Have Been Adopted as the class A Standard of the U. S. Army Doing the Most work for The Least Money—yet always Dependable in the pinch.

The following figures show some of the large investments represented by individual fleets. These figures do not include trucks owned by the United States government or foreign nations.

1	Owner has invested over	$2,000,000.00
2	Owners have invested between	1,000,000.00	and	$2,000,000.00
5	Owners have invested between	500,000.00	and	1,000,000.00
6	Owners have invested between	300,000.00	and	500,000.00
15	Owners have invested between	200,000.00	and	300,000.00
41	Owners have invested between	100,000.00	and	200,000.00

Could there be a stronger evidence of implicit faith? When the large user invests a quarter million, half a million and two to three millions he must know the operating merit of the Product he is buying. The large users of today have ceased to experiment. They are standardizing. Investment value in the case of a single truck depends upon earning power quite as much as in the case of a large fleet.

What safer example could the small owner follow than has been shown by the faith of big business in the White Product, set forth by the table above? Nothing is better than the world standard.

REFLEX ACTION IMPORTANT ITEM.

After going through the great European war, it seems that every modern undertaking is judged by its reflex action, when it comes to setting a standard for speed and efficiency.

Every driver that takes a motor stage out of the union depot has had his knee thumped in the good old army fashion with this point in view and has passed over 80 per cent high.

It does not mean that every man is ticklish, though he may be, but his muscles and his nerves must respond to the commands of his brain in less than one-hundredth of a second.

In these days, when motor travel has become a great problem on all well-traveled highways, the men behind the wheels of the great twentieth-century motor busses must have a sure hand and a quick eye, guided by a clear, keen mind and brain.

Stages use HOBBS BATTERIES
because they stand the SUPREME test!

That practically every auto stage operating out of Los Angeles, and other parts of the West, is equipped with a HOBBS proves the supreme worth of this powerful, dependable battery.

The auto stage is the "acid test" of a battery. It tears along at a high rate of speed over boulevard, rough road and steep mountain grade. The demands on the battery are tremendous. Only the sturdiest can survive.

The following well-known stage lines confine their replacements exclusively to Hobbs Batteries:

Cross-Country Trips Fail to Faze It.

Itself, Looks Like Showroom Model.

Mileage Records Set by Canadian Motorist.

A little white across that portion of the continent represented by the railway system between Toronto, Ont., and Los Angeles, a total of almost 4000 miles, is the record of a tire on a four-passenger sedan model Franklin car owned by W. A. R. Ormsby of Toronto. Mr. Ormsby now is in this city after completing his second cross-country drive from his home.

Not only has this tire seen two journeys of such length and severity that one usually is considered the life of a tire, but it has been on the Franklin ever since the day it left the factory at Syracuse, N. Y., and has a record of almost 15,000 miles to its credit, accumulated in less than two years.

When Mr. Ormsby reached Los Angeles upon his last drive from Toronto the speedometer showed the car had covered 3667 miles since leaving home. Weather conditions were so bad that at times it was necessary to lay over a few days in the shelter of a good hotel, as the roads were impassible. In all, thirty-seven days were consumed in making the trip. The Franklin established a gasoline mileage average of 23.5 miles to the gallon and covered almost 450 miles on each gallon of oil.

AN EXAMPLE.

Mr. Ormsby might be cited as an example of those motorists who maintain their car at the perfection of appearance. Although in less than two years it has been twice across the continent there is not a scratch or a blemish to be seen on the body. Motorists have arrived in Los Angeles after making a long journey whose car looks as if every attempt had been made to remove every vestige of paint and varnish. Not so with Mr. Ormsby. His car could be placed on the showroom floor of Ralph Hamlin, Inc., the Franklin distributors, and not distinguished from one that was just taken off a train after coming from the factory.

SAYS IT'S A NECESSITY FOR LENGTHY TOURING.

AUXILIARY WINDSHIELDS ARE EFFECTIVE IN ALL KINDS OF WEATHER.

That Win-D-Flector auxiliary windshields are considered indispensable for touring over California roads has been convincingly proved by the large number of sales of this popular accessory to tourists wintering in Southern California.

"A better indication of their utility and adaptability to Southern California conditions could scarcely be imagined," said R. T. Meaker, manager of the General Service Company. "Easterners are particularly discriminating in the choice of accessories for their cars. They insist that their extra equipment be useful and practical, as well as adding to the appearance of the machine.

"With the weather remaining fine, Wind-D-Flectors are in even more general use. The roads are dusty and the use of an auxiliary windshield becomes a necessity for the long trips that most tourists are now taking."

DELIVERY BY AIR ROUTE.

Within five years Los Angeles merchants will be making rush deliveries by airplane to many surrounding communities. At least, this is the view held by one of them, who during the holidays, Christmas Eve, to be exact, resorted to airplane delivery to save embarrassment for Charles Perkins, a Camarillo rancher, who for some unaccountable reason forgot all about a present for his wife until it was too late, apparently, to correct his oversight.

William H. Richardson, president of Richardson's, Inc., in relating to a group of Seventh-street merchants lunching together at the Los Angeles Athletic Club how the day was saved for the Camarillo man, bestowed chief credit on three of civilization's most modern appliances, the telephone, phonograph and airplane. Incidentally, the motion-picture industry was called on to supply a pilot, who also played the role of Santa Claus.

"Perkins 'phoned me long distance and put it squarely up to me to get him out of his fix," Mr. Richardson said. "Send me the finest Victrola you have in stock, with a supply of records, if you can get them here in time for Christmas,' he urged. Except for the fact that he lives a good ways off the State highway at Camarillo, it would have been practicable to have used an automobile to accommodate him.

"There was but one way left open, and that was by air route, so I called up the Mercury Aviation Company and was told they would undertake delivery of the Victrola, providing they could find a volunteer pilot for the trip. Later they called me and said that Miss Ora Carew, Universal star, would pilot the plane. And, so, within an hour after we had lashed the Victrola into the passenger compartment of the plane Miss Carew landed at the Perkins's ranch."

MYSTERIOUS COPS NAB SPEED DEMONS.

They are going after violators of the laws and ordinances governing the operation of motor vehicles in Delaware. The pronoun "they" has to be used in this case, because of the fact the identity of those persons who are going to bring about enforcement is not known. They exist, however, as a number of motorists already have come in contact with their authority, much to their regret.

With Los Angeles trying to make a revision of its traffic laws and every resident deeply interested in the outcome there have been rabid suggestions made about what to do with offending motorists, according to J. B. Wood, the distributor for Hewitt tires and tubes. In Delaware, there has been created a public safety committee of the Public Safety Council, which is charged with the duty of noting traffic law and automobile law violations.

Chess and Checker Headquarters, 714-716 Higgins Building. All chess and checker players invited to join. For further information, see or write the secretary, D. H. Bowes, at the clubrooms.

All communications intended for this department should be addressed to John Dougherty, The Times, Los Angeles, Cal.

AMONG THE FANS.

Walter M. Ellis, Wichita, Kan., is one of the new arrivals, and is thinking of dropping with us for some time. Mr. Ellis, at different times, has won the championship of three States—Michigan, Nebraska and Kansas.

J. Jack, New York City, writes that his old friend, J. C. Brown of Edinburgh, Scotland, is planning to visit this country in the near future.

The Illinois State checker tournament will be held at Bloomington, February, 23, 24 and 25.

Walter M. Cooper of Detroit, an old-time Chicago player, won the State championship of Michigan in a tournament held at Ypsilanti, Mich., on New Year's day.

J. W. Sowers of Springhill, Kan., is another of the new arrivals. Mr. Sowers is one of the best players in Eastern Kansas and is a good booster for the game.

Dr. F. Lorimer, an enthusiastic fan from Boston, came here to spend the winter, but has become so infatuated with our climate that he contemplates making this his permanent home.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT.

Anker Jensen has returned from Vancouver, B. C., and wishes to announce that hereafter the Eureka Checker Player will be published here. On account of changing location, the January number will be a little late, but will arrive in due time, and he hopes by next month to be in shape to publish the magazine on schedule time.

IMPERIAL STAGE LINE ACTIVITY.

Holds Important Place in Development of Valley.

Establishes First Connection with San Diego.

Improved Roads Make Faster Runs Possible.

In 1911, ten years ago, Thomas E. Morgan, because of the great number of people who hailed him for rides in his car as he drove about plans, came to realize the crying need of a public utility that would furnish transportation throughout the Imperial Valley. Gradually the tremendous possibilities of such an undertaking dawned on his consciousness, and he conceived the idea of the auto stage. This dream was the embryo of what has since become a vast enterprise.

IN OPERATION.

So, establishing a schedule and a regular fare, he put two cars into operation between El Centro and Imperial, and called them the United Stages. The popularity of the plan spread like wildfire and there came a tremendous demand for more cars and more service.

Gradually this demand was met and the auto stage began to take an important part in the development of the Imperial Valley, by connecting the various towns efficiently and regularly.

Until the introduction of the auto stage, morning and evening train service was the only form of local transportation available to the public. The impetus this new service gave to the business life of the Imperial Valley cannot be estimated.

During these early days, probably not more than one out of 500 of the passengers handled by the United Stages had ever ridden in an auto before.

MORE ENTER FIELD.

Soon competitors entered the field and auto stages became plentiful in the Imperial Valley. However, through all the "wildcat" days, the United Stages served the public efficiently, regularly and carefully.

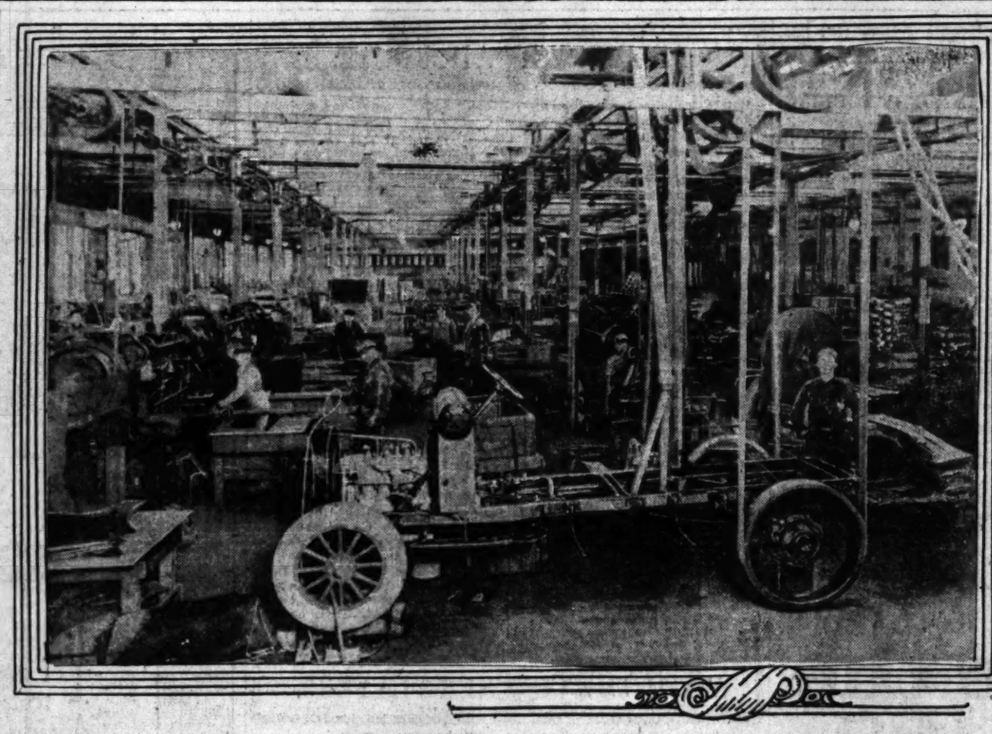
In time, there came a demand for service across the mountains to the Coast, and the first stage car to cross the "hill" was backed by the United Stages. For the following nine years, until the opening of the San Diego and Arizona Railroad a month ago, the auto stage was the only direct means of transportation between the Imperial Valley and San Diego. When the first stage schedule was started over this route nine years ago, because of the road conditions and the class of equipment used, it took between eight and one-half and nine hours to make the trip. Today, as a result of the improved road conditions, and the present class of equipment, the trip is completed in five hours, making the stage still the quickest means of transportation.

Until five years ago, during the experimental era, the United Stages operated Dodge and Ford touring cars almost exclusively. Today they operate nothing but the best obtainable in the stock touring car. This is in order to obtain the maximum of comfort, and to insure the traveling public with reliable and uninterrupted service. However, the present equipment is not to be compared with that of the future. A superstage is anticipated.

RAPID GROWTH.

In the last nine years the stage enterprise has grown with its birthplace. From a little desert town of shacks set down in the midst of waste land made unbearable in summer by the horrible heat into the thriving little metropolis, developed and cooled by irrigation, has marked the evolution of El Centro, the chief city of the Imperial Valley, the richest farming land of the Western Hemisphere.

From a two-car combination with a future as wide as the roads of the world are long, the United Stages has grown, in nine years, to its present state. But the bigger it grows, the smaller it seems, compared to the dream that sees beyond the today and into the tomorrow. Today eighty cars bearing the United Stages sign are covering regular schedules throughout the Imperial Valley and to the Coast, via San Diego, and from there as far north as Santa Barbara, and into the Santa Clara Valley.



Capable of Filling Any Gap in a Pinch.

When the coal shortage shut down the Reo plant recently a speed wagon was hooked up to a large section of machinery and delivered the goods without a murmur. The engine turned at the rate of twenty miles per hour and set a remarkable fuel record as well as keeping the plant in motion.

SPEED WAGON STEPS IN AS PINCH HITTER.

FURNISHES POWER FOR PLANT DURING COAL SHORTAGE IN THE EAST.

The fuel shortage which shut down all of the big motor car factories of Michigan, developed a new use for the Reo speed wagon.

Practically the entire Reo factory was shut down; only such departments as were not dependent on power kept running. It became necessary to turn some work out of the sheet metal department to complete the assembly of cars and trucks on which all of the rest of the work had been done. This department is usually run by two electric motors of 20 horse power each, and to keep it in operation the experiment of hooking a speed wagon up to the line shaft was tried.

CARRIES FULL LOAD.

The four-cylinder Reo motor has a rating of 27.23 horse power but it was able to carry the full peak load of the sheet metal department at any time.

A pulley was placed on each end of the rear axle of the car, which was jacked up from the floor to let the pulleys run free and carry two belts to the main shaft of the plant. In this manner the shop was kept running with full complement of workmen and while the power needed for the operation of the machines varied because part of the time a few machines were used and five minutes later the entire outfit might be called on, the motor was able to run smoothly with very little variation of speed even though the throttle was not touched.

GOOD RECORD.

The engine was set to run twenty miles an hour on high gear and even when the load pull required 41 per cent. more power than the rating of the engine, it slowed down only one mile per hour.

The Reo motor was run for the full working day of eight hours and as the speedometer is connected with the propeller shaft instead of the front wheel it was found that it had turned over enough to have propelled the car a distance of 154 miles, lacking but six miles of twenty miles per hour for eight hours.

It was also interesting to note that the fuel consumption was exactly ten gallons, or a little more than the equivalent of fifteen miles to the gallon, and this under a power load of more than 41 per cent. of its rating.

The workmen were more pleased with the uniform power of the Reo than with the electric motors as there was no let-up in the delivery of power or interruption of work.

FIRST R. AND V. KNIGHT IS NOW EN ROUTE.

HOPE TO HAVE MACHINE ON DISPLAY BY THURSDAY OF THIS WEEK.

A telegram received last week by the W. B. Conditt Company carried the welcome news that the first R. and V. Knight six-cylinder to be shipped to the Pacific Coast left the factory last Monday. Though freight schedules are not exactly accurate these days, Conditt has strong hopes that his demonstrator will arrive before next Sunday.

"With good luck the car should arrive not later than next Thursday," said Conditt last week. "The location of the R. and V. factory at East Moline, Ill., makes it possible for cars to be shipped here without going through Chicago. At this time of the year, the Chicago yards are frequently a source of much delay for freight shipments from Detroit and other points to the north.

"As may be expected, our demonstrator will be kept mighty busy for the first few weeks after its arrival. The interest that has been aroused by the announcement of a six-cylinder Knight motor has been surprising to me, even though I expected much interest in the car. The number of inquiries concerning it, and the demonstrations we have already booked give evidence to me that the car has a very definite place already awaiting it in the public regard."

[This is the fourteenth of a series of articles dealing with trapshooting, hunting and fishing by Capt. Tom Marshall, a noted authority on these subjects.]

We brought back the bacon! During the year 1901 the All-American team of wingshots were sent abroad by the American people to contest in international shooting held in London, Eng., and Glasgow, Scotland, those events to be supplemented by events of less importance in other foreign countries. Twenty-six people composed our party—judges, referees, reporters, scorers and guests inclusive. The team was selected from the United States.

They were an aggregation of experienced "old timers" who had seen trapshooting service. The choice of team members was based upon their past trapshooting experience, with proven ability to "swallow" or come through under pressure, men who would shoot just a little harder for $2 than they would for $1.

PERSONNEL.

The personnel of the shooting aggregation listed as follows: Col. E. H. Tripp, Indianapolis, Ind.; William R. Crosby, O'Fallon, Ill.; Richard Merrill, Milwaukee, Wis.; Rolla O. Heikes, Dayton, O.; Charles W. Budd, Des Moines, Iowa; Chauncy M. Powers, Decatur, Ill.; Fred Gilbert, Spirit Lake, Iowa; James A. R. Elliott, Kansas City, Mo.; John S. Fanning, San Francisco, Cal.; Frank Parmalee, Omaha, Neb.; Edward Banks, New York City; Louis Erhardt, Kansas City, Mo.; H. E. Getchell, Woonsocket, R. I.; Leroy Woodard, Campello, Mass.; Tom A. Marshall (captain) Keithsburg, Ill. Judges, referees and scorers were made up from selected timber—Paul North, Cleveland, O.; Capt. A. Money, New York City; Emil Werk, Cincinnati, O.; Frank S. Harrison, New York City; Fred Elliott, New York City; W. A. Heilman, Peoria, Ill.; Fred Pride, Cincinnati.

INSIDE HISTORY.

As captain of this team, I am conversant with the inside history of this trip from start to finish. My department in this paper will run at intervals, articles (which are now appearing for the first time in print) reciting many interesting and amusing incidents which occurred during the invasion of the foreign countries by our undefeated All-American team.

We were matched to shoot against any ten men to be found in the British Islands, one hundred targets per man, or 1000 per team per diem, a series of five races to be shot on five consecutive days for the International championship, with a side purse of $10. This first contest was staged in London, Eng., on the grounds of the Middlesex Gun Club. We shot over Eley traps at Eley inanimate targets (both manufactured in America.) The first three events won in the scheduled five were to constitute the International championships.

Results I will announce in subsequent articles. Britishers were contesting under English rules for trapshooting, which accords them the right to fire two shots, if necessary, at each target thrown, while American rules, under which we were shooting, permitted but one shot, hence we were laboring under the decided handicap of firing one shot vs. two granted our opponents.

CRITICISM.

This codition invited unfavorable criticism prior to our departure. It was claimed we had overmatched our team, an allegation not conceded, as we were conversant with their former scores, and we knew we had a marked advantage in our American guns and ammunition. Much newspaper publicity was given the prospective contests before the articles were signed. As a play or pay clause was inserted and $10,000 forfeit at stake, it was a sure cinch we would not be pried loose from that bunch of money without giving battle, even though many well-wishers thought it a mistake to contest under our stated handicap.

It was claimed our powder would deteriorate if exposed to salt air in transit, a fallacy long since exploded, especially during the world war. Taking no unnecessary chances, we had every case of our ammunition encased in tin containers and hermetically sealed, necessitating the "can-opener accessory" when we reached London.

LEADING TRAPSHOTS.

Every team member was affiliated with the Okoboji Indian organization, an aggregation of the leading trapshots of America, selected with reference to skill and good-fellowship. This tribe has been participating devotees of trapshooting for over twenty-three years and at this writing are recognized factors as consistent promoters of this patriotic sport.

Prior to the team's departure we assembled during the Iowa State shoot at Grinnell, Iowa. On our way East we stopped at my old boyhood home in Keithsburg, Ill., where the team was entertained by citizens, many good game sports from adjacent cities being present. At Springfield, Ill., the Illinois State shoot was in session. This was our last practice on this side of the big water. Subsequent articles will cover facts and incidents of the trip.

Question: How were the shrapnel shells constructed? Were any American factories turning out this product? Did they contain a poison gas?

RALPH HUGO.

Memphis, Tenn.

They were a thin steel case or shell with a fuse extending from the nose of the shell back through the center to a small charge of explosives in the base of the shell, a time fuse being used. The space between the nose of the shell where the fuse is ignited and base where explosive is contained is filled with bullets which are thrown in all directions when the explosion occurs. They are only useful and effective where men are exposed. Yes, they were manufactured in America very extensively during the war. If they were made to contain a poison gas, it has never come to my knowledge.

Q.: Are women permitted to shoot in the Great American Handicap? Are any especial prizes offered them for skill? MRS. F. E. W.

Davenport, Iowa.

A.: Yes, women are not only permitted to shoot in the Grand American of late years, but hey are made most welcome. An especial prize is awarded—won by Mrs. A. H. Winkler of Chicago, this year.

Q.: What has become of Capt. A. H. Bogardus, formerly champion wing shot of the world?

JOHN MARTIN.

Lafayette, Ind.

A.: Capt. Bogardus crossed the great divide a few years since. He was one of the most versatile shots ever in the arena of the shooting world. He won his championship at a time when arms and ammunition had not reached the stage of perfection we now have in the trap-shooting game.

FIRST CAR THE PUBLIC HAS BUILT.

"Overland 4," says E. H. Belden, vice-president in charge of engineering for the Willys-Overland Company, "is the first car I know of that has been engineered from the basis of production possibilities and the public's wants. It is the American public's car.

"When Mr. Willys gave the order to proceed to the development of a good light car, economical in upkeep and of the utmost ease in riding, our work began. When the first car was produced, the various departments—sales, service, advertising, production were consulted to get their knowledge of the public's idea of the ultimate light car.

"The service department indicated the faults to be avoided; the advertising department told the public's desire and the sales department through dealer and salesman interpreted the public's actual need. And so on. And in refining the car we availed ourselves of the most practical of all these ideas."

CLIMBS MT. WILSON ON SET SCHEDULE.

STAGES LEAVE LOS ANGELES AND REACH MOUNTAIN TOP IN THREE HOURS.

Variety is one of the most salient features of Southern California and one of the chief reasons why this portion of the country is so great a mecca for the eastern tourist. The Mt. Wilson motor stage trip is a most striking example of this feature as one may be in the orange groves around Pasadena or the bustle and hurry of Los Angeles, then two hours later be over a mile above the sea in the clear, snappy air of the big mountains.

THE OBSERVATORY.

In 1904 the Mt. Wilson solar observatory was established by the Carnegie Institution of Washington for the purpose of developing the physical side of astronomical research. The equipment necessary for the installation of the photographic apparatus was found too cumbersome and heavy for transport over the trail that existed at this time as the connecting link between the valley and the Mt. Wilson Hotel.

Therefore, before the work could begin a road had to be constructed and as time was an important element it was built under pressure and stands out today as one of the greatest of all western road building accomplishments. Not only did this construction make possible the establishment of the world's greatest astronomical institution, but it opened the Mt. Wilson sector to the motor tourist.

NEW AUTO ROAD.

Prior to this time the trip was made either by mule back or by foot, and only the more hardy could enjoy the climb and the resulting aftermath of rolling scenery. With the building of the road auto parties at once began to make the trip and shortly after this a regular stage line was established, running on set schedule out of Pasadena. Now the cars run out of the Union Depot in Los Angeles, connecting from the heart of the city to the "high mountains" in three hours. In the summer one can go from the heat of the valley to the cool breezes in that time and in the winter can leave the lowlands and be in half snow in less time almost than it takes to plan the trip.

The ride up the mountain is a never-to-be forgotten cinema of wonderful scenics. The road follows the face of the mountain through more than four miles and a half of its course then goes behind the shoulder for the hump just beyond the half-way house, only to emerge a little further on after the traveler has passed the 4500-foot elevation mark, where he may enjoy a view that covers the entire sweep of Southern California, including the sea and the Santa Catalina Islands. In fact, this is one of nature's greatest pictures and will not only stand observation but study. It has been said that the artist folk who have had this wonderful view burst upon them have nearly gone insane trying to get it all on canvas.

FREIGHT CARRIERS STUDIED IN ENGLAND.

"While the motor truck as a freight carrier and a dependable and economical means of transporting freight and merchandise may be a new idea to the people of the United States, it has been proven very successful in England," says Mr. Frank Morris of the Western Motors Company, local Kissel distributor.

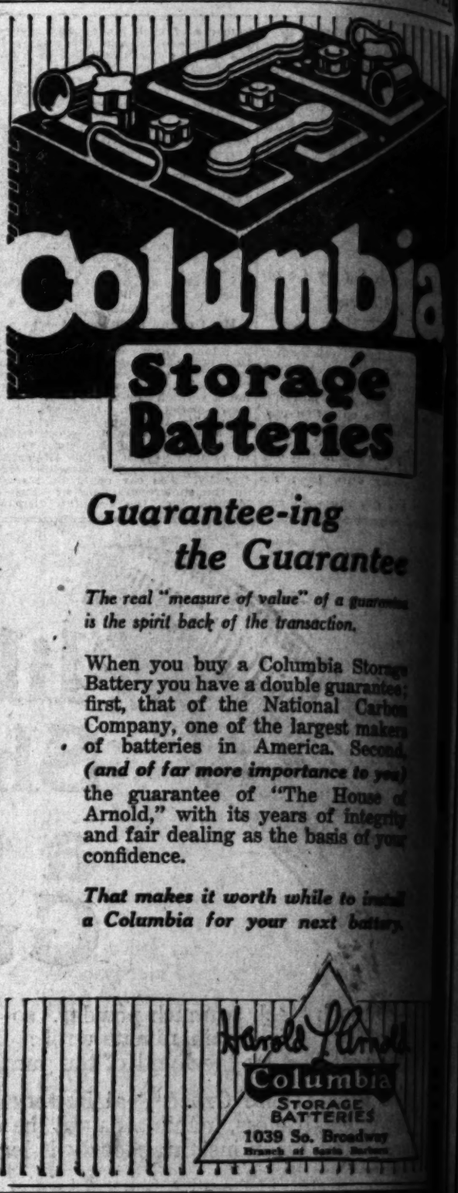
"I understand that in England right now the question of free road transport as the only remedy today in the case the railroad's rates are raised against the producer, the merchant and the individual, is receiving considerable thought and study throughout the British empire.

"I also understand that while all forms of railroad transport, such as tramways and railways in their various forms are becoming more expensive to work, most forms of road transport promise to increase comparatively little in cost."

BUILDERS DEPEND ON TRUCKS FOR SPEED.

"To meet the demand for economy and speed in renewed building operations throughout the country, motor trucks increasingly are being pressed into use," said an official of the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Company of Buffalo.

Typical instances of enterprise shown by building supply dealers who are increasing the volume and range of their business through the use of trucks may be cited in the case of two Milwaukee firms. One, the W. H. Pipkorn Company, operates three five-ton Pierce-Arrow trucks. One of [illegible] year of service ably as ever, gear intact, usage. The found that teams of h dius of op fords cu eries.



Guaranteeing the Guarantee

The real "measure of value" of a guarantee is the spirit back of the transaction.

When you buy a Columbia Storage Battery you have a double guarantee: first, that of the National Carbon Company, one of the largest makers of batteries in America. Second, (and of far more importance to you) the guarantee of "The House of Arnold," with its years of integrity and fair dealing as the basis of your confidence.

That makes it worth while to insist on a Columbia for your next battery.

THE STRAITLYNE GREASE GUN FILLER fills a want long been felt by the autoist who takes care of his car as well as by the garage man.

It prevents the soiling of the hands, the greasing up of the clothes and the polish of the car.

Autoists do not use a grease gun often enough because it is a hard, dirty job to fill. The STRAITLYNE FILLER makes it easy to load a grease gun as it is to load a breech-loading shotgun.

It will save its price several times over during the season in the gasoline it saves—to say nothing of grease.

It is simple to use, easy to operate, never gets out of order and is inexpensive. It is made of steel to fit the ordinary grease gun up to the size holes in fittings.

Price $1.00

If your dealer cannot supply you with the STRAITLYNE GREASE GUN FILLER, write to us and we will see that your wants are filled.

In ordering, always specify the inside diameter of your grease gun.

Born in the West Indies, Empress Josephine was a Creole, as were her children Eugene and Hortense. The Creoles are of pure French and Spanish descent. A distinguishing mark of their pure blood is their wonderful hair.

THE royal crowns that some historic Creoles wore were not so lovely as the crown of glorious hair which is the natural heritage of nearly all Creoles. They give their hair special attention, and for generations La Creole Hair Dressing has been favorite among them. La Creole prevents gray hair, preserving the youthful color and beauty even past life's twilight.

Color Brought Back Without Dye

La Creole treatment will bring back to its former color hair that has become gray, gray-streaked or faded. Refinement approves its use because La Creole contains no dye. It promotes the vigorous healthy condition of hair and scalp which nature intended, and two to five weeks treatment will bring back any shade—lightest brown to deepest black—whatever the natural color was. After that an occasional application will preserve the healthy color permanently.

La Creole must not be confused with dyes—of course it gives no dyed appearance, it cannot stain the scalp and there is nothing to wash or rub off. La Creole makes hair soft, wavy, lustrous. Eliminates dandruff. Absolutely guaranteed to bring back the hair's color—or money refunded.

If it isn't an EASTMAN it isn't a KODAK

As you regard all silver as "Sterling"—most people have fallen into the habit of referring to all cameras as "Kodaks." This is entirely wrong, as the word "Kodak" is an exclusive copyrighted name of the Eastman Kodak Co., and is used on their products exclusively. To be sure of getting the original and genuine—look for the name "KODAK."

The Proof.

WOMAN has tamed man at last. After countless centuries of patient endeavor she now has man so educated and domesticated that he eats out of her hand, jumps through hoops, stands on his head and performs always exactly as she has taught him to do.

Only woman would have displayed a patience so tireless and so long lasting. If it had been man who had it in hand to tame woman he would have quit after the first couple of million years and let her run wild. Man is, at best, a very impatient animal.

But, patience is a part of woman. It was born in her. No doubt the first woman of all worked for hours at a time to make the fig leaf she wore look to the best advantage.

So, through the ages when she lived with man in caves, when she progressed with him to the point where they moved into trees, through the centuries when he hunted his prey on his hands and knees like a wolf, down through the dark and the Middle Ages to our yesterday, she wrought with that stubborn, strange creature who was and is still her mate.

And at last, she tamed him. If proof were wanting that she has done so, the proof is here at hand.

And the proof is that she has seized the purse strings. Man's final white flag of surrender was hoisted when he handed over his pocketbook.

It is woman, and not man, who spends the money now. In realization of this important fact, it is to woman and not to man that the stores, the theaters and all other revenue-seekers cater.

From the moment the dollar was invented it became the symbol of power. Woman has the dollar in her hands; hence, she is the boss, the supreme grand ruler of the world.

The Policeman's Horse.

THERE are a lot of human things about a city, after all. Despite its noises, its iron walls that shut out sun, moon and stars, and even though you may die in the city and nobody be sorry, yet there are human things about it.

And one of these human things is the policeman's horse.

Have you ever seen the horses that the policemen of Los Angeles ride? Have you ever seen them all together when they are being taken home for the night? If not, you should take the trouble to do so, for they are wonderfully handsome. They came from Modoc county, away up yonder in the vast California of the North, and they are bred like the horses of Arabs.

The day before Christmas, when the city was at its maddest, we came across one of these police horses. He was standing with his forefeet on the sidewalk. His master was nowhere in sight, for he was doubtless taking a moment to buy a toy or two then for his own little kids at home. Yet he had no need to concern himself about the horse.

Now, you would never believe how many people stopped in their wild rush on the streets to greet that policeman's horse, to wish it a Merry Christmas, to give it pop corn and raisins and things to eat.

And came then an old man who stopped and had a long, long talk with the horse. Maybe he was from Kentucky—that old man. Anyway, he knew horse talk, and the horse had a very nice talk with him, indeed.

The cat is really the favorite animal of the humble conductor of this page; and he knows that dogs are wonderful and much beloved; but, perhaps it may as well be admitted that the horse is the finest of animals when all is said and done.

Sex of Preachers.

THE man who is now at the head of the once famous Zion church in Chicago says that women will not be permitted to preach in that church.

No woman should feel the slightest regret that she cannot preach in a church. She can do all her preaching at home. Besides, she has the pride and satisfaction of knowing that if it were not for women in the churches there would be mighty few in the congregations for the man preacher to talk to.

It reminds us of a story that Dean MacCormack tells:

"Was the church lawn party a success?" someone asked a minister.

"Yes," he replied. "All the members of the church and their husbands were there."

It Is All Right.

LAST year, just before Christmas, we so far forgot our conscience and our philosophy as to sit with a gathering of cynics who, among other things, were decrying the Yuletide custom of giving and receiving presents.

"Look at these insane people crowding the stores and tiring themselves to death buying foolish gifts for one another," the cynics said. And, for a while, we agreed with them.

But, now we ask the Lord to forgive us. It is the most beautiful idea in the world. We met a man Christmas night who told us he had "gone broke" buying Christmas presents. He had spent his last cent and had borrowed on his next month's salary. But, he was the happiest man we had met in many a moon. It was worth a thousand dollars just to see the gladness in his tired eyes.

Henceforth we shall back Santa Claus to the limit.

A Mistaken Man.

THERE is a man out in our Verdugo hills who certainly has a mistaken idea about some things. He is a nice man in most ways, and we like him, but he flies off the handle often when there is absolutely no need of it. Maybe there are lots of other man like him in towns and other places. If so, we feel sorry for them.

Let us tell you of one of the things this man did. Then you can judge for yourself.

He has a house at the side of the road—like Homer's friend had—and also farther up on the hills he has another house where he can be by himself and play solitaire, invent mouse traps, read books or do anything he darn pleases without interference. It is a kind of a custom among the people in those hills to live like that.

Now, when the man's wife wants him to come down for lunch, or to carry in some wood or to speak to a neighbor, she blows a whistle. It is one of those police whistles and you can hear it all over. It is really a good idea.

But, what do you suppose happened? There is a mocking bird on that place who is a great fellow for jokes and fun. And this mocking bird studied over that police whistle till he got so he could whistle exactly like it. You couldn't tell which was which. And the mocking bird fooled the man down the trail seven times in one forenoon, and the man got so mad he threw rocks at the mocking bird and had a fight with his wife.

He is a very mistaken man, don't you think? He should have gone to town and boasted about the smart mocking bird on his place, making all his friends envious of him.

Instead of that, he got mad.

How He Died.

So he died for his faith. That is fine—
More than most of us do.
But stay, can you add to that line
That he lived for it, too?

It is easy to die. Men have died
For a wish or a whim—
For bravado or passion or pride.
Was it harder for him?

But to live: Every day to live out
All the truth that he dreamt,
While his friends met his conduct with doubt,
And the world with contempt—

Was it this that he plodded ahead,
Never turning aside?
Then we'll talk of the life that he led—
Never mind how he died.

Put It Down.

THIS is the special privilege of the conductor of this page to give advice. It is not necessary advice that he either needs or will take himself, but that's neither here nor there. "Do as I say, not as I do," said a preacher, once upon a time.

Well, we desire now to give a little very good advice to you all who are trapped and hemmed in by a busy world that has no time to stop to remember anything once that the thing has been forgotten.

This advice is that you shall carry a note book with you always, and that when you think of anything you desire to remember, write it down in the note book.

We know a man whose wife boasts about him day and night because she thinks he is so smart that he never forgets anything. The reason is that he uses a note book.

You will see advertisements in newspapers and magazines advising you to take what is called a "memory course" in some sort of correspondence school. But, we don't think it a good scheme. If a man taxes his memory too severely he is liable to go crazy. That's what happened to Barney Barnato, the great Diamond King of Africa, who boasted that he never made memoranda and never forgot. Then, one day, he went crazy and forgot everything.

What were paper and lead pencils made for?

Get a nice little book that won't cost maybe more than 5 cents, put it in your vest pocket, and then whenever you want to remember something, or if an idea strikes you that you don't want to lose, jot it down.

And, after that, think of the conductor and say "thank you."

Smart Talk.

PEOPLE who make a specialty of smart talk on the platform and in books certainly furnish the public with a great deal of entertainment for the moment. But, it is only for the moment. To be smart is merely to be ephemeral. It is only the solid things that stand and last.

Last summer, for instance, a very earnest and witty evangelist invaded a Godless town in Montana. He was on the Billy Sunday order, and he succeeded in arousing considerable interest, but when came the Sabbath day there was a baseball game in which the home team was pitted against the team of a rival town.

The weather was terrifically hot, and yet almost every person in the place went to the ball game.

The evangelist was very wroth about it, and he did not hesitate to speak his mind to the crowd when it came to bear him next night.

"You folks all went to the ball game yesterday instead of coming to prayers," he said. "And it was 120 in the shade. But, I am here to tell you that it will be more than 120 in the shade in hell and there won't be any ball game, either."

Billy Sunday, himself, never said anything much smarter than that. And yet, it will not be remembered. As a matter of fact, do you remember any of the smart things Billy Sunday said when he was here?

But, we remember what Paul said, and what Thomas a Kempis said, and what John and Luke and Mark and Matthew said.

They were not humorists, they did not attempt to be smart and witty. But, what they said lasts and will continue to last.

Tears at Wedding.

IT IS strange that there should be tears at a wedding, and yet it is always the case. If no one else cries, mother is sure to do so. And father looks like it, but is doubtless ashamed to appear weak. Men have a notion that tears are for women only, thus robbing themselves of one of the greatest luxuries of life.

We were a guest at a wedding not long ago, and we were thinking of all these things as we saw the girl's mother weeping softly during the ceremony, and the girl's father standing with a grave face.

You see, they were losing their little daughter, and it must have been hard to lose her, for she was as fair as the dawn and as sweet as peach blossoms in the breath of spring.

At a time like that, one can nearly always fall back on the poets for consolation, and we were thinking then of Longfellow. We were thinking of his lines where he described the wooing and the wedding of Hiawatha. It was exactly the same as the situation of which we were the witnesses.

The very thought that was in the heart of Minnehaha's father, the old Arrow Maker, was in the heart of this girl's father:

"Thus it is our daughters leave us.
Those we love and those who love us.
Just when they have learned to help us,
When we are old and lean upon them,
Comes a youth with flaunting feathers,
With his flute of reeds, a stranger
Wanders piping through the village,
Beckons to the fairest maiden,
And she follows where he leads her,
Leaving all things for the stranger."

It is the way of life. And, if it were not so, there would be an end to all things.

Solomon John.

vey covered it up by soberly telling Solomon John that the sign was sure to be a grand success.

It was a grand success; quite stupendous in fact. Old Sol did a business on the strength of it that would have made his eyes pop out if he hadn't kept them tight shut out of respect to Billy's prejudices. Reporters found his simplicity and naive honesty a mine of "good stuff," and the picture of the firm was in all the papers. Billy Wigg began to suffer from a swelled head; became naughty, not to say snobbish.

But the fierce light of publicity wore up on the simple soul of Solomon John. He discarded the extraordinary placard, and was glad when he faded away from fame. Billy wasn't. He liked notoriety as well as authority.

Billy continued to exercise his authority. Perhaps tyranny would be nearer the mark.

But even so meek a soul as that of Solomon John has limits of endurance beyond which it is not well to press. Only the other day it was that the old man said to Harvey, while Billy Wigg was otherwise engaged:

"It's as bad as being a henpecked husband, sir. Last night as I was quietly stepping out the window to take a mug of ale with some friends, Billy wakes up, and the fuss he makes rouses the neighborhood. Sure, he wouldn't hark to my going at all. You can see his teeth marks on my shin this minute, sir. Could you give me something harmless to put in his food that'd make him sleep the sounder?"

Harvey said he'd think about it. He wasn't obliged to. Less than a week later he got a note in the mail.

"Dear Sir—I could not stand it any longer. I have absconded to Buffalo to take a rest. Please be good to Billy Wigg. I enclose his board and lodging any place you put him. He is a good dog, but too bossy. I am going to see things till my eyes get tired. I will come back in future. Yours respectfully, SOLOMON JO BOLES."

"P. S.—I know you will treat Billy good."

The enclosure was a twenty dollar bill. It was the price of freedom, and cheap at the price.

To the French War Bride.

Are things so very strange to you
Who came across the seas a bride
To learn old ways and customs new
And under far off roof trees bide
Where all is hurry, jam and fret
Within a city's bustling hive,
I wonder if you want them yet—
The placid cows you used to drive.

The shepherd doesn't blow his horn
To call the lambkins far and near;
No staunch old crier shouts each morn
The news with drumbeats over here.
We send our laundry in a pack
To some steam place—we don't know where.
I wonder if you'd have them back—
The washing parties in the square.

The shriek of sirens tells our noon
And not the chime of church's bells;
Our folk clack not in wooden shoon
Nor draw their water out of wells.
We run to flats, hotels and such,
We're strong on progress and advance.
I wonder if you miss it much—
The little, red tiled home in France.

SUNDAY JANUARY

EDITED BY THOMAS P. POORE.

SOLOMON JOHN AND BILLY WIGG.

BY SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS.

IN ALL the trade of the city you might not find such another quaint business firm as Solomon John and Billy Wigg. The senior partner was a gentle old giant; the junior a brisk and shaggy little dog. It was Solomon John's business to stand on a roaring corner and sell papers; it was Billy Wigg's business to take care of him while he did it, for he was blind.

It was our business—Dr. Harvey's and mine—to pay for our papers and pass on, but we seldom strictly minded it. Instead we would stop to talk to Solomon John, to the detriment of trade, and to be patronized by Billy Wigg, who was much puffed up with self-importance, conceiving himself to be principal owner of the earth and sole proprietor of Solomon John. In the half of which he was correct.

I was very fond of Billy Wigg, despite his airs of superiority. Harvey preferred old Solomon; but this was a semi-professional interest, for my medical friend had contracted the pamphlet habit, which he indulged before scientific bodies made up of gentlemen with weak eyes who knew more about ophthalmology that can be found in many fat tomes. Solomon John was a remarkable case of something quite unpronounceable, and Harvey used to gaze into his eyes with rapt intensity, while Billy Wigg fidgeted and struggled against the temptation to gnaw such portions of him as were within reach; for Billy Wigg didn't understand, and what he didn't understand he disapproved of on principle. In the light of subsequent events, I believe Billy's uneasiness to have been an instance of animal previsions.

To see Billy Wigg conduct his master across that mill-race of traffic that swirled between curb and curb, as he did every morning in time for business, was an artistic pleasure. Something more than a mere pilot was the dog; rather the rudder to whose accurate direction old Solomon responded with precise and prompt fidelity. A tug of the trouser leg from behind would bring the ancient newsboy to a halt. A gentle jerk forward would start him again, and in obedience to a steady pull to one side or the other he would trustingly suffer himself to be conducted around a checked wagon or a halted cable car. All the time Billy Wigg would keep up a running conversation made up of admonition, warding, and encouragement.

"Come on, now"—in a series of sharp yaps, as they started from the curb. "Push right ahead. Hold hard. That's all right; it's by. Hurry now. Hurry I said. Will you do as I tell you?" Then, to a too-pressing cabby, in an angry bark, "What's the matter with you, anyway? Trying to run folks down? Hey? Well"—apologetically, in response to a jerk on his string—"these fool drivers do stir me up. Wait a bit. Now for it. And here we are."

How many thousand times dog and man had made the trip in safety before the dire day of the accident not even Solomon John can reckon. Harvey and I had started down town early, while our pair of paper-vending friends chanced to be a little late. As we reached the corner they were already half way across the street, and Billy Wigg, with all the strength of terror, was striving to haul Solomon John backward.

"What's the matter with Billy?" said Harvey, for from the sidewalk we could not then see the cause of his excitement.

A second later the question was answered as there plunged into view from behind a car the galloping horse of a derelict delivery wagon.

"Good heavens! Look at the old man," I cried, and in the same breath, "Look at the dog," gasped Harvey.

With one mighty jerk Billy Wigg had torn the leash from his master's hand. Bereft of his sole guidance in the thunder and rush of traffic the blind man stretched out piteous hands, warding the death he could not see.

"Billy," he quavered, "where are you, Billy? Come back to me, Billy-dog."

For once Billy Wigg was deaf to his master's voice. He was obeying a more imperious call, that unfathomed nobility of dog-nature that responds so swiftly to the summons. He was casting his own life in the balance to save another's. Straight at the horse's throat he launched himself, a forlorn hope. It was a very big horse, and Billy was a very little dog. The upstroke of the knee caught him full; he was flung, whirling, fell almost under the wheels of a cab, rolled into the gutter, and lay there quiet. The horse had swerved a little, not quite enough. There was a scream, and the blind man went down from the glancing impact of the shoulder. Harvey and I were beside him almost as soon as the cross-walk policeman. The three of us carried him to the sidewalk.

"No need to call an ambulance, officer," said Harvey. "I'm a physician and the man is a friend of mine."

"Bedad, thin, the dawg is a friend of mine," said the big fellow. Couldn't ye take him along, too, sir!"

"Well—rather," said Harvey heartily. "Where is he?" He turned to look for the dog.

Billy Wigg came crawling toward us. Never tell me that dogs have no souls. The eyes in Billy's shaggy little face yearned with a more than human passion of anxiety and love, as, gasping with pain—for he had been cruelly shaken—he dragged himself to his partner's face. At the touch of the warm, eager tongue, Solomon John's eyes opened. He stretched out his hand and buried it in the heavy hair fur.

"Straight at the Horse's Head He Launched Himself."

"Hello, Billy," he said weakly. "I am afraid you were hurt. Are you all right, old boy?" And Billy, burrowing a wet nose in Solomon John's neck, wept for joy with loud whines.

Some rapid and expert wire-pulling on the part of Harvey landed our pair of friends in a private hospital, where Solomon John proved a most grateful and gentle patient, and Billy Wigg a most tumultuous one, until arrangement was made for the firm to occupy one and the same cot. Then he became tractable, even enduring the indignity of a flannel jacket and splints with a sort of humorous tolerance. Every day Harvey came and gazed soulfully into Solomon John's glazed eyes—which is a curious form of treatment for broken collar bone, not sanctioned by any of the authorities who have written on the subject. It soon became evident that Harvey didn't care anything about the bone; he had other designs. One day he came to the point.

"Solomon John, would you like to have your sight back?"

The blind man sat up in his cot and pressed his hands to his head.

"Do you mean it, sir?" he gasped. "You—you wouldn't go to fool an old man about such a thing?"

"Will you let me operate on you tomorrow?"

"Anything you think best, sir. I don't quite seem to take it all in yet, sir—not the whole sense of it. But if it does come out right," added Solomon John in the simplicity of his soul, "won't Billy Wigg be surprised and tickled!"

Billy Wigg raged mightily and rent the garments of his best friends because he was shut out during the operation. When he was admitted after it was over, he howled tumultuously because Solomon John was racked with ether sickness, which he mistook for the throes of approaching dissolution.

It was a long, nerve-trying wait, but the day finally came when the white bandages were removed.

After the first gasp of rapture, Solomon John looked about him eagerly.

"Let me see my dog," he said. "Billy, is this you?" as the junior partner looked with anxious and puzzled eyes into his face. "Well, you're certainly a mighty handsome doggy, old boy." (Billy Wigg was homelier than a stack of hay in January, but the eyes that looked on him were as those of a mother when she first sees her babe.)

Unhappiness was the portion of Billy in the days that followed. A partner who wandered about unchaperoned and eluded obstacles without relying on his sense of touch was quite beyond his comprehension. So he sulked consistently until the time came for leaving the hospital. Then he chirped up a bit, thinking, presumably, that Solomon John would resume his old habit of blind reliance upon him when once the doors had closed behind them. Poor Billy!

It was three weeks after the operation that they left, Solomon John being discharged as cured. Harvey exulted. He said it was a great operation and proved things. I thought, myself, it was a mean trick on Billy Wigg. My unprofessional diagnosis was that he was on the road to becoming a chronic melancholiac.

The partners called on Harvey soon after the departure from the hospital. They were a study in psychological antithesis; Solomon John bubbling over with boyish happiness, Billy Wigg aged with the weight of woe he was carrying. The old man was touchingly grateful, but his ally surreptitiously essayed to bite a piece out of Harvey's leg when his back was turned. He nursed an unavenged wrong.

Months passed before we saw the pair again. We returned from our European vacation confident of finding them on the same old corner, and, sure enough, there they were. But as we approached Harvey seized me by the arm.

"Good heavens, Bob! Look at the old man!"

"What's wrong with him?" said I. "He looks just the same as he used to."

"Just the same as he used to," echoed Harvey bitterly. "Eyeshade and all. All my work gone for nothing. Poor old boy.'

"Billy Wigg's all right, anyway," said I, as that superior animal greeted us with every indication of excitement.

"Think so?" said Harvey. "It strikes me that it isn't exactly welcome that he's trying to express." Then in a louder voice to Solomon John, "How did it happen, old Sol?"

At the sound of his voice Solomon John whirled about and started to thrust up his shade, as if involuntarily. Then he held out tremulous hands, crying:

"What! Is that you, Dr. Harvey? God bless you, sir! And is Mr. Roberts with you? Well, well; but this does me good. You're a sight for sore eyes!"

"Not for yours, Solomon John!"

"And why not, then? Whist: I forgot," he broke off scaredly, jerking his head toward Billy Wigg, who held us all under jealous scrutiny. "Wait a breath.

Thrusting his hand into his pocket, he whipped it out suddenly. A flight of coins scattered and tinkled and rolled diversely on the sidewalk. "Dear me!" cried the old man cunningly. "The old fool that I am! I'll never be rich this way. Pick them up, Billy boy."

Billy hated it, for picking small coins from a smooth pavement with lip and tooth is no easy job; hated worse leaving his partner to two such unscrupulous characters as he well knew us to be. But he knew his business, and set about it with all his energies.

"Whisper now," said the senior partner as Billy swore under his breath at a slithery and elusive dime. "I've as fine a pair of eyes as you'd want for star-gazing at noonday."

"Then what on earth—"

"Sh-h-h! Soft and easy! The beast's cocking his little ears this way. Sure 't was all on his account, sirs."

"On Billy's account?" we both exclaimed in a breath.

"You didn't think I'd be faking it?" he asked reproachfully. We didn't, and we said so. But we required further enlightenment.

"All on account of Billy Wigg there, sirs. The eyesight was a million blessings to me, but 't was death to poor Billy. Not a pleasure in life would he take after we left the hospital. When I'd walk free and easy along the streets that looked so pretty to my old eyes, the dog'd be crazy with fear that some harm would come to me through him not leading me. At the last he just laid down and set out to die. He'd not sleep, he'd not eat; and the eyes of him when he'd look at me were fit to make a man weep. I sent for a dog doctor—you being away, sir," put in Solomon John in polite parenthesis to my friend. "He says 'the dog's dying of a broken heart. I've seen it before," he says. "What'll I do?" I says. "He'll not be content till you are as you were before," says the dog doctor. It was a minute before I sensed what he meant. Then my heart got thick and sick inside me. 'Blind?' I says. 'Is that what you mean?' 'You old fool,' says the dog doctor, 'can't you do a bit of play-acting? You've had enough practice in the part,' he says.

"Over I went and got my stick and put on the old shade that I hadn't ever thought to use again, thanks to you, sir, and taptapped across the floor to Billy Wigg. 'Come on, Billy,' says I; 'I want you to take me out for a walk.' Billy jumped up with a kind of choky bark, and I hugged Billy and Billy hugged me, and—we've been doing business on the corner ever since."

There was a long pause.

Harvey's expression was queer. I felt a little queer myself, it was a queer story, you know.

Finally I asked the old man if business was good. Not that I particularly yearned to know, but it seemed to be time to say something.

"Nicely, sir, thank you," said Solomon John. "But I want to ask you. Is it a dishonesty, think you, for me to be wearing my shade like a blind man, and me able to see a flea on the end of Billy Wigg's tail the length of the block away. The Lord's been mighty good to me, sir—you and the Lord—giving me back my sight," said Solomon John simply, turning to Harvey, "and I wouldn't want to do anything that wasn't just square."

"I wouldn't let it weigh on my mind," said Harvey.

"I'd been thinking of a bit of a sign," proceeded Solomon John. "A friend of mine printed it out for me, but the idea's my own."

After some fumbling under his coat he produced a placard artfully designed in large and flourishy letters. This was the order of it:

I Am Not Blind But the Dog Thinks I Am.

Billy Wigg seemed pleased because Harvey kicked me. No doubt he would have been equally glad if I had kicked Harvey But it happened to be I who laughed. Har

The Married Life of Helen and Warren.

BY MABEL HERBERT URNER.

A Discouraging Business Trip Arouses Helen to a Strategic Scheme.

"KEY for 535," Helen tried to locate the number on the letter boxes behind the desk.

"Not here," the room clerk's pencil tapped an empty box. "I think the gentleman just went up."

Helen thanked him and crossed to the elevator. With a pleasurable glow she glanced around the lobby. Traveling was always exhilarating. The atmosphere of hotels and sleepers held a never-failing allurement.

"Floor, please?" mumbled the gum-chewing elevator girl.

"Fifth," amused at the incongruity of the powder-coated nose and chip.

Down the door-lined corridor to 535. Warren in the one easy chair, his feet on the window-sill, did not trouble to turn.

"Dear, have you been here long?" with a purring kiss on top of his head.

"Hand me that ash tray," ignoring both her query and caress.

"Tell me about Mr. Ormsbee," eagerly. "Did you win him over?"

"Didn't see him," grimly. "He wasn't at his office all day."

"Why, Warren, you didn't have an appointment?" with swift dismay. "You didn't write or even wire you were coming?"

"No, took a chance. Ormsbee's a queer bird. Shy on appointments."

"Can't you see him at his home?" excitedly. "You've all this evening. And tomorrow's Sunday—he'll surely be home in the morning."

"Nothing doing. Not a man you can tackle in his home. If I wasn't so dog-tired—we'd take the sleeper back tonight."

"And have all this trip—and expense—for nothing? Dear, why don't you phone him? You might be able to see him."

"Look here, what the devil you know about this?" explosively.

"Why nothing, only I thought—"

"Well, don't think! I can manage my affairs without you butting in."

In hurt withdrawing silence, Helen got out her traveling sewing-roll to mend a ripped glove. All the pleasurable glow of the trip

We might be able to utilize some of this kind of "Hun" spirit in America.

Also, should that spirit prevail throughout Germany, there need be no guesswork as to Germany's commercial future.

After this, it is not surprising to read a statement by the Minister of Food and Economics, who declares the economic situation in Germany had improved to an astonishing extent. He cited statistics to show that production in the mines, shipyards and general industries had approached a pre-war basis.

"Sleeping Sickness."

REFERRING to the so-called "sleeping sickness," of which cases have occurred in this country—quite different from the real "sleeping sickness" of South Africa—Health Officer Powers of Los Angeles is quoted as saying that it may be an aftermath of the influenza epidemic.

This is a mistake. Influenza cleans the blood of waste matter, and leaves the patient in much better condition than before. "Sleeping sickness," like many other ailments, is due to maltreatment of influenza, especially the injection of foreign matter into the blood in the shape of serums.

"Seems Incredible."

I MENTIONED last week that Judge O'Donnell of Solano county, California, recently held, in a test case, that school authorities have no right to force children to undergo medical examination, against the wishes of their parents. Also, that Dr. Pomeroy, Health Officer of Los Angeles county, had stated that he would quarantine families who refused to permit their children to submit to physical examination wherever the children are declared to be suspected of having been subject to a contagious disease. A New Year's Greeting.

FOLLOWING is from Mrs. Alice Fleming of Long Beach, Cal.:

"I wish you a happy New Year, and many of them. I have long wanted to write a line thanking you for what you are doing in the Care of the Body for poor, drugged, besotted humanity. I go all others who have written to you in appreciation one better, for I have placed a halo upon your brow. Would that your articles could be proclaimed from the housetops. the committee. Donations for the bazaar will be received up to 4 o'clock this afternoon.

She swept back to the heading.

BAZAAR AT HOTEL COLBURN

Social Leaders Work for West Side Hospital.

As she read on, her heart beat faster. It was tonight—in this hotel! And Mrs. Ormsbee was chairman! Surely her husband would be with her. What was that but a kindly intervention of fate? Helen's thoughts leaped on to various happy combinations. Then she wisely concentrated on the obstacles.

To entice Warren into a bazaar would not be easy. The most propitious time would be after dinner, while he was under the benign effect of food.

But the bazaar did not open until 8 o'clock. If they finished dinner before then, he would want to go to a "show." He would certainly balk at waiting around with only a bazaar in prospect.

If she could keep him asleep until 7! Tiptoeing across the room, she switched off all the lights except the desk lamp— leaving the room in restful, sleep-inducing darkness. Then, afraid to stir lest he awaken, she sat by the window rehearsing the evening's possibilities.

The fact that Mr. Ormsbee might not be at the bazaar, she resolutely refused to entertain. He would be there, and Warren would meet him!

"Oh, all right—go to it," resignedly. "You buck ahead and play half-back. I'll tag along."

The long hotel drawing-room was lined with flag-draped booths. There was the usual litter of inane, useless bazaar "novelties."

Clothespins dressed as dolls, clothes hangers padded and scented, satin whisk broom holders, beribboned aprons, handkerchief and glove cases, and every known species of pin and sofa cushions.

While Warren, bored to extinction, loomed awkwardly by, at each booth Helen lingered as long as she dared. Though the place swarmed with women there was scarcely a dozen men, yet still she kept "willing" and "believing."

At a booth further on, conspicuous among the tawdry knicknacks, was an antique necklace of amber beads.

"Oh, dear, look at this lovely old necklace!"

"Eh? What would mother want with that?"

"No, I didn't mean for your mother. I've always loved amber," wistfully. Then with a glance at the tag, "Oh, but it's $40!"

"Isn't that a charming old piece?" The attendant, having cajoled another customer into buying an ivory back-scratcher, turned to them decoyingly.

"Yes, it's very attractive," conceded Helen, hurriedly passing on.

At the next table she was suddenly conscious of Warren's disappearance. So he had slipped away after all! All her contriving had been in vain.

Too dejected to inspect the rest of the stalls, she turned wearily toward the door. Then suddenly she paused, her heart beating tumultuously.

There was Warren! He was standing by the doorway, laughing and talking with a stout gray-haired man.

"You're turning down a smashing good of...er!" his voice rang with its usual dominate note. "Now see here, Ormsbee, just because of a family row—"

Helen did not stop to hear more. Cross...g the lobby, not waiting for an elevator, ...e flew up the stairs. It was a relief to ex...nd her joyous excited energy on those five ...eath-taking flights.

She had no key, but a passing chamber...aid unlocked the door of 535. In the big ...air by the open window, she let the chill ...ool her flushed face.

Her scheme had worked so far! She ...s athrob with a thrilled exultancy. If ...ly the rest would "come right."

For the next hour she waited in pulsing ...spense. At last the door swung open.

"Hello, Kitten!" briskly. "Been looking ... you. Why d'you run off?"

"Why, I—I saw you'd met some one you ...ew."

"That was Ormsbee! Talk about dumb ...k—ran right into him!"

"Oh!" tensely. "And did—did you have a ...ance to talk?"

"Been with him ever since—down in the ...il. Threshed it all out—he finally came ...und."

"Oh, dear, I'm so glad!" tremulously.

"Well, here's where you come in," tossing her a small package from his pocket.

The amber beads! Helen caught them up with a gleeful cry.

"Oh, but forty dollars!" Her economy combatted her joy.

"Never mind about that. This trip will pay, all right. You've earned some sort of a rake-off for dragging me to that fool bazaar. How in blazes did Ormsbee come to blow in on that hen party? That's what stumps me!"

Helen, glowing over the amber beads, did not enlighten him. He never took kindly to her feminine strategies. So it was just as well, she decided shrewdly, that he should not know.

Shackled—A Weakling's Choice.

BY ELVA SAWYER CURETON.

MOLLY stopped short in the doorway, and through her parted lips her breath came in little gasps as if she had been running. Her clear brown eyes darkened, and her tired figure stiffened. The two before the fire, sensing an alien presence, guiltily drew apart and simultaneously turned.

The man spoke first. "Little sister hurt her hand." The patent insincerity of the inadequate excuse struck the chilly air with a hollow mockery.

The girl, impatient at the man's clumsiness and the untenability of her own position, shrugged her shoulders. "Don't stare so, Molly. Is it such a terrible thing for my future brother to kiss me?"

Molly did not answer. Instead she turned and went back to the kitchen where she had been preparing dinner. Some large, heavy object in her chest made locomotion difficult. She felt an overpowering weakness, a refusal of her limbs to co-ordinate, so she sank heavily on a chair by the kitchen table. The sudden physical collapse caused her a mild wonder. What was it about the tableau she had witnessed that had so demoralized her body yet left her mind calm? It was surprising, now she came to think of it, how calm she was. For she had been betrothed to Mark for three years, and it was less than two months since his return from France. She remembered her excitement over that home-coming, and Dora's resentment that it should have come on the day she wanted Molly to take her to the big football match at Palo Alto. How caustically Dora had spoken of Mark that day, as if he were a matter of supreme unimportance! And in the early days of their engagement how Mark had chafed at what he called her enlarged conscience because she had insisted on putting Dora through the Normal before she could take her own happiness. Only the advent of war had cut short the endless argument. In a few months, now, Dora would be graduated and then—. Her head went down on her arms. Behind her were struggle, memories; ahead—nothing.

After awhile the steady murmur of the two intermingling voices in the front room detached themselves from the curious roaring in her own head. What were they talking about? Ah, herself, of course! She rose unsteadily. The odor of burning meat came to her nostrils; the hiss of a dry pan on the stove sent its message to her benumbed brain.

With mechanical precision she went about her duties. When dinner was on the table she bathed her face, tidied her hair, and went once more to the living-room door, taking meticulous care not to surprise the occupants.

"Dinner is ready."

They both looked up in surprise and relief at her matter-of-fact tone.

"Tired, Molly," asked Mark with unwonted solicitude, for he was not one to think much of others. "Dora's a big lazy lummox, isn't she?"

"Molly doesn't like me messing about the kitchen, do you, Molly?" retorted Dora with affected spirit.

"No," said Molly, moving off.

The dinner and the interminable hour after it that Mark felt it incumbent upon him to stay, were over. At the door he had tried to kiss her as usual, but she had drawn back.

"Not tonight, Mark."

"Why not," he blustered, but his eyes fell before her level regard.

Now she was in her room, the door locked—alone. Alone! No eyes to see the ravages of that struggle, no one to keep up before. She loosened her hair and braided it, giving, meanwhile, a casual look at the face the mirror reflected back at her. She knew its defects too well to need any close scrutiny to tell her that the vertical lines between her brows, the shadowy lines about her mouth and eyes had deepened since the day Mark asked her to marry him. She knew too that the bright color that had been her chief claim to an evanescent youthful prettiness, was faded, that her face was thinner—in short, that she showed every day of her 27 years. In contrast to this rose the picture of her sister's unclouded freshness. Dora was prettier than she had ever been. Were looks all, then, that counted with men?

Slowly she undressed and crept into bed, but even then she did not allow herself the solace of tears. A fierce pride, wounded unto death but not conquered, held her rigidly wide awake, staring with fever-bright eyes into the darkness, as her mind groped in the unlighted chaotic jumble those two had made of her future.

In the morning, unrefreshed, but with settled purpose, Molly went prosaically about her household duties before starting to work. Dora sullenly refused to meet her eyes, nervously waiting for her sister to speak, the fuse laid and waiting for the match that would set off her defensive, injured-innocence explosion. But Molly did not supply the excuse. She had no intention of smoothing the way for those two.

For three days Mark kept away. During all that time Molly gave Dora no opportunity to speak. They were both away the greater part of the day—Dora at school, Molly at Barker and Steingrover's where she acted as stenographer, book-keeper and general butt for the whims of the junior partner. At home Dora spent much time studying, and when the housework was done Molly grimly sewed on her sister's graduation dress.

The fourth night Mark came. Molly answered his ring and brought him into the living-room where she had been sewing, while Dora studied. After the strained greetings there was an awkward silence. Of the three, Molly was the only unembarrassed one. Yet she did nothing to relieve the situation, placidly sewing as if nothing unusual had occurred. Mark made a few spasmodic, half-facetious remarks and after a brief attempt to second his efforts with flippant rejoinders and high-pitched laughter, Dora relapsed into sullen silence. At last Mark rose, made a feeble excuse about work to do and started toward the door. Dora stood up, dropping a book in her agitation, but Molly, without apparent haste, was before her, and politely accompanied Mark to the door. He hesitated uncertainly, at a loss what to do, but she managed to dismiss him without appearing to notice his dilemma. As she returned to the living-room, Dora flashed out of the other door and did not return.

After a similar experience or two it became evident to the stupidest observer that Molly was outwardly taking her lover and her sister at their word; but as she never gave Mark an opportunity to have a word with her in private—she was seconded in this by Dora, who kept a jealous watch over her—it was also plain that she was not entirely satisfied. Yet it puzzled the guilty pair to know what was going on behind her placid exterior.

And all of the time Molly was watching. She and Mark had been lovers for years; it seemed to her that he had always belonged to her. Her whole future was planned to fit him, and she had no intention of uprooting her life for a witless blunder. If what she had seen was but a passing impulse, if deep down in his heart she still held first place, she would not let foolish pride wreck her life. But she must be sure. And so she studied Mark and it did not take her long to discover that it was not she but himself over whom he worried. The quick meaning glances he cast at Dora told their own tale. But still she would not speak. It was not she who had transgressed. Why should she make it easy for them? So she grimly waited.

It came at last after one of those grotesquely pitiful attempts of Mark's to appear in his old character of familiar intimate. It was obvious to Molly that he had primed himself with anecdotes, rehearsed his part, and done all in his power to bring back the appearance of naturalness. Dora had been unusually compliant, abetting his attempts almost humbly; but the bright color in her cheks, the unnatural glitter of her eyes told of the strain she was under. As Molly rose with Mark to see him to the door as had always been her custom. Dora suddenly sprang forward and thrust her sister back.

"You shan't drive him off this way! Mark! Aren't you ever going to speak?"

Thus challenged Mark turned a haggard glance to Molly.

"Are we engaged now, or aren't we?" he asked.

"We are until one of us asks for a release," she evenly returned.

Dora turned fiercely on the young man. "Ask, you fool! If she hasn't pride enough to offer you your freedom, ask!" Her voice rose hysterically and she grasped his arm and shook it.

Mark straightened and his eyes squarely met Molly's. "No, I won't do that. It is for you to decide, Molly."

"He loves me! Do you want to marry a man who loves your sister?" cried Dora, flashing round on Molly.

Molly looked at them both, a keen not unkindly scrutiny. "No," she slowly returned. And to Mark, "Of course I release you if you wish it. You knew you had only to ask."

Mark's eyes dropped, and when Dora flung herself sobbing into his arms he gave Molly a harried look which followed her for days after. It seemed to be trying to say so much, yet to be restrained by something he wasn't at liberty to divulge.

After their marriage Mark and Dora took an apartment and Molly was left alone in the old home place. The loneliness, made greater by her sensitive shrinking from facing the friends who had known of her long engagement to Mark, cut deep. She didn't permit herself to brood, but she couldn't entirely ward off those dark hours of depression that steal on us unawares and hold us in an unreasoning, vicelike grip, squeezing out our heart's blood drop by agonized drop with relentless futility. But she fought those hours off desperately, and she was regaining something of her natural poise when Dora and Mark came to live with her. The place was half Dora's, so when she came to Molly and said she and Mark must retrench, and she didn't see why so much space should go to waste, Molly acquiesced in the arrangement. She was to cook her own meals and have her own rooms—a sitting-room and bedroom upstairs.

She managed to keep pretty well to herself and to see as little of Mark as was possible without emphasizing her avoidance too much, until Dora came down with typhoid fever. That broke up the separate cooking arrangement, for though they had a nurse, Molly had to cook the evening and morning meals and relieve the nurse after dinner. Naturally she and Mark were thrown together in a new and inescapable intimate way. Sometimes she caught him looking at her across the table with an odd speculative expression that made her flush and avoid his gaze. Because she could not help thinking that this was what she had dreamed of for years, could not avoid the cruel mockery of it, she knew what he too was thinking, and she wished Dora would hurry and get well. Once the thought came, what if Dora did not recover, but she thrust it from her in horror and hardly looked at Mark for days after. But she couldn't refrain from letting him see what he had thrown away for a pretty face. And her little culinary triumphs, her knowledge of his likes and dislikes, the smoothness of the domestic machinery, were bitter sweet victories.

At last the day came when the doctor said Dora might join them at the table on the morrow. It was, then, their last tete-a-tete dinner. It started as usual, but after awhile Molly became conscious of Mark's eyes. They followed her every move with a concentrated intensity that made her nervous. She became self-conscious and unsteady of hand. When she spilled the tea Mark smiled, and there was triumph and something Molly did not like in his unceasing regard.

"Our last dinner," he said softly, as he put down his napkin.

"Dora will brighten us up," she returned, trying to speak naturally.

His eyes burned into hers. "Will she?"

Molly rose and began clearing up. Mark, as had been his custom, assisted her, Molly wanted to tell him not to bother, but she feared to start an argument. The silence lasted until it became oppressive. Molly spoke first.

"As soon as Dora can spare me I am going to room with Mary Brant. It is nearer my work, and the apartment we have chosen is very comfortable and homelike."

"Molly!" Mark dropped his tea-towel and stepped toward her.

"When you married Dora you took my responsibility off my shoulders," said Molly result was that the British merchant through the British carrier gained control of trade that he could never otherwise have obtained, and with true British tenacity, what he once had he continued to hold.

At this time an analogous condition confronts the world. Aerial navigation is the new order, and the nation that neglects that fact and fails to secure aerial bases for its commercial air fleets at the great ports of entry throughout the world, will lose out in the contest for foreign trade.

The American business man who has been laying plans for a foreign trade business campaign in the far-places of the earth, particularly that rich undeveloped domain to the south, with its myriad inland cities and millions of population, must get busy and his moves must be made swiftly, for if Britain succeeds in establishing a series of aerial bases for the distribution of goods inland by air ships—like her coaling stations that circle the globe—she will make mighty inroads on our foreign commerce which our splendid merchant marine will be unable to prevent.

Of course the ship will be the principal means of transporting the heavy materials of commerce for many years to come; perhaps no means of transportation will ever be devised that will take its place as a carrier of the raw material of commerce. At this time as the past, the ship is the cheapest method of moving goods. Data compiled by F. Handley-Page, the great English airplane manufacturer, shows that one horse power driving a ship will move 11,200 pounds at the rate of ten miles per hour; the same amount of power will move 1120 pounds on a motor truck at the rate of six miles per hour; one horse power on a locomotive will move 1120 pounds at the rate of thirty miles per hour on rails, while one horse power on an airplane will move twenty pounds at the rate of 100 miles per hour or ten pounds at the rate of 130 miles per hour. So while other means of transportation are swifter, the ship still has the call when it comes to bulk and low cost of carrying goods.

It is therefore a source of satisfaction to note the growth of our merchant marine. The latest available data shows that Great Britain's tonnage of deep sea carriers is approximately 18,000,000 tons while that of the United States is about 12,000,000 tons. The 6,000,000 tons advantage held by Great Britain will easily be overcome in the next two or three years by the great shipyards now in operation in this country and there is little doubt but that in five years time, if the conditions warrant it, the yards of this country can turn out enough ships to give the United States the mastery of the sea, measured in cargo carrying tonnage.

With this fact staring Britain in the face it is little wonder that the men who have made her the "workshop of the world" as well as the "Mistress of the Seas" should bestir themselves and cast about for means and measures to hold their hard-won commercial vantage ground.

While this inland trade of South America is not so extensive either in bulk or value as the trade between ports, it is a well recognized fact in commerce that the merchants who are equipped to cover the field, to overcome difficulties, to supply the wants of every class of trade are the merchants that build up the biggest trade and that hold that trade against all competition. Then, too, the merchants and the nations that are first in the field of aerial prospect stand the best chance of developing that field as science and experience point the way.

individual assure himself that he is indeed worth his salt.

"Under the old vogue it was too easy to be a parasite. Too many slackers found it possible to live on the fruits of others' labors. Just as the intolerable 'alimony widow,' childless, useless, worthless, increased and multiplied under the old order of things, so did a vast assortment of other types slide into the worthless 'kept' class that consumes, corrupts, despoils but never earns. Whether it is the 'ambulance-chasing,' litigation-breeding lawyer, the rake-off snatcher, the gold brick dealer, the confidence trickster, the change-ringer, the strike-agitator, the walking delegate, the card-sharper, the professional lady-lover or any other type that wants to live without working, they must in future find the new order of things hopelessly out of sympathy with their aspirations."

To these should be added political-medical parasites, who do not contribute to the public health, but are engaged in the creation and holding of soft jobs.

Rupture Kills 7,000 Annually

Seven thousand persons each year are laid away—the burial certificate being marked "Rupture." Why? Because the unfortunate ones had neglected themselves or had been merely taking care of the sign (swelling) of the affliction and paying no attention to the cause. What are you doing? Are you neglecting yourself by wearing a truss, appliance, or whatever name you choose to call it? At best, the truss is only a makeshift—a false prop against a collapsing wall—and cannot be expected to act as more than a mere mechanical support. The binding pressure retards blood circulation, thus robbing the weakened muscles of that which they need most—nourishment.

But science has found a way, and every truss sufferer in the land is invited to make a FREE test right in the privacy of their own home. The PLAPAO method is unquestionably the most scientific, logical and successful self-treatment for rupture the world has ever known.

The PLAPAO PAD, when adhering closely to the body, cannot possibly slip or shift out of place, therefore cannot chafe or pinch. Soft as velvet—easy to apply—inexpensive. To be used whilst you work and whilst you sleep. No straps, buckles or springs attached.

Learn how to close the hernial opening as nature intended so the rupture CAN'T come down. Send your name today to PLAPAO CO., Block 298, St. Louis, Mo., for FREE trial plapao and the information necessary.—[Advertisement.

NERVOUSNESS

Ametropathy is a new method of treating disorders of the nerves and inner organs, and is adapted to many diseases ordinarily considered as desperate, which the known methods of cure admittedly fail to reach.

Ametropathy proves many diseases to be mere functional disturbances with no organic lesions whatever for support, thereby enormously simplifying the process of cure.

Ametropathy as an auxiliary to other medical procedures has no equal and never disappoints.

It is, however, not suited for acute and infectious diseases, but for ailments of a neurotic character only; for instance:

Nervous Prostration—Hysteria—Despondency—Insomnia—Headaches—Neuritis — Tic — th Jerks. Dizziness—Fainting, Spells—Epilepsy—Fear—Restlessness — Irritability — Dyspepsia—Moods—Asthma—Nervous Heart — Mental Pain—Wasting — Goitre — Eyesche — Crosseyes—Astigmatism—Cataract — Failing Sight — Stuttering.

Shackled—A Weakling's Choice.

BY ELVA SAWYER CURETON.

MOLLY stopped short in the doorway, and through her parted lips her breath came in little gasps as if she had been running. Her clear brown eyes darkened, and her tired figure stiffened. The two before the fire, sensing an alien presence, softly drew apart and stumbled to death but not conquered, held her fiercely into the darkness, as her mind groped in the unlighted chaotic jumble those two had made of her future.

wide awake, staring with fever-bright eyes

After a similar experience of two it became evident to the stupidest observer that Molly was outwardly taking her lover and her sister at their word; but as she never gave Mark an opportunity to have a word to offer you your freedom, ask!" Her voice

"Ask, you fool! If she hasn't pride enough

Dora turned fiercely on the young man.

"We are until one of us asks for a release," she evenly returned.

"Are we engaged now, or aren't we?" he asked.

THE "OIL BUG." By Hugh L. Matier.

FOREWORD.

I HOPE that my readers will not mistake the heading of this article as indicating an attempt to describe one of those estimable gentlemen who frequent our local oil exchange.

Far be it from me, a simple geologist, to attempt to penetrate the financial holy of holies in which are carried on those marvelous monetary operations connected with the winning of the liquid gold from old mother earth.

It is the original oil bug, the little fellow who first made the oil, of whom I would like to speak; his birth, his life, why he went into the oil business, his death, his grave, his gravedigger, his tomb and finally of his resurrection "in spirit" in this year of need.

A few nights ago I happened to be standing before the open furnace door of one of our big sugar refineries. In the combustion chamber, fed by a small pipe of fuel oil, there roared an awe inspiring flame the absolute whiteness and intensity of which could be compared to nothing except a summer sun at noonday on a Saharan desert. And these really were sun's flames which had been gathered ages ago and stored up by the oil bugs in such a way that it is convenient for us now when we need these sun's rays to bring them to light again. For whether you say sun's rays, or stored up power it means the same thing.

The servant problem is—like a class of people (non-resident in Southern California I think) always with us; but—my good householder and my good lady, when next you dilate on the servant problem just think of all the millions of servants of yours who lived on this earth with one sole idea in mind—to prepare themselves to transport you over land and sea and through the air, to warm you, and in numberless other different ways make life so joyous, easy and comfortable for you under the sunny southern skies of California.

Yes, dear madame, when next over your social cup of tea you lament the difference between the old style servant and the present one do not forget these tiny fellows who existed simply to make you more comfortable.

The "Oil Bug" Progenitor of California Petroleum

LET us go back in thought to a time when the surface of the land on which the city of Los Angeles is built was several thousand feet lower down than it is now. I cannot tell you how many thousands of years ago this was; it is beyond the ken even of the oldest inhabitant. This land was then under water, probably rather shallow in depth. The weather was warm, very much warmer than we know it; warmer even than the mid-tropics on their hottest day. The Sierra Madre Mountain range was above the water and the shore line was at Altadena.

The bed of this shallow sea was composed of fine grains of sand brought by rivers and streams from the Sierra Madre Mountains; in this shallow sea lived the diatom or oil bug with his brothers, myriads upon myriads, an uncountable host.

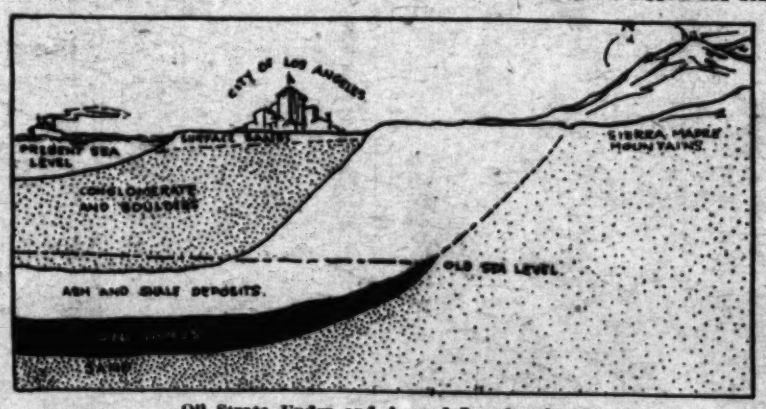
Where the progenitor of this enormous tribe came from originally I can only surmise. Perhaps shot along out of infinite space on a ray from the sun to reach this place at the right time for development and propagation. At any rate, wherever this stranger came from he evidently liked the country and its ways, as he was fruitful and multiplied and altogether was very much at home in Southern California.

What he may have been like in appearance you can see from the sketch, and if this is not he it is a cousin, anyhow, and so it is all in the family. He reminds you of a combined jellyfish and mushroom. Really he belongs almost as much to the vegetable family as to the animal one. His head was dome-shaped, just like a mushroom with thousands of little mouth-holes all dotted around a larger mouth-hole in the center. Around the rim of the dome was a fringe of bristlelike matter which constantly pulsated in and out thereby creating a wash of fresh salt water over his head. This was his feeding process and went on continually. He lived on the carbonic acid gas which was in the salt water, generated there by the hot rays of the sun. He lived what seemed to more active denizens of the sea a lazy life, his sole aim being to continually eat and get fat by drinking in the aforesaid decomposed food matter and raise a big family. In this line he was, fortunately for us, a huge success. As I look through my microscope at this moment at a speck not as large as one of the printer's full stops on this page I see the family of oil bugs in hundreds. In a little piece of earth the size of a walnut are buried millions of him. So you can see he was not a bug imposing in size, but though small he is mighty today, even causing Presidents and suchlike potentates to worry.

[The following article, written especially for The Times Illustrated Magazine, explains in simple words and striking metaphor how the immense subterranean reservoirs of petroleum that underlie Los Angeles and Southern California came into being in the slow but sure processes of nature working through countless centuries of time.—Ed.]

This Native Son Never Wandered from Home.

HE DID not travel much himself though he makes us go a good pace. You can see he had only one leg, just enough to prop himself up above the sea floor so as to have a better chance of getting what was going in the eating line.



Oil Strata Under and Around Los Angeles.

He had one great trouble, however, and one which he had no power to prevent. At certain seasons of the year terrific storms would trouble the water, raising waves hundreds of feet high. These tore up the sand of the sea bottom and mingled it with the bodies of our oil bugs in a helter-skelter of confusion, so that when calm returned again the settling sand carried to the bottom and sealed up millions of oil bug corpses. Probably thousands of years went on in this fashion until the climate commenced to get much colder so that the bug or his umpteenth descendant concluded it was time to leave this part of the world and seek more congenial shores. What made the climate grow colder, causing this migration? The gradual cooling of the earth was one cause, though probably a small one. The chief cause perhaps was the gradual change of the earth's axis, a change which is continually going on. As the earth spins around, its axis points to the Pole star or very near it. But it did not always point there, the Pole star 5000 years ago being Alpha Draconis, to give this star its proper astronomical baptismal name. If you are curious enough to look for the Pole star of those days you will find it half way between the end of the handle of the "Big Dipper" and the bowl of the "Little Dipper;" 25 deg. away from the present Pole star. Eleven thousand five hundred years from now the beautiful "Vega" will be the earth's Pole star. So you can see that the earth's position or its tilt or angle to the sun changes a great deal, making countries which were formerly under the sun's rays into much colder countries not so directly under these rays. In other words the Polar regions and the tropics are continually changing positions. There, then, is the connection between the Pole star and the oil bug. The latter in order to live had to follow the sun and keep away from the frigid influence of Polaris.

Grave Diggers Made Good Job of their Work.

WHEN the last of the bugs had departed leaving behind them the accumulated graves of their friends there commenced the work of the grave diggers who were to see that these graves were kept inviolate until today. And, absurd as it may seem, to bury this, the smallest of beings, required efforts which may well be called Herculean. For the grave digger was a volcano, that rose up like a mighty giant, to complete the work of burial. Great earth movements had pushed up above the sea huge volcanic mountains extending from far-off Alaska down to farther away Tierra del Fuego, the Land of Fire. These volcanoes spouted out murky clouds of grit and ashes which were scattered by the winds far and wide. But nature's compensating law requires that for anything pushed up something must be pulled down. So when these volcanic peaks were raised out of the water, the sea bed, the former home of the oil bug, on the site of but far below where Los Angeles now stands, sank down correspondingly.

The tons and tons of volcanic dust which had been carried on the winds dropped on the water's surface and sank slowly through the waves building up inch by inch the tomb of the oil bug in many stratified layers.

After the volcanic grave diggers had done their share of the rough work, another grave digger came on the scene to complete it. This was a big fellow too, though not comparable in size and power with the first. This one was an iceberg. Away in the North the glaciers slowly moving toward the sea would pick up the rounded rocks of the old river bed down which they glided. These they would carry along with the ice of which the glacier was composed. Sometimes, too, a glacier passing through a mountain canyon, received an avalanche of earth and rocks and regetation. Eventually the glacier after receiving to its bosom all this heterogeneous debris, would roll down to the sea and break up, forming enormous icebergs. These floated south until in the warmer waters they slowly melted, thus releasing from their frozen bowels the imprisoned earth and rocks, which dropped through the water to add another layer to the oil bug's grave. Many of these rounded rocks can be seen in the road cuttings around Los Angeles and it is often a puzzle to many how these large round granite boulders came there as even to persons unfamiliar with geology they can be recognized as strangers to their environment, far from their native granite mountain home.

Sea Bed Becomes Vast Green Meadow.

AFTER the burial service was so far completed, with the bugs several thousand feet under the sod, the sea bed as explained before rose up above the sea's surface. In due time it was covered with waving grasses and was the home of camels, elephants, tigers, horses, mammoths, and many other strange and peculiar animals of whom we would have known nothing but for the fact that at this point the grave of the oil bug had opened, perhaps due to an earthquake, and the essence of the bugs escaped in the form of gas, oil and tar. This oil filled up a hole on the surface of the ground and looked so much like water that the animals would come to drink and being overcome by the gas would fall into the pool of oil. The oil would preserve their bones, in fact, the bones of many of these animals can be seen in the University Museum in Los Angeles so admirably arranged and explained by Mr. Daggett. Those who have not yet seen these wondrous bones of ancient times should certainly do so, and so be able to form a good comparison between the ancient and modern inhabitants of Los Angeles.

First Oil Wells Dug by Hand in China.

THESE oil springs, burning wells, tar outcrops, were not confined to Southern California. In different parts of the world they have attracted attention and attempts in very primitive ways have been made to try and get the oil in large quantities. In China shafts were dug by hand but the escaping gas made it impossible for a man to work more than a few minutes, so that two sets of ladders were necessary on opposite sides of the shaft. On one ladder was a workman descending, at the bottom a man was digging, and on the other ladder an exhausted workman was climbing up with a rope around his waist by which his ascent was assisted by a man at the top of the well. Needless to say the number of feet drilled per day was small but then time did not mean much to the Chinese of that period.

In Persia a leakage of gas from oil strata took fire and was worshipped by the Zoroastrians for centuries as an earthly manifestation of Ormuzd Mazda, their sun deity.

The story of Col. Drake's success in Pennsylvania in drilling deep oil wells by the use of a tall derrick, cable tools and steam engine, and most important the using of iron casing of various sizes as the well deepened, is too well known to be repeated here. Since his days many important inventions have made possible the drilling of oil wells to a depth formerly looked on as impossible, 7500 feet or one and a half miles have been reached recently. Thus it is that the oil bug of long past ages has been induced to give up his wealth and so has created many a modern millionaire.

To Los Angeles.

[A picture show for girls and boys—such as she and I are—and for grown-ups, too—if they like it.]

Say, have you seen the picture screen
That hangs at Broadway's end?
Way down the street where houses meet,
And town and country blend?

Each day I view a picture new
That starts when I go down
To do the work I'd rather shirk,
And run away from town.

When first I greet the long, long street,
At eight o'clock or nine,
The screen is blue (some folks are, too,)
But I am feeling fine.

Some days the mist has hardly kissed
The breathing hills good-by;
Then I can't see a single tree,
Nor even the blue sky.

At noonday when I drop my pen,
And rush downstairs to eat,
I watch the show, and as I go
I step on people's feet.

The mountains rise most to the skies,
And high as you can go
I see the place I washed my face
Last winter in the snow.

Then I forget the office fret,
And watch the clouds play tag
With peaks so high it seems the sky
Would puncture like a bag.

But best of all I like the hall
In twilight's falling gloam;
Before the city's lights are lit
And I am going home.

'Tis then the Man who knows the plan
That operates the sun
Spots out the sights with pretty lights
That alter one by one.

The screen's so near, so very clear,
You see the waving grass;
You'd think that you were looking through
A stereoptic glass.

And then the light goes up so bright
From lamps along the way,
The screen is black, and I turn back
Into the darkened day.

Try the five-meal plan, if you have not already adopted it. Give it a fair trial—say for three months. Oh, yes, you will, of course, feel faint at first, without the stimulus of the unnecessary early breakfast. If you were in the habit of drinking three bottles of beer a day, and should reduce the amount to two bottles, you would also feel weak, at first. That, however, would not prove that three bottles of beer a day are necessary.

If you are not satisfied with a glass of cool water, to which may be added a little fruit juice, take a cup of coffee or weak black tea, if you use those stimulants, omitting sugar. Or better still, eat an orange, or a little of any other fresh fruit in season. Even then, except for the water, you should wait until you have been out of bed at least an hour.

The Servant in the House.

THE domestic help problem was acute before the war. Now it is much more so, especially in the United States, where housekeepers expect one girl to do the work of three in Europe.

Housekeepers must realize the truth of what Lloyd George said several years ago—"Don't talk about reforms after the war. Talk about a new world."

Wonder is sometimes expressed that girls prefer to work in department stores, for half of what they may get in domestic service, and without board. It is not a subject for wonder, but is quite natural. The store worker has fixed hours. The household worker is "on tap" practically all the time. Moreover, even in this democratic country, the social status of a domestic is different from that of a store clerk. It should not be, but it is, and it will continue to be, until domestic service is placed in the important position where it belongs.

Domestic assistants must be paid by the hour, with specified hours of labor. Housekeepers who need longer hours of service must either hire more help, or do part of the work themselves. There is no other way.

And the "servant in the house" will no longer be content with a narrow, ill-ventilated attic. She should not be.

In Germany.

I READ that coal miners in Saxony voted to work seven days a week, eight hours a day, with no holidays until March 1, in order to do their part to restore the prosperity of the country.

We might be able to utilize some of this kind of "Hun" spirit in America.

Also, should that spirit prevail throughout Germany, there need be no guesswork as to Germany's commercial future.

After this, it is not surprising to read a statement by the Minister of Food and Economics, who declares the economic situation in Germany had improved to an astonishing extent. He cited statistics to show that production in the mines, shipyards and general industries had approached a pre-war basis.

"Sleeping Sickness."

REFERRING to the so-called "sleeping sickness," of which cases have occurred in this country—quite different from the real "sleeping sickness" of South Africa—Health Officer Powers of Los Angeles is quoted as saying that it may be an aftermath of the influenza epidemic.

This is a mistake. Influenza cleans the blood of waste matter, and leaves the patient in much better condition than before. "Sleeping sickness," like many other ailments, is due to maltreatment of influenza, especially the injection of foreign matter into the blood in the shape of serums.

"Seems Incredible."

I MENTIONED last week that Judge O'Donnell of Solano county, California, recently held, in a test case, that school authorities have no right to force children to undergo medical examination, against the wishes of their parents. Also, that Dr. Pomeroy, Health Officer of Los Angeles county, had stated that he would quarantine families who refused to permit their children to submit to physical examination wherever the children are declared to be suspected of having been subject to a contagious disease. The Public School Protective League of California—legislators provide that any child enrolled in the public schools whose parents file with the principal of the school a statement in writing to the effect that they will not consent to physical examination, is exempt therefrom. In a suit recently brought by this organization to compel the observance of this law, the Superior Court of the State of California, in and for the county of Solano, upheld the law and decided that it prevented any examination of the children of those opposed thereto.

"In a statement issued a few days ago and given publicity in the press, County Health Officer Pomeroy comments on this decision, and announces that although this law is now in force and has been upheld by the courts, that nevertheless he does not intend to recognize the rights of parents and that any parent insisting upon his rights under this law will be quarantined so long as exemption is claimed.

"Such a statement on the part of a public official, sworn to uphold the law, seems incredible. Our government is one of laws not of men, and the unqualified announcement by a public official that he does not intend to obey the law, and will imprison citizens who have the temerity to assert their rights under a law which the Legislature has passed and the courts expressly upheld, is lawlessness of a degree which, we submit, demands vigorous and summary action.

"On behalf of the citizens of Los Angeles county who are members of this organization, we therefore demand such immediate action in this matter as will protect citizens against a public official whose announced purpose is to disregard the laws of the State."

Whooping Cough.

FOR whooping cough put the child on a very light diet—mainly fresh fruit. Cut out starch. Give lemonade, with a little honey, but no sugar.

Children whose blood is in good condition will not catch whooping cough, or any other ailment, but then, the blood of very few "civilized" children is in good condition, because they are fed wrong.

For local treatment, put a wet pack around the chest every night—a linen cloth wrung out of cold water, and covered with thick flannel. In the morning, when it is removed, sponge off thoroughly with cold water.

A Narrow Escape.

MRS. SUSAN M. DORSEY was elected superintendent of schools of Los Angeles, to take the place of Dr. Shiels, who resigned, to take up community work in New York. Mrs. Dorsey is capable and experienced, having been connected with the Los Angeles public school system for twenty-four years.

Persistent rumors had been circulated that a Prof. Foster of Oregon was to be appointed, although why Los Angeles should go a thousand miles away for a superintendent was a mystery.

A New Year's Greeting.

FOLLOWING is from Mrs. Alice Fleming of Long Beach, Cal.:

"I wish you a happy New Year, and many of them. I have long wanted to write a line thanking you for what you are doing in the Care of the Body for poor, drugged, besotted humanity. I go all others who have written to you in appreciation one better, for I have placed a halo upon your brow. Would that your articles could be proclaimed from the housetops. Though declared to be a hopeless invalid I received great benefit simply from following your advice in discarding all cane sugar.

"Had I come across your methods earlier I would not have suffered as I have.

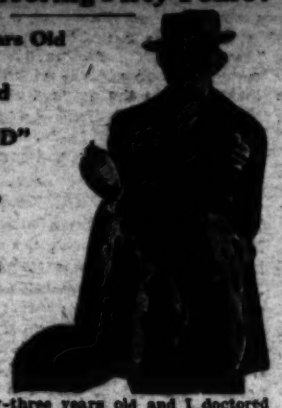
Finds Cure for Rheumatism After Suffering Fifty Years!

Now 83 Years Old —Regains Strength and Laughs at "URIC ACID" Goes Fishing; Back to Business, Feels Fine! How Others May Do It!



"I am eighty-three years old and I doctored for rheumatism ever since I came out of the army, over fifty years ago. Like many others, I spent money freely for so-called cures, and I have read about 'Uric Acid' until I could almost taste it. I could not sleep nights or walk without pain; my hands were so sore and stiff I could not hold a pen. But now I am again in active business and can walk with ease or write all day with comfort. Friends are surprised at the change."

HOW IT HAPPENED.

Mr. Ashelman is only one of thousands who suffered for years, owing to the general belief in the old, false theory that "Uric Acid" causes rheumatism. This erroneous b ef induced him and legions of unfortunate men and women to take wrong treatments. You might just as well attempt to put out a fire with oil as to try and get rid of your rheumatism, neuritis and like complaints, by taking treatment supposed to drive Uric Acid out of your blood and body. Many physicians and scientists now know that Uric Acid never did, never can and never will cause rheumatism; that it is a natural and necessary constituent of the blood; that it is found in every new-born babe, and that without it we could not live!

HOW OTHERS MAY BENEFIT FROM A GENEROUS GIFT.

These statements may seem strange to some folks, because nearly all sufferers have all along been led to believe in the old "Uric Acid" humbug. It took Mr. Ashelman fifty years to find out this truth. He learned how to get rid of the true cause of his rheumatism, other disorders and recover his strength from "The Inner Mysteries," a remarkable book that is now being distributed free by an authority who devoted over twenty years to the scientific study of this trouble. If any reader of the Times Magazine wishes a copy of this book that reveals startling facts overlooked by doctors and scientists for centuries past, simply send a postcard or letter to H. P. Clearwater, 476 K street, Hallowell, Maine, and it will be sent by return mail without any charge whatever. Send now! You may never get this opportunity again. If not a sufferer yourself, hand this good news to some afflicted friend.

vegetarian dietary is worse than a meal of beefsteak and "greens." There are several classes of vegetarians, as of Baptists, some being more "strict" than those who include semi-animal products.

Fruitarians confine their diet to fruits, fresh and dried, and nuts, classing raw tomatoes and ripe olives as fruit. They claim that this was the original diet of man, as it is now of the anthropoid apes, from whom we are supposed to be descended. However, apes rob birds' nests, and sometimes devour young birds.

In 1900 Dr. Edward Hooker Dewey of Meadville, Pa., wrote a book entitled "The No Breakfast Plan and the Fasting Cure," in which he gave his remarkable experience in improving health and curing chronic disease by inducing his patients to give up breakfast, and eat two meals a day. The practice has since become quite popular. It is founded on the theory that strength is renewed by sleep, so that the morning meal is superfluous, and by interfering with digestion, reduces rather than increases strength. Whether breakfast or some other meal should be omitted, depends on a person's habits, but there is no doubt that the two-meal-a-day plan is a step toward health and efficiency. Two thousand years ago a Roman writer chided those who ate to repletion twice daily. What would he say today?

Horace Fletcher, an American of means and culture, with a home in Venice, Italy, was an old man at 40. At 70 he was rejuvenated. Shortly before he died he returned from Belgium, where he had been utilizing his method, in feeding the destitute. He wrote several books on the subject. The theory of Fletcherism is that all food should be chewed until it is involuntarily swallowed. In this way much less is eaten, and there is less waste for the body to dispose of.

The milk diet, as a cure for chronic disease, has become quite popular. Combined with complete rest, it has often proved temporarily effective. Unreasonable and harmful quantities of milk are consumed by patients—sometimes as much as eight quarts a day, in half-hourly doses, the average being six quarts. As a permanent diet it is impossible, milk being deficient in iron and containing too much lime for adults.

Other dietetic theories that have had some vogue are "dry diet," or drink restriction; the Salisbury, or beef and hot water diet, a variety of the non-starch diet, monodiet—one food at a meal and the raw food diet.

All these forms of diet have their good and bad points. After all, the most important thing is not what you eat, but how much. It is more harmful to overeat of good food than to eat abstemiously of bad food.

* * *

War and Crime.

BEFORE and during the early days of the war we were told by some that war is a good thing, "bringing out the higher qualities," and so forth.

In a New York letter to The Times, describing the orgy of crime in that city, Harry Carr writes: "The taking of human life always becomes a small affair, after the wholesale slaughter of a war."

The best preparation for national defense is not a few months of military training, but thorough physical training, from infancy. There is enough of the killing instinct in all human beings. We do not need to encourage it in boyhood. Experience has shown that men who are "fit" can soon be taught the business of fighting, a business that is useless to them after the war is over. Most of the time in training camps is devoted to getting men into proper physical condition.

Serumizing.

A CORRESPONDENT writes:

"I am here from Spokane, Wis., with a 10-year-old boy, that has rapid pulse and enlargement of the heart, following a large double dose of influenza serum."

This is only one of hundreds of thousands of cases. Serums do not always affect the heart, but they develop latent weakness in any part of the body.

A Simple Plan.

SEVERAL more happenings have shown how easy it is to reduce prices.

At Lincoln, Neb., a woman's club, by a boycott, brought eggs down from 85 to 55 cents; another in Chicago from 77 to 65.

Again, in several cities, Christmas trees, which the people refused to buy, were dumped, or given away.

It is as easy as two from four makes two, "15"—you have will power, and self-denial and will combine.

I do not say the producers charge too much. Perhaps they lose money. However, consumers are much more numerous than producers, and the latter must sometimes suffer, in a readjustment.

Medical Legislation.

THE Truth Teller declares that medical laws are the work of orthodox allopathic doctors. They are conceived for the purpose of bringing business and money to allopathic doctors of the A.M.A. brand, and the public has not been considered, in the least. The pretense that these laws are for the benefit of the public health is the rankest kind of hypocrisy, and intended to deceive.

The Truth Teller is right.

Constipation.

CONSTIPATION is the root of many ills. To cure it requires patience and perseverance. If you once get the cathartic habit, a cure is very difficult, indeed.

The rational cure consists in exercise, massage and diet. The most efficient exercise is that which involves stooping, twisting and bending. Garden work is excellent. Walking is good in a way, but extra long walks tend to constipate. The bowels should be thoroughly kneaded several times a day.

As to diet, such constipating foods as white bread and cheese should be avoided, also tea. Vegetables and fruits of all kinds, fresh and dried, should be eaten freely, but not at the same meal. Eat absolutely dry, and eat nothing whatever between meals and make the interval between meals long, eating only twice a day. This is the most effective way of overcoming constipation.

The enema is valuable, but should not be made a habit, or it will be difficult to give it up. For cleansing purposes, after a motion of the bowels, the enema is excellent.

* * *

Injection of Urine.

FOLLOWING is from a woman correspondent:

"In 1915 we moved to Calcutta, India, where I consulted a doctor about a urinary trouble, from which I was then suffering. He had a serum made from a specimen of the urine. The culture was made by that well-intended but mistaken man, Sir Leonard Rogers, who declares that, before he dies, he will have perfected a serum against every human ill. I have since discovered that liberal drinking of water between meals will cure the trouble I mentioned. This serum was injected into my arm every week, for an indefinite period."

A favorite remedy of the Chinese is drinking urine. That is far less harmful than injecting it into the blood. Yet we imprison Chinese practitioners, and laud "medical science." Why?

Two Meals a Day.

TO HEAR people talk, you would think it is something remarkable to eat only twice a day. Two thousand years ago, a Roman writer chided some of his countrymen for eating to repletion twice a day. What would he have thought, could he have seen eating on the "American plan?"

Twice a day is as often as any person ought to eat, and one of those meals should be light. Some get along with one meal a day, but unless the digestion is quite strong, this makes rather a long wait between meals. As to which meal should be dropped that depends on circumstances. Dr. Dewey has shown, convincingly, why the breakfast should be omitted. Strength and vitality are restored during sleep. Frequent eating is more injurious than overeating. Thousands have found great benefit in dispensing with breakfast. The main point is that two meals a day are enough. The time of eating the first meal depends, of course, on the time of rising. If you rise at 8, you should not eat until noon. If you rise at 5, you may eat at 9 o'clock.

Some think that when you eat only two meals you will eat more at each meal than you would when you eat three. Experience shows that this is not true. Eating, after all, like drinking or smoking, is greatly a matter of habit. Some who are little better than walking skeletons are always munching. It is not what you eat, but what you

Why he was Drafted.

THE night that peace was signed I was in Paris. It was a big occasion, and celebrated as only the French know how to celebrate. Everyone was kissing everyone else, and confetti and fireworks were everywhere. Around midnight as I was returning to my hotel I passed the Place de l'Opera. Coming towards me was a large doughboy, about six feet three. Each arm embraced a good looking madamoiselle, and he was impartially distributing kisses between them. As I came near he recognized that I was an officer, and straightened up. He kissed first one and then the other, and regarding me with a smile said, "Look lieutenant, they drafted me for this!"

No "Tale" Left.

MR. JONES keeps pigeons, and Mr. Brown next door, tries to keep pigeons, but Mr. Brown is constantly losing his birds, while Mr. Jones is as constantly suspected of finding them. The other morning Mr. Brown with a smile and a quarter approached the youthful son and heir of Mr. Jones.

"Willie," began Brown, holding up the coin, "did daddy find a bird yesterday?"

Willie nodded.

"And was it a blue bird with some white feathers in its wing?"

"Dunno," responded Willie, pocketing the quarter. "You can't tell their color when they're in a pie!"

Wide Awake.

ONLY a few days ago a returned soldier came into Dr. Dodson's office to get a tooth extracted. He wore a D.S. medal but the thought of having a tooth pulled was more than he could stand and he demanded gas.

Dodson waited in a fever of impatience for the soldier to "go under" but the latter was nervous and insisted on keeping one eye open even though he had taken enough gas to float a balloon.

Finally Dodson cried:

"Let yourself go. Close that eye, you idiot."

Somewhere from the back blocks of dreamland the patient murmured sleepily:

"Can't. It's glass."

Secret of Popularity.

A CERTAIN Los Angeles banker was recently advised by his physician to take up golf to improve his health, and went to George Cline to get an outfit.

"I suppose I've got to play the game because it's doctor's orders," he remarked ruefully, "but I never could figure out what the attraction of the game is."

"Well," remarked Cline, "there's one thing about it; so far as I know it's the only game during which you can praise a lady's form without being impertinent."

Sherman was Wrong.

THE night that the armistice was signed was a wild one in Paris. All restrictions were off. Everyone was happy and saluted everyone else French fashion as they met upon the boulevards. All American soldiers were kissed to their hearts content, and their buttons and overseas cap stolen by the souveniring mademoiselles.

Around midnight up the Boulevard des Italian staggered a big black colored boy. His coat was wide open to the breeze, all its buttons gone, and his head was bare, evidently his cap had also gone to swell someone's collection. As he reached the corner, two beautiful mademoiselles grabbed him. One kissed him on one cheek, and one on the other. It was too much for the darky. Throwing both arms in the air, he said fervently, "Oh Lord! what Mr. Sherman said about war was a lie! A damned lie! Dis is heaven!"

One and the Same.

STUDENT, farmer, author, politician and reformer, Sir Horace Plunkett is one of the most versatile of Ireland's sons.

He is very witty also. On one occasion he delivered a lecture in Dublin on the best way to improve the conditions among the poor. At that time he was not exactly a finished speaker, and then, as now, a bachelor.

The day following his address, he received from a lady a note, which read: "What you need are two things—first, a wife; second, lessons in elocution."

To this he replied: "These are only one."

When Greek Meets Greek.

THE recent death of both Andrew Carnegie and Prof. Ernest Haeckel, the scientist and philosopher of Jena, who died within a few days of each other, recalls the story of a student about to go to Jena who was called into Carnegie's office and told to get an autograph of the well-known professor.

Sometime afterwards Carnegie received this letter:

"Ernest Haeckel gratefully acknowledges receiving from Andrew Carnegie a Tumot microscope for the biological laboratory at Jena."

The ironmaster was so delighted with the professor's shrewdness that he promptly sent the desired microscope.

MOTHER called little Susie to her, when she returned from school.

"Just imagine, dear," she said, "Aunt Ethel has a new baby, and now mamma is the baby's aunt, papa is the baby's uncle, and you are her little cousin."

"Well," cried Susie, in amazement, "wasn't that all arranged quick?"

A TRAVELING entertainer boasted of the possession of a genuine Stradivarus violin of which he was very proud and so informed the editor of the local paper of the town in which he gave one of his concerts. In reporting the concert next morning after it was given no mention whatever was made of the Stradivarus violin. He made haste to make known to the editor his disappointment at his failure to mention the instrument. The reply was, "If old Stradivarus expects any advertising in the columns of this paper he will pay 10 cents a line for it."

Encore.

A COLORED boy that was stationed at the same town that I was in had a bad habit of getting lit up every Saturday night. One of those occasions he became somewhat noisy and was picked up by the M.P.'s and put in the guardhouse. Monday morning found him, much chastened in spirit, standing before the summary court officer facing a charge of drunk and disorderly.

"Brown," said that officer, "you are charged with being drunk and disorderly last Saturday night. Is this true?"

"Yessur, Mr. Captain, I reckon I was a little charged up with that reckus juice, but I don't remember dat I was disorderly. No sar."

"What had you been drinking that put you in this condition?"

"Well, Mr. Captain, I don't know the American name for dat drink, but de French name am Encore!"

Always Right.

"THE way England treats America," said Senator Borah, "reminds me of the way Mrs. Jones squared herself with Miss Greene.

Miss Greene had been invited to be a bridesmaid at quite a smart wedding, and spent much time in planning her new frock. At last it was ready; and when she tried it on, she asked Mrs. Jones, from next door, to come and see it.

"It's sweet, my dear!" said the good lady admiringly. "And certainly you look a lady, whatever you are."

Miss Greene's face told she had made a mistake, so she corrected herself hurriedly:

"No. I mean you are a lady, whatever you look!"

quietly, her eyes stopping him with their level regard.

"I didn't mean that! I know we've made use of you with disgraceful selfishness. But what am I to do?"

"What do you mean?" It had come, and in a curiously impersonal way Molly wondered what she was going to do about it.

Mark's face darkened. "You know perfectly well what I mean. You know I was tricked into making a fool of myself. It had been you I cared for all the time."

Molly's head went up. "Stop! Please remember, whatever your reasons for marrying Dora, she's your wife."

"Did she remember that you were my fiancee when I came back? Don't be a fool, Molly. All I'm asking is that you let me be near you."

Molly looked at him. His face was flushed, his eyes glittering. A slight noise in the other room made him shoot a guilty, furtive glance behind him. Molly shuddered. This was the man she had loved all these years, was to go on hopelessly loving to the end of her gray days. Suddenly, without warning, she burst into a laugh. She was as surprised as Mark, but his ludicrous chagrin made her laugh the more.

"What's the joke?" he rasped out, his eyes narrowed to an ugly squint.

She sobered instantly. "The joke's on me. Here I've been imagining myself the interesting professor of a broken heart when all the time—"

"There was no need to worry," he fatuously supplemented, stepping toward her.

With a quick gesture she stopped him. "When all the time it was in prison and now it is free—free!"

"Mark!" called Dora's fretful voice.

Mark looked at the magnificent young creature facing him, her head thrown back, her nostrils dilated as if to breathe deep a purer air than that which surrounded him.

"Free!" he muttered. His eyes turned to the door whence came the querulous call. "Mark! Mark!" "What of me?" he demanded.

"Shackled," she returned, "shackled by your own weakness."

With the step of an old man Mark slowly left the room. Molly watched him with pitying contempt. When the door closed behind him she drew in a long breath. "Thank God!" she whispered, and smiled.

OUTFITTERS OF DEPENDABILITY

CARE OF THE BODY

CONDUCTED BY
HARRY ELLINGTON BROOK, N. D.

THREE weeks ago Otto Hanish, self-appointed head of the "Mazdaznan" cult, and self styled "Otoman, Prince of Adusht," alias "Rev. Dr. Otoman Zar-Adusht Hanish" was arrested in Chicago, and brought to Los Angeles, on a charge of degenerate conduct with boys and girls.

Hanish is also charged with "practicing medicine without a license." He prescribes no medicine except diet and herbs.

"Mazdaznan" had formerly a pretentious "temple" on the shore of Lake Michigan, in Chicago, and has branches in various cities of the United States and Canada. They publish in Los Angeles a monthly magazine, the "Mazdaznan." "Mazda" means light. Hence Mazda lamps. There are said to be about 14,000 Mazdaznans in the United States.

David Ammann, a Swiss, and devout follower of Hanish, owned the five-acre knoll on which is the Theosophical Institute at Hollywood, Cal. He sold it to the Theosophists, and went to Switzerland, to conduct a Mazdaznan establishment, on the shores of Lake Zurich, for which place Hanish is said to have been about to leave, when he was arrested.

Mazdaznan is supposed to be founded on the doctrine of Zoroaster, one of the great eastern teachers, founder of what was the rational religion of the Perso-Iranian people. The date at which he lived is disputed, but it was several centuries before Christ, probably over 1000 B. C. Some, indeed, claim that he was a myth, like Buddha. The fundamental idea of the Zoroastrian creed is dualistic—a good and evil spirit, striving for mastery, like the Christian God and Devil. Zoroaster preached purity of soul and body, care of the cow, protection of all useful animals, frequent ablutions, bodily chastisements, and the prohibition either to burn or bury the dead. Hence his followers expose their dead to buzzards.

Outside of Persia, the chief followers of Zoroaster are the Parsees, in the province of Bombay, India. They are the most progressive and prosperous natives of India, most of them merchants and many of them millionaires. During the Civil War they made so much money out of cotton that some of them had silver tires on their carriage wheels. In Regent's Park, London, is a statue of Sir Rustumjbe Jejeebhoy, who gave large sums to relieve the starving cotton operatives of Manchester. In the vicinity of Bombay are the "Towers of Silence," where the dead are exposed to the birds of the air.

Sun worship is one of the earliest forms of religion. First, men worshiped the sexual organs, as the source of life. Relics of this worship are found in all countries, and persist in the minarets of Mohammedan mosques, and the spires of some other religious buildings. Then the sun was recognized as a greater source of life on earth. Next came gods, who were more powerful than the sun, and finally one God.

Forty years ago, on a hill near Florence, Ariz., Col. C. D. Poston, first delegate from Arizona to Congress, started to build a temple to the sun.

Hanish teaches sound ideas on health in general, with some superfluous but harmless "frills," such as eating clover leaves, with the dew on them. Unlike many exponents of esoteric lore he was, when I knew him, somewhat of an ascetic, eating like a canary bird. Of late years I am told he had developed something of a "corporation." He has written two books—"Health and Breath Culture" of which I have a copy autographed "with blessings of all good things" —and "Inner Studies," for advanced pupils. For circulating this he was condemned six years ago to six months' imprisonment. A portion of the book deals with a method of sexual intercourse that has been taught and circulated freely through the mails by Henry Gaze, Mrs. Stockham and other propounders of health and long life, and was practiced for thirty years in the Oneida Community of New York State. It is to be criticised, not for moral, but physiological reasons.

Like another popular platform preacher of long life, who is backed by the Protestant churches, Hanish exaggerates his age, claiming to be over 75, whereas he is only 53. He goes in for priestly robes and all that sort of hocus-pocus, and his followers regard him as a demi-god. Four years ago he appeared in Washington, D. C., dressed in gorgeous robes of Oriental splendor. He made converts among Washington's fashionable women, and the drawing-rooms of two wealthy women were placed at his disposal. At Lowell, Mass., lives a wealthy woman who is a high priestess of the cult.

Hanish claims to have been born in Persia, of a German father and Persian mother. He has never been in Persia and he does not speak Persian. I translate this statement of facts about Hanish and his family from a monthly vegetarian magazine, Vegetarische Warte of Leipsic, Germany. The date is April 26, 1913:

"Otto Hanish, baptized as a Catholic, is the youngest son of the teacher, Richard Hanisch, and Francisca Hanisch (born Anslikiewcz,) now in Milwaukee. His father resided near his native town of Gleitwits, in Upper Silesia, teaching language and music. He also worked as book-keeper in several railroad car factories in Elbing, and other places. He was later in Breslau, whence, in 1878, he emigrated to the United States, after he had become a Baptist. With one exception his relatives accompanied them. The eldest son, Richard, served in the First West Prussian Uhlan regiment, and followed the parents later to Rochester, N. Y., where the father worked as music teacher for the Baptist Communion of that place. Richard died November 10, 1912, in the Evangelical Deaconess Hospital, at 909 Sarah street, St. Louis, Mo. His brother Otto paid no attention to him, although notified of his condition. Richard had served as pastor of a reformed church in Potsdam, Mo., receiving a salary of $500 per year on which he supported a wife and five children and assisted his parents. Another brother, Edmund Hanisch, who still lives in Germany, bears a great family resemblance to Otto. He is a locomotive engineer, living at 26 Wilhelmstrasse, Gleitwitz. In 1911 the 'Master' was several days in Breslau, but did not visit his brother Edmund.

"The parents of Otto Hanish live in Milwaukee, Wis., and resided, end of December, 1912, at 894 Ninth street. Otto Hanish was born on December 7, 1866, in Weissenberg, West Prussia. In Salt Lake City, where he resided, are living his younger sisters, Fanny and Emelie, married to mechanics.

"The article translated is signed by Reichsanwalt Dr. Bracke of Brunswich, Germany."

Several years ago I received a letter from the editor of a Salt Lake paper, for whom Hanish worked as a printer.

Most of Hanish's followers are of such mentality and disposition that, should he be found guilty, and sentenced, they will acclaim him a martyr.

California Vinepardists.

FOLLOWING is from an article in the Country Gentleman by Jason Field:

"These Italians of the dry-wine districts are almost all from the northern part of Italy—Tuscany particularly. You find big, strapping, fair-haired men and women among them, whose blue eyes indicate the Teutonic admixture in the blood. They are patient, kindly, hospitable, good fathers and mothers. They are natural-born vineyardists, and know little else.

"Honestly, without taking any attitude toward the question of the right and wrong of wine drinking, it does seem a little absurd to step up to one of these big, healthy Tuscans, who does a sixteen-hour day of hard labor in the fields, whose face is the picture of health, whose muscles are hard and whose step is elastic, and inform him that the wine he has been drinking has made a sick man of him. Naturally he doesn't know just what you mean.

"Or it sounds a little absurd to him when you tell him that the drinking of wine will give anybody a hob-nailed liver or hardening of the arteries, in the face of the fact that his liver is in excellent condition in spite of the ruddy wine he has been drinking since he was three years old.

"By the same token, I wouldn't have the hardihood to announce to these Tuscan Italians that if they stop drinking wine with their meals their labor efficiency will be increased—inasmuch as they all do a day's work that would paralyze the average American hired man.

"This is not a brief for wine. It is not an argument at all. I am simply trying to show the attitude of the dry-wine vineyardists who have come to California from Southern Europe—to give an inkling of their utter bewilderment in discovering that there is something illicit about a branch of agriculture which they have always considered highly useful and laudable. These poor fellows are further puzzled by the fact that though they are told that their vineyards have been economically wiped out, yet when they go to San Francisco, for instance, they discover that there is hardly even the pretense of an enforcement of the prohibitory law, and that whisky and gin are being retailed quite openly. They can't understand the logic of this reasoning."

Rejuvenation.

INSTANCES of the rejuvenation, or physical new birth of human beings, is by no means so uncommon as many suppose. There are hundreds of authentic reports of such cases as these: A man of 120, who grew a new set of teeth at 116; a man of 60 who went through a high fever, and on recovering presented a picture of health and youthful vigor, growing new hair and teeth; a Frenchwoman who got new (real) teeth at 86; another who got new hair and teeth at 65; two German centenarians who had eyesight completely restored to them. Women have become mothers after 60 years of age. These instances might easily be multiplied many fold.

You may be quite sure, however, that no such cases as these will occur among those who habitually eat largely of the carcasses of animals, or who regularly overeat of any food. Also, eminent physicians may lessen the bank accounts, and increase the hopes of old two-legged goats, by injecting extract of goat's genital organs into their blood, or by grafting on their decrepit bodies glands of monkeys or murderers, but virility can never be increased in any such foolish way.

Cornaro pointed the way to rejuvenation and long life.

Bubonic Plague.

THE bubonic plague, or "black plague," as it was called in the Middle Ages, has appeared in Constantinople. This plague is a filth disease. It is always more or less prevalent in the Orient, where conditions are indescribably filthy.

Smallpox and typhus are also filth diseases of less virulent type. Under more sanitary conditions, they have almost disappeared, not on account of serumising, but because of greater cleanliness. Smallpox would today be as rare as the bubonic plague, had it not been kept alive by vaccination.

Those whose blood is free of waste matter cannot "catch" any of these diseases, any more than you can grow wheat on a cement sidewalk.

Dietetic Theories.

SO MANY and varied, and often contradictory, are the teachings of dietists, that people often become confused, and conclude to follow the advice usually given by "regular" physicians, to cover their ignorance of the subject, "Eat what you please" or "Eat what seems to agree with you." Here are a few of the leading dietetic theories that have been promulgated, and have become more or less popular, during the last fifty years. Later I shall refer to each of them in more detail:

Vegetarianism is, of course, nothing new. At least two-thirds of the human race are vegetarians, in whole or in part, from choice, religious conviction or compulsion. Those who eat meat more than once a day belong, as a rule, to the leisure class, not to the ranks of hard workers. Many believe that the eating of flesh food is a reversion from the original diet of man, brought about by some great change of climate, in prehistoric times. That Americans eat altogether too much meat is now generally admitted. On the other hand, an ill-chosen

Is GREAT BRITAIN PLANNING an AIR RAID on WORLD COMMERCE?

By Thomas F. Ford

IS GREAT BRITAIN planning an air raid on the commerce of the world, and on Americans in particular? Is a question of that sort being asked in many foreign countries?

Ask the average business man the question and he will look wise and say there's nothing to it—that what we need to do is to keep right on building ships as fast as we may have the largest and best merchant marine in the world. That will be able us to control our full share of the carry-ing trade. Airships may become useful auxiliaries in carrying fast mail and even a limited express service, but that is all.

This sounds reasonable and conservative, but investigation quickly proves it to be an unsafe position, resting on outworn conditions, and overlooking the most startling movement in commerce since the introduction of the steamship. What are the facts? Great Britain has gone to work quietly and with characteristic thoroughness and organized governmental agencies for the regulation of air traffic. She is encouraging her merchants and transportation companies to establish air lines to the ends of the earth. Great Britain has gone to work to develop air as well as ocean transportation facilities that will guarantee prompt delivery of merchandise shipped to the ports of the world and destined for in-land points.

This applies particularly to South America, where inland transportation conditions are slow, cumbersome, inadequate or else entirely lacking. Under present conditions goods intended for points inland are often transported on the backs of mules, burros or llamas. Where vehicle transportation is in use the roads are so poor that days, weeks and even months are sometimes consumed in delivering goods to their destination.

The United States is equipped to construct airships as cheaply and as swiftly as any other nation. But the more fact that this is the case is no excuse for waiting for the other nations of the world to take the lead in this vitally important industry. Italy is straining every nerve to get into this game. France is preparing to enter the world trade field via the aerial route; Germany, whose Zeppelins have proved to be the best so far produced will certainly not be behind the vanguard in her efforts to regain her lost trade in the commercial centers of the world and she will attempt to retain her present trade.

These difficulties will be effectually overcome by the use of air craft. The airplanes now in many adopted, will be employed in transporting freight in quantities up to 100 tons. Ships of larger carrying capacity may be expected as soon as the business warrants the construction.

United States in Favorable Position to Compete.

THE United States has the advantage in this game of a aerial transportation of the mail already made in daily aeroplane and airship service. The production of helium gas, which has 92 per cent. of the lifting power of hydrogen gas, has now been so far perfected that it can be produced in commercial quantities at a cost that renders it use in airships in the freight and passenger trade practicable.

With this the danger of explosion or fire from the engine or heat of the sun's rays is entirely eliminated and the airship can make the load she can carry ev-erywhere and can remain aloft for days. All more enjoyment details. The trends for accomplishing wonders under the spur of war's necessities that America displayed was such as to warrant the assumption that we can compete with the world in aerial transportation if only we will wake up to the situation that confronts us.

Great Britain saw the coming of the air-ship as a factor in the future of transportation and her merchants with the aid of the government immediately set to work to take advantage of the splendid opportunities which this method affords in gaining and holding supremacy in the world's commerce. Now it's squarely up to America to go to work along these same lines and it is the duty of the government to co-operate with the business interests of the country in developing our aerial transportation industry as rapidly as brains, mechanical skill and money will permit.

The United States is equipped to construct airships as cheaply and as swiftly as any other nation. But the more fact that this is the case is no excuse for waiting for the other nations of the world to take the lead in this vitally important industry. Italy is straining every nerve to get into this game. France is preparing to enter the world trade field via the aerial route; Germany, whose Zeppelins have proved to be the best so far produced will certainly not be behind the vanguard in her efforts to re-gain her lost trade in the commercial centers of the world and she will attempt to retain her present trade.

These difficulties will be effectually overcome by the use of air craft. The airplanes now in many adopted, will be employed in transporting freight in quantities up to 100 tons. Ships of larger carrying capacity may be expected as soon as the business warrants the construction.

Aerial Navigation Companies Being Rapidly Organized.

ONE of the features of the use of air-craft in the spirit of commercial competition between nations, is the necessity for the establishment of aerial navigation as a commercial asset and how soon to work to make it part of their system of transportation.

THE British First British Industrial Aerial Navigation Company has been organized to operate dirigibles and load-carrying aeroplanes. This company is now planning on carrying passengers from London to New York at $250 per head. The big dirigibles that will enter this service will have all the comforts and conveniences now to be found on the most modern of ocean liners. These airships will be capable of carrying 100 tons and making a speed of 70 miles per hour. They will be able to cross the Atlantic in from 48 to 60 hours, and will be able to keep right on flying as long as they have fuel and oil. Their route will be from London to Montreal, thence to New York, Washington, Chicago, Prof. Hiram Bingham of Yale University addressed the convention on this subject and warned the assembled business men, some 2500 in number, representing the largest commercial, industrial and banking interests of the country of the danger that America would lose the commercial supremacy of the world unless it awakened to the necessity for the development of aerial transportation. Air craft, he declared, will be employed in the near future for the transportation of mail, express packages and mails while passenger airships will be used for the transportation of passengers. Prof. Hiram Bingham of Yale University addressed the convention on this subject and warned the assembled business men that unless the United States awakened to the necessity for the development of aerial transportation it would lose the commercial supremacy of the world.

THAT the aerial navigation applied to commercial problems is a dream will be readily accepted by the student of world commercial affairs. Last April, when the foreign trade convention was in session at Chicago, Prof. Hiram Bingham of Yale University addressed the convention on this subject and warned the assembled business men that unless the United States awakened to the necessity for the development of aerial transportation it would lose the commercial supremacy of the world. Only a few months ago Prof. Bingham returned from a trip around the world and reported that Great Britain was making rapid progress in the development of aerial transportation. Since then Great Britain has gone ahead with her plans and has already established a number of aerial routes.

Commercially Attractive Because of Small Investment.

THE chief reason why aerial transportation is commercially attractive is because of the small investment required. To build roads suitable for motor trucks and buses over mountains would cost millions. If railroads were constructed the expenditure would call for an outlay of billions over the long reaches of country to be covered. But the airship will require no such expenditure. The total cost for the construction and equipment of a big airship capable of carrying 100 tons and of making through the air at from seventy-five to 100 miles per hour will not exceed $75,000 in any one case. With hotel expenses, which eliminates the danger of fire and explosion, the airship becomes as safe a means of transportation as the motor car or the railway train and there is no reason why the airship should not be kept up, no risks of way to be considered.

Think of the appalling problem that confronts our merchants in attempting to deliver goods sold to a merchant in Manaos, Brazil, a city of some 50,000 inhabitants, situated 1000 miles up the Amazon. While hilly mountainous country as we have in California can go most of the way by boat, the trip consumes many days. The same is true of Mendoza, San Rafael and San Juan. The long slow trip over rudely constructed trails, across myriad inland lakes in flat bottomed boats or down roaring torrents through rolling rapids, often has the effect of rendering the merchandise so carried unsalable when it reaches its destination.

Airships will solve the problem of carrying the letter express package and mails while the dirigibles or Zeppelins, which ever type is finally adopted, will be employed in transporting freight in quantities up to 100 tons. Ships of larger carrying capacity may be expected as soon as the business warrants the construction.

Arabia Will Solve South American Transportation Problem.

HERE a contingent of merchants is to be delivered to a mine say up in the highest reaches of the Cordilleras, it will be necessary to transport the goods by aeroplane or dirigible in the open roadless, while instead of lying around on the wharves at Mataros in the open roadless, while instead of lying around on the wharves at Mataros in the open roadless, while it will be promptly landed into the mines or transportation houses or transportation companies, whose business it will be to handle handled and properly adapted to each part must be carefully calculated so that it will be readily handled and properly adapted to the means of transportation. Many American houses, whose business is h i p ping departments failed to take these considerations into consideration, have suffered total loss on shipments because when the goods arrived at the port machinery to be manufactured to order, mining works or machine designs for special purposes, plans and specifications for detail information of importance, such as blue prints, because of express carriers for mail and express carriers for mail and Lighter, smaller airplanes will also enter the field as soon as they are developed. Their work is to act as feeders for the ships of the air lines. They will be employed to carry the mail and transportation of baggage and express from the ports to the interior of the country. Their work will be

Is Great Britain Planning an Air

IS GREAT BRITAIN planning an air act as feeders for the ships of the sea, and Merchandise will be brought to the port more especially on that of South and instead of lying around on the wharves America? This is a question that may well attract the attention of Americans in this time of readjustment in the world's affairs. Ask the average business man the question and he will look wise and say eighty to 100 tons, and transported inland there's nothing to it—that what we need to in a few days where it would take weeks each parcel must be calculated so that it fully be readily handled and properly adapted to the means of transportation. The Garden Beautiful in Southern California.

INFORMATION BOTH PRACTICAL AND SCIENTIFIC. BY ERNEST BRAUNTON.

THIS is a particularly good time for seed sowing and every garden has need of annuals to embellish and put a finish on otherwise dull and uninteresting displays. The number of annuals we may grow runs into the hundreds. What more is needed? Suppose you have a good garden foundation, of suitable trees and shrubs artistically arranged, and could dot in at odd spots seeds of a score of annuals? What a wonderful collection of flowers you would have when all were in bloom. Suppose we make it twenty kinds. At 10 cents a packet the total outlay would be but $2 and the crop would contain all the colors of the rainbow and a few more, that rainbows wot not of.

Aside from the low cost, a most pleasing phase is that your flowers are of the raised-'em-myself variety that carries with it pride of achievement and ownership, for with many flowers each season brings some a little different from those that have gone before. To watch the development of the plant from seed to flower affords every lover of nature the keenest delight and there is a lure about it that fixes as a life votary one who has had but a brief season's experience with this fascinating pastime. You have something of which you are sole owner. None of the plants was ever in possession of another. "See that gorgeous ruffled petunia, Jim? Raised it from seed myself." That's the stuff. Let us a little indulge the pride of ownership and production of something worth while. You can get 'em from seed; thousands of 'em. Try it now, this week.

The Bible Ash.

In the Bible the ash is mentioned but once and the fact that it is scarce in Palestine may account for this seeming slight, or the translation may be at fault and another tree may be named. Trees had but common names when the Bible was translated into English and we have but a guess at what trees are meant. It is strange that this tree is mentioned as being one used for making wooden idols, but in Isaiah, chapter forty-four, verses, fourteen to eighteen it says:

"He heweth him down cedars, and taketh the cypress and the oak, which he strengtheneth for himself among the trees of the forest: he planteth an ash and the rain doth nourish it. Then shall it be for a man to burn: for he will take thereof, and warm himself: yea, he kindleth it, and baketh bread; yea, he maketh a god, and worshippeth it; he maketh it a graven image, and falleth down thereto. He burneth part thereof in the fire; with part thereof he eateth flesh; he roasteth roast, and is satisfied: yea, he warmeth himself, and saith, Aha, I am warm, I have seen the fire: and the residue thereof he maketh a god, even his graven image: he falleth down unto it, and worshippeth it, and prayeth unto it, and saith, 'Deliver me; for thou art my god.'" But the prophet makes a jest of it for he says that he too has burned part of it and baked bread on the coals thereof, but "shall I make the residue thereof an abomination? Shall I fall down to the stock of a tree?"

The Modern Catalogue.

The catalogues for 1920 are out and they are marvels of ingenuity. The writer has compiled a few himself; some of the best and biggest on the Coast, but one thing getteth him. How can each thing in a catalogue be better than all the others and no contradictions be found? As one reads he is moved to order everything on the bill of "fair," like Prof. Wickson's lunch. At Elsinore a waitress run off an almost endless and unintelligible jargon of words and ended with: "What'll you have?" And the professor blandly responded: "Bring me the whole thing." That's what ails us when we read these bewitching descriptions in fascinating variety. We want the whole thing; and all the rest of the season is spent in indecision, for we cannot reduce the list to meet our pocketbook and still retain what we know we must have. Get one or two 1920 catalogues and fall under this spell of enchantment. It's harmless.

Wood Oils.

Trees of our own State and country furnish two very important commercial materials not made from the wood itself. Oil of turpentine is obtained through distillation of the resin obtained from various species of pine, or rather the resinous exudations, for resin is obtained in the retorts. It is an essential oil much used in preparation of oils and varnishes, as a solvent for several substance.

Creosote is obtained from the distillation of wood tar, chemically treated to purify it. It is a powerful yellowish liquid, antiseptic, with a smoky odor and is the preservative used in the preparation of smoked meats. It is also widely used to prevent decay of wood, for which purpose it is the best known and most efficient agent. All poles and posts should have the part to go underground first soaked in creosote. It is also best to first apply to tree hollows after all decayed wood has been cleared away.

Lawn-making.

Good lawns are not very common. One-half of all new lawns are good for but a year. The lawn in Pershing Square was a beautiful thing for one year, no more. Today there are parts of it where no good grass will grow, though weeds persist. All is due to lack of preparation. The park department was short of money and the commissioner which dominated the work knew nothing of soils. This lack of preparation has each year cost Angelenas much money and the lawns will never be good until turned over and made anew. Deep stirring and fertilization are the two main points to watch. If these two are well covered in practice, none but good lawns can result. It is not possible to get under a lawn to rectify mistakes, so make none—not lawns, but mistakes.

Charles Kingsley in Trinidad.

"One palmiste (Oreodoxa oleracea) was pointed out to me which had been measured by its shadow at noon, and found to be 152 feet in height. For more than one hundred feet the stem rose straight, smooth and gray. Then three or four spathes of flowers, four or five feet long each, jutted out and upward like; while from below them, as always, one dead leaf, twenty feet long or more, dangled head downward in the breeze. Above them rose, as always, the green portion of the stem for some twenty feet; and then the flat crown of feathers, as dark as yew, spread out against the blue sky, looking small enough up there, though forty feet at least in breadth."

Pepper at home of N. T. Gower, Hollywood.

Hedge of Eugenia Australis, a near-myrtle.

Hedges and Vines.

We may outline our walks, drives, entrances or boundaries with either hedge or vines. In one of our illustrations may be seen an entrance compassed on all sides with square boxed hedge of a tree belonging to the myrtle family, Eugenia australis or E. myrtifolia. As one enters, the walk and hedge turn at right angles to the left, a most secluded and snug entrance to what must be a real home, for it suggests privacy, yet is inviting. In the other view retaining wall and buttresses are covered with the clinging climbing fig, Ficus repens. This plant sticketh closer than a brother or a porous plaster and will grow fast to any surface less smooth than glass. It is one of the most satisfactory and most important vines grown in Southern California.

Another Large Pepper.

At 1480 Gower street, Hollywood, may be seen a pepper tree of large size now thirty-five years old. It was planted by N. T. Gower, who still lives on the place. At four feet above the ground the trunk is fifteen feet around and above this point is a limb that is six and a half feet in circumference, while still farther up, or about eleven feet, three branches average 5 and a half feet around. The tree is 8 feet high and has a spread of seventy feet, truly a majestic specimen.

Allwork II

That is why the Allwork II, is so wholly satisfactory and in so short a time its sales exceed that of any similar priced tractor

¶ Of course you know the Allwork II must have been accepted as a great success because it was designed to meet California conditions.

¶ Knowing the severe conditions a tractor must combat to be successful in California, you will agree that two of the most essential things are plenty of reserve power and the complete enclosure and protection from dirt of all working parts.

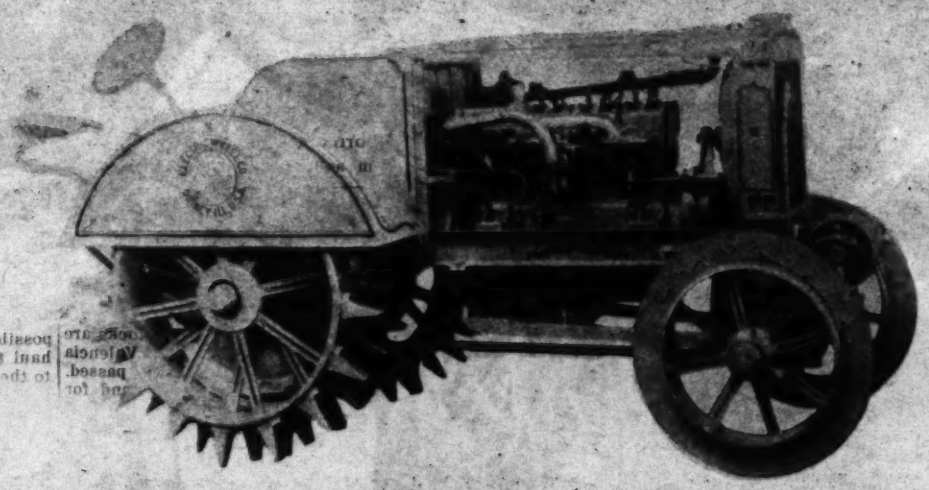
¶ An absolutely dust-proof construction is carried throughout the Allwork II and all gears and other working parts are run in oil.

¶ The same powerful, heavy duty, five bearing crank shaft engine is used that has made the Allwork tractor so famous during the past ten years.

¶ There is power and strength enough to pull three bottoms anywhere without strain or overload, and therefore durability throughout the balance of the machine which the lighter tractors of equal or greater rating do not have.

¶And still with all of this power and strength the Allwork II is only fifty inches wide, fifty-four inches high, has a seventy-five inch wheelbase and turns in a nine-foot radius.

Never before has so Much Power Been Built into such a Small Tractor



Perfect Traction in all soil without the effect of Packing!

Unprecedented January Records for Hatchable Eggs

Results Prove Importance of Proper Feeds for Breeding Hens.

THE highest percentage of hatchability ever secured in January has been obtained this year by several leading poultrymen in Southern California. Hatches of 75% to 80% have been obtained, as against the usual hatching methods and can determine the exact production of each individual bird. This 296-egg hen, as well as the entire England breeding flock, is being fed on P. C. A. BREEDERS' MASH. The results obtained from such

FARM AND TRACTOR SECTION.

Los Angeles Sunday Times

SUNDAY MORNING, JANUARY 18, 1920.

FARM AND TRACTOR SECTION.

Devoted to the multiform agricultural interests of the great Southwest and issued every week with the world's biggest Sunday newspaper.

EDITED BY HAROLD M. FINLEY.

Communications from practical farmers, ranchers, stock raisers, poultrymen, gardeners and others engaged either in a large or small way in the vital work of food production are gladly received.

Good clear photographs of interesting farm and garden activities are always welcomed. The Los Angeles Times Farm and Tractor Section is the only farm journal in the west printing illustrations in the incomparable rotogravure process.

Farmers' Associations.

THE present strong position in the nation of the American farmer is due largely to the extensive formation of growing and marketing organizations, fostered by the Department of Agriculture and the several State governments. The farmers have been slower to form mutual benefit associations than others, but they have been quick to appreciate the benefits of organization, and it is safe to state that the farmers' marketing bodies have become a permanent feature of rural life.

The purpose of growers' co-operative associations is to insure and develop wide distribution of farm products, to secure a just and fair return for the capital, material and labor invested and to foster the better farming movement by establishing standards of quality. There is no desire on the part of these associations, say their leaders, to interfere with the law of supply and demand. The forming of farmers' marketing associations has, indeed, resulted in the partial elimination of market manipulation, and of unreasonable profits made by middlemen, but the associations hope in the long run to save more money for the consumer as well as themselves by their organization policies and methods.

For many decades the farmer has been the poorest paid of any class of producers. If he earned 5 per cent. on his investment he was as tickled as a boy with his first pair of skates. He has been at the mercy of slick manipulators who "beared" food prices, and then bought for a rise. Not until recently have the farmers collectively insisted on a return for capital invested. They were happy to get a living and a small surplus for family and farm needs. The farmer has "caught on" to his city cousin's method of charging interest on capital invested, and figuring depreciation of equipment in determining costs, and he is adding a fair return for hard labor and long hours of toil. At that, his profits do not seem to be such as to have started any great rush to the land, even since costs of food have mounted.

All fair-minded Americans will put the stamp of approval on farmers' co-operative associations.

A False Alarm.

THE California canned olive will survive the left-handed advertising given it by the press of the country as a consequence of a few cases of ptomaine poisoning supposedly traceable to it in Detroit. No one, of course, can reasonably object to the publication by the newspapers of the news of the day, and the facts with respect to the olive are of a nature to reassure anyone who may have been frightened by the Detroit reports and to encourage rather than discourage the consumption of this nutritious product. Californians will not soon forget, however, the contemptible assault made upon the growing olive industry of the State by the yellow fake monger of American journalism, who deliberately went out of his way to feature the Detroit incident in pages of screaming horror in his unsavory string of papers. This unprovoked and vicious distortion of the truth might have wrought untold harm to the olive men had not the general public been so well aware of the faking proclivities of the sheets in question.

Ptomaine poisoning cases have been attributed to about every product in the category of human foods and there is no more reason why people should cease eating olives because of a fatality or two alleged to have resulted from their consumption than that they should quit eating canned goods of any other kind. The olive, in fact, had escaped censure of this character longer perhaps than any other product. No case of ptomaine poisoning from such a source has, so far as is known, ever been reported in California and Californians all eat and enjoy olives. If the Detroit deaths were indeed due to the eating of olives, it means, of course, that something went radically wrong in the canning of the particular tins that did the damage, or that the contents of the cans were handled in a faulty manner after delivery. It is certainly no reflection on the olive itself or on the California method of preparing this product for shipment. Such instances, of course, are always a salutary warning to the canners of all kinds of products to be ever careful in their processes and a lesson to consumers in observing the very necessary precautions in the handling of all foods.

The California Olive Association is now perfecting plans for a nation-wide advertising campaign to acquaint the American public with the merits of the California olive and to follow the lines of similar campaigns successfully carried on by the citrus and walnut growers. This is an excellent move, and coming at this time will serve to offset the damage to the olive's reputation occasioned by the recent poisoning cases, as well as placing the olive men in a position better to dispose of the rapidly-growing yield of the State at fair prices.

EXPLOSIVE BILL OPPOSED.

The proposal of the government, through the Bureau of Mines, to perpetuate the stringent war-time emergency restrictions having to do with the handling of explosives, is bringing an earnest protest from powder and dynamite manufacturers and dealers, as well as from many growers who find explosives essential to their agricultural operations. The opponents of the plan point out that bomb outrages and other criminal and illegal uses of explosives are always the work of those who, in the very nature of things, steal the powder or dynamite they use so as to leave no clues or evidence of purchase, or who secure the ingredients from various sources and make their own explosive. To unnecessarily hamper the farmer in the acquisition of explosives, they declare, is to partially cut off from his use material of great value to him in his work without accomplishing any real good in return. Senators and Congressmen from various States are being petitioned to oppose a measure so rigorous as that proposed.

PAYS TO GRADE COTTON.

Texas growers producing cotton of good staple and marketing it co-operatively received from 1¼ to 8 cents more a pound for their cotton than was received for other cotton grown in the same community and sold by individual farmers. Demonstrations have been made to acquaint producers with the desirability of classifying their cotton before sale, and to show them how to use market quotations in determining the value of their crop.

IMPERIAL VEGETABLES.

Imperial Valley spinach is in great demand outside the State, according to the Federal Bureau of Markets, and the product is moving out at the rate of from five to eight carloads per day from the valley.

PROPER HANDLING OF NURSERY TREES KEY TO ORCHARD SUCCESS.

BY ROBERT W. HODGSON.

DECIDUOUS tree planting will soon be in full swing. Already there are signs of planting activity evident in sites staked out and even in some cases in holes dug. The prospective planter who, by this time has not made up his mind as to varieties to plant had better lose no time doing so. He hasn't a moment to spare—so unprecedented has been the demand for nursery stock. Stocks of apricots, figs, prunes, and walnuts are reported to be nearly depleted. Indeed, many hundreds, and even thousands of acres which would have been planted this spring will unquestionably have to be used for other crops, the planting being deferred until next spring on account of the scarcity of trees.

Planting Time at a Southern California Nursery.
Nursery trees tied in bundles of ten, heeled in and ready for delivery.

Not only are the standard deciduous varieties being planted extensively, but some of the less common varieties of fruits as well. Persimmons, in particular, are having a heavy run, several hundred acres going in this season. With citrus, stocks are also very low with the peak for Valencia planting having apparently been passed. Next spring will see a strong demand for navels, which variety has not been planted much of late.

For him who has not yet selected his varieties and for the home orchard planting especially, the following list of recommended varieties may be of interest:

Apples—Red Astrachan, Winter Banana, White Winter Pearmain, Arkansas Beauty, Rhode Island Green, Yellow Bellflower Jonothan, Delicious and Newton Pippin.

Apricots—Royal.

Avocados — Puebla, Fuert, Sharpless, Spinks, Taft.

Cherries—Royal Ann (Nalopeon Bigareau,) Black Tartarian, Bing.

Figs—Kadota, Brunswick, Black Mission, Black San Pedro, Calimyrna.

Grapes — Eastern: California Concord (Pierce or Isabella;) European: Emperor, Malaga, Thompson Seedless, Tokay, Muscat.

Lemons—Eureka, Villa Franca.

Loquats—Advance, Champagne, Premier, Thales.

Nectarines—Advance, Stanwick.

Oranges—Washington Navel, Valencia, Satsuma, Paper Rind St. Michael.

Olives—Mission, Manzanillo, Assolano, Sevillano.

Peaches—Alexander, George 4th, Elberta, Foster, Hale, Phillip Cling, Tuscan Cling, Salway.

Pears—Bartlett, Comice, Winter Nelis.

Plums—Satsuma, Burbank, Wickson, Santa Rosa, Climax, Duarte.

Prunes—French, Imperial, Sugar.

Persimmons—Hachiya, Temenashi, Hyakume, Tsuru, Tamopan.

Pomegranates—Wonderful, Paper Shell, Sweet Fruited.

Pomelos—Marsh Seedless.

Walnuts—Eureka, Placentia, Perfection, Ehrhardt.

PREPARING THE LAND.

Preparation of the land for the young orchard should have been started last fall or even better yet if it is raw land, a year ago last fall. The land should have been plowed deeply in the fall before the early winter rains and left to lie in the rough so that every drop of rainfall could be absorbed and washing prevented. When one has plenty of time to consider the laying out of an orchard, it has been found very desirable to dry plow the land in the fall and after sufficient rainfall has occurred to wet it down thoroughly, to seed it to some grain, preferably barley. After the barley is off, the land should be thoroughly worked and planted to a summer growing crop such as beans. After the beans are harvested, it is then dry plowed again and left to lie in the rough through the winter, being then set out to trees after working down in the spring. For raw land some programme of this sort has proven extremely beneficial, for it enables the owner to very thoroughly work the land down from the raw condition to a state of excellent tilth and gives him plenty of time to lay out an irrigation and drainage system and at the same time leaves the soil in excellent condition for planting.

Trees may be planted before plowing provided a large hole is dug and extra care taken in setting them. Indeed, if planting time comes before the land has been put into good shape, it is better to put off plowing than planting. The first thing, however, after ordering, is to get the land ready. And don't stint on expense in doing so. Plow it deeply and get it into a good mellow condition. Take plenty of time and care in laying out the irrigation system if you ever intend to irrigate. Time and effort spent at this stage of the game will pay a hundredfold. Remember an orchard is a long-time investment.

If there is any suspicion of hard formation within the radius of root growth, which can readily be determined by the use of a soil augur or spade, don't hesitate to use a charge of explosives sufficient to thoroughly shatter this untoward condition. It will pay big in the long run.

CARE OF NURSERY STOCK.

If you are not ready to plant when the trees arrive, and the chances are that you won't be, especially if you are planting any considerable acreage, take every possible precaution to prevent them suffering from exposure. First and foremost, don't let them lie around at the depot until it is convenient to go after them. Make it convenient to get them just as soon after they arrive as possible. And don't open the crates and haul them out home without cover, exposed to the air and sun, and pile them in the barn. Everything depends on those trees and care in handling them is extremely important if they are to grow and thrive. Every year thousands of dollars are lost in nursery trees because of lack of proper attention in handling them after they are received.

If you have to haul trees any distance after they are uncrated, wet them down and cover them over with something to prevent the roots from drying out. The best way is to haul the crates, if they come crated, out to the orchard and heel the trees in as fast as taken out. For heeling-in a location on a knoll where the soil does not get saturated or hold water in the trench should be selected. Dig a good trench and when the trees are heeled in see that the dirt is well sifted about the roots so that they will not dry out. If the weather is cold, do not let trees lie over night in the water trough or unprotected. They may be frosted, which often does not show up for a season or two after the trees are set. Care taken in handling the trees will be amply repaid in a uniform stand and thrifty growth.

LAYING OFF THE FIELD.

There are a number of planting systems to be found in use in various parts of the State but by far the most common is the square system. This plan for planting insures that the rows are laid off at right angles to each other. While this arrangement does not give the largest number of trees to the acre nor make them equidistant, it is by far the simplest system and by most growers held to be the best. It is so generally in use and so satisfactory that there seems to be no real good reason for the prospective orchardist located on fairly level land to use any other plan.

There are a number of ways for laying off an orchard for squares, one of the commonest of which is marking off with a plow. An ordinary two-horse turning plow is rigged with a "marker" set at the distance desired between the trees. The line of the first furrow is laid off with a flag and subsequent furrows are plowed along the mark made by the "marker." When the field is laid off in one direction it is then plowed at

IMPROVING THE PEANUT.

Most of the so-called varieties of peanuts now to be found in the trade in the United States are merely low-standard varieties with new or local names, and there are only about six distinct varieties grown in this country.

Selected strains of some of the varieties are being made with a view to producing those more particularly adaptable for definite purposes, such as the making of high-grade table and cooking oil or an oil that may be used in the manufacture of oleomargarine, and to some extent in making soap. Other purposes for which selections are being made are those adapted for human food in the form of peanut meal, peanut butter, and other products, and high-yielding strains for stock and dairy feeds.

Unprecedented January Records for Hatchable Eggs

Results Prove Importance of Proper Feeds for Breeding Hens.

THE highest percentage of hatchability ever secured in January has been obtained this year by several leading poultrymen in Southern California. Hatches of 75% to 80% have been obtained, as against the usual hatchability in January of 60%.

Results such as these are secured by practical poultry raisers who, by devoting unusual care to the feeding of their laying hens, obtain maximum egg production, as well as high hatchability.

CAREFUL FEEDING MADE THESE RECORDS.

Mr. Fred Richardson of San Gabriel reports a hatchability for January of 75%. Mr. C. W. Phelps of Van Nuys states that 77% of his eggs produced in January, hatched into strong chicks. Mr. H. M. Stone of Gardena secured 80% hatchability. It is significant that these results were secured in widely separated districts. Hundreds of other poultry raisers throughout Southern California have secured a greater degree of hatchability than ever before. THE HENS THAT PRODUCED THESE RESULTS WERE FED ON P. C. A. BREEDERS' MASH.

No. 24RX—Record 296 eggs in one year. Bred and owned by G. C. England, Inglewood, Cal.

This mash, a product made under the supervision of the directors of the Poultrymen's Co-operative Milling Association, was directly responsible for this high percentage of strong chicks hatched from eggs laid in January. The actual feeding experiences of Mr. Richardson, Mr. Phelps, Mr. Stone and others are positive proofs that P. C. A. BREEDERS' MASH actually does promote hatchability.

P. C. A. BREEDERS' MASH FOR 296-EGG HENS.

The accompanying photograph shows a hen, fed on P. C. A. BREEDERS' MASH, which, in one year, laid 296 eggs. Her record is authentic, for her owner, Mr. George C. England of Inglewood, California, employs trap-nesting methods and can determine the exact production of each individual bird. This 296-egg hen, as well as the entire England breeding flock, is being fed on P. C. A. BREEDERS' MASH. The results obtained from such feeding are added evidence that maximum production is secured by using P. C. A. BREEDERS' MASH.

The high quality of the ingredients which compose P. C. A. BREEDERS' MASH is responsible for the wonderful records secured by poultrymen who use this feed. MEAT SCRAPS, containing a high proportion of myo-proteids (protein from muscle tissue,) are used in exactly the right amount. WHEAT FLOUR MIDDLINGS (400 pounds to the ton of mash) assure high nutritive value. BLACKEYES, which tend to increase the hatchability of eggs, comprise 15 per cent. of P. C. A. BREEDERS' MASH. ORGANIC ASH and FAT FROM RICE PRODUCTS, to aid in forming yolks, as well as RAW BONE, to make better shells, are included.

Try P. C. A. BREEDERS' MASH for your hens. Every claim which we have made for this feed has been proven time and again by practical experience. Increased hatchability will result as soon as you start feeding it. Order a supply TODAY. If your dealer cannot furnish you P. C. A. products, advise us, and we will see that you are supplied.

OTHER P. C. A. PRODUCTS

include P. C. A. DRY MASH, P. C. A. GROWING CHICK FEED and P. C. A. CHICK MASH with EGG. These feeds are used exclusively by hundreds of leading poultrymen, who find that strong chicks and better hens are developed by poultry raisers who feed P. C. A. products.

ARIZONA FARMERS

That Arizona farmers have produced one of the best crops in the history of that State is shown by the government crop report just

Farm News of the Great Southwest

DOWN-TO-DATE REPORTS FROM TIMES CORRESPONDENTS.

ARLINGTON.—The first dehydrating plant for fruit and vegetables in Riverside county is to be established in connection with the Arlington cannery and will be in operation within thirty days. Work is to begin at once on the building which, when completed will cost $4000. The new process, which has been carried to perfection through a long series of experiments by Dr. Henry of the local cannery, is said to remove all moisture from the vegetables without disturbing the flavor, which is immediately restored by the addition of water. The product, thus treated, is said to be hard to distinguish from fresh material. The new department will also dehydrate orange peel which will be sold to the big packers to use in making mince meat. The process will mean a great gain to the orchardist and vegetable grower as it will utilize grades of goods which, to a large extent, went to waste heretofore, because they were not of the first quality.

TAKES TESTING HONORS.

CORONA.—A Corona cow, Mattie, of the H. A. Youmkin ranch, carried off the honors for December's butter fat production, according to the report of E. Bahler, official cow tester of Riverside county. Mattie gave 1701 pounds of milk with an average test of 4.8 per cent. and a total butter fat content of 81.65 pounds. Second place was won by Lillie, also of the Youmkin herd, who gave 1626 pounds of milk, averaging 4.4 per cent. with a total butter fat content of 71.54 pounds. Third place was taken by "Buff," belonging to the Mark Worden herd at San Jacinto.

TO ENLARGE CANNERY.

RIVERSIDE.—Though 5,000,000 cans of fruit were packed at the Charles Sterns & Sons cannery during the last year, the management has announced its intention of doubling the capacity for next year. The plans include an extension of the main cannery 75x100 feet in size, a new warehouse 125x150 feet, a precooling plant with a capacity of 2000 tons, and the erection of seventy-five more cottages for housing employees, who, in the height of the season, are expected to number 1000. From two to five cars were shipped daily during the canning season last year from this cannery.

LARGE AREA FUMIGATED.

REDLANDS.—Charles T. Paine, of the firm of Cornwall & Paine, says that probably close to 50,000 acres of citrus groves in Southern California have been fumigated during the season just closed. Mr. Paine is in charge of most of the fumigating for the company in this section, while his partner has charge of the Orange county section. The fumigating has been carried on under difficulties at certain times, for the cold nights made it hard to work. Mr. Paine says that despite the difficulties the killing effects of the fumigation have been exceptionally good. In the Redlands section there were not many groves that needed fumigating for once in four years is usually sufficient to keep down the scale. The work in the Upland and Ontario district kept the company busy for some time and in the Orange county section fumigating is necessary much oftener because of the fogs. The scale is being well controlled throughout the south now and the growers are anxious to keep it down as much as possible. The heat wave that took the orange crop two years ago had its value for never was the scale harder hit than it was that summer. In sections the scale for the time being was almost entirely wiped out, so terrible was the heat.

THANKFUL FOR RAIN.

PERRIS.—Dry ranchers as well as orchardists in this as well as neighboring districts are feeling jubilant over the recent rains. The Hemet country had a rainfall of .75 of an inch, bringing the total for the season in that locality to 3.77. Perris fared almost as well, receiving .66 of an inch. The Beaumont and Banning sections enjoyed a rainfall of .74 inch, which gives them the highest total for the year in the county so far, 6.06 inches. Corona received an even half inch of rain.

HEAVY POTATO YIELDS.

BYRN MAWR.—After experimenting for some time they have learned how to grow "spuds" at the sanatorium of the Seventh Day Adventists at Loma Linda. The soil has been doctored until now a forty-acre tract will produce just about all the potatoes that are needed there and that is a lot, several tons in fact. Some of the finest potatoes ever grown in this valley are now being harvested on that forty-acre tract. The superintendent of the farms of the sanatorium has not made any estimate of the amount of potatoes that they can grow there each year but he is piling a warehouse high with the sacks of spuds being taken out of the ground. It is conclusive evidence, according to the farmers, that the lowland soils of this section will grow as fine potatoes as are ever grown in the north. The upland soils, or those on the hillside, are not well adapted to the growing of potatoes, for they are liable to pack and are not loose enough. It is probable that more interest will be taken in the growing of potatoes now that some necessary things have been learned about it.

BETTER SEED DEMANDED.

COACHELLA.—Buyers, gin owners and ranchers here are unanimous in the opinion that if cotton is to become one of the staple industries of this district, steps must be taken to secure a better quality of seed. With the practical elimination of the famous sea island cotton from the markets of the world, it is felt that the Durango cotton grown in this valley comes nearer to filling the gap in the market than any other variety. Practically none of the Durango cotton grown here so far has been pure, however, all being mixed with the short staple. Buyers were willing to purchase it on account of the large percentage of the Durango which it carried. Samples of the Coachella cotton have been submitted to Dr. Cook of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Prof. Walter T. Swingle, chief of the Bureau of Plant Industry, and Karl F. Kellerman and H. F. Loomis, their assistants, who recently visited the valley, on the way from China. Their unanimous verdict was that, with better seed, the value of average cotton produced here could be doubled. Owing to the ravages of the boll weevil, the sea island plantations of the Atlantic States have been ruined. In the opinion of these experts the soil and climate of the Coachella Valley are ideal for the growing of the Durango, but if success is to be obtained, a better stock of seed must be secured. Dr. Cook and the other members of the party assured cotton men assembled in meeting that they would take the matter up at once with the Department of Agriculture, and do their utmost to see that, if possible, an adequate supply of seed is secured as soon as possible.

WILL ENTERTAIN CATTLEMEN.

TUCSON (Ariz.)—Tucson's scale of hospitality may be judged by the intent to raise $10,000 for the entertainment of the Arizona Cattlegrowers' Association and of the Pan Handle Southwestern Cattlegrowers' Association, which meet here, February 17-19 and March 2, respectively. It has been estimated that about 1500 delegates will be present from Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, California and Sonora. Under appointment by the Mayor, committees are already at work on finance, entertainment, housing, transportation and decoration.

TO WORK FOR BIG PROJECT.

PHOENIX (Ariz.)—Arizona is to give all possible help in the effort to have Congress provide a general reclamation fund of $250,000,000 for the construction of western water storage projects already passed upon by Interior Department engineers. Gov. Campbell, now on his way to Denver, will be in Washington January 14, to attend the reclamation conference of Governors. Yesterday in Phoenix was held a joint conference of Pinal, Pima and Maricopa county representatives, preparatory to the sending East of W. S. Prouty of Casa Grande, who will represent the Florence-Casa Grande sections in the appeal for construction of the San Carlos Dam on the Gila.

"SMALL WHITE" DISDAINED.

SANTA BARBARA.—The small bean is in disrepute in this section. Farmers who formerly planted their acres to the small white, last year, will put in other crops. In Lompoc, the mustard crop will replace the small white, and in Santa Maria Valley the sugar beet will spread over the acres which formerly raised bumper crops of the small white bean. The cause of this abandonment of the small white is due to the experience farmers have had in attempting to find a market in the face of the flooding of the country with the oriental Kotenashi beans. The small white bean crops of both 1918 and 1919 are still in the warehouses, and the farmers have borrowed on them all that it is possible to secure from the money lenders. However, there will be little vacant tillable lands in Santa Barbara county this year, for, while mustard and sugar beets will, in some sections replace the small white, grain and hay crops will also be turned to in a large measure. Horticultural Commissioner Eugene C. Kellogg states that the hay and grain acreage is probably twice the normal, and that much land in the county formerly planted to the small white bean is now in barley or wheat, to be cut for hay.

FIG CANNING PLANT.

DINUBA.—Making another step in the development of the Green Fig Growers' Association, a committee has been appointed to draft plans for financing the proposed fig canning plant here. This committee will consist of Karl Lewis of Sultana, George Reynolds of Orosi, W. Sam Clark of Dinuba, C. B. Umner of Reedley and W. O. Spaulding of Orange Cove. Announcement was made at a business meeting held here that local growers will be able to handle, through a plant already established here, the entire output of the association, i the co-operative cannery ca through to successful conclusion this season.

A DATE-FED HOG.

INDIO.—Various foods have been suggested as the most profitable for the fattening of pigs, but the first date-fed porker, of which there is any record was slaughtered recently at the government station here. The porker had been allowed to run in the date gardens, and had fed entirely on the immature dates that had dropped to the ground. When slaughtered at the age of eight months it tipped the scales at 409½ pounds, and the purchasers stated that it had a remarkably good flavor.

POULTRY BREEDERS SUSTAIN REPUTATION FOR GOOD SHOWS.

RABBITS, HORSES, FISH GO INTO HEN'S DIET.

Beef scraps, fish meal or other poultry nutrients which are rich in protein are essential to produce a regular and dependable supply of eggs. However, in some sections of the country these materials are rarely available on account of the high transportation costs and the distance from production centers. Poultry raisers in these localities have to utilize substitutes. In many districts of the Southwest jack rabbits are used as a valuable poultry feed. Rabbits of this type are not desirable as a human food during certain seasons of the year and, to many persons, they are always objectionable. As a consequence, their use as a food for hens is economic and efficient, as otherwise the meat is usually wasted.

It is desirable to remove the skin from the jack rabbit, and suspend the body by means of a cord or wire in the poultry house. Of course, feeding in this manner is advisable only during the period of cool weather, when the meat will keep well, or during the summer season, when there are enough fowls in the house to consume the rabbit in a short time before the meat begins to decompose.

GOOD USE FOR THE JACKS.

Jack rabbits are so objectionable in some of the Southwestern farming districts that huge drives are organized for the extermination of the pests. Hundreds of ranchers, farmers and hunters will form a compact line and traverse a rabbit-infested territory, killing or driving away all the rabbits which come in their path. If the rabbit drive occurs during cold weather a considerable number of the rabbits may be frozen and kept in this condition for the use of the flock throughout the winter season. The carcasses can then be thawed out and suspended in the poultry house as suggested above, without cleaning, or if desired, the meat can be cooked and fed in this form to the hens and pullets. This is a valuable use of rabbit meat, as ordinarily the hundreds of thousands of carcasses are wasted and allowed to decay on the plains and cultivated fields where the animals were killed.

Horse meat, also, makes a good chicken feed. In some sections where the sanitary laws do not prohibit the feeding of horse meat to fowls, extensive poultry raisers buy old, worn-out dobbins and slaughter them and feed their meat to the poultry. This is done on a large scale in parts of California. Operators report increased egg yields by the hens as a consequence of the liberal use of meat in the ration. Several Arizona poultry farmers formerly made a practice of feeding wild burro meat to their hens with as attractive and interesting results as come from the feeding of horse meat. These ranchers used to pay the Indians bounties for rounding up wild burros in the mountainous country and killing and transporting the carcasses to the poultry plants.

FISH MAKE GOOD FEED.

Practically any kind of wild game or varieties of fish which are not valuable for human food purposes are highly satisfactory in the poultry dietary. Where fish are abundant it ordinarily is the custom for the fishermen to throw back into the water or else throw away any fish which are not highly desirable for eating. The use of these fish as feed for hens would be quite ideal, and, apparently, there is splendid opportunity for some poultrymen to locate commercial plants near Los Angeles Harbor.

On the average farm where poultry is kept only as a side line, meat meal and fish scraps are usually little used in the ration because, as a rule, they are expensive compared with the other nutriments commonly furnished the fowls. Many farmers make up for this deficiency of protein in the ration by the liberal feeding of skim milk. Others maintain their hens on farm-grown grain without the essential supplementary protein, and as a consequence, suffer a pronounced loss in the yield of eggs. It is economy for the general farmer to utilize such high-priced feed as beef scraps and fish meal, as generally he feeds only a small amount of this material while its influence on the egg yield is markedly perceptible and decidedly profitable to the producer. Unless the farmer can supply plenty of protein in the form of rabbits, horse meat, wild game, fish or skim milk, it is advisable that he, by all means, purchase and feed meat meal or fish meal regularly to his flock.

SEASON FOR GAS ATTACKS IS ON.

The carbon bisulphid season in ground squirrel control is at hand for the major portion of the State. A good supply of wasteballs and carbon bisulphid is in stock among the various dealers.

Carbon bisulphid applied to ground squirrel burrows can be used only with the best of success when the ground is fully saturated with moisture.

The liquid is most easily handled in a common bucket or pail. Fill the pail about three-fourths full of the liquid carbon bisulphid and place in same enough jute wasteballs to be covered by the liquid. To prevent evaporation a thin film (one-quarter inch) of water can be poured over the carbon or a tightly covered receptacle may be made to serve adequately in the prevention of evaporation. Each wasteball holds enough carbon bisulphid which when vaporized and mixed with air forms a gas of sufficient concentration and strength to kill a squirrel. Ordinarily one gallon of liquid carbon bisulphid is used to sixty commercial jute balls.

Wasteballs can be taken from the liquid by means of a hook, pointed stick or forceps, using one wasteball to each burrow. Each ball when saturated should be placed as far down the burrow as possible. After introducing the wasteballs, a period of time should be allowed to elapse to insure proper vaporization of the liquid. This will depend upon whether conditions, for instance, a warm day would call for four or five minutes, a cold, damp day as long as ten minutes. This period can be utilized by placing balls in other burrows. Following the waiting period a match or torch can be applied to explode the gas formed. A good torch can be made by hooking a wasteball on the end of a stiff wire and dipping in carbon bisulphid or kerosene. Such a torch will burn for some time. This explosion will tend to force the gas to the more distant recesses of the burrow, hence insuring better distribution of the gases formed by the explosion.

Immediately following this treatment every burrow should be sealed with damp earth and very tightly tamped to prevent the gas from escaping. Carbon bisulphid should be used only when the ground is sufficiently damp to prevent the gas from escaping through cracks or porous earth. When properly applied it will produce a killing not approached by any poisoning method.

While for general use exploding of the vaporized gas is recommended because this material is utilized at a time when evaporation is necessarily slow, on the other hand excellent results may be obtained without exploding when the weather is warm or the temperature of the ground is not cold as in winter.

Exceptional precautions must be observed to keep fire away from containers holding carbon bisulphid in view of the extremely explosive nature of the material.

Jack rabbits furnish valuable protein in meat form to help keep up the egg supply on some Southwest ranches. Above is a photograph of an old-time jack rabbit drive.

Tomato plants respond better to fertilizer if it is applied and worked in the row a week or ten days before the plants are set.

Sugar beet production in California last year amounted to 862,000 tons, this State being fourth in production.

DOWN-TO-DATE REPORTS FROM TIMES CORRESPONDENTS.

A RLINGTON.—The first dehydrating plant for fruit and vegetables in Riverside county is to be established in connection with the Arlington cannery and will be in operation within thirty days. Work

Beaumont and Banning sections enjoyed a rainfall of .74 inch, which gives them the highest total for the year in the county so far, 6.05 inches. Corona received an even half inch of rain.

HEAVY POTATO YIELDS.

BYRN MAWR.—After experimenting for some time they have learned how to "grade" at the sanatorium of the Seventh Day Adventists at Loma Linda. The soil has been doctored until now a forty-acre tract will produce just about all the potatoes that are needed there and that is a lot, several is possible to secure from the money lenders. However, there will be little vacant tillable lands in Santa Barbara county this year, for, while mustard and sugar beets will, in some sections replace the small white, grain and hay crops will also be turned to in a large measure. Horticultural Commissioner Eugene C. Kelloge states that the hay and grain acreage is probably twice the normal, and that much land in the county formerly planted to the small white bean is now in barley or wheat, to be cut for hay.

PIG CANNING PLANT.

ARIZONA FARMERS PRODUCE BIG CROPS.

That Arizona farmers have produced one of the best crops in the history of that State is shown by the government crop report just issued by L. M. Harrison, Arizona field agent for the Bureau of Crop Estimates. The total value of all crops, except live stock, is placed at $61,758,000, a gain of about twenty million dollars over 1918. Cotton leads with a total value of $26,832,000, while alfalfa ranks second with a total value of $13,520,000. Cotton shows a gain of $13,000,000 over last year, and $21,000,000 over two years ago. The total value of other crops was announced as follows: wheat, $2,709,000; corn, $2,574,000; grain sorghums, $2,538,000; barley, $1,543,000; potatoes, $682,000; beans, $612,000; and oats, $533,000.

Counties reporting the largest crop values are: Maricopa, $36,625,200, compared with $25,634,650 last year; Yuma, $10,649,080, as against $5,019,400 last year; and Graham, $3,939,425, compared with $3,437,850 in 1918.

As a result of a recent crop survey a few changes have been made in the preliminary estimates. Final estimates of the State's crops for 1919 and comparative figures for 1918 are as follows:

Cotton.—Arizona is now the leading State in the production of long staple cotton. There were 87,000 acres of American Egyptian and 24,000 acres of short staple harvested this season, from which it is estimated the crop will be about 48,000 bales of American Egyptian and 24,000 bales of short staple. In 1918, 72,000 acres of American Egyptian produced 36,000 bales, while 23,000 acres of short staple produced 20,000 bales. Owing to the satisfactorily price received for this year's crop, a large acreage is in prospect for 1920.

Wheat.—The area in wheat was 43,000 acres, a gain of 5000 acres over 1918. The total production was about 1,204,000 bushels, compared with 988,000 bushels last year. Preliminary estimates place the acreage for 1920 at 48,000 acres, the same as last year. While a few counties show a smaller acreage than last season, this is offset by increased plantings in other counties.

Corn.—The acreage increased from 34,000 last season to 39,000 this year; the total production, from 952,000 bushels to 1,287,000 bushels. There is a large acreage of this crop used for silage, but the estimates are based on the yield of grain for the entire acreage.

Oats.—While much of this crop is used for hay, the area harvested for grain is estimated at 13,000 acres and the total production at 533,000 bushels. This compares with 11,000 acres and 440,000 bushels in 1918.

Barley.—The acreage for harvest in 1919 was about 29,000 acres as against 30,000 acres in 1918. The total production of 1,102,000 bushels compares with 1,020,000 bushels last year.

Potatoes.—This crop was greatly damaged by insects and blight. The total production was about 350,000 bushels, which compares with 425,000 bushels last year. Five thousand acres were harvested this season, compared with the same area in 1918.

Grain Sorghums.—The total production is placed at 2,030,000 bushels from 58,000 acres. In 1918, 1,624,000 bushels were harvested from the same area.

Beans.—Owing to favorable moisture conditions in the principal dry-land districts, the crop was much better than last season. There were 16,000 acres this year with a total production of 136,000 bushels, compared with 72,000 bushels from 18,000 acres in 1918.

Tame Hay.—The area cut for hay is placed at 169,000 acres, of which 140,000 acres was alfalfa. The total production of all tame hay was about 676,000 tons. In addition to tame hay, Arizona produced about 17,000 tons of wild hay.

Pasture.—During the past season, range pastures were the best in years, due to the well-distributed rains. The present outlook is for an abundance of spring food on the range.

Cantaloupes. — About 1900 cars were shipped from the State this year, compared with 1173 cars in 1918; 1314 cars in 1917; 865 cars in 1916, and 490 cars in 1915. Shipments were greatly curtailed this season by heavy rains at harvest time. For 1920, the acreage will be about 3000 as compared with 4500 acres the past season, and 2000 acres in 1918.

Lettuce.—About 125 acres were harvested from the crop planted in the fall of 1918. From the present crop planted in October and November, 1919, it is estimated that about 500 acres will be harvested. About 50 per cent. of the acreage was abandoned this season, due to unfavorable weather conditions which prevented germination of seed; and damage from caterpillars from near-by cotton fields.

The county development agent of Imperial county reports that there are 9330 fig trees and 6980 olive trees growing in that section.

Feeder pigs can usually be raised cheaper than they can be bought, especially in California.

HAY CURED BEFORE BALING KEEPS BETTER.

Baled hay that has been thoroughly cured in the barn or stack before baling can be stored indefinitely without danger of heating. It may be piled so that the bales fit very closely together. Hay baled from the windrow and cock, however, unless very well cured, is likely to heat more or less in storage. Sometimes the heating becomes so intense that the hay becomes severely damaged or even unmarketable.

Damage from heating may be greatly lessened and sometimes entirely obviated by storing the bales on edge, allowing an inch or two of air space between them. When bales are piled flatwise the air is excluded and heating is likely to occur, whereas leaving an air space tends to prevent heating by inducing circulation, which cools the hay. The first layer of bales placed in a barn should be placed on edge, and the second and every alternate layer should be placed on edge and crosswise. This crosswise method or "cording" prevents any of the air spaces in the tier from being entirely covered and insures ventilation through the entire pile. The heated air works up around the edges of the bales and the cooler air enters from the sides and bottom.

When bales that have been laid flat on their sides begin to heat it becomes necessary to move the bales and pile them in the manner just described. If there are any indications of heating when the hay is put into the barn, or if the hay grower has any doubt about the hay keeping, it is best to pile the bales crosswise on edge, rather than take any risk, even though this method of storing wastes more or less storage space. Cases are on record in which hay growers, usually beginners, have baled hay from the windrow and cock, and because it spoiled in the mow, owing to improper storing, have become convinced that baling from the field was not a success, not realizing that the fault lay in the manner in which the hay was cured.

A shortage of cars interfered with the marketing of the wine grapes last year, but the crop will be at least 100 per cent. of normal.

SEASON FOR GAS

RABBITS, HORSES, FISH
GO INTO HEN'S DIET.

Beef scraps, fish meal or other poultry nutrients which are rich in protein are essential to produce a regular and dependable supply of eggs. However, in some sections of the country these materials are rarely available on account of the high transportation cost and the distance from production food as beet scraps and fish meal, as generally be feeds only a small amount of this material while its influence on the egg yield is markedly perceptible and decidedly profitable to the producer. Unless the farmer can supply plenty of protein in the form of rabbits, horse meat, wild game, fish or skim milk, it is advisable that he, by all means, purchase and feed meat meal or fish meal regularly to his flock.

POULTRY BREEDERS SUSTAIN REPUTATION FOR GOOD SHOWS.

BY HENRY W. KRUCKEBERG.

IF ONE may judge from the attendance and the interest shown in the fifteenth annual shows of the Poultry Breeders' Association of Southern California, the conviction is brought home that the exhibition game has been pushed to the danger line. A fall show in October, followed by two winter shows (one in December and one in January) is at best fraught with some hazard. This is not said in disparagement of either fixture, much less is it a criticism of the good people that stand sponsor for either event. Conditions seem to indicate that one show will serve the ends of exhibiting among breeders and fanciers, while from an economical point of view and the prospects of commanding sufficient attendance to at least "play even," the odds are decidedly in favor of one big representative poultry show in this town. It is doubtful if either fixture has met expenses during the past two seasons. While in the main this is true, there are serious obstacles, not the least of which is a fixed place in Los Angeles for the accommodation of public functions. The absence of an auditorium building militates against holding expositions in Los Angeles. It renders available quarters uncertain from year to year; it adds an expense in the way of rents that really constitute a hardship to a poultry show; and it gives to the event a roaming character, which makes it impossible for the public to always know its location. Unlike Chicago, Kansas City, Boston, New York and other towns (where the annual poultry show is always held in the same building) the Los Angeles fixture must be held wherever room is available. This is bad; hence let us hope and pray for a municipal building that will supply this urgent need.

The Poultry Breeders' Association this season maintained its fine reputation for "putting over" another good show. The total entries brought together something like 1200 head, including turkeys and water fowl. While the average quality of the exhibits was good, there were also some agreeable surprises. Among the latter the fine array of Light Brahmas was out of the ordinary; indeed, it was beyond a doubt the best display of this breed that has been staged hereabouts for the past twenty years. The first cock and hen, cockerel and pullet were indeed typical Brahmas in color of plumage, type and head and leg points, while the individual units composing first pen were veritable dreams, especially the females, which were in splendid condition and well furnished. Another breed that showed up strong was the Dark Cornish, which seems to have become a leading favorite with certain people. There were a number of good Standard Games, the first Black Breasted Red Cock being an exceptionally fine specimen. The Game bantams were also a noticeable lot, while the first Sebright bantam cock and hen, cockerel and pullet were among the best ever shown in Los Angeles. Some good Rose Comb Blacks, Black and Buff Cochins were also in evidence.

In the Black Minorcas the first hen was a gem—good enough for company anywhere. White Leghorns did not average quite so well as at former shows, but there were some good ones among the lot. The Blue Andalusians were also a quality bunch. In Buff Leghorns there were a number of choice specimens.

Rhode Island Reds presented a strong class, with good quality; the same is true of Barred Rocks. In both cases the California-bred specimens held their own with birds brought from the East for exhibition purposes. White Rocks were not so strong a class, but up to standard requirements. In Wyandottes the entry was better, the Whites and Buffs being especially strong. The Orpingtons were less in evidence than at previous shows though the Whites and Buffs were good in type and plumage. The Blues, particularly the hens, were suggestive of Cochin type, but color of plumage was good.

Anconas were a good class, clearly demonstrating that our California fanciers of this breed are building up strains of this popular fowl that are worthy of place in the higher class shows of the East.

Campines were less in evidence than in former years, though the quality is quite as good as ever. The boom in this breed is evidently on the wane, which goes to show that there are fashions in poultry as well as ladies' hats.

There were a few Houdans, a breed that should be more in evidence; it occupies a position in France much like that of the Plymouth Rocks in this country.

In water fowl the display of White Muscovy ducks was exceptionally good, while the turkeys and Toulouse geese were of the same strain shown at the two previous shows, showing quality second to none that have appeared in this town for some years.

SLEEK HEN SHOWN TO BE THE SLACKER.

The worker hen—the fowl that produces persistently and economically—usually carries ragged, worn plumage; is a late molter; has a red, large, sleek, plump comb, and white, thin, flat shanks. The beak and ear lobes are white, while the pelvic bones are thin, pliable, and wide apart, and the skin is thin, loose, and shows no indication of hard fat. The space between the pelvic bone and the end of the breast bone is wide. The breast bone is soft, pliable and prominent.

Shirker hens are characterized by neat, clean plumage; early molting; a pale, small shriveled comb; yellow, round, and full shanks; yellow beak; creamy ear lobes; heavy, rigid and close-together pelvic bones. The spread between the pelvic bone and the end of the breast bone is narrow, while the small bones on either side of the breast bone are hard and well covered with flesh. The skin is thick, hard and underlaid with fat.

In making physical examination of the fowls for production efficiency, hold the hen with the breast bone in the palm of the hand, with the flesh part of the legs held firmly on either side of the forefinger. The feeling of the breast bone in the palm of the hand will indicate the quality of the skin, while with the other hand the examiner can measure the distance between the pelvic bone and from the pelvic bone to the rear end of the breast bone. As he holds the bird he also can examine the plumage, comb, shanks, beak, ear lobes, and thus accumulate accurate information for his diagnosis of conformation and production ability.

It is essential that he consider all points in respect to their importance and not place too much dependence on one or more prominent characteristics.

The most profitable gains in hog raising are made by the young pigs. It pays to give them a chance to get to market early.

If your hens are not laying regularly—there's a reason. And, nine times out of ten, it's intestinal worms. It is frequently impossible for even expert poultry raisers to detect these vitality-destroying pests in their flocks.

tight angles and the trees planted at the intersection of the furrows. About the only requisite for this system of laying off an orchard is that the man plowing must be able to plow a reasonably straight furrow.

LESS WINTER WHEAT BEING SOWN IN STATE.

California harvested 990,000 acres of winter wheat in 1919. The yield per acre was 18½ bushels, and the total production was 16,335,000 bushels. It is interesting and gratifying to note that this is the largest acreage and production the State has had since the year 1907.

Owing to unfavorable weather conditions—lack of rain and consequent lack of moisture of the soil—the acreage sown in California for the 1920 crop shows a decided falling off—781,000 as compared with 1,100,000 last year. It is also interesting to note the acreage sown for the 1920 crop in the United States shows a falling off of nearly 12,000,000.

The acreage harvested in the United States last year was 73,243,000, and the average yield per acre was 12.8 bushels, as compared with 15.1 on a five year's average. The total production was 940,987,000 bushels.

Owl Fumigating Company has been succeeded by Owl Fumigating Corporation, incorporated under laws of Delaware

Will Erect New Large Plant at Azusa for Manufacturing Liquid Hydrocyanic Acid from "Aero Brand" Cyanide

The Owl Fumigating Company (William and Ervin Dingle) has been incorporated under the laws of Delaware as the Owl Fumigating Corporation, and effective December 1, 1919, Owl Fumigating Corporation will be the sole licencee under the Dingle patents for manufacturing and applying liquid Hydrocyanic Acid for fumigating purposes. These patents recently granted by the United States Patent Office are broad in their protection of the discoveries of Messrs. William and Erwin Dingle and should help to recompense the gentlemen named for their many years of patient work in developing an efficient and economical method of fumigating citrus fruit trees.

The discoveries made by the Messrs. Dingle and the state of development to which they have brought the manufacture and distribution of liquid Hydrocyanic Acid, is of great benefit to the State of California, because the results directly accrue to the welfare of the citrus fruit industry. The existing plant at Azusa, California, for manufacturing Hydrocyanic Acid, will continue to be operated until the end of the season. In December, ground was broken on a forty-acre tract in the western part of Asuza for a new plant which will be ready for operation by May 1, 1920. The new plant is to be modern in every respect and will have a daily capacity in excess of 25,000 pounds of Liquid Hydrocyanic Acid.

The only shareholders of Owl Fumigating Corporation are the Messrs. Dingle and American Cyanamid Company of New York. Officers of Owl Fumigating Corporation are Messrs. Frank S. Washburn, President; K. F. Cooper, Vice-President; William Dingle, Vice-President; Ervin Dingle, Vice-President; and C. M. Grant, Secretary and Treasurer. Dr. N. W. Buch is now in charge of operations at Azusa as Plant Superintendent and Mr. P. J. Ronan is Assistant Plant Superintendent.

American Cyanamid Company, incorporated in 1907, under the laws of Maine, built its first factory to manufacture air nitrogen at Niagara Falls in 1919. The capitalization, which in 1910 was $3,000,000, and 1912, $5,600,000, was increased in 1917 to $14,600,000. During the period from November, 1917, to November, 1918, in addition to operating its properties at Niagara Falls, Canada, in New York Harbor, and at Brewster, Florida, the American Cyanamid Company, through its subsidiary, Air Nitrates Corporation, designed and constructed the great Air Nitrates Plant at Muscle Shoals, Alabama, known as U. S. Nitrate Plant No. 2, with a capacity of 110,000 tons of ammonium nitrate (explosive) per annum.

In 1916 the American Cyanamid Company, whose production of air nitrogen products at Niagara Falls had reached an annual value of over $6,000,000, undertook to convert cyanamid (air nitrogen) to cyanide. The manufacture of "Aero Brand" Cyanide was begun January 1, 1917. Consumption in the first year of its manufacture reached a total of 2,310,420 pounds sodium cyanide. In 1918, consumption was increased to 2,577,920 pounds sodium cyanide. In 1919, the consumption, it is believed, will exceed 3,500,000 pounds sodium cyanide. This product, known as the "Aero Brand" Cyanide, has been used exclusively by Owl Fumigating Company during the current fumigating season for manufacturing liquid Hydrocyanic Acid. The future dependability of supplies of "Aero Brand" Cyanide for conversion into liquid Hydrocyanic Acid by Owl Fumigating Corporation is assured by the intimate connection now existing between the "producing" and the "converting" company.

In the work of designing, operating and managing its present and proposed new plant, Owl Fumigating Corporation has direct call upon the services of the Engineering, Technical and Executive Departments of American Cyanamid Company. The California fumigating trade is therefore now assured of adequate supplies of the highest grades of liquid Hydrocyanic Acid at a satisfactory rate of delivery and at the lowest possible price.

Wishing You All a Happy and Prosperous New Year, We Are, Cordially and Sincerely Yours,

WASTING OF MANURE INEXCUSABLE FOLLY.

BY WILL H. HUGHES.

No farming people have ever been able economically to maintain the fertility of their soils without the use of live stock. Farming without the use of manures is a waste of energy and results in the exhaustion of soils. A much greater value can be had from commercial fertilizers when used wisely in connection with manure and green crops.

In the face of these facts, it is amazing to see how manure is being shipped right along out of Imperial Valley. Eight hundred carloads went out in 1918 and over 2000 carloads in 1919.

The yield of seed cotton has been increased from forty to 100 pounds by the use of barnyard manure, above that secured from plots not manured.

Since the fertilising constituents of manure are in soluble form and the manure quickly begins to ferment with loss of nitrogen, we have some idea why it is of the utmost importance to protect the manure supply from leaching by rains, excessive fermentation, or from other sources of loss.

While the farmer may buy plant food in the form of commercial fertilizer, it will not have so beneficial an affect on the crops as an equal amount contained in barnyard manure, as the commercial fertilizers do not add vegetable matter and do not promote bacterial activity.

It has been found beneficial to plow under green crops on depleted soils deficient in humus. Among the best crops for this purpose may be named cowpeas, velvet beans, clover, buckwheat, rye and lespedeza. Ordinarily the crops should be allowed to reach maturity before turning under.

Of the elements of plant food which crops derive from the soils, only three—nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash—are considered likely to be deficient in most soils. Fertilizers are, therefore, used to supply these and their value is based upon the amount of these constituents.

If fertilizers are used, the following general rule should govern:

On rich lands use mainly fertilizers that will stimulate the fruit and not the stalk growth.

On lighter lands use more of the elements to force growth, combined with others that will mature the fruit.

High grade acid phosphate may be considered a basis for increasing the fruit and hastening the maturity of the crop.

The chief function of nitrogen in plants is to promote growth, but it is also of very great importance in the production of fruit. Nitrogen enters largely into the composition of plants, and it follows that everything of vegetable origin has some value as a source of this substance. When vegetable matter is burned, the nitrogen is released from its combination, escapes into the atmosphere and is lost. Hence, it is bad practice to burn off fields and destroy vegetable matter; it should be turned under. The humus derived from vegetable matter has a value in soil restoration frequently greater than its value as a plant food.

The most important sources of nitrogen used in commercial fertilizers are as follows:

Cottonseed meal, 6 to 7 per cent.; dried blood, 12 to 14 per cent.; sulphate of ammonia, 18 to 20 per cent.; nitrate of soda, 14 to 16 per cent.

Next in importance is phosphoric acid. It is largely required by the plant for growth, but it is absolutely essential in promoting fruitage and it is a great factor in hastening the maturity of the crops.

The principal commercial sources of phosphoric acid are as follows:

Dissolved rock phosphate, 12 to 16 per cent.; ground rock phosphate, 24 to 32 per cent.; dissolved bone meal, 15 to 17 per cent.; ground bone meal, 20 to 22 per cent.

Potash is more directly effective in developing the fruit and adds to the vigor of the plant. It is obtainable from the following sources: Kainet, 12 per cent., muriat of potash, 50 per cent., wood ashes, 5 to 20 per cent.

Since the elements already mentioned are required in different quantities by different plants, and since the soils vary in their supply, it is well for the farmer to know what his soil and plants need before investing his money in fertilizers.

The practical way for the farmer to know what his soil and plants need is to observe their growth. If the plants grow rapidly and make an abundance of leaf and stalk it is evidence of a good supply of nitrogen and if there is not a proportionate amount of fruit, it is a sure indication that the soil needs phosphoric acid. On the other hand, if the plant does not have a good color and tends to drop its fruit before it reaches a fair size, it indicates the soil requires potash.

There are too many farmers in Imperial Valley pursuing the foolish and almost criminal policy of shipping the best fertilizer out of the valley for a few dollars of present gain. This policy is doing the valley an incalculable injury and the powers that be ought to put a stop to it.

WILL ENTER LEMONS.

CORONA.—The lemon orchards of this district have had such a prosperous growing season and the fruit is presenting such an excellent appearance that Corona expects to be a real competitor for the first honors in lemons at the coming orange show at San Bernardino. The Corona exhibit will consist of twenty-four boxes of quality lemons, four boxes of extra quality, one box of commercial pack, and one tray of twelve lemons. While the display will specialize on lemons, there will also be a large showing of both Valencia and navel oranges.

DEMONSTRATION TOUR.

HEMET.—Prof. Bioletti, viticulturist and olive specialist, who has been making a tour of Riverside county giving demonstrations of scientific pruning, gave instruction recently at the Rush ranch at the head of the lake at Elsinore, where the proper pruning of grapes was dealt with. On the Sherman ranch at Elsinore he demonstrated how to handle the pruning knife on olive trees. One afternoon a number of Hemet people were present at Little Lake, where again olive pruning was dealt with. Prof. Bioletti has since been at the vineyard of the Hugh Proctor ranch at Coachella, and at the Bacon ranch near Mecca.

Out of the State shipments of plums jumped from 2483 cars in 1918 to 2918 cars for the year 1919. Good prices for shipping plums tends to restrict sales to the canneries and the estimated tonnage canned is placed at about the same figure as the year 1918.

THE SELECTION OF THE BREEDING SOWS.

BY JAMES ALDEN ROGERS.

If western swine breeders are to place their herds on a par with the best Middle Western swine, more attention must be paid to the selection of sows for the upbuilding of the herd. Increased interest in hog raising in California seems to indicate that the advantage of climate and variety of feed held by hog raisers, especially in the southern part of the State, will soon result in greatly increased production, and it is to be desired that the California pork will come up in quality to the California fruits and field crops.

The production of pork under economical conditions demands that only the best sows be saved for permanent use, the others being sent to market. It is poor policy to breed a sow which has not the conformation denoting the possible production of good healthy litters, a good milk flow, and which has not a long, deep body. The sow should show plenty of vitality, and an inclination to take exercise sufficient for the well being of herself and her offspring.

Pure-bred sows are a great advantage to increased pork production. The reasons why farmers should buy pure-breds may be summed up as follows:

(1.) They respond more readily to proper feeding.
(2.) They are more resistant to disease.
(3.) They are more dependable in regard to what may be expected in the way of offspring.
(4.) They attain a greater size than scrubs in the same length of time.
(5.) They are more easily handled.
(6.) They are better mothers.
(7.) They are of more interest to the producer.
(8.) They command a higher price on the market.

There is ample opportunity in the pork producing districts to secure through ordinary purchase and special sales pure-bred sows at less cost than the buyer would pay in the corn belt. But if the beginner feels he cannot pay the price for a pure-bred let him at least pursue a constant policy of grading-up his herd.

California needs more hogs on its farms. Better animals and better methods should be used in the upbuilding of these herds, and the selection of the breeding sow and gilt is of prime importance in this task. No meat producing animal is able to profitably produce so large a number of young within a given time as the sow which is rightly bred. Hence the State hog raisers and those who contemplate going into the hog business should strain a point and pay a little more for pure-bred sows. Litters will quickly repay the purchase price, and if a good boar is used, the hog raiser has a foundation for his herd assured.

The sow has under her care the future porkers produced on the farm, and this fact should be remembered. The best results can be had only when the females of the herd are individuals which, when mated to good sires, will transmit force and character to their offspring. Size and plenty of bone are equally as important in the brood sow as in the sire.

In brood sows, less compactness of form, with greater length of body, is desirable, especially through the hind quarters. The back and loin should be deep and well arched, as in the case of the sire. Smooth, deep and long sides are indispensable in good brood sows. A large number of well developed teats is another important feature. The sow should have a quiet disposition. A sow of nervous temperament frequently proves to be a poor mother.

In buying a bred sow, the buyer should be placed in full possession of all information regarding the sire she has been bred to. If the selection of the sow can be made where the sire can be seen at the same time, this is a great advantage.

Let us again emphasize the fact that pure-breds are best and most profitable. Conditions in California are now peculiarly favorable to the producers of pure-bred swine, and this condition prevails in adjoining States. There is and has been for months a big demand for western foundation stock, as the breeder takes a long chance on buying hogs of Middle Western firms by mail. There is every reason to believe that the future will see the greatest demand for prue-bred California stock that has ever been felt in the State.

Select your breed, and then demand good individuals of known blood of that breed. Good individuality is of like importance with good ancestry, for pedigreed scrubs occur in all breeds, and such are likely to be a disappointment to the breeder.

The spoiling of a bushel of potatoes, a dozen cantaloupes, a basket of grapes, or a crate of oranges represents an absolute loss to the community. The loss must be borne both by producer and consumer, and in many cases the distributor must share the burden.

PUREBRED SIRES MEAN CHEAPER BEEFSTEAK.

The use of more and better pure-bred sires is a dependable method of decreasing the costs of rib roasts and beefsteak, because cattle of better blood make more economical and rapid gains than do their scrub-ancestored rivals. Buying a good herd bull is the first step in growing better calves at much less cost per pound. In common or native cow herds, calves sired by pure-bred bulls weigh on an average about 125 pounds a head more when one year old than youngsters of the same age sired by the average run of scrub bulls, and they will sell for about 2 cents a pound more as stockers and feeders. Two-year-old steers sired by good pure-bred bulls weigh on an average about 200 pounds a head more than steers parented by scrub bulls, and sell for about 4 cents a pound more as stockers and feeders. This difference in price of the two classes of calves and steers applies not simply to the difference in weight, but to the total weight. For instance, in the case of yearlings, scrubs weigh about 300 pounds and sell for about 9 cents a pound, while grades at the same age weigh about 425 pounds and will sell for 11 cents a pound. Two-year-old scrubs weigh about 525 pounds a head and, valued at 8 cents a pound, will bring $42 a piece, while grades of equal age weigh about 725 pounds and, at 12 cents a pound as stockers and feeders, bring $87.

JERSEYS IN LIMELIGHT.

The coming sale on January 23, at El Monte, of the entire herd of Arden Dairy Jerseys is attracting unusual attention among dairymen and Jersey breeders. The Arden people have some excellent examples of the breed at their dairy. Three herd bulls, many bull calves, and more than 100 choice cows will be offered by Rhodes & Rhodes, auctioneers. Sons of imported bulls have sired some of the fine heifers in the sale.

LESS WINTER WHEAT BEING SOWN IN STATE.

Owing to unfavorable weather conditions—lack of rain and consequent lack of moisture of the soil—the acreage sown in California for the 1920 crop shows a decided falling off—751,000 as compared with 1,100,000 last year. It is also interesting to note the acreage sown for the 1920 crop in the United States shows a falling off of nearly 12,000,000.

The acreage harvested in the United States last year was 73,213,000, and the average yield per acre was 13.8 bushels, as compared with 15.1 on a five year's average. The total production was 910,937,000 bushels.

California harvested 990,000 acres of winter wheat in 1919. The yield per acre was 16¾ bushels, and the total production was 16,325,000 bushels. It is interesting and gratifying to note that this is the largest acreage and production the State has had since the year 1907.

WASTING OF MANURE INEXCUSABLE FOLLY.

BY WILL H. HUGHES.

No farming people have ever been able economically to maintain the fertility of their soils without the use of live stock. Farming without the use of manures is a waste of energy and results in the exhaustion of soils. A much greater value can be had from commercial fertilizers when supply, it is well for the farmer to know what his soil and plants need before investing his money in fertilizers.

The practical way for the farmer to know what his soil and plants need is to observe their growth. If the plants grow rapidly and make an abundance of leaf and stalk it is evidence of a good supply of nitrogen and if there is not a proportionate amount of fruit, it is a sure indication that the soil needs phosphoric acid. On the other hand, if the plant does not have a good color and tends to drop its fruit before it reaches a fair size, it indicates the soil requires potash.

Handling Nursery Trees.

right angles and the trees planted at the intersection of the furrows. About the only requisite for this system of laying off an orchard is that the man plowing must be able to plow a reasonably straight furrow.

Another method much used is that of measure and sight. The sighting stakes are usually plasterer's laths, which may be dipped in whitewash to make them more visible. The field is measured all around and stakes placed at the proper intervals. Then a line of laths is placed both ways through the middle and the job is finished by sighting. If one has patience and a good eye, very satisfactory work can be done with this method.

Perhaps the method in most common use and the one probably the most generally satisfactory is that of marking off with a wire. This wire, which is of the length desired, is marked at the proper intervals with a solder bead or some suitable indicator and is stretched across the field by means of iron stakes set as far apart as the rows are desired. A stake is set at each bead and the job is done.

No matter how carefully the field is laid out, the rows of trees will not be true unless some form of tree setter is used, either the straight bar or triangle form. The notched straight bar is a general favorite and gives excellent results. It consists of a board, one inch thick, four inches wide, and five feet long. At each end is an inch hole and at the middle is a good sized notch. The notch is placed about the stake where the tree is to be set and then a small stake is driven through the hole in each end. When the hole is dug and the tree set, the tree rests in the notch where the stake was and thus is placed at exactly the same point, giving the desired result of straight rows.

PLANTING DISTANCES.

Distances of planting vary somewhat with varieties of trees, as well as with soil conditions, but for most fruits, such as apricots, plums, peaches, oranges, etc., usually range from twenty to twenty-four feet. Walnuts should not be closer than sixty feet on good soil, figs and olives not closer than thirty-five. The following table gives the number of trees to the acre at various distances on the square system:

18 feet apart	134
20 " "	108
22 " "	90
24 " "	75
30 " "	48
36 " "	33
40 " "	27
48 " "	18
50 " "	17
60 " "	12

When the land has been prepared, the field laid off, and the trees have arrived, the next question is when to plant. Generally speaking, the time to plant is when the soil is in a good mellow condition so that it breaks up well and sifts down about the roots. If the soil is still wet and cold it is best to wait a little until it warms up. Early planting in cold soil does not give as good results as later planting when the soil is right. But when the time comes to plant, plant—even though everything else is not entirely finished.

One of the commonest mistakes made in planting is setting the trees too deep. Such trees rarely ever succeed, but are stunted and sooner or later must be pulled out. The writer has seen whole orchards where this mistake was the sole reason why trees were not doing well. Other things being equal, always set the tree so that when settled and established in place it is at about the same depth at which it stood in the nursery. With most trees this means that the bud union will be only an inch or so above the ground. This rule applies to practically all sorts of trees, even those purposely budded high.

There is little advantage under ordinary conditions in digging a hole much larger than just sufficient to take the spread of the roots. Make the hole just large enough to comfortably take the tree. But take every care to thoroughly sift the soil about the young roots and to firm it there. Air spaces under or near the roots annually cause the loss of many trees. But do not leave the surface soil too firmly packed. Leave a shallow mulch of loose soil on top. And never put manure or fertilizer in the hole with the tree. On top as a surface dressing, they are alright, but next to the roots they are apt to cause trouble.

Some nurseries make it the habit to trim back trees before shipment. It is much more desirable from the growers' standpoint that this be not done until the tree is planted. After planting do not permit the trees to stand any length of time without cutting back. To do so is dangerous as all that top is losing water and the tree has not yet had time to become established so that it can absorb moisture. Cut the tree back to a single whip at about knee high if it is a peach, apricot, almond or deciduous fruit. If it has made two years' growth in the nursery you may be able to use some of those framework branches, so cut them back accordingly.

But with cutting back the job is not yet finished. Sunburn and bores (which follow sunburn) annually kill and injure thousands of young trees. Be safe and whitewash that tree. And then follow with a tree protector (not black in color) as well. If you will do these things, the young tree will throw out a mass of short leafy growth which will add to its protection from these evils by shading.

LESS SPUDS, MORE MONEY.

The acreage of potatoes in California was 2000 less last year than in 1918, and the yield per acre was fourteen bushels less. Though the total production was 1,518,000 bushels less than last year, the crop brought to the growers very nearly $4,000,000 more. The 1919 commercial crop is estimated to be 4500 cars of 700 bushels each, compared to 6200 cars in 1918 and 4590 cars in 1917. The shipment of the early crop of commercial potatoes in 1919 amounted to 3520 cars of 600 bushels each compared to 4150 cars in 1918.

IMPORT MISSOURI BULLS.

GLOBE (Ariz.)—A new strain of blood is being introduced upon the ranges of Gila county by the importation of a large number of Hereford bulls from Missouri. John Armer has just returned from Harris, Mo., with three carloads of bulls, the third shipment from the same point to Globe.

A. S. Hoyt of the State department of agriculture visited Los Angeles recently in the interest of enforcement of the standardization law.

EASTERNERS ARRIVE FOR BIG HOG SALE.

Several hog breeders from the Middle West and from the North Pacific Coast have come to Southern California to be present and bid at the great sale of pure-bred Duroc swine at the Diamond Bar Ranch, Spadra, Los Angeles county, January 28. Walter T. Gatton, who is in charge of the sale, predicts that there will be the largest attendance at the sale of any hog sale yet held in this section.

Ord L. Leachman, the man who will handle the gavel at the sale, has issued a written statement saying among other things complimentary to the great animals to be offered that he has officiated at Duroc sales for many years all over the Coast, but has never before had the opportunity to sell such high-class sows and gilts as those bred to the champions Ace of Pathfinders and Mammoth Sensation, Jr., and to Great Sensation 2nd., winner in his class last year. These great boars are from the Pathfinder and Sensation champions of the corn belt.

At the sale there will be offered ten 2-year-old and senior yearlings by Bark's Premier Gano, King's Col., Selden Col. and Creator.

All great boars; one sire, Ace of Pathfinders, sold for $1,000 at the National Swine Show at Omaha; one of the foremost boars on the Coast. Pathfinder Wonder, A. Top Pathfinder and Creator, and ten Spring gilts by California's Great Wonder, champion of 1918.

CATALOGUES READY FOR DUROC SALE.

Members of the Duroc Breeders' Association of Southern California, who are vitally interested in the coming sale of pure-bred red hogs at the Ireland Ranch, Owensmouth, of forty bred sows and gilts and ten service boars, all of champion blood, are preparing to handle a large crowd at the ranch on January 30. The sale starts at 12:30, after a lunch served by the ranch.

In this notable sale the Ireland Ranch is selling four sows and gilts by Orion Cherry King; Don Graham is selling four fine gilts by Orion King Gano, and Avery Newton is offering six gilts by Crimson Wonder, a boar of great promise and performance.

Uncared for trees are a source of loss to the orchardist, and a menace to the neighboring orchard.

LOOKING OVER THE WINSOR DUROC HOGS.

Many interested hog breeders have visited the Winsor ranch, Bonita, during the past week to get an intimate view of some of the pure-breds which will be offered at the Winsor sale at Exposition Park, Los Angeles, January 29, according to the proprietors of that big establishment. R. K. Walker, who will be in charge of this, the first California sale of Winsor bred and Winsor sired Durocs, states that the finest individuals of the pedigreed herd will be shipped to the park several days before the sale in charge of competent herdsmen.

The news that the great Winsor Durocs are to be sold has attracted wide attention among hog men, not only in California, but in adjoining States, it was stated. That a score of the pure-bred sows in the sale will be bred to Winsor's Giant Orion is a fact that will draw many breeders to the sale, it is believed.

THE SELECTION OF THE BREEDING SOWS.

BY JAMES ALDEN ROGERS.

BEAN GROWERS NOT A TRUST, SAYS CHURCHILL.

R. L. Churchill, manager of the California Lima Bean Growers' Association, in a review of the last bean growing season from the association's standpoint, points out the reason why the co-operative marketing associations generally, and especially the Bean Growers' body, are not "trusts."

Mr. Churchill says that the association which he heads is interested only in trying to eliminate manipulation of markets and speculation, and in securing for its grower members such a price for their products as will return to them a fair and reasonable earning for the labor, material and capital invested.

"This last season," adds Mr. Churchill, "because of very short rainfall combined with the fact that only a little more than one-quarter of the acreage devoted to growing lima beans is under irrigation, the total production was only about one-third of the amount of the 1918 crop and a considerable part of this was produced upon the irrigated area, although even the best irrigated lands produced much less than a normal crop. As a consequence, many hundreds of growers harvested but a trifle more than the amount of seed they planted, and for many of them a price of even 50 cents a pound for their limas would not return the actual cost of production.

"The gathering of carefully detailed statements of the costs of production of the 1918 crop, for which season the yields were above normal, showed the average cost to be in the neighborhood of 8 cents per pound. Since the 1919 labor and material costs per acre were no lower, with the exception of a small item in bags, it is not necessary to furnish the thinking man with detailed affidavits in order to prove that with only about a third of a crop upon 90 per cent. of the same total acreage, the actual average per pound cost of producing lima beans of the 1919 crop must of necessity be considerably more than 14½ cents, which is the price at which the association commenced the selling of its limas this season.

Beans, though higher in price than they were several years ago, are still among the cheaper foods that can be bought today. They are one of the cheapest sources of protein and may be used to help supply this valuable food constituent in the diet.

CITRUS LABELING MACHINE INVENTED.

Ansel S. Wysong of Los Angeles, inventor of the walnut-labeling machine which is now being favorably considered for adoption by the California Walnut Growers' Association in connection with its $10,000 prize labeling appliance contest, has invented another machine for the labeling of oranges, lemons and grapefruit.

This machine makes use of an atuomatic vacuum process which prints a nonpoisonous label of any design on the fruit without injury to the skin. Such delicate fruit as tomatoes, it is stated by the inventor, have been successfully labeled. The capacity of the machine, it is stated, is limited only to the number of units in which it may be built. A four-unit machine, which is the standard size, has a given output of 5000 oranges, lemons or grapefruit per hour.

It has been pointed out thatthe labeling of such fruits as oranges and lemons would give considerable protection to the California growers that is now lacking. This is especially true in eastern markets. Californians generally are more or less familiar wit hthe fact that their citrus crops have different grades of quality. They are therefore able to judge more intelligently as to quality. However, the general public outside the citrus belt is not so well posted. This labeling device, says its inventor, will enable the outside public to choose the fruit with certainty as to quality by putting the "brand" on the fruit itself.

URGE EXTENSION OF CORN PLANTING AREA.

That the threatened decrease in the acreage giving over to growing stock feed should induuce farms to plant a greater acreage to Indian corn in Southern California is the statement of agriculturists who foresee a further increase in the cost of producing animal products if a greatly increased acreage of corn is not seeded this spring.

Early planting of large, productive varieties of corn in this section is frequently much more profitable than the normal planting of early maturing varieties, especially if grown for silage, says the chief of the Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture. Many rather soft varieties that rot badly when planted late produce sound corn when planted early in southern localities. The planting of short and long season varieties in alternate rows has increased yields where moisture is a limiting factor. Varieties differ, it has been found by the bureau's experiments, in their ability to adapt themselves to varying stands. Prolific varieties, when given increased space, have shown ability to increase their grain produc m much more satisfactorily than have the single ear varieties because of their ability to make up for deficiency in stand.

LIGHT CITRUS PRUNING SHOWS GOOD RESULTS.

PORTERVILLE.—That much discussed question of the virtue of the so-called "sucker" and "intermediate" growths on citrus trees appears to have been decided, at least in one instance, by the record in production of navel oranges from the C. Beaufort Hunt grove of seventy-five acres just south of here.

Some authorities assert that production of oranges on the so-called suckers is always problematical and that when fruit is produced it is of an indifferent quality. Pruning in the Hunt grove for the past two years has been done on just the opposite plan, wood being removed very sparingly and all suckers and intermediates allowed to grow unchecked, except where cross limbs or other deformities of the tree were formed.

This year literally carloads of fruit were borne on suckers—in fact a very large proportion of the fruit from the orchard came from that variety of growth. That the fruit is of good quality is indicated by the fact that the crop as a whole graded better than 90 per cent. fancy, and that there was not more than 6 per cent. of the entire output which went to standard. There were practically no culls.

Of the seventy-five acres in the Hunt property about sixty acres is in bearing. Despite the very high costs this year of labor, tractors, fertilizers, irrigation and other incidentals, the returns from the property will net around $30,000.

Mr. Hunt declares that severe pruning of orange trees and especially removal of wood because it happens to have a particular designation is as much of a mistake as the heading back of deciduous fruits, once almost universally practiced and which in the light of later practice has been shown a costly mistake.

The average price of all leading crops on November 1, 1919, was 3.7 per cent. higher than a year ago and 69.1 per cent. higher than the average for the five preceding years. The average production was about 0.7 per cent. lower than the 1918 aggregate production and 1.6 per cent. higher than the average preceding five years (1913-1917.)

LIVE-STOCK CIRCUIT NOW ASSURED FACT.

C. R. Thomas of Los Angeles, whose able management of the Liberty Fair of 1918 and the Los Angeles Live Stock Show of 1919 contributed so largely to the success of these great Southern California events, was elected president of the Western Fair Association on the occasion of the forming of this organization at San Francisco two weeks ago. The other officers are Frank M. Rothrock of Spokane, vice-president; Charles W. Paine of Sacramento, secretary-treasurer, and Walter C. Ficklin of Fresno and O. M. Plummer of Portland, members of the executive committee, in addition to the other officers.

A programme of live-stock shows for the Coast was drawn up, the list including some shows whose dates already have been determined and others being tentative. The list follows:

Sacramento State Fair, September 4 to 12; Tulare County Live Stock Show, September 14 to 18; Hanford (Kings County) Fair, September 21 to 25; Glenn County Live Stock Show, September 27 to October 2; Fresno District Fair, September 28 to October 2; Los Angeles Live Stock Show, October 2 to 10; Riverside (Southern California) Fair, October 11 to 16; San Francisco International Live Stock Show, October 16 to 24; Spokane, Western Royal Live Stock Show, November 1 to 5; Lewiston, Northwestern Live Stock Show, November 8 to 12; Portland, Pacific International Live Stock Show, November 15 to 19.

FEEDING SHEEP ON SMALL PASTURE AREA.

The old dictum of making two blades of grass prosper where one formerly succumbed has been applied to sheep farming in an experiment conducted by specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. A field of thirty acres has been used exclusively during the past four seasons, for producing forage crops to be harvested by sheep. The field is divided into ten plots, and during the recent season every portion grew at least two different crops, while on some of the unit areas three crops were grown and grazed.

Fall-sown wheat provided the earliest available pasturage in the spring, and after this was exhausted the sheep were shifted to an early spring sowing of oats and peas. Thence they moved to another tract of oats and peas, where they grazed luxuriantly and well until the supply of green stuff was curtailed, when they were transferred to alfalfa and rape pasturage. This medley mixture of green feed furnished good grazing until about the middle of July, when soy beans were available for pasture purposes.

As a consequence of the intensive utilization of pasture crops for mutton and wool production, this field of thirty acres furnished sufficient feed for seventy ewes and sixty lambs for a 200-day period. The best grazing resulted from a patch of three acres of soy beans, which carried sixty sheep for thirty days with satisfactory results. The system of management followed was to move the lambs and, as far as possible, the old ewes at regular intervals of not less than two weeks from one patch of green feed to another. This practice of moving the sheep frequently to fresh ground, as well as the plan of plowing the land for the subsequent crop, eliminated the danger of loss from stomach worms.

Although the system requires some extra preparation of the land and seeding, as well as shifting of the sheep from one plat to another and providing plenty of water for the mutton makers, it nevertheless is believed worthy of trial, especially in sections of high-priced farming land where a maximum return must be realized from every acre used.

There would be a higher expense for seed than in ordinary farming, but the amount of labor required and its distribution throughout the year would afford a very marked advantage in favor of sheep farming as compared with other agricultural activities producing an equal revenue, say U. S. Department of Agriculture specialists.

READY FOR BURR SALE.

Expansion of the dairy industry in the Southwest and the excellent offerings for the forthcoming Burr Farm sale has induced many dairymen and dairy cattle breeders to visit the Burr establishment during the past week, to look over the registered and high-grade bull calves and the cows of high milk production which are to be put up at auction there on January 27. Scores of dairymen have, in the past, strengthened their herds by buying good bull calves and cows from the Burr people, and, with few exceptions, it is said, these producers will appear again at the sale.

California produced an excellent fig crop last year, 105 per cent. of normal. Many large orchards will come into bearing this year.

Cows know what they like

Not only must the feed for your cows be good—it must taste good to them! Your cows know what they like. And—you know that the most profitable cow is the cow that converts the most feed into money. It will pay you to feed SUREMILK because your cows "take to it" naturally. They will yield more milk—and that means they will yield more money.

SUREMILK is a highly concentrated grain feed. It has a higher feeding value than any one grain because it is a mixture of grains—and, therefore, more palatable.

Moreover, comparative feeding tests have proved that SUREMILK will give better results—either more butter fat or greater increase in weight—than any single grain.

Special note to hog-raisers

Hog-raisers have found that feeding SUREMILK builds the porkers up and fattens 'em up. It's better than any one grain such as corn or milo or millet—because it is a mixture of many grains. Economical, too—because it is highly concentrated in feeding value and does not bulk.

If you want to know just how different stock feeds compare in food value—send for the new edition of our booklet, "Converting Feed Into Money." Full of practical information and profit-hints. Send for this booklet today—it's free. Simply cut out and mail the coupon below.

GREAT INCREASES IN CROP PRODUCTION.

GLENDALE (Ariz.)—While the Salt River Valley of Arizona, under the Roosevelt irrigation project, made some great strides forward in production, during the year just closed, it remained for the Glendale district, in the north part of the valley, to outstrip all its neighbors of Maricopa county in actual increase of production, as is manifested by the figures just compiled by the Glendale District Commercial Club.

Statistics furnished by the Santa Fe officials show that 700 per cent. more wheat was shipped from the Glendale district in 1919 than for the year before. Cotton shipments show an increase in 1919 over 1918 of 400 per cent. Other increases in shipments of farm products follow:

Grain shipments in 1919 increased 54 per cent. over 1918.

Cantaloupe shipments, despite the fact that 300 carloads were lost through an unprecedented rain, increased 10 per cent. over 1918.

Lettuce shipments increased 20 per cent. over the former year, this year's lettuce crop, now coming on the market, will be 40 to 60 per cent. heavier than in 1919, according to the produce growers' exchange.

Alfalfa shows an increase of but 1 per cent., while cattle shipments declined 31 per cent. This is due to the fact that the land has become so valuable for cotton raising and other crops showing a higher net return than was made out of dairy and beef cattle, that the dairy herds have been allowed to decrease fully 50 per cent., and beef cattle are being fattened in other parts of the county where the land is not so productive.

As the season's cotton crop, amounting to some 5400 bales for this district, averaged the growers 30 cents a pound, or $400 a bale, it is expected that even greater acreage will be devoted to the long-staple cotton this year. A number of instances of ranchers having paid for their land in full with the single year's cotton crop are on record in the Glendale district, where cotton land, formerly selling at around $225 to $300 an acre, has now advanced to between $300 and $450 an acre. Cash rent last year averaged $40; this year the price has advanced to $60, but as the cotton growers figure they can mature a crop at an expense of $30 an acre, or a total of $140 on a basis of $60 rent, rent lands are in demand, as the average production in this district was close to a bale to the acre.

SHIPMENTS OF PEARS.

Out of the State shipments of pears in 1919 amounted to 4248 cars, compared to 4572 cars in 1918. Estimates place the production of dried pears at about 5000 tons, which means approximately 27,000 tons of green pears. Reports indicate that around 30,000 tons were sold to the canneries. Canners paid the growers $85 per ton for No. 1 pears, and $52.50 for No. 2's, while windfalls generally sold for $35. Prices for shipping pears varied considerably. An average of $72 a ton or $1.80 per bushel is believed to be a fair price for the entire crop.

BERRY CULTURE IN VAN NUYS DISTRICT.

Berry growing, while not developed on a large scale in the Van Nuys community, has nevertheless shown wonderful possibilities, and is destined for more attention during the year now starting. Raspberries, youngberries, Black Cap raspberries and fresh strawberries have interested prominent berry growers, who have bought land and will plant large acreage to different kinds of berries. The Van Nuys soil conditions are pronounced ideal for berry culture and growers there look for great developments in this line.

"for tree planting genuine GIANT is most satisfactory"

The Giant Farm Powders—Eureka Stumping and Giant Stumping—loosen and pulverize the soil instead of packing it and throwing it high in the air.

Western fruit growers have used hundreds of tons of these Giant Powders for blasting beds for trees. They have proved that blasting with genuine Giant Powders provides free drainage, increases moisture-storage capacity and insures vigorous growth and early bearing.

"My trees planted three years ago in beds blasted with Giant Powder are 75 to 100 per cent bigger and better than the trees that I planted in dug holes," writes H. H. Smith, Oregon City.

You will enjoy reading "Better Farming with Giant Farm Powders." It describes all the new and money-saving methods of blasting beds for trees, subsoiling established groves and orchards, clearing land, ditching, etc. Write for it now.

R. L. Churchill, manager of the California Lima Bean Growers' Association, in a review of the last bean growing season from the association's standpoint, points out the reason why the co-operative marketing association (more generally, and especially the Bean Growers, body, are not "trusts."

Mr. Churchill says that the association which he heads is interested only in trying to eliminate manipulation of markets and to establish and maintain for its grower members a fair and reasonable profit on the crops they grow, and that is all.

BEAN GROWERS NOT A TRUST, SAYS CHURCHILL.

CITRUS LABELING MACHINE INVENTED.

Ansel S. Wysong of Los Angeles, inventor of the walnut-labeling machine which is now being favorably considered for adoption in connection with its $10,000 prize labeling appliance contest, has invented another machine for the labeling of oranges, lemons and grapefruit.

This machine makes use of an automatic vacuum process which prints a nonpoisonous label of any design on the fruit without the machine, it is stated, is limited only to the number of units in which it may be built. A four-unit machine, which is the standard size, has a given output of 5000 oranges, lemons or grapefruit per hour.

It has been pointed out that the labeling of such fruits as oranges and lemons would [illegible] tourists generally are more or less familiar with the fact that their citrus crops have [illegible] especially true in eastern markets. MEXICAN FARMERS IN SEARCH OF TRACTORS.

Sr. Alberto Almada, of Nabogoa, Sonora, Mex., and Sr. E. F. Loaiza, of Hermosillo, Sonora, who were buying tractors and other farm machinery in Los Angeles last week for their Mexican ranches, state that no visits by bandits or other disturbances have occurred in Sonora for over a year, and that great progress has been made in agriculture in that State during the past twelve months. The visitors state that Americans and Amer-

Sr. Almada has a tract of 15,000 acres, which are farmed to garbanzo beans, a product that largely goes to Spain and Porto Rico. It is stated that the garbanzo grows to great perfection in the valley of the Rio Mayo, in Central Sonora. The Mexicans throw up high borders and flood the land, using water from the river, to a depth of about three feet. This water is allowed to soak in, and when the ground is dry enough to be worked, in the fall, the beans are sown, and the crop comes off between [illegible] and July 1, without further irrigation.

The natives thresh the garbanzos by hand, using the old-fashioned flail. But Srs. Almada and Loaiza will take back with them modern threshers to speed up that part of the work.

a farm-business machine

Built into every "Caterpillar" Tractor is a big, sound farming-business principle: lowest cost per working hour.

To the manufacturer this principle demands the construction of the very best, the most efficient machine manufacturing skill can produce—a machine accurate to a hair's breadth in every detail—one that stands up under the heaviest work any tractor can be called upon to perform.

To you this principle means that the "Caterpillar" Tractor will pay back in shortest time every dollar you invest in it. It is a farming-business proposition pure and simple. It enables you to plow better and more economically; it enables you to cultivate better and more economically; it enables you to harvest better and more economically.

"Caterpillar" Tractor owners all over the world have proved the truth of these statements. The "Caterpillar" Tractor's record in war and in peace is a story of exceptional performance at lowest cost per working hour.

If you are interested in cutting down your farming expenses by modern tractor methods—write today for the story of the "Caterpillar" Tractor so that you can judge for yourself.

FARM POWER MACHINES ATTRACT FARM WORKER

A large proportion of men who seek work on farms are below the age of 35 years, generally men who are attracted by improved machinery for crop production. A tractor working in field or orchard, a new thresher, milking machines, or any of the new mechanical aids to farming are powerful influences in inducing workers to accept employment on farms using these new machines. There is still a shortage of farm laborers, and there will probably be a shortage through the next harvest. Tractors and other improved farm power machines are doing a great work in recruiting men for the vital work of food production, say farmers who have come to a realization of this fact.

When farm workers casually meet, there is almost invariably a discussion of the equipment on the several farms in the vicinity, to the detriment of those places which are run down in the matter of machinery and "things to do with." It is a matter of pride to a hired worker to state that his employer purchases modern equipment, striving to aid his men in every way, and to make his farm more efficient.

Even if the farm worker does not drive a tractor or superintend the operation of farm machines, he is partial to the farms that employ these machines when it comes to selecting a place to work.

A large proportion of farm workers are mechanically inclined, and desire to extend their knowledge of mechanics by operating a tractor or other machine on the farm. This is one of the reasons why the tratcor farmer generally has more applications for work from men than the farmer who does not employ machinery for larger and better production.

Following horse drawn implements through the field is not such drudgery when the animals are well trained to the work, and the soil is not too resistant. Driving a tractor which readily responds to a turn of the wheel or a shift of the levers is, however, much more to the worker's liking.

SAYS IMPERIAL IS ADAPTED TO RICE.

CALEXICO.—Gee Shoon of San Francisco, editor of a Chinese journal, and promoter of many enterprizes in which the Chinese of California are interested, has been in the Imperial Valley investigating conditions here with regard to the growing of rice on a large scale. This is what he says:

"I am convinced that the Imperial Valley offers the best inducements to capital invested in the rice-growing industry of any part of the State I have visited. Rice can be grown here, I am positive, in great quantities and of the finest quality. The soil is ideal—that is the heaver lands situated where drainage can be obtained, and the climate is probably the most favorable of any locality in the United States that I know of. Hot weather, hot days and warm nights are necessary for the growing and ripening of rice. There is only one thing that I have found that might prove an obstacle and that is the water question. Rice cannot be grown without water, and plenty of it and in a supply to be had at the time it is needed.

"In the Imperial Valley rice should be planted about the first of March. The crop should be ready for harvest in about 120 days. Nearly all of this time water must stand on the land, since rice grows to maturity in water. When the plants are a few inches in height, the water must be turned on, and the amount must be increased as the plants grow. Practically speaking, the land must be submerged for three and a half months. When the heads of the grain ripen and begin to turn downward the water is shut off, the land drained and dried and the rice harvested much as wheat or rye is harvested. Here in the Imperial Valley headers could be used, saving the time and expense of binding, shocking and other items. If the assurance of plenty of water can be had, there is no reason why rice cannot be grown and the industry made one of the leading ones in the valley."

WALNUT CROP SPLENDID.

The California walnut crop of 1918 was a trifle better than 20,000 tons. New bearing and older trees together with favorable growing conditions make the year 1919 bigger still, however, the estimated production amounting to 26,500 tons. Prices to growers varied with the size, quality and variety of nut, but it is believed the average will be about 28 cents per pound or $560 per ton.

Lubrication Vital Factor.

The operator should examine the oil frequently from the lower cock for evidence of sediment, and the oil should not be used more than forty hours of continuous work at the most. Oil loses greatly in viscosity, gravity and in resistance to heat with wear.

TO PREVENT DILUTION.

Tractors using kerosene, and, to a lesser degree, those using distillate, are generally fitted with an intake warming arrangement to heat the fuel before it enters the combustion chamber, and thus to prevent condensation of the fuel and dilution of the oil. But in this climate it does not take long for the cheaper grades of fuel to become heated by the motor, thus preventing dilution.

Even in tractors specifying kerosene, however, little of this fuel is used in California, where the western distillates are cheap and vaporize more easily.

The oil used in the transmission, if it is not fed from the same splash or pump as the mother parts of the motor, should be a little heavier than the oil used to lubricate the pistons, cylinders and motor bearings. In lubricating the differential, follow your instruction book, which will either specify a very heavy grade of oil, or some sort of grease. Pump out the differential grease or oil frequently from the tractor and put in new grease, as considerable heat is generated in this part of the tractor, and a poor grease breaks down rapidly and deteriorates. Be sure and attend to the grease cups. Never use a solid grease in the transmission.

In repairing or overhauling the motor, the operator should wipe clean from dirt the apertures of the engine cylinder doors, etc., and not allow any dirt to fall into the oil from clothing or other articles. Do not use waste or rags in the crankcase of any engine as parts of this material are liable to fall into the oil and clog the system. Rinse all wrenches or other tools in distillate before working on the bearings of the motor. Keep the oil at the proper level in the crankcase. Do not let it vary an inch. In order to insure this proper level, have a well stoppered can of oil handy at all times.

LUBRICATION A VITAL FACTOR IN OPERATION OF TRACTORS.

BY MARVIN H. LOOMIS.

IF ALL the machinery parts which have been worn out through faulty lubrication or lack of lubrication since the days of Watt were piled in one heap, the resultant mountain would compare favorably in size with the pyramid of Cheops. But it would be a monument to the carelessness or ignorance of machinery owners, not a reminder of the greatness of an Egyptian king. Many a lesser monument to thoughtlessness in the shape of a tractor, rusty and disused, lies behind the farm barn, uttering its own epitaph, "They Forgot to Oil and Grease Me."

In discussing the important subject of lubrication and lubricants, what the tractor owner wants is not high-sounding laboratory words, not formulas, heat tests, oil specifications, etc., but plain directions as to how and when to lubricate, and what body of lubricant to use under certain conditions. It is not possible to give exact directions for lubrication of the hundred or more makes of tractors, but the basic principles of lubrication apply to every case.

The object of lubrication is to reduce friction between the bearing metal parts of the machine. A film of some sort of lubricant, preferably oil, must separate the bearing parts to take up the wear, instead of the metal surfaces; to fill up the minute depressions in the metal and to act as a cushion to absorb the friction and heat. Excessive friction means a loss of power and wear on the parts. Lubrication is more vital in the operation of the tractor than in the automobile, because the tractor engine generates greater heat—2000 to 3000 deg. Fahr., and because the outside parts generally come in contact with more dust and dirt. Therefore, the tractor purchaser should remember that the first thing to do before operating a tractor is to lubricate it, and the last thing to do is to oil and grease it.

Automotive engineers estimate that 20 per cent. of the power generated by a correctly lubricated motor is used to overcome the friction of the various parts. This power waste is increased, of course, when the lubrication is faulty in application or body. Thus the power developed by the tractor is greatly dependent upon the correct lubrication of the machine.

WHERE LUBRICANTS GO.

The parts of a tractor requiring most lubrication are the motor, cylinders, pistons, crankshaft, main and rod bearings, transmission and track, where the track is used on the machine. Tractors are lubricated by the splash and force feed systems where the motors are concerned. The full force feed plan is probably the ideal one, as the oil is forced into the bearings by a pump. As it is impossible to use two different kinds of oil in the motor, it is necessary to use the correct oil to lubricate all parts under extreme varying conditions. The ideal oil for tractor motors must have excessive body at normal temperatures in order to have sufficient body at high temperatures to correctly lubricate the pistons, cylinders and wrist pins. The oil must be capable of withstanding the heat without burning, decomposing or thinning. It must be able to resist being squeezed out between crankshaft, piston and pin bearings. The clearance between pistons and cylinder walls in a correctly assembled tractor is very small, and the oil should be fluid enough so that it will quickly penetrate these places.

It is important not to use too much oil If too much oil is fed to the motor, it will pass the piston rings, lessen the value of the explosive mixture, cause a loss of power and result in carbon deposits. If a correct oil is used in the right quantities, it will cause little if any carbon. When the pistons have been poorly fitted, and the cylinder walls are scored, or if an oil unsuited to the motor is used, carbon deposits are almost sure to form, causing more scoring, preignition and consequent loss of power. But underfeeding, supplying too small a quantity of oil, means excessive friction, overheating and wear on the parts. Hence the tractor owner should study the lubrication chart in his instruction book very closely and follow it religiously.

THE COOLING SYSTEM.

It is important that the cooling system of the tractor be in good working order, else the film of oil on the motor and bearing parts will be destroyed by excessive heat. If the cooling medium fails, the temperature of the bearing surfaces will rise to a point where the oil will not keep the surfaces apart. About 10 per cent. of the power generated in the motor is absorbed to overcome the friction of the pistons, and it is therefore necessary to keep the radiator well filled and in good working order and the fan working, in order to assure proper lubrication.

When the oil breaks down under the influence of excessive heat, a sediment forms, a finely divided carbonaceous material that has no lubricating power, merely displacing good oil in the bearings and other metal surfaces. This sediment does great damage to the wearing parts, and should be eliminated. Some careful tractor owners drain the oil from their machines after each full day's work and allow the oil to settle overnight using the top half of the oil added to new oil the next morning. Other operators discard the old oil and put in a gallon of new oil, using the oil to lubricate springs, outside bearings, etc., and this is the best plan, the smallness of the expense being all out of proportion to the great return in the longer wear of the parts. Every ten days or two weeks the crank case should be drained and flushed out with kerosene to remove vestiges of the deposit Oil should be handled carefully, and kept tightly corked before it is used. An air cleaner should be attached to the intake pipe of the oil pump, if none is provided.

GREAT IRRIGATION WORKS DAMAGED.

PHOENIX (Ariz.)—It has developed that much damage was done by the last Verde River raise to the Granite Reef Dam across Salt River, the concrete structure that diverts nearly all the water used for irrigation within the Salt River Valley. The dam is on bedrock, save for a short distance near its center, where a V-shaped crevice is bridged by piling, upon which the superstructure is continued. Downstream is a long apron, cement-faced, designed to prevent undercutting. This apron was found to have been injured by the late flood and now is being repaired with all speed, in view of the probable coming of an even greater flood after the Roosevelt Reservoir shall have been entirely filled, something expected within a month. Conditions just now are favorable for the work of repair, as the two big head canals can carry all the water. The diversion dam itself is only a few feet high and at present almost filled by silt.

The same flood took away much of the Buckeye Dam and diverted the channel of the Gila River. Further down stream, the damage to the Gillespie Dam is estimated at $80,000, much of it the value of timbering of falsework torn away and floated off.

One mile below the Buckeye head, permission has been given for construction of a dam by the Gruell Association that is building a new four-mile ditch.

Permission also has been given the Paradise-Verde Water Users' Association for the building of storage dams in the channels of New River, Cave Creek and Skunk Creek, important torrential streams that break through the mountains north of Phoenix.

WAREHOUSE PROJECTED.

PHOENIX (Ariz.)—There now is strong probability of the establishment here of a fireproof bonded warehouse and hydraulic cotton compress, to cost about $250,000. It is to be financed outside of the principal buying organizations, as it is intended to obviate the present system of generally selling direct to the gins. The plan is backed by the Arizona American-Egyptian Cotton Growers' Association. It is urged that such a warehouse would simplify grading and would permit the selling of quantities of cotton of guaranteed grade. It is proposed also to make advances to growers and, generally, to act as financial agent for a considerable proportion of the cotton acreage. Opposition to the compress, as possibly hurting the cotton, is answered by a statement that the hydraulic process to be installed would do no damage.

That many of the most important and productive sections of California where milo maize and Egyptian corn is grown will have extensive warehousing facilities for taking care of these two crops during 1920, is the present indication from advices reaching officials of the Alfalfa Growers of California, Inc., with headquarters in Los Angeles.

TRACTOR ASSOCIATION OFFICERS CHOSEN.

Directors of the Tractor and Implement Dealers' Association of Southern California have chosen as officers the following men:

President, W. W. Rainey, of the Avery Company; vice-president, Thomas F. Osborne, of the B. Hayman Company; secretary and treasurer, A. W. Hudson, of the Killefer Manufacturing Company. Other directors of the association, who will meet with the officers to complete organization this week, are: E. G. Judah, Community Manufacturing Company; H. L. Marsh, Samson Sales Company; W. F. Gregory, of William Gregory & Sons, and Cecil George, A. F. George Company.

The directors, it is understood, will soon meet to discuss the question of whether the association shall this year attempt to stage a large tractor demonstration.

TRACTOR FIRM HOLDS INSTRUCTION COURSE.

A three-day session of the Case tractor service school was held at the Los Angeles branch of the J. I. Case Threshing Machine Company, January 8, 9 and 10, more than 100 men interested in tractors attending. The lectures were in charge of G. H. McCray, of the research department of the factory. Mr. McCray was assisted by D. J. Thomas, traveling service man, and J. D. Reed, head of the Los Angeles branch service department. Manager E. Brown of the local branch provided quarters on the second floor of the building at Los Angeles and Market streets for the session.

The lectures and illustrative shop work on tractors are a part of the Case scheme to provide free of charge to all who are interested, thorough and practical instruction in the operation and repair of Case machines. From Los Angeles the school heads will go to Lindsay, Brawley, Fresno, San Francisco and Salt Lake.

The factory instructors carry with them four reels of films showing the making of the Case from the raw material to the finished product; also 350 stereopticon views of the various parts of the tractor. The lectures were on the various phases of construction and repair of farm machines.

EXPERIMENTS IN DRY FARMING PLANNED.

RIVERSIDE.—Eighteen Riverside county farmers have set aside a portion of their lands for the purpose of trying out the methods of "Dry Farm" Campbell of the Southern Pacific Railway's land department. The decision was reached by the farm centers of Perris, Murrietta and the Moreno-Armada district, following a recent conference with Campbell.

Plowing will be done as much before the principal rains as possible, and for winter or spring seeding will be from five to six inches deep, while plowing for summer tilling may be from six to seven inches."

California's almond crop, which will be 98 per cent. of the nation's production, will be the largest in history, 7000 tons, valued at $3,000,000.

THE ABOVE PRICE IS LESS THAN MANUFACTURER'S PRICE TO DISTRIBUTORS—DELIVERED, AND WE ARE COAST AGENTS.

We Will Sell The Whitney 9-18 Tractors at $750.00 f.o.b. warehouse points (Pasadena, Fresno and Sacramento.) The machines are brand new—have never been used, and are guaranteed to be as represented. Each machine will deliver its stated full horse power on drawbar and pulley (9-18.) At the recent Sacramento Tractor Demonstration, the Whitney (competing in the field) finished with perfect score (with power in reserve.) The Whitney is the result of 17 years of successful manufacture.

If You Delay it means disappointment. Machines limited—so is the time. Buy your tractor NOW. We can arrange terms to suit purchaser—or spot cash. Remember—until February 1, $750.00 f.o.b. warehouse (Pasadena, Fresno and Sacramento.) Regular price is $1365.00.

LUBRICATION A VITAL FACTOR IN OPERATION OF TRACTORS.

BY MARVIN H. LOOMIS.

IF ALL the machinery parts which have been worn out through faulty lubrication or lack of lubrication since the days of Watt were piled in one heap, the resultant mountain would compare favorably in size with the pyramid of Cheops. But it would be a monument to the carelessness or ignorance of those who have failed to realize the importance of lubrication.

In discussing the important subject of lubrication and lubricants, what the tractor Mr. "They Forget to Oil and Grease Me" operator wants is not high-sounding laboratory a lesser monument to thoughtlessness in the shape of a tractor; rusty and disused, lies behind the farm barn, uttering its own epitaph. "They Forget to Oil and Grease Me."

GREAT IRRIGATION WORKS DAMAGED.

PHOENIX (Ariz.)—It has developed that much damage was done by the last Verde River rise to the Granite Reef Dam across Salt River, the concrete structure that diverts nearly all the water used for irrigation within the Salt River Valley. The dam is on bedrock, save for a short distance near its center, where a V-shaped cravice is bridged by piling, upon which the superstructure is continued. Downstream is a long apron, cement-faced, designed to prevent undermining. This apron was found to have cations, etc., but plain directions as to how and when to lubricate, and what body of lubricant to use under certain conditions. It is not possible to give exact directions for lubrication of the hundred or more makes of tractors, but the basic principles of lubrication apply in every case.

The object of lubrication is to reduce friction between the bearing metal parts of the machine. A film of some sort of lubricant, preferably oil, must separate the bearing parts to take up the wear, instead of the metal surfaces; to fill up the minute depressions in the metal and to act as a cushion to absorb the friction and heat. Excessive friction means a loss of power

To the Highest Bidder Will It Be You?

I have cried registered Duroc-Jersey sales from Oregon to the Mexican line, but never before have I had the opportunity of offering to my friends and customers such high-class stocks as will go under my hammer at the Diamond Bar Ranch sale.

Think of it! You can secure at your own prices sows and gilts of the same blood lines as animals that have been establishing world records in both sale and show rings back in the Corn Belt. Some of the sows are full and half sisters to these world record animals, and they are bred to boars that not only represent the best blood lines of the breed, but have won in the show ring this season and established enviable reputations for themselves.

This is your Big Opportunity to get started right or to improve an established herd. Don't let anything on earth prevent you from attending the sale.

The farmers will contribute their land before plowing. In order to make the fertilizer ball of the furrow 8in and 8in. Mr. Campbell contends that this lower stratum, or root bed, should be reduced to a condition which will cause it to absorb and hold water like a sponge, as it is here that the various elements, as peat, air and water, are combined, transformed and promoted into plant energy.

The top common idea of summer-fallow is to simply let the land rest, according to Campbell. "Please forget this," he tells the dry farmers, "and turn your attention to the question of getting the soil into such condition that it will work all summer improv-

As fast as possible the Burr Farm is giving every cow an official yearly record, for they realize that it is an all-year-around cow that makes the money.

The Burr Farm joined the Los Angeles County Cow Test Association when it was formed in May, 1918, and has records on all the Grade Cows included in the sale, which will be furnished with each cow sold.

Fifty of the Grade Cows in the sale are either two or three years old and they are all good cows. They are only being sold because room must be made for the largely increasing herd of purebreds.

Burr Farm is also carrying their Registered Holsteins on official yearly—test under the supervision of the Holstein Association.

In buying Registered Bulls at this sale you can secure fine individuals backed by official records of production. Extended pedigrees and records of production will be furnished at the farm on day of sale.

The following are records of some of the cows on Burr Farm:

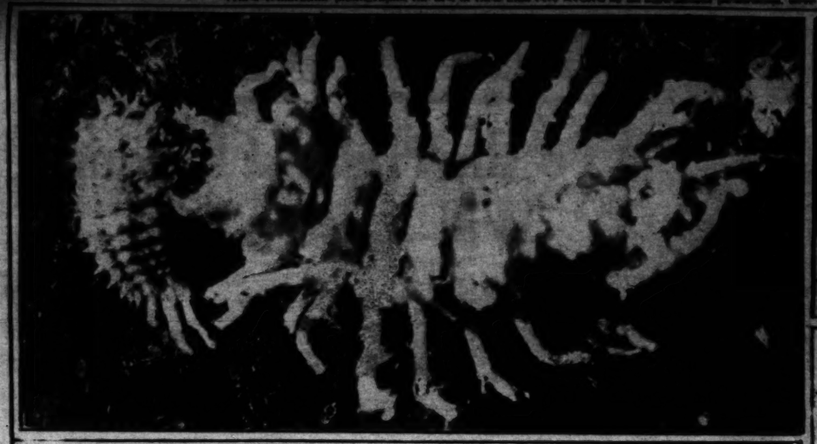
"Close-ups" of the Bugs That are Working for and Against the Growers in California's Orchards and Fields.



The Cryptolaemus montrouzieri (as may well be believed of anything with such a name) is most ferocious. Witness this brutal assault upon the helpless Chrysolobus mealy bug, whose sole offense had been the ruination of a perfectly good lemon. This senseless murder of the microscopic world is the larva form of what afterwards turns out to be a fairly presentable ladybird beetle. Both larva and beetle have lusty appetites and will clean up a colony of mealy bugs in quick order. The scientific gentlemen of Alhambra explain that the grotesque "legs" of the monster here pictured are not legs at all, but "cotton-y filaments."

How it was done. Photographer G. L. Geoffroy of the Times staff, (left) with his ingenious microscopic camera, and Harold Compere of the California Office of Pest Control at Alhambra. They are posing a refrigerator bug.

A colony of citrus mealy bugs. Note the different sizes. Once a mealy bug, always a mealy bug, is the rule, for there is only one stage of development from the egg.

Bean weevil adults. This is the destructive Bruchus obtectus. These hardy bugs promptly came to life after having been supposedly killed by cyanide gas for the convenience of the camera man.

Alhambra As a Center of Entomological Research.

BY VIRGINIA NIELSEN.

HUNDREDS of thousands of dollars are spent every year by the United States Department of Agriculture, the agricultural departments of the various States, the universities of the country and various public and private agencies in the investigation and study of insect and fungus pests inimical to agricultural production. And nowhere has this work been developed to a greater extent than in California, which, because of the very diversity of its crop yields, must be on its guard against about every pest known.

Southern California in particular has had to be on the watch for destructive insect foes and Federal and State agencies have centered many of their most noteworthy research activities in this end of the State. The little city of Alhambra, adjoining Los Angeles, has within the last few years become the main center for these entomological investigations.

Prof. Russel Wagbum has been carrying on research on citrus pests for the government in Alhambra for four years. The State of California maintains a pest control office in charge of Horace Armitage. Walter P. Campbell, Federal expert interested in investigations looking to the control of truck garden pests, followed Mr. Wagbum a short time after. O. A. Larsen came from Utah and set up an establishment for the study of the bean weevil. D. G. Milbrath, another government man, and whose work in the investigation of fungus growths destructive to fruit and vegetables, came next. The latest addition to the colony of orchardists is Harold Compere, representing the State Department of Agriculture, and who is combatting the black scale.

Citrus fruit pest investigation has been the largest work carried on by Mr. Wagbum and Mr. Armitage. Mr. Wagbum is specializing in ant control as a means of fighting the citrus mealy bug pest. The mealy bug, known to science as the Pseudococcus citri, is one of the most formidable pests the citrus growers have to deal with. Because it has a long proboscis, it is able to penetrate the skin of the fruit and extract the juice without taking any of the poison which may be thoughtfully sprayed on the outside by the fond orchardist. It exudes a peculiar substance known as honey dew. This is particularly delicious to the ant, which by various means will protect the mealy bug against any natural enemy it might meet or might have.

At the State Insectary, as Mr. Armitage's station is commonly known, the work has been largely that of studying, breeding and distributing natural enemies of the mealy bug. The most efficient one yet discovered is probably the Cryptolaemus montrouzieri, a native of Australia. This is used both in the larva and the adult stages, and is better known in its latter stage as a species of the ladybird. They are particularly productive during the summer months, when they are usually liberated in groves.

Mr. Milbrath's station is known as the Office of Cotton and Truck Crop Disease Investigations. The fungus specialist secures vegetables from gardens and markets and works out various control methods. The microscope plays a big part in Mr. Milbrath's work.

Mr. Campbell's investigations have to do with the breeding of natural enemies of the truck crop insect pests. His greatest problem has been the extermination of the pea and bean aphid. His plant is now being installed in new quarters.

Black scale, that pernicious enemy of the perfect orange tree, bids fair to have the same treatment accorded it as the mealy bug has received. The particular parasite which Mr. Compere is hopeful will be a serious enemy to the scale has been recently imported from South Africa, and is known as the Aphycus lounsburyi. The female is equipped with a long ovipositor which it inserts under the ventral surface of the scale when it is in the "rubber stage." When the larvae develop they destroy the contents of the scale. Two other scale-eating parasites, the Scutellista cyanea and the Metaphicus ventralis, have not shown up so well as the new African importation. The black scale is an extremely costly pest, causing general damage running into the millions. So far fumigation has been the only method of dealing with it.

The housewife who serves steaming baked beans to her family does not know that in a little bungalow on a quiet residence street in a wee California town a studious scientist and his assistant are studying the life and habits of a diminutive bug that constantly makes serious inroads in the nation's bean crops. Mr. Larsen came to Alhambra less than a year ago, and established the only California station for the study of insects attacking stored products.

Aphis vitisny, showing both wingless and winged forms. The various forms of this pest do an untold damage in Southern California.

Black scale after one of the older scale parasites, the Scutellista cyanea, has served its useful purpose. The larvae have done their work effectively, eating everything but the shell, and have emerged by the simple process of cutting out an opening. Fumigation has thus far been the only successful means of scale control, but the experimental results accomplished with parasites lead investigators to hope that the "long rat bug" plan may yet work out.

No trap nest needed here. This Aphycus lounsburyi (it was recently introduced from South Africa) was caught in the act of depositing eggs under a black scale. The little insect, which may prove to be a "white hope" in the fight against the serious citrus pest, has a long ovipositor which it inserts clear under the scale's ventral surface. The larvae when hatched immediately become industrious and eat the contents. The main difficulty in the use of the various scale parasites is that their work is begun a little late, or after the scale has developed and done much damage. The scientists hope to change the cycle of their lives so that these beneficial insects may start reproducing themselves earlier.
